Nijs Snellius remained unmarried. He was "Master Painter and Glazier" at Franeker, which his father Rense Nijsses Snellius had also been, before the latter became indoor father of the Klaarcampster Weeshuis (orphanage). Moreover, in a deed following below he is called "merchant", and he held the office first of Burger-Sergeant (citizen sergeant), later of Burger-Luitenant (citizen lieutenant) and of Hopman (captain) of the civic guard at Franeker.

According to what has been reported on page 326, Nijs Snellius inherited from his parents, among other things, one of their houses situated on the Noordermolenstraat at Franeker, which consisted of the corner house on the Nauwe Steeg and the adjoining property lying (to the East) of it. As appears from the following entry in the Franeker Protocolboek (register of deeds), Nijs Snellius in 1790 bought a part of the property standing to the East of his house on the Noordermolenstraat, so that he inherited from his parents the 2nd house from the Nauwe Steeg, while the corner house on the Noordermolenstraat and the Nauwe Steeg came to the children of his sister Aaltje Snellius:

> "9 April 1790 (page 191). Trijntje Hanecrood, widow of the late Mr. Old Secretary G. de Keth, sells, for myself and as administratrix of my late husband's estate, to Nijs Snellius, Master Painter and Glazier at Franeker, a certain part of a house and rear yard, standing and situated on the Noord on the Oude Koornmarkt[1] within Franeker, at present used by the seller herself, having the merchant Asmus Winia to the East, the buyer to the West; the seller to the South and the public street to the North, the sold property consisting of the back room and loft of the said house up to and including the inner wall of the passage to the South, the passage itself remaining the property of the seller, and further up to the inner wall between the stable and the sold room to the North, for the sum of 200 car.gl.".

As we have seen on page 326, Nijs Snellius had also inherited from his parents one of their two houses on the Molensteeg.

In 1780 he bought from his brother-in-law Thomas Claasen Wijgersma, married to his sister Aaltje Snellius, ⅓ part of a property, and in 1781 another house on 't Noord at Franeker.

The relevant entries in the Franeker Protocolboek follow here:

> "16 February 1780. Thomas Claasen Wijgersma sells to Nijs Renses Snellius, master Painter and Glazier, both at Franeker, a certain ⅓ part of a house and yard, with appurtenances, standing and situated on 't Noord, inhabited by Marcus Coopman and his wife as tenants, having Harmanus ten Brug to the East, the widow of Claas Regnerus to the West, the street and the waterway to the South and a boundary ditch to the North, for 113 car.gl.".
> "19 January 1781. Akke Heerts, widow of Claas Regnerus, in his lifetime painter's journeyman at Franeker, sells to Nijs Snellius, Burger Sergiant and master Painter and Glazier at Franeker, her house with appurtenances within Franeker on 't Noord, inhabited by herself, free of ground rent, > having Jelles Wijbes Stapensia to the North and West, the buyer to the East and the street and waterway to the South, for the sum of 200 g.gl.".

Finally, according to what has been reported on page 326, Nijs Snellius, together with the children of his sister Aaltje, was also owner of "two dwellings in one house within this Town (Franeker) near the Leeuwaarder Waaterpoort". These dwellings are probably the parcels N^{os} 22, 25 and 26 mentioned in the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of Franeker, whose owners were Nijs Snellius, and Grietje and Rinse Thomas (Wijgersma), thus the children of Thomas Clases Wijgersma and Aaltje Rinses Snellius, the brother-in-law and sister of Nijs Snellius.

[1] This part was also sometimes called the Noordermolenstraat (see also page 15 and the note on page 324).

From the foregoing it appears that Nijs Snellius was a well-established citizen.

He was curator over the children left by his sister Aaltje Snellius, married to the Vroetsman (town councillor) Thomas Clases Wijgersma, which emerges from the following entry in the Franeker Protocolboek, in which Nijs Snellius is styled, besides "Mr. Verwer", also "coopman" (merchant):

> "26 March 1802. Antje Gerbens, as heir ex testamento of the late Lieuwe Bouwes, in his lifetime Mr. Cooper at Franeker, sells to Nijs Snellius, merchant and Mr. Verwer likewise at Franeker, in his capacity as curator over the children of the first marriage of the former Vroedsman Thomas Wijgersma (namely Rinse and Grietje), a dwelling and plot of ground to the north of the same, standing and lying in the Nauwe Steeg at Franeker, having the garden of the former Burgomaster B. Adama to the west, the Nauwe Steeg to the east, the heirs of the widow Zaagmans to the south and Rein Zijlstra to the north, for the sum of 56 car.gl. and 10 strs.".

In the above-mentioned deed dated 19 January 1781 it is stated that Nijs Snellius was Burger Sergiant (citizen sergeant). According to the "Korte Historie en Beschrijving van Franeker" by D.P.Z. (according to Dr. J. Banga — see W. Eekhoff, De Stedelijke Bibliotheek van Leeuwarden, page 274 —: Dirk Pieters Zylstra, then wine merchant and ensign, later member of the Vroedschap (town council) at Franeker), Franeker 1785, the lieutenant of the Noorder-Espel at Franeker in that year was: "N. Snellius", by whom no one else can be meant than our Nijs Snellius. This is confirmed by a printed list, present in the Library of the Friesch Genootschap at Leeuwarden, with the names of the "Patriots" arrested in Friesland in 1787/1788 by the State government on suspicion of crimes against the State. On this list there appears, among others, among the "Patriots" imprisoned in the Blokhuis at Leeuwarden: "Nijs Snellius, of Franeker, aged 55 years, Hopman (captain) of the Civic Guard". He was arrested on 3 October 1787 and accused of having "signed the Declaration on behalf of the minority of the members of the States assembled at Franeker, by which these were declared to be the only lawful States of Friesland, and of having taken part in the letters to the Fitsgericht at Harlingen". On 24 April 1789 he was "sentenced to a fine of 150 golden Frisian Riders, and to the costs or misen (judicial costs) or, in default of payment of the same, banished for 4 years".

According to the "Brughboek" in the Municipal Archive of Franeker, Nijs Snellius was appointed in 1803 bridge master of the "stone bridge beside the Small or Nauwe and Enge Steegh to the north".

Nijs Snellius died at Franeker on 10 May 1813 at the age of 81 years, as appears from the following deed of the Civil Registry:

> "In the year one thousand eight hundred and thirteen, on the tenth day of the month of May, there appeared before us, Maire, Officer of the Civil Registry of the municipality of Franeker, Department of Friesland, canton Franeker, Albertus Hanses Klomp and Franciscus Jans Vormeer, both residing in this municipality, who declared to us that NIJS SNELLIUS, aged eighty-one years, unmarried, neighbour of the deponents, died on the tenth of the month of May at half past three in the morning, in the house Wijk Second North N^{o} 22, and the declarants have signed this deed together with us, after it had been read out to them.
> |signed| Albertus Hanzes Klomp |signed| J. Banga."
> Franciscus Jans Formeer

With this Nijs Snellius died the last male descendant of the Franeker family of this name.

b. Franeker, 8 February 1739 · daughter of Rense Nijsses Snellius and Grijttje Nijsses (N^{o} 41) · m. Thomas Claases Wijgersma, 1768

Her baptismal entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Franeker (1732—1772) reads as follows:

> "/1739/ the 8th ditto (February)
> Rinse Nijsten M^{r} Glazier has a child baptized named > Aeltje"

MARRIED:

THOMAS CLAASES WIJGERSMA (WIEGERSMA), 23 May 1768 at Franeker, according to the following entry in the Marriage Proclamation Book (register of marriage banns) of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Franeker (1732—1772):

> "(1768) On 8 May
> Thomas Claases baker's journeyman
> and > Aaltje Renses unmarried young woman, both from here.
> Married here on the 23rd of the same."

Thomas Claases Wijgersma was baptized at Akkerwoude on 3 March 1743, as appears from the following entry in the church book of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Akkerwoude, Murmerwoude and Veenwouden (1721—1812):

> "1743 — Claas Thomes and Claaske
> Thomes — Claases' little son at Akkerwoude > was baptized there on 3 March 1743."

Thomas Claases Wijgersma was thus a son of Claas Thomes (Thomas) and Claaske Claases.

His father Claas Thomas was at Akkerwoude a skipper on the Dokkum and Leeuwarden route, as appears from the baptism, likewise recorded in the aforesaid church book, on 11 September 1740 of Douwe, the son of Klaas Thomas, skipper on the Dokkum and Leeuwarden route.

In the personeelcohieren (personal tax registers) of Franeker, which for the years 1768—1793 are kept in the archive of the Friesche Rekenkamer at the Rijksarchief in Leeuwarden, it is noted for the year 1770 that in 1769 a capital of 300 gl.. had come in for Thomas Claassen (from Akkerwoude). With this amount one continues to find him listed in the following registers up to and including the year 1793. Probably he inherited this capital in 1769 from his family at Akkerwoude, for, according to his marriage record, he had already settled at Franeker in 1768.

At the time of his marriage Thomas Claases Wijgersma was a baker's journeyman. Later he will have become a master baker at Franeker, where, according to the so-called Heerenboekjes[1], he was Mede-Vroedschap (co-member of the town council) from 1780.

According to the "Brughboeck" in the municipal archive of Franeker, he was appointed in 1771 bridge master of the "Stenenbrugge beside the Small or Narrow and Tight Alley to the North."

In the archive of the Franeker notary Telting there occur, dated 22 December 1809, the names of Thomas Wiegersma and Sipke Faber as purchasers of a warehouse at the 1^{e} Noord N^{o} 44 for the sum of 1414 car.gls..

Aaltje Renses Snellius must have died before 17 December 1780, for on that date the first marriage proclamation is recorded in the Franeker Reformed marriage register of Thomas Klazes Wiegersma, co-member of the town council of this town, and Nieske Harmens (Harmanus) Broeksma, now here, before All Saints at 't Herenfeen. From this marriage there were baptized at Franeker: Hermanus (born there respectively on 20 October 1781, 4 February 1783 and 13 October 1784) and Ge/e/rtje on 19 April 1786 (born at Franeker on 23 February preceding).

According to the registers of the civil registry of Franeker, Thomas Claases Wijgersma died there on 3 December 1812 at the age of 69 as a widower.

b. Franeker, 26 September 1744 · son of Rense Nijsses Snellius and Grijttje Nijsses (N^{o} 41)

His baptismal record in the Reformed baptismal register of Franeker (1732—1772) reads as follows:

> "1744. the 26th September
> Rinse Snelius master painter has a child baptized named Adolf"

As has been shown on page 401, Adolf Snellius must have died before or in 1744.

Line of descent: Benedictus 42 ← Trijntie 9^{II} ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1^{II}

b. Groningen, 4 August 1730 · son of Benedictus (pseudo) Greidanus (N^{o} 42) and Pietertje Jacobs Westbroeck

His baptismal entry in the Register of baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen, has the following content:

> "Friday 4 (August) 1730 M.K. (Martini or Great Church) > Matthies son of Benedictus Greidanus and Pietertjen Wesbroek > in Pelserstraat."

Nothing could be found about Matthies Greidanus, so that he apparently died at a young age; in any case he will no longer have been alive on 19 July 1774, because he is not mentioned in the will of Benedictus Greydanus and Pietertje Westbroek drawn up on that date (see page 328).

76 TRIJNTJE (TRINTJE) (PSEUDO) GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Benedictus 42 ← Trijntie 9[II] ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

b. Groningen, 17 September 1732 · daughter of Benedictus (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 42) and Pietertje Jacobs Westbroeck · m. Gerhardus Mennes, 1767 · m. Hindrik Klinkhamer, 1773 · m. Hans Ansens, 1800

In the Register of baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen, her baptismal entry appears as follows:

> "Wednesday 17 (September) 1732 A. K. (Church by the A).
> Trijntje dau. of Benedictus Greidanus and Pietertje Jakobs > on the Reitemakersrijge."

In September 1759 she was entered in the Reformed Register of Members at Groningen as "Trijntje Greidanus in the Jatstraat".

MARRIED:

1° GERHARDUS MENNES, 13 January 1767 at Groningen, according to the following entry in the Register of proclamations and marriages at Groningen:

> "Saturday the 27 December 1766.
> Gerhardús Mennes P.S. and Trijntje Greidanús, both of > Groningen, for whom Benedictús Greidanús as father.
> Married: the 13 January 1767 by Ds. Húlsiús. M.K. /Martini or > Great Church/."

Gerhardus Mennes was baptized on 30 May 1728 in the Dutch Reformed Church at Groningen as son of: Levinus Mennes and Jantjen Geerts.

In the "Register of all the names of the corpses buried after half past eleven" at Groningen there is entered on 26 November 1768: Gerardus Mennes, widower (this ought to be husband) of Trijntje Greidanus, from which entry it appears that Gerhardus Mennes was buried at Groningen, presumably some days before the date given.

2° HINDRIK KLINKHAMER, 28 April 1773 at Groningen.

The relevant marriage entry in the Register of proclamations and marriages at Groningen reads as follows:

> "Saturday the 10 April 1773.
> Hindrik Klinkhamer of Gieten in Drenthe P.S.: and Trijntje > Greidanús, widow of Gerhardús Mennes of Groningen for > whom Benedictús Greidanús as Father.
> Married: the 28 April 1773 by D[s] Janssoniús A.K. (Church by the A)."

Hindrik Klinkhamer was therefore born at Gieten in Drente [2]; he was schoolmaster at Leermens (Groningen), as has been stated on page 329 in the agreement concluded between Pietertje Jacobs Westbroek and her children, dated 12 October 1775, concerning the estate of Benedictus Greijdanus, and in the marriage contract to be mentioned hereafter, dated 17 April 1777 between Trijntje Greidanus' brother D'Nijs Greidanus and Fiepke Wilts (see pages 407 and 408). Furthermore, the couple Hindrik Klinkhamer × Trijntje Greidanus is also named in the testament of 19 July 1774 of Benedictus Greijdanus and his wife (see page 328) and in the deed of division of the estate of 15 March 1776 concerning Trijntje Greidanus' parents (see page 329).

[1] The given name Matthies of this first-born does not occur in the family of Benedictus (pseudo) Greydanus; presumably the name comes from the family "Westbroeck", which came from Utrecht, where for instance on 21 August 1709 in the Catharijnakerk there was baptized Mathijs, son of Pieter van Westbroeck and Johanna van den Berg, perhaps the great-grandparents of Matthies (pseudo) Greidanus.

[2] In the baptismal, membership and marriage register, also containing a list of names of those buried, of the Reformed Congregation at Gieten, the baptismal entry of a Hindrik Klinkhamer does not occur; possibly the surname "Klinkhamer" was not yet in use at that time.

Hindrik Klinkhamer died in June 1793 at Leermens, where, according to the death register of the Reformed, he was buried on the 28th of that month.

3° HANS ANSENS, 16 February 1800 at Groningen, as widow of Hendrik Klinkhamer.

Trijntje Greidanus must have died in needy circumstances at Groningen around 21 October 1807, as appears from the following entry in the "Register of corpses buried after half past eleven" at Groningen:

> "21 October 1807.
> Trintje Greijdanus, aged 69 years[1] . Resided in the poorhouse. Poor."

Whether Trijntje Greidanus had any descendants is not known.

77 PIETERTJEN (PSEUDO) GREIDANUS

b. Groningen, 1 January 1734 · daughter of Benedictus (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 42) and Pietertje Jacobs Westbroeck

Her baptismal record in the Register of baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen, reads as follows:

> "Friday 1 (January) 1734 A.K. (Church by the A).
> Pietertjen dau. of Benedictus Greydanus and Pietertjen Greydanus > on the Zuiderdiep."

Nothing has been found about her, so she apparently died at a young age; in any case she will no longer have been alive on 19 July 1774, because she is not named in the testament of her parents drawn up on that date (see page 328).

78 NIJSZ (PSEUDO) GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Benedictus 42 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

b. Groningen, 17 December 1734 · d. before 5 January 1746 · son of Benedictus (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 42) and Pietertje Jacobs Westbroeck

He is entered as follows in the Register of baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen:

> "Friday 17 (December) 1734 M.K. (Martini or Great Church).
> Nijsz son of Benedictus Greidanus and Pietertjen Oostland
> on the Zuiderdiep."

He must have died before 5 January 1746, when Benedictus Greidanus again had a son baptized with the given name Nijs.

79 HILLEGIEN (PSEUDO) GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Benedictus 42 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

b. Groningen, 1 March 1739 · daughter of Benedictus (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 42) and Pietertje Jacobs Westbroeck

In the Register of baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen, her baptism is recorded as follows:

> "Sunday (the) 1 (March) 1739 A.K. (Church by the A) > Hillegien dau. of Benedictus Greidanus and Pietertien Westbroek
> in O. Jatstraat."

Nothing has been found about her, so she apparently died at a young age; in any case she will no longer have been alive on 19 July 1774, because she is not named in the testament of her parents drawn up on that date (see page 328).

80 NIJS (DENYS, D'NIJS) (PSEUDO) GREIDANUS (GREIJDANUS, GREYDANUS)

Line of descent: Benedictus 42 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

b. Groningen, 5 January 1746 · son of Benedictus (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 42) and Pietertje Jacobs Westbroeck · m. Fiepke (Feipke) Wilts, 1777

His baptismal entry in the Register of baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen, reads as follows:

> "Wednesday (the) 5 (January) 1746 A.K. (Church by the A) > Nijs son of Benedictus Greidanus and Pietertien Wesbroek
> in O. Jatstraat."

Denijs Greidanus inherited from his parents the house occupied by them on the Oude Kijk in 't Jatstraat with the bookshop belonging to it (see page 329). There he continued his father's business as printer and bookseller.

[1] She was only 65 years old.

As far as is known, the following booklets were printed by him:

1°. Oprechte Oldamster Almanak, op het jaar 1777. Waar in de jaar, paarde en beestemerkten zeer perfekt te vinden zijn. Door G. O. Mathem. Gron. by D' N. Griedanus w. woodcuts. 12°;

2°. De Historie, van Floris en Blancefleur, dewelke, na dat ze lang gescheiden waren, en veele perykelen geleden hadden, tot den Huwelyken Staat kwamen. Zeer plaizant en vermaaklyk om te Leezen. Te Groningen, by D' N. Greydanus, Drukker en Boekverkoper in de Oude Kijk-in 't Jat-straat. With woodcuts. 4°;

3°. Prophecye of te Voorzegginge van een geheeten Jarfke, van veel wonderlijke dingen die na zijn tijd zullen geschieden in 't Old-Ampt ende Westerwoldinge-Land, alsmede in 't Kleine Old-Ampt, en van den Krijgshandel en de verdistrueeringe in Groninger-Land. Gron. D. N. Greydanus. Without year. small 8°.

Of the booklet mentioned under 2°, the reproduced title page of which is shown opposite, a copy is in my possession. It is a primitively produced popular booklet of 24 pages and some five woodcuts. At the front one finds the following:

> "PROLOGUE
> Paul says that idleness is the mother of all evil. In order to avoid this, I have composed a small, fine, amorous history of two lovers, full of wondrous adventures, who suffered much more bitterness than sweetness before they could fulfil their love. I also do it so that the lovers of this world may see how many cares and sorrows the love of men brings forth, and how many dangers, and how inconstant it is; so that one joy gives birth to a thousand > cares, and one pleasure to a thousand fears; and that for an amorous neglect of a thousand hours there are often various dangers, which in the end lead the soul to hell. Therefore, you young people, whether men or women, let yourselves be taught by this, and let it serve you for gladness, and receive the lovely love of God, which will last eternally, in which you will find rest, and which frees us from all the plagues of hell. Which may our Saviour alone grant us."

In the Groningsche Volksalmanak for the year 1922, published by Erven B. van der Kamp at Groningen, there appears a contribution by Mr. B. Lonsain, at present Hoofdcommies (chief clerk) at the Rijksarchief (State Archives) at Groningen, "De laatste dag van den Vrijheidsboom te Groningen", in which contribution it is stated that the liberty tree planted on 14 February 1795 on the Groote Markt at Groningen had on 10 May 1804 been sawn into all round the trunk and soon fell down. On page 60 there then appears the following:

> "On 11 May the council met. The presiding burgomaster reported on what had happened the previous day and the night before. He says that, as soon as he had heard that the tree had been sawn into, he had informed the town advocate-fiscal of this, but had not received the slightest report in reply. That he had later convinced himself of the wantonness of the youth and had then immediately taken measures to prevent further excesses and disorders.
> It was decided to instruct the fiscal to institute a strict investigation.
> We are quite willing to accept that Mr. van Wartum conducted this investigation with the greatest care, but it is certain that it yielded no result; for had this been the case, the departmental court of justice would not have needed to concern itself with the matter. The schout was indeed fortunate enough to seize, at the bookseller Greidanus's in the Oude Kijk-in-'t Jatstraat, a bundle of songs "of a malicious content", some of which had also been sung at the destruction of the liberty tree, but nothing more was achieved by the town police."

Denijs Greidanus was thus, besides a bookseller, also a printer; as we have seen on page 329, however, his father had sold the printing works shortly before his death, so that Denijs Greidanus must have provided himself with a new printing works.

Concerning Denijs Greidanus one finds:

in: "Bouwstoffen tot eene geschiedenis van de boekdrukkunst en den Boekhandel in de stad en provincie Groningen" by J. Oomkens J.zoon, 1st ed. 1854, 2nd enlarged ed. Groningen 1864, on pages 76 and 92 respectively:

> "[1] D'Nijs Greijdanus 1784—† 1810";

in: "De Boekdrukkers, Boekverkoopers en Uitgevers in Noord-Nederland sedert de uitvinding van de boekdrukkunst tot den aanvang der negentiende eeuw" by A. M. Ledeboer, Deventer, A. ter Gunne, 1872, on page 184 under "Groningen":

> "Greydanus, D'Nys, b. . . . ., d. 1810 > active 1784—1810[1]";

[1] This means: both bookseller and printer.

> "Greydanus, D'Nys 1784—1810[1]. Note.
> His successor was J. J. Does-> burg, who in turn was succeeded in 1853 by J. Doesburg. Gron."

Denijs Greidanus died, according to the Civil Registry of Groningen, there on 22 February 1810, as appears from the following extract from the death register:

> "Death
> 22 February 1810.
> De Nijs Greijdanus husband of Feipke Wilts aged 64 years > Lived in Oude Kijkentjadstr. 2 children from 1 Marriage."

He left only 2 daughters, so that with him this little branch of pseudo-Greidanuses, sprung from the 2nd marriage of Trijntje Benedictus (Greydanus) with Nijs Adolphs, died out. The name "Greydanus" was however still preserved for a time in this branch, since a son of his daughter Pietertjen, who married Jacob Wolthuis, added the name "Greydanus" to the family name "Wolthuis". This son: D'Nijs Greydanus Wolthuis, however, had no descendants.

According to pages 93 and 95 of the 2nd edition of the aforementioned little book by Oomkens, the bookselling business of Denijs Greijdanus was continued in 1810 by J. J. Doesburg; J. Doesburg became in 1853 the successor of J. J. Doesburg, O. Kijk in 't Jatstraat, and in May 1858 of C. P. Meyer, A- Kerkhof. The successor of D'Nijs Greijdanus as printer was N. Folkers 1810—† 1845, who in 1845 was in turn succeeded by F. Folkers. At present the businesses of J. Doesburg and F. Folkers have long ceased to exist.

After the death of Denijs Greidanus his bookshop and printing works were offered for private sale by his widow, as appears from the advertisement below, placed in the "Vriesche Courant" of Friday the 1st of June 1810, No 63:

> "* * * A HOUSE on the east side in the Oude Kyk in 't Jatstraat in Groningen, from of old a Bookshop and Printing works, with its > EQUIPMENT, according to Catalogue, as is possessed by the Wed. De Nys Gredanus,

MARRIED:

FIEPKE (FEIPKE) WILTS, 22 May 1777 at Groningen, as appears from the following entry in the Register of proclamations and marriages at Groningen:

> "Saturday 19 April 1777
> Denijs Greidanus of Groningen p.s. and Fiepke Wilts of > Groningen pro qua Claas Noorthof as brother-in-law.
> Married: 22 May 1777 by Ds. Sijpkens N.K. (Nieuwe Kerk)."

According to the death certificate to be mentioned hereafter, Fiepke Wilts was born about 1740 at "Weender" (by which "Weende" in Groningen will be meant), as daughter of Jan Klazen Wilts and Yda Roelfs.

In Inventory N^{o} III ij 64 of the Judicial Archives of the city of Groningen, kept in the Rijks Archief there, one finds the following marriage contract passed before burgomasters and council, concluded 17 April 1777 between bride and bridegroom:

> "That the marriage and wedlock has been negotiated[3] and concluded with joint[2] advice of the relatives between D'Nijs Greidanus, son of Mons^{r} Benedictus Greidanus and Pietertjen Jacobs Westbroek, spouses, as bridegroom on the one side, and the young unmarried woman Fiepke Wilts, daughter of Jan Klazen Wilts and Yda Roelfs, spouses, as bride on the other side, and this on the following conditions. Firstly, the future spouses, together with the relatives present, are well satisfied with such goods as the partners bring to each other, all of which, together with what may be inherited or come to them by death during the marriage, shall not be common property, but shall remain with the one, or with the heirs of the one, who brings them in. Profit and loss occurring during the marriage shall be common between the partners; sons and daughters born of this marriage shall enjoy equal portions of the inheritances of their father and mother and of others without distinction of sex, and further, in all inheritances that may occur, shall enjoy the right of representation, so as to be able to claim and receive such share or shares as their parents would have been able to obtain if they had been alive. If the bridegroom should die before the bride without child or children behind, or leaving such as should happen to die before the bride, then the bride shall enjoy for ever and by inheritance out of the bridegroom's brought-in goods a sum of three hundred guilders and the whole gain, if any should have occurred during the marriage, while the bride shall moreover enjoy for the term of her life the usufruct of the half of the bridegroom's remaining brought-in goods and of the goods inherited or fallen to him during the marriage. Should the bride die before the bridegroom, then in all the same cases the bridegroom shall keep, as long as he lives, all the bride's goods in usufruct, provided that he pay out within six weeks to the friends of the first deceased the personal belongings of the first deceased, who for the enjoyment thereof shall have to pay the funeral costs. Should a child or children begotten of this marriage die after both parents, then their goods shall be inherited in two equal parts, namely the one half on the father's and the other half on the mother's side. It is likewise stipulated hereby that, in case the bridegroom's sister, by name Trijntie Greidanus, presently wife of Hindrik Klinkhamer, should come to die before this her husband without leaving children, or leaving such as should come to die before the said father, that in such cases the mentioned Hindrik Klinkhamer shall likewise enjoy for ever and by inheritance out of his wife Trijntie Greidanus' brought-in and inherited goods only the sum of three hundred guilders and the whole gain that might have occurred during their marriage, and moreover shall keep in usufruct, as long as he lives, the half of the said Trijntie Greidanus' remaining goods. Whereby the marriage contract between the aforesaid Hindrik Klinkhamer and Trijntie Greidanus, drawn up within this city on 8 April 1773, shall be altered, and thus with regard to Trijntie Greidanus' estate, in case of her decease, the same shall apply for her present husband in both the cases mentioned above as this bride Fiepke Wilts has stipulated above concerning her bridegroom's goods.
> The dedigslieden (witnesses) on the bridegroom's side have been H. Klinkhamer, schoolmaster at Leerms, and Trijntie Greidanus, married couple, as brother-in-law and full sister, Geesje Jacobs as full aunt, Jacob Everts and Saartje Jacobs, married couple, as full cousin and cousin by marriage. On the bride's side Claas Noordhof, also acting on behalf of his wife Senske Wilts, as brother-in-law and full sister, Hillegonda Vriese, as full cousin.

The dedigslieden (witnesses) on the bridegroom's side: Geesje Jacobs (Westbroeck), Jacob Everts (Westbroeck) and Saartje Jacobs are included in the draft fragment-genealogy "Westbroeck" belonging with page 331.

Claas Noordhof, also named in the marriage entry of Fiepke Wilts, was married to her sister Senske Wilts.

On 22 October 1794 Denijs Greidanus and Feijpke Wilts, married couple, sold for 60 car. guilders to Geert van der Swaan and Fennegien Jans, married couple: "a chamber standing and lying between the Driemolendrift and Jonkerenstraat, at the rampart, on freehold ground, having as nearest neighbours to the north Ype Ypes, to the east Jan Hense, to the south the town rampart and to the west sworn official Speckman" (see Judicial Archives of the City of Groningen, Inventory N^{o} III x 95 fol. 186), and on 2 May 1806 a house bought 26 December previously from their daughter Ida Greidanus and her husband Jacob Hemmes Hebers (see page 493) for 2800 car. guilders, to: "the honourable Gerrijt Smalge and Trijntje Jans Eijkelaar, married couple" for 2960.— car. guilders. This house is described as: "a dwelling and garden standing to the west in the Nieuwe Boteringestraat, paying yearly to the city of Groningen as ground rent the sum of 8 guilders 8 stuivers 6 duiten .... having as nearest neighbours to the north L. B. Casemier, to the east the street, to the south the honourable R. G. Rijkens, to the west Jan Meijer" (see Judicial Archives of the City of Groningen, Inventory N^{o} III x 218 fol. 182).

Fiepke Wilts died at Groningen on 29 August 1818 at the age of 78 years, as appears from the following extract from the Registers of the Civil Registry at Groningen:

> "On 29 August 1818 there died at Groningen in the Nieuwe Ebbingestraat Lett. H N^{o} 59 Canton N^{o} 1: Fiepke Wilts, aged 78 years, born at Weender, living at Groningen, widow of De Nijs Greidanus, daughter of the late Jan Wilts and the late Ida Roelfs."

He was probably buried at Leeuwarden 16 September 1780, since, according to the Death or Burial Register of Leeuwarden, on this date a Tjeerd Cornelis was buried in the Oldehoofster Kerkhof; he lived on the Kerkhof (probably that of Oldehove), where Cornelis Tjeerds also lived.

He must not be confused with a Tjeerd Cornelis living at the same time, merchant in the Schans outside Leeuwarden under Huisum, who was married to Trijntje Sijmens Ronda. This Tjeerd Cornelis was Tjeerd Koopmans, born at Dragten as son of Cornelis Koopmans and Antje Harmens, as appears from his death record dated 31 May 1813.

His baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Church of Leeuwarden 1730—1740, folio 158, reads as follows:

> "(Baptized) On the 5th ditto (June 1740)
> Taeke { father Cornelis Tjeerds
> { mother Wikje Cornelis."

Taeke Cornelis (Greidanus) was, after a petition had been submitted, appointed Turfmeeter (turf measurer) at Leeuwarden on 27 July 1787. Concerning his appointment the following is recorded in the Resolutieboek (book of resolutions) of the Magistrate of Leeuwarden (1787, 1788):

> "Friday 27 July 1787
> Their Hon. Worships have, upon a petition submitted by Taeke Cornelis > and having heard the recommendation of Burgomaster Faber as being > whose turn it was, thought fit and resolved to appoint the petitioner, > as he is hereby appointed, to be Turfmeeter here, with the profits > and emoluments attached thereto, taking the oath of purgation > and subject to the Instruction thereof existing or still to be made."

As will appear from the death certificate to be mentioned hereafter, Taeke Cornelis Greidanus was turf measurer at Leeuwarden until his death.

Concerning the Turfmeeters and carriers of the City of Leeuwarden I found the following in the "Leeuwarder Courant":

Advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" N° 1526 of 9 August 1786:

> "At Leeuwarden at G. Tresling, city printer and bookseller in the St. Jacobstraat, has been printed and is obtainable: Politicque Ordonnantie and Vernieuwde Instructie according to which the Commandeur of the turf measurers and carriers, as well as the turf measurers and carriers of the City of Leeuwarden and its Jurisdiction, shall have to conduct themselves. In 4to, price 6 Stuivers."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 14 November 1820 N° 91:

> "Notification.
> Burgomasters of the City of Leeuwarden, to all who shall see these or hear them read, Greetings! make known:

That the Hon. Worshipful Council of this City, wishing to provide against the abuses which occur in the Measuring and Carrying of Turf, so that the measure, as it ought to be, may be received by everyone, and likewise that the municipal tax, such as that on turf, as laid down by Notification of 31 December 1816, and further modified and approved by decree of H. M. of 26 February 1818, may be duly levied; — has thought fit to adopt in this matter the following Regulation, and, so far as necessary, to alter and amplify the Instruction of the turf measurers and carriers, and of their Kommandeur (commander), of 21 March 1786.

Art. 1. The measurers shall not be allowed to use for the measuring of turf any other baskets than those which have first been gauged by the city ijkmeester (gauger), and afterwards, under the supervision of the commissioner of police, re-measured and further provided with a brand mark, on penalty of dismissal.

2. Likewise the measurers shall be dismissed if they have used in the measuring a basket previously gauged and branded, but which, by one or another trick, has been made too small; — such a basket, or one which has not, in accordance with the previous article, been gauged and branded, being given them for measuring by a carrier or hauler, — they shall be obliged, on the same penalty as above, to retain it, and to give notice of this to the Hon. President Burgomaster; in order that the city government may proceed against such a carrier or hauler as shall be deemed proper.

3. In measuring they shall take care that the turves, as far as at all possible, lie close together in the basket, without any considerable spaces remaining between them, and thus fill the basket up to the rim, in such a way that when the turves, poured over into another basket, are shaken and knocked upon the ground, they must then reach the bottom of the rim, and must lie level and not sink in the middle.

4. Next they shall make upon the basket thus filled a pointed rising top; this top must be six layers high: in the bottom layer the turves, all closely fitting together and resting upon the rim, must be laid flat, (in accordance with a model of the bottom layer, available at the city hall) so that in this way this layer must contain as great a number of turves as possible. The fifth layer must consist of seven, the fourth of four, the third of three, the second of two, and the topmost of one turf, with this distinction, that when, on account of the smallness of the turves, the bottom layer contains, or ought to contain, thirteen or more turves, the fifth layer must be nine, the fourth layer of five turves, and further as above.

5. With respect to light turf, the provisions made above in art. 3 shall have to be followed in the measuring; and the top of the basket must always consist of fourteen whole turves.

6. They shall mark every basket measured by them and handed over to the skipper on the side of the ship, and, the unloading of all the turf to an inhabitant being completed, hand him the following printed note, filled in with pencil or ink:

“Measured and unloaded from the ship of
“for residing lett. No.
“boat, and baskets of turf, the “Turf measurers”.

The present turf measurers not being able to fill in this note in the manner aforesaid, they shall see to it that this is done on their behalf by another, they remaining responsible for its proper filling in.

7. A similar filled-in note they shall also deliver, as speedily as possible, to the kommandeur at the baan (turf yard), and, should it be found that this note does not agree with the one given to the inhabitant, the measurers shall be punished with dismissal. These notes they shall obtain from the kommandeur, at a payment of 5 cents (one stuiver) per 25 pieces.

8. During the unloading it shall be free to an inhabitant, as often as he shall choose, to investigate whether the baskets have been measured as is proper and as has been prescribed.

9. To that end an inhabitant may make the carrier with the basket stand still, and, finding that the top contains fewer turves than is prescribed in art. 4 or 5, or that, on pouring over, it appears that the basket, after having been shaken and knocked on the ground, the turves cannot reach the bottom of the rim, or remain sunken in the middle, he shall be at liberty to have such a basket, which he suspects to have been measured too small, carried to the town hall by the meters (turf measurers) and carriers, in order there to be re-measured by him, or by someone on his behalf, in the presence of the commissioner of police, or, in his absence, of the town major, town messenger or assistant, and compared with the model of a bottom layer available there, without an inhabitant having to pay anything for this re-measuring or comparison, except only 40 cents (eight stuivers) to the gang, for bringing the basket to the town hall and for the time lost, if the suspicion is found to be unfounded.

10. If at this re-measuring and comparison it appears that a basket has not been properly measured, the commissioner of police, town major, messenger or assistant shall detain the basket found to have been deficiently measured, in order to show it to the President Burgomaster at the first opportunity, and to make report thereof.

11. The presiding burgomaster shall then summon the turf/meters before him, speak to them about the wrongly performed measuring, and, finding grounds for it, give notice thereof to the commissioner of police, in order that he may proceed to exact a fine from the guilty turf/meter, which fine is hereby set at from one to four guldens; the commissioner of police and the kommandeur (commander) each time recording when a turf/meter has been punished in this way.

12. When for the second time a turf/meter has made himself guilty of neglect of duty on account of measuring too small, the burgomasters shall provisionally suspend him from his service, in order afterwards to be able to make a proposal to the council for dismissal.

13. If it is found that at the re-measuring (art. 9) one or both meters have measured too small a measure, an inhabitant shall be at liberty to choose, for the further measuring, at his discretion, town meters who are not at work at that time.

14. An inhabitant wishing to assure himself of the number of baskets which are measured out to him shall be free to give the carrier, on his return to the ship, a marked little stick or other token, to be handed to the meter, in order that, in case of a dispute, the number of unloaded baskets may be known from the number of marked little sticks, or other tokens, handed over.

15. The turf/meters, carriers and loeger (turf stacker) are specially forbidden to demand any gift in money or otherwise from a boatman or seller of turf, and, on penalty of dismissal of the whole gang, to accept more than 25 cents (5 stuivers) from each unloaded boat.

16. To a skipper or turf seller no other meters and carriers may be given by the kommandeur, than those which at the first drawing of lots were assigned to him, except in the cases mentioned in art. 13.

17. No one may hawk or sell turf along the streets which has not been measured by a town meter, or carried by a town carrier, on a fine of one to four guldens, the meters being expressly forbidden the so-called over-measuring of turf out of a ship, in order afterwards to hawk it along the houses, without a town carrier or meter, with little baskets, baskets, wagons, ships or small boats, or by the number.

18. On a like fine no one may convey in a wagon, basket, sack or small boat, for hawking along the streets, under the name Bovengrond, Heksen or Mot, when light turf, baggelaar or sponturf is found therein, or pieces of the same which are larger than a third of a whole turf.

19. Also a skipper or turf carrier is forbidden, on a fine of twenty-five guldens, to unload and deliver turf, unless in the presence of town meters, and measured by them.

20. The kommandeur of the turf carriers shall be obliged to enter accurately in his books and to keep the billets of the unloaded turf (art. 7), on penalty of dismissal, and every morning, before the opening of the baan (turf carriers' stand), to hand to the receiver of the municipal taxes and to the controller a list, accurately containing:

1°. The skippers who have made declaration to him on the previous day for the unloading of turf, and how much they have declared as presumptive unloading.

2°. How much, and to which inhabitants, was unloaded on the previous day out of each one's ship.

3°. Which skippers are lying for unloading or whose ships are entirely unloaded.

21. His record book shall be paginated and initialled by the head clerk, and, in case of vacancy or lawful hindrance, by the controller; and he shall be obliged to exhibit the said book to him against receipt and to let it be inspected at all times.

22. The kommandeur shall take accurate care that the turf/meters and carriers do their duty, according to this regulation and their further instruction, and, without any connivance, shall give notice to the President Burgomaster of anyone found guilty of neglect of duty.

23. He shall, at the request of an inhabitant and on payment of 30 cents (six stuivers), pace off and determine the distance: how many carriers the inhabitant needs to stack up the turf, and shall give a certificate of his finding, according to which the carriers shall have to conduct themselves in demanding wages.

24. For carrying the turf a length of fifty paces (each of two and a half feet) on level ground or thirty steps in height, or of twenty rungs of a ladder, one man shall each time be reckoned. The distance being greater, or the height more, then for 25 paces on level ground, or for 15 steps in height or 10 rungs of a ladder, half a man more shall be paid, but for 26 paces, 16 steps, or 11 rungs a full man; for setting the baskets on the sled half a man may be demanded.

25. When the turf is hoisted up by means of a tackle, there shall be paid, for this hoisting from the schammel (trestle) up to the loft, two men's carrying wages; further the basket must be received above on the loft, and brought to the place where the stacking is done, against payment of the carrying wage of half a man; unless the distance on the loft were greater than is determined in the previous art.; moreover, for the use of the tackle and of the schammel, during the whole unloading, there shall be paid forty cents (eight stuivers), as for the use of a stair and ladder ten cents (two stuivers).

26. The carrier shall receive for each boat of 70 baskets, lesser portions in proportion, as wages 60 cents (twelve stuivers) and a meter 40 cents (eight stuivers); but of long light turf for bakers, brewers and other inhabitants using it for their factory or for their trade, the carriers 35 cents (seven stuivers) and the meters 30 cents (six stuivers). A meter measuring less than an eighth of a boat shall receive for each basket a quarter stuiver, or one cent.

27. The stacking of the turf shall be performed by the eldest of the gang, who for it may demand no more than the wage of one carrier; if this is not done to the satisfaction of an inhabitant, he shall be at liberty to send him away, and may then employ another of his own choosing for it, even though not being a turf carrier.

28. An inhabitant is not obliged to give to the carriers, meters or loeger, during or after the carrying up of the turf, any drink or gratuity, which is left entirely to the free will of an inhabitant, and without a carrier, meter or loeger being allowed to show himself immodest or discontented about it.

29. The meters shall always have with them in their work a copy of this regulation, in order to be able, when asked for it, to let an inhabitant read it; to that end the kommandeur shall hand them this regulation when they leave the baan in order to perform a measuring, which they shall have to hand over again to the kommandeur upon their return, in such a state as it was given to them, and in case of loss the kommandeur shall demand from him 12 stuivers or 60 cents, in order to replace the lost copy therewith.

30. The kommandeur, turf meter, carrier or loeger transgressing a provision of this regulation, for which no penalty is herein fixed, shall be punished with dismissal, suspension or a fine not exceeding the sum of six guldens.

31. The fines fixed by this regulation shall, according to the law, be collected and converted.

And in order that this regulation may come to the knowledge of everyone, it shall be published and posted, as is customary.

Thus done at Leeuwarden, in the meeting of the Council, the 2 October 1820.

JOANˢ. ROMKES, Vt.

By ordinance of the same,

JOANˢ ter HORST Gz.

Secretary."

As indicated on page 333, in the Leeuwarder Reëelcohier (register of real property tax) from 1777 to 1804 — the last cohier — Taeke Cornelis (Greidanus) is mentioned as owner of his father's house N° 106 of the Noord-Oldehoofster Espel. This house was situated on or near the Oldehoofster Kerkhof, which is at the end of the Groote Kerkstraat. According to the birth certificate of the son Cornelis of his daughter Wikje Greidanus, included on page 502, Taeke Cornelis (Greidanus) lived on 28 June 1813 at Leeuwarden next door to that daughter; for at that time Wikje Greidanus lived in the Groote Kerkstraat in quarter F N° 94 and her father in the Groote Kerkstraat in quarter F N° 95. These two dwellings adjoining one another on the Groote Kerkstraat apparently form the former parcel N° 106 Noord-

Oldehoofster Espel of the Reëelcohier, which from 1777 to 1804 mentions as owner Taeke Cornelis and before that his father Cornelis Tjeerds. Taeke Cornelis (Greidanus) also died in the said house Groote Kerkstraat quarter F N° 95 on 1 June 1819 at the age of 79 years, as appears from the following record from the Register of deaths of the Municipality of Leeuwarden:

> N° 173 "In the year One thousand eight hundred and nineteen, on the third day of the month of June, there appeared before us Burgomaster Officer of the Civil Registry of the municipality of Leeuwarden, Province of Vriesland, Sytse Greidanus and Jacobus Smeding, the first mentioned son and the second named an acquaintance of the deceased, who declared to us that Tæke Greidanus, aged seventy-nine years, turf meter, born and residing at Leeuwarden, widower of Geertje Assue, and son of Cornelis Greidanus and Wikje (the family name of the mother being unknown) died on the first day of the month of June in the afternoon at five o'clock, in the house no ninety-five, Letter F, and the declarants have signed this Act, after it had been read out to them, together with us.
> * (signed) S. Greidanus. J. O. Smeding. R. Buijsing."*

His death at Leeuwarden on 1 June 1819 was made known in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 4 June 1819 N° 45 by the following family announcement:

" Today there died most unexpectedly our dear and very caring father, TÆKE GREIDANUS, at the blessed age of a good seventy-nine years.
L e e u w a r d e n, S. G R E I D A N U S.
the 1 June Also in the name of my sis-1819.* ters and brothers-in-law."

With the family name "Greidanus" or a corrupted form of it, Taeke Cornelis has been found:

in his marriage record following below, dated January 1765, namely as "Taeke Gurdanus"; in the baptismal record dated 11 October 1765 of his daughter Cornelia as "Taeke Cornelis Greidanus", where however, although apparently in the same hand, "Greidanus" has been added with a flourish; in the Leeuwarder Burgerboek, in which in 1803 his mark ÷ appears with the addition "this is the set mark of Teeke Gordanus"; in the birth certificate dated 3 July 1813 of the son Cornelis, born on 28 June previously, of his daughter Wikjen, married to David Nijkamp, in which he acts as witness and is named: "Taeke Gredanus, aged 73 years, of the profession of turf meter", who declared that he could not write.

in the family announcement about his death on 1 June 1819 just given, as "Greidanus"; in his above-mentioned death record dated 3 June 1819, namely as "Tæke Greidanus, son of Cornelis Greidanus"; in the death record dated 1 September 1823 of his daughter Wikje, namely as "Tæke Greidanus"; in the death record of his daughter Cornelia, who died at Franeker on 18 October 1828, namely as: "Taeko Greijdanus"; in the death record of his daughter Johanna, who died at Harlingen on 4 September 1849, namely as "Foecke Greidanus".

The forms "Gurdanus", "Gordanus" and "Gredanus" in such a small number of entries is indeed proof that in that time the surname "Greidanus" was not well known in the places concerned.

MARRIED:

GERTIE (GERTJE, GEERTJE) BAUKESDOCHTER ASSUÉ, 20 January 1765 at Leeuwarden.

The relevant marriage entry on fol. 8^{v} of the marriage register of the Dutch Reformed Church of Leeuwarden 1764—1772 follows below:

> "Taecke Gurdanus, and Gertie Baukes, both of this place, had their marriage banns proclaimed for the first time on the 6th of Januarii 1765, for the second time on the 13th, for the third time on the 20th of the same month, and were that same evening confirmed in their marriage in the Jacobinerkerk by Ds Corn. Blom."

Gertie Baukes Assué was baptized 9 March 1740 at Leeuwarden as daughter of Bauke Johannes and Sijdske Julius, according to the following entry on fol. 154^{r} of the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed Church of Leeuwarden:

> "The 9th of the same (March 1740)
> Gertje.... { Father Bauke Johannes > { Mother Sijdske Julius."

Bauke Johannes was a basket-maker's journeyman at Leeuwarden at the time of his marriage, which has been drawn from the Reformed marriage register of Leeuwarden, in which one finds under 1/8/15 November 1733: Bauke Johannes, basket-maker's journeyman, and Sydske Julius, both of this place. According to the Leeuwarden burial registers, there was buried on 6 October 1785 in the Oldehoofster Kerkhoff: Bauke Johannes from the Ruiterskwartier.

The surname "Assué" of Gertie Baukes has been found:

in the death record dated 3 June 1819 of her husband, in which record she is mentioned as "Geertje Assue"; in the death record dated 1 September 1823 of her daughter Wikje, in which record she is given as: "Gertje Assewee"; in the death record of her daughter Cornelia, who died at Franeker on 18 October 1828, in which record she appears as “Geertje Assué”.

In the death record of her daughter Johanna, who died at Harlingen on 4 September 1849, one finds her with the name “Gettje Friso”; how this came about is not known to me.

Gertie Baukes Assué had already died at the time of her husband's death on 1 June 1819, while her last child was born on 15 November 1781; she must therefore have died between these dates.

CHILDREN OF ANTJE JOHANNES (GREIDANUS) (N° 47, DESCENDING FROM THE NUMBERS 11^{II}, 3 and 1^{II}) AND CORNELES SIJMONS DE LEEUW.

89 GRIJTIE CORNELESDOCHTER DE LEEUW

Line of descent: Antje 47 ← Johannes 11^{II} ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1^{II}

b. Harlingen, 27 February 1724 · daughter of Corneles Sijmons de Leeuw and Antje Johannes (Greidanus) (N° 47)

Her baptismal entry in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1697—1735 reads as follows:

> “on the 27th ditto (February) (1724)
> Corneles Sijmons the father > and Antie Johannes the mother
> the child Grijtie baptized.”

As has already been reported on page 341, Sijmon Sloterdijk, receiver of the Convoys and Licences within Harlingen, was appointed curator over Grietje Cornelis de Leeuw, pursuant to the testamentary disposition dated 30 September 1727 of her grandparents Johannes Benedictus and Trijntje Hanses Meertsma.

It is not known whether Grijtie Cornelesdochter de Leeuw married; it is true that at Harlingen on 7/14/21 May 1752 the marriage was proclaimed of Marten Fokkes and Grietje Cornelis, both of Harlingen, but it has not been possible to establish whether this is our Grijtie Cornelesdochter de Leeuw.

90 SYMON CORNELESZOON DE LEEUW

Line of descent: Antje 47 ← Johannes 11^{II} ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1^{II}

b. Harlingen, 17 April 1725 · son of Corneles Sijmons de Leeuw and Antje Johannes (Greidanus) (N° 47)

In the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1697—1735 his baptismal record is entered as follows:

> “(1725) /on the 17th ditto /April//
> Correles Sijmons the father
> Antie Johannes the moth
> the child Sijmon baptized.”

Since he is not named in the deed dated 5 November 1746 of the Harlingen Authorisation Register referred to on page 341, he will have died before that date.

b. Harlingen, 4 March 1727 · d. before 17 August 1734 · son of Benedictus Johannes' (Greidanus) (N° 49) and Lijsbet Wijbes

His baptismal entry in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1697—1735 reads as follows:

> "(1727 the 4th March)
> Benedictus Johannes the father > Lijsbeth Wijbes the mother
> the child Johannes baptized."

He will have died before 17 August 1734, since on that date Benedictus Johannes and Lysbet Wybes again had a son Johannes baptized.

b. Harlingen, 17 August 1734 · son of Benedictus Johannes' (Greidanus) (N° 49) and Lijsbet Wijbes

In the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1697—1735 his baptism is entered as follows:

> "(1734) On the 17th ditto (Aug.)
> Benedicks Johannes the father > Lysbet Wybes the mother
> the child Johannis baptized."

Nothing could be found about him, so that he probably died at a young age.

In the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1735—1764 her baptism is entered as follows:

> "(1744) On 29 the same (September),
> Lieuwe Tjerks The father And > Cijtske Johannes The mother; And > the child Antje baptized."

She is not mentioned in the inventory dated 26/28 April 1783 of her aunt Hiltje Dirks /married to her mother's brother Hans Johannes /Greidanus// included on page 342, so that she will have died before the date of 26/28 April 1783.

95 JOHANNES LIEUWESZOON

Line of descent: Tjardus 5[I] ← Johannes 11[II] ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

He was a twin with his sister Trijntje, with whom he was baptized at the same time, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1735—1764:

> "(1749) On 22 the same (July)
> Lieuwe Tjerks The father And
> Sijtske johannis The mother; And
> The children johannis, And Trijntje baptized."

He is not mentioned in the inventory dated 26/28 April 1783 of his aunt Hiltje Dirks /married to his mother's brother Hans Johannes /Greidanus// included on page 342, so that he will have died before the date of 26/28 April 1783.

96 TRIJNTJE (TRIJNTIE) LIEUWESDOCHTER

Line of descent: Tjardus 5[I] ← Johannes 11[II] ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

She was a twin with her brother Johannes, with whom her baptism at Harlingen on 22 July 1749 is recorded.

MARRIED:

CLAAS PIETERS, 7 April 1771 at Harlingen, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) there, 1764—1772:

> "1771. Claas Pieters And Trijntie Lieuwes both > of Harling. Proclaimed on the 24—31

CHILDREN:

1. Sytske Klaases, baptized at Harlingen 29 December 1772 (b. 23 Nov. 1772).
2. Hiltje Klaases, baptized at Harlingen 1 February 1774 (b. 4 January 1774).

With the statement that both these children are mentioned in the above-cited inventory dated 26/28 April 1783 of Hiltje Dirks, this branch will be left at that.

97 FROUKJE (VROUKJE) LIEUWESDOCHTER

Line of descent: Tjardus 5[I] ← Johannes 11[II] ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

Her baptismal record in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen reads as follows:

> "1751 On 18 May
> Liewe Tjerks The Father; And > Sijtske Johannis The Mother; And > the Child Froukje baptized."

MARRIED:

1° Cornelis Hendriks, 16 May 1773 at Harlingen, as appears from the following entry in the Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1772—1811.

> "/1773/
> (May 16). Cornelis Hendriks and Froukje Lieuwes."

Cornelis Hendriks was at Harlingen first a "sleefmaker" (ladle maker) and at the end of his life lock-keeper.

By proclamation of 14/21/28 March 1784 /20/27 March/3 April 1784 there were bought by: Cornelis Hendriks sleefmaker and Vroukje Lieuwes, spouses at Harlingen, 1° a solid dwelling and weaving shop cum annexis, standing and situated on the rampart of this town, close by the Moriaanstraat, 2° a fine dwelling cum annexis, standing and situated on the town ramparts, close by the Moriaanstraat, both dwellings from Foekje Cuiper, widow of the late merchant Poppe Menalda at Harlingen, respectively for 106 g.gl. and 111 g.gl. 21 st..

By proclamation of 23/30 Jan./13 February 1785/29 Jan./ 5/19 Feb. 1785 there was bought by: Cornelis Hendriks, Mr. sleefmaker at Harlingen, a certain dwelling c.a. in the Droogstraat, inhabited by the seller, from Foekje Jacobs, widow of Reinder Goverts at Harlingen, for the sum of 66 g.gl. 7 st.. Apparently this dwelling was inhabited by Froukje Lieuwes until May 1787; the house was sold by proclamation d.d. 20 May 10/17 June 1787 /26 May/16/23 June 1787 to Doeke Venema and Albert Batman.

By proclamation d.d. 6/13 March/3 April 1785/12/19 March/9 April 1785 there was bought by: Cornelis sleefmaker at Harlingen a fine dwelling cum annexis on the side of and running round behind the parcel of Minne Vink cum soc. in the Botapothecarstraat within Harlingen near Roma, from Gouke Sybrands Hingst, coopm̄ at Harlingen, for himself and as husband and guardian of his wife Trijntje Broers, for the sum of 65 g.gl..

Fairly soon after these purchases Cornelis Hendriks must have died, as appears from both of the proclamations set out below:

> 19/26 Nov. /3 Dec. 1786/25 Nov./2/9 Dec. 1786, whereby Jan Wijtses Vettevogel, merchant at Harlingen, buys a fine dwelling, habitation and weaving shop cum annexis in the street running from the Groot Kerkhoff to the inn Roma within Harlingen, from Minne Vink, also Councillor in the Vroedschap (town council) at Harlingen as authorized administrator and curator of the common estate, repudiated and abandoned by Frouckjen Lieuwes, w[d] of Cornelis Hendriks in his life lock-keeper at Harlingen, both for herself and in her capacity as mother and guardian of her children begotten in wedlock by her aforesaid husband, for $^1/_3$. — the deacons of the Reformed congregation at Harlingen, alimentatores (providers of maintenance) of Anskje Hendriks for $^1/_3$ and Wieske Hendriks, assisted by her husband Hidde Coops at the aforesaid place for the remaining $^1/_3$ part and thus together for the whole, for the sum of 171 g.gl. 7 st., subject however to a deduction of 13 car.gl. on account of advanced strijk- and verhooggelden (auction fees), nothing more.
> 26 Nov./3/10 Dec./2/9/16 Dec. 1786, whereby Wieger Frederiks beer carrier at Harlingen /this was the 2[nd] husband of Hiltje Dirks, first married to Hans Johannes /Greidanus// buys a certain dwelling and weaving shop cum annexis standing on the north side on Rapenburg within Harlingen from Minne Vink, also Councillor in the Vroedschap at Harlingen as authorized administrator and curator of the common estate, repudiated and abandoned by Froukjen Lieuwes, widow of Cornelis Hendriks, in his life lock-keeper at Harlingen, both for herself and in her capacity as mother and guardian of the children begotten in wedlock by her aforesaid husband, for the sum of 53 g.gl., subject however to a deduction of 7 car.gl. on account of advanced strijkgeld, nothing more.

Two further mortgage deeds charged to Cornelis Hendriks have been found in the Mortgage Registers of Harlingen. The first is of 11 Nov. 1767 (recorded 5 January 1780), whereby Cornelis Hendriks sleefmaker at Harlingen declares to owe to Elsje Schaaff, widow of the late merchant Sijbrand Talma, and as mother and lawful guardian of her minor little daughters Geertje and Aafke Sybrands Talma, a sum of 254 gl. 14 st.. This claim was on 12 Nov. 1768 ceded to the Vroetsman (town councillor) J. Ruitinga, who apparently later still advanced an amount of f 38—14 to Cornelis Hendriks for the expenses of the house.

The second is of 1 May 1782 (recorded 30 Dec. 1786). Hereby Cornelis Hendriks master sleefmaker and Vroukjen Lieuwes, spouses within Harlingen, acknowledge to owe 80 car.gl. (on 25 Oct. 1785 30 car.gl. was paid in reduction of this amount) to Minne Vink, burgher at Harlingen, on account of ready money advanced in order to pay therewith for our sleefmaker's wood. As special security are pledged the household effects, house furnishings, also the ladles made, ladle-maker's wood and tools.

2° Gerben Aukes, 1 July 1787 at Harlingen, as appears from the following entry in the Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen 1772—1811:

> "/1787/
> (July) Gerben Aukes and Vroukje Lieuwes, both > of Harlingen, had the last banns

Children of Bauke Greidanus (N^{o} 54) and Dedtie Jacobs

14^{I} · 5^{I} · 2 · 1^{I}

98 KLAAS (CLAAS) BAUKESZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Bauke 54 ← Johannes 14^{I} ← Tjardus 5^{I} ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1^{I}

b. Winsum · son of Bauke Greidanus (N^{o} 54) and Dedtie Jacobs · m. Antie Hendriks, 1770

His baptismal entry could not be found at Spannum, where his parents married on 31 July 1735, nor at Winsum, Oosterend or Hennaard, where they were settled after their marriage. A sister of his, Lolkien, was baptized at Hennaard on 26 September 1746. The marriage of Klaas Baukeszoon Greidanus with Antie Hendriks, to be mentioned hereafter, was not found in the marriage register of Oosterend and Hennaard; nor was the baptism found there in the baptismal register of a son Bauke born of this marriage, in whose death certificate of the Civil Registry, however, Oosterend is given as his place of birth. All this gives rise to the suspicion that the baptismal register and the marriage register of Oosterend and Hennaard are incomplete; in the baptismal register of Winsum, kept at the State Archives at Leeuwarden, there is a gap from 1733 to 1743, thus precisely over the period in which Claas Baukeszoon Greidanus might have been baptized.

As has been related on page 348, in 1768 Claas Baukeszoon Greidanus was meyer (tenant farmer) of his father's farm at Oosterend N^{os} 34 and 36 of the Stemcohier (register of voting farms), 35 pondemaat in size. When in 1778/1779 his father sold that farm to the Grietman (district magistrate) of Hennaarderadeel, Jr. Binnert Philip Aebinga van Humalda, he still had the lease of it until St. Petri and May 1781. Shortly afterwards Claas Baukes Greidanus must have left the farm at Oosterend, for, according to the Lidmatenboek (register of church members) of Spannum, on 25 April 1784 there were admitted as members on confession of faith: "Klaas Baukes and Antje Hendriks, spouses". The couple did not stay long at Spannum, since after the entry in the Lidmatenboek of Spannum has been placed: "departed with certificate 2 Aug^{t} 1786 to Hylaard", which agrees with an entry in the register of members of Hijlaard, reading: "on 27 August 1786 there came over to us with certificate from Edens and Spannum: Klaas Baukes Greidanus and Antje Hendriks, spouses at Hylaard". At Hijlaard too Claas Baukes Greidanus and Antje Hendriks cannot have stayed long, for already in 1792 we find them at Rien under Lutkewierum; for in the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of Hennaarderadeel one finds, from 1792 to 1802, under N^{o} 68 in the village of Lutkewierum, Claas Baukes as tenant or meyer (tenant farmer). On the Speciecohier (tax register) of the village of Lutkewierum too the name of Claas Baukes occurs, at first under N^{o} 37, later under N^{o} 52. Probably Claas Baukes Greidanus, just as at Oosterend and Lutkewierum, will have been a meyer at Spannum and Hijlaard as well, but like his father he fared worse and worse in his farming. As has been stated on page 349, he inherited from his father in 1780/1781 an amount of f 300.—. As a consequence, according to the Personeelcohier (personal tax register) of Hennaarderadeel, the assessment of Claas Baukes at Oosterend, who since the register of 1774 had been assessed on a capital of f 600.—, was raised to a capital of f 900.—. This remains so until the year 1782, when the assessment is struck out with the addition: "under oath at nothing". In 1784 he appears on the register for the last time, since he then inherited f 200 on behalf of his wife (see the following page). On the Personeelcohier of Baarderadeel for 1784 too one finds that inheritance recorded; but in 1785 that assessment for f 200 was again cancelled with the explanation: "cleared under oath, that he possesses no more goods". Between 1774 and 1782 Claas Baukes Greidanus thus appears to have got into financial difficulties. This also appears from the fact that in 1779 he had to sell seven P.M. of land of the farm called "Hokwert" at Winsum. Fourteen P.M. of this farm were, according to the Reëelcohieren of Baarderadeel of 1738—1758, the property of Pytter Claassen at Winsum, who was married to Trijntje Baukes Fopma, an aunt (sister of his mother) of Claas Baukes Greidanus. Apparently Claas Baukes Greidanus inherited half of those 14 P.M. from his aunt; the other 7 P.M. of land was inherited from Pytter Claassen by Minne Andries, farmer at Winsum, who, according to the Proclamatieboek (register of property sales) of Baarderadeel, sold it on 24/28 April/12 May 1766 to Mr. D. W. Bockma, assessor at the Court of Menaldumadeel, residing at Marsum, who already possessed 17 P.M. of "Hokwert". The sale of the 7 P.M. of "Hokwert" by Claas Baukes Greidanus was proclaimed on 17 May/14/28 June 1779 in the Proclamatieboek of Baarderadeel and also entered as follows on folio 200 of the Hypotheekboek (mortgage register) 1766—1787 of that Grietenij (district):

> "The Secretary A[b] Wiarda, buyer > versus > Claas Baukes seller.
> I, Klaas Baukes Greidanus, farmer under Ooster End, declare herewith to have sold and conveyed in true ownership to Abel Wiarda, Secretary and Receiver-General of Baarderadeel at Oosterlittens, certain seven pondematen of pasture land, taking the high with the low, in a farmstead and lands with house, barn and yard cum annexis at Winsum called Hokwert, in all sixty-eight pondematen of pasture, charged with seventeen Floreen ten stuivers of common taxation, inhabited and used as a whole by Poulus Reins at a rent of three hundred and six caroli guilders, being with respect to this sold portion free of tenancy at Petry and May 1780, having as adjoining owners the heirs of Mrs. van Aylva to the West, the Sneeker canal to the East, the Bolswarder canal to the South and the heirs of Burgomaster A. Agema and the buyer with associates to the North, and that with all advantages and disadvantages, great and small, good and bad, whatever it may be, with actions, credits, servitudes and rights appertaining thereto, none excepted.
> Thus sold and given, wholly with respect to this sold portion, for a sum of nine hundred gold guilders, to be paid in cash at the signing hereof in ringing silver coin without provincial bonds, in free money, above all costs falling upon this purchase, which moreover shall be wholly at the buyer's charge.
>
> And since the buyer has satisfied and paid me, the seller, the full purchase sum hereof of nine hundred gold guilders, I pass this as a free deed of sale thereof and at the same time as the absolute receipt for the purchase sum, placing the buyer hereby in the true ownership and possession of the sold property, promising to deliver the same free and to warrant it against eviction, as is proper according to law, under pledge of goods and especially of the sold property, with submission thereof to the Court of Vriesland and all courts. In witness whereof my hand, in the presence of the clerk W. Hettema and M[r] O. Kiestra as requested witnesses. Done at Oosterlittens the 30 April 1779 (was signed) Klaas Baukes, O. O. Kiestra, W. Hettema.
> Agrees after collation with the original, signed as above. Done the 30 April 1779 at 9 o'clock before noon.
>
> In witness whereof we, co-judge and sworn clerk
> (signed) I. Idsardi (signed) W. Hettema."

In the Hypotheekboek of Hennaarderadeel there occurs a mortgage deed passed at Sneek on 21 April 1801 and registered the same day, in which: Klaas Baukes and Antie Hendriks, spouses, residing under the village of Lutkewierum, declare that they owe 200 car.gl. to Jan Jelles, farmer there, on account of money advanced, at an interest of 3%, the debtors pledging all their goods, none excepted. The deed was signed by Claas Baukes and B. Faber.

On 15 December 1800, according to the Recesboek (court register) of Hennaarderadeel, judicial notice of termination of tenancy was given to Claas Baukes and to others, by the deed below:

> Hanso Godefridus Gongrijp, substitute Secretary of the Admiralty at Harlingen for $^1/_3$, Godefrijdus Cornelis Gongrijp, J. U. D[r] at Leeuwarden for $^1/_3$ and Hermaanus Cannegieter, former Professor of Law at Franequer in his wife's name for $^1/_3$, and thus together for the whole ..... Bauk Ypes at Cubaard, Durk Cornelis at Cubaard and Jan Cornellis at Wommels, all interdicenten (parties serving the injunction), protest as to the effect of the injunction against Pieter Jans and his wife at Cubaard .... the widow of Jacob Durks at Spannum, Claas Baukes at Rien, all interdicenten, in order that they shall vacate entirely, free and clear, on St. Petri and May 1801, the farms and lands, loose parcels of land, houses, gardens and cottages which they hold in use.

On the Speciecohier (specie tax register) of the village of Lutkewierum for the years 1803 and 1804 it is noted under N° 52 that "Claas Baukes is being maintained by charity", and for the year 1805: "Claas Baukes is dead".

Although Klaas Baukeszoon Greidanus died at Lutkewierum as one maintained by charity, he does not appear to have been in such needy circumstances there at first. I deduce this not only from the above-mentioned acknowledgment of debt dated 21 April 1801, but also from a deed occurring in the Recesboek (register of court proceedings) of Hennaarderadeel dated 16 January 1793. In it there is mentioned, besides others: Claas Baukes, farmer at Rien, Cornelis Tetmans, farmer at Lutkewierum, Gerben Harmens[1] at Oosterend, all interdicenten, who protest as to the effect of the injunction ..... (respectively) ..... Siebren Dienjes at Rien, Siemen Johannes, likewise there, and Hendrik Jacobs at Oosterend, all parties enjoined, in order that they shall vacate free and clear, on Petri and May 1793, their cottages and gardens, houses, dike house and kampkeland.

Claas Baukes (Greidanus) thus seems still to have had some property or other at Rien, of which judicial notice to quit was given to the tenant. This deed is indeed not clear; a consequence of the wholesale character which has been given to it.

In 1767 he was presumably a co-signatory of a record of the voting of the village of Oosterend for a grietman (district magistrate) in Hennaarderadeel (see page 350).

Attention may here further be drawn to the fact that, whereas Claas Baukes Greidanus' father has on a single occasion already been found without a surname as Bauke Johannes, Claas Baukes Greidanus himself is mentioned almost exclusively without the surname and signs as "Claas Baukes".

MARRIED:

ANTIE (ANTJE) HENDRIKS. As has been stated on page 417, the entry of this marriage, which must have taken place about 1770, is not known.

Antie Hendriks was a daughter of Hendrik Dirks and Acke Iemes.

Her baptismal entry in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Oosterend (1719—1772) reads as follows:

"(Anno 1743)
On 30 May was baptized the child of born on:
Hendrik Dirks, mother Acke 3 March Iemes, being a daughter named Antie."

In 1784 Antie Hendriks inherited from her father a sum of f 200.—. This follows, as has been stated on the preceding page, from the Personeelcohier (personal tax register) of Hennaarderadeel for the said year, in which one finds recorded that the heirs of Hendrik Durks at Oosterend were: Claas Baukes in his wife's name at Hylaard for f 200.—, being $^{1}/_{3}$ of the inheritance. As co-heirs were mentioned: Yme Hendrix[2] and Durk Hendrix, Antie Hendriks' brothers, each for 200 gulden.

In the death register of Hennaarderadeel there is entered, dated 5 April 1810, the death of Antje Hendriks at Wommels, possibly the widow of Claas Baukes Greidanus. If this is so, then the wife of Claas Baukes Greidanus would have reached almost 68 years of age.

CHILDREN:

1. Akke Klazesdochter Greidanus, who follows under number: 168.
2. Bauke Klazeszoon Greidanus, who follows under number: 169.

99 LOLKIEN BAUKESDOCHTER GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Bauke 54 ← Johannes 14[I] ← Tjardus 5[I] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

Her baptismal entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Oosterend and Hennaard reads as follows:

[1] Probably the father-in-law of Bauke Klases Greidanus (N° 169 of this genealogy).

[2] Later adopted the family name "van der Meulen".

On 16 October the child was baptized of B. Greydanus mother Dettie Jacobs being a daughter and named Lolkien born on the 26 September."

MARRIED:

DIRK (DURK) DIRKS POSTHUMUS (POSTMA, POSTHUMA)[1], 17 July 1770 at Hennaard.

This marriage is entered in the Reformed marriage register of Oosterend and Hennaard as follows:

Dirks Posthumus of Winsum the 17 July and at Hennaerd Lolkien Greijdanus of Hennaerd m.".

The baptismal entry of Dirk Dirks Posthumus, whose surname is corrupted into Postma and Posthuma, is not known; he must, however, have been born in November 1738, since on 29 October 1817 there died in the house N° 18 at Baard, where he was settled at the end of his life, at the age of 78 years and 11 months: Dirk Dirks Posthuma. This year of birth falls exactly in the period of a gap in the Reformed baptismal register of Winsum, which is kept at the State Archives at Leeuwarden.

Dirk Dirks Posthumus was initially the meyer (tenant farmer) of a "farmstead and lands" at Hijlaard, $51^{1}/_{2}$ P.M. in size, with an annual rent of f 336, and the property of the Grietman (district magistrate) of Het Bild, J[r] Hans Willem Baron van Aylva, but just like his father-in-law Bauke Greydanus and the latter's son Claas Baukes Greidanus, Dirk Dirks Posthumus declined greatly in financial standing.

In the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of Baarderadeel for the years 1782 up to and including 1785 Dirk Dirks Posthumus appears as user of the just-mentioned holding N° 8 at Hylaard, $51^{1}/_{2}$ P.M. in size (rent 336—.—.·), but already in the last-mentioned year he was 906 car.gl. 3 st. and 12 penn. behind with his rent, as appears from the following deed dated 5 December 1785, recorded in the Recesboek (court register) of Baarderadeel:

> "A[b] Wiarda, Secretary of Baarderadeel, administrator of the Heer J[r] Hans Willem Baron van Aylva, Grietman over Het Bild, protests the effect of the judicial order served in person by the executor of this court upon Dirk Dirx Posthumus and his wife at Hijlaard, that they shall not sell, remove or in any manner alienate any of their goods, furniture, household effects, house ornaments, live cattle, possessions, farming implements, silver and gold, nor any goods or field crops now held by the tenants, before and until the persons ordered have paid to the mandator a sum of 906 car.gl. 3 st. 12 penn. with the interest and accessories thereof, on account of arrears of land rent of the farmstead and lands used by them at Hijlaard, fallen due at Martinmas 1783, Martinmas 1784 and Martinmas 1785, apart from and besides such charges and taxes as may be owing thereon — on penalty of forfeiting one pound groot in case of contravention."

For the following years of the Reëelcohier of Baarderadeel, from 1786 up to and including 1790, one finds him as user of a chamber, part of Hylaard N° 38, paying a rent of 22—.—..

In the Personeelcohier (personal tax register) of Baarderadeel he appears in 1782 at Hylaard, with an amount of f 900.—; but this lasts only until 1784, when Dirk Posthumus declares "cleared under oath that he possesses no goods".

It is not known when, after 1790, Dirk Dirks Posthumus left Hijlaard for Baard, where he died as a labourer. He and his wife do not appear in the membership registers of Hijlaard and Baard. Probably he lived at Baard in 1810, because when his daughter Detje Durks Posthumus married in June of that year, she was settled at Baard.

Lolkien Baukesdochter Greidanus appears to have died before 1806; at any rate her name is not found in the death registers of Baarderadeel and Hennaarderadeel after 1806.

[1] The surname is given as "Postma" in the baptismal entries at Hijlaard of his children Dirk (1 Sept. 1776); Klaaske (14 Febr. 1779) and Dirk (13 July 1783) and with his daughter Dedtie, and as "Posthuma" in his death certificate. As a surname, before 1812 not much reliance can be placed on the name "Posthumus", because this designation in general means that the person concerned was born after the death of his father. Because in such a case the newborn was often named after the deceased father, one frequently finds the addition "Posthumus" preceded by the first name identical with the patronymic.

CHILDREN:

1. Dedtie Dirksdochter Posthumus, who follows under number: 170.
2. Bauke Dirkszoon Posthumus, who follows under number: 171.
3. Klaaske Dirksdochter Posthumus, who follows under number: 172.
4. Dirk Dirkszoon Posthumus, who follows under number: 173.
5. Klaaske Dirksdochter Posthumus, who follows under number: 174.
6. Dirk Dirkszoon Posthumus, who follows under number: 175.
7. Klaas Dirkszoon Posthumus, who follows under number: 176.

100 CATHARINA DRONRIJP

Line of descent: Trijntie 55 ← Johannes 14[II] ← Tjardus 5[I] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Kimswerd, 19 June 1757 · daughter of Jacobus Dronrijp Junior and Trijntie Greidanus (N° 55) · m. possibly: J. Overbeeck at Kimswerd

Her baptismal entry in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Kimswerd reads as follows:

> "1757 on 19 June
> Holy Baptism was administered to the little daughter of Mr. & Miss Jacobus Dronrijp & Trijntie Greidanus, named Catharina."

As stated on pages 351/52, on 11 December 1760 the following were appointed her guardians: Adrianus Heeringa, Doctor of Medicine, and Claas Tigler, Mennonite minister, both at Leeuwarden, this in accordance with the testamentary disposition of her mother.

MARRIED:

HENDRIK OVERBEEK, probably 17 September 1780 at Haarlem, where he must have been born ± 1755 as son of Lucas Overbeek and Maria Everhardi.

The couple Hendrik Overbeek × Catharina Dronrijp were at first established at Haarlem — presumably until 1793 — and thereafter at Dokkum.

Concerning them the following note is found in the Birth Register of the United Christian Congregation at Dokkum:

" Parents:
Hendrik Overbeek	son:	Klaas Jacobus (b.) 1785 — 23 July
with	daughter:	Albertina (b.) 1792 — 9 October
Katharina Dronrijp 1780 — 17 Sept.	son:	Johannes Christophorus (b.) 1796 — 26 January"

In this note, in which 17 September 1780 seems to have to be regarded as the probable date of marriage, no mention is made of a daughter Maria Catharina, born at Haarlem around 1782.

On page 352 it was stated that in the stemcohier (register of voting farms) of Kimswerd for the year 1778, 30 P.M. of land there stands in the name of: "Catharina Dronrijp cum.mar. J. Overbeeck, Mennonite". From this it would thus follow that Catharina Dronrijp, before her marriage on 17 September 1780 to Hendrik Overbeek, had also been married to a J. Overbeeck. It is possible, however, that the mention of J. Overbeeck in the stemcohier is due to a slip of the pen and that 17 September 1780 is not the date of marriage but the date of baptism.

Concerning Hendrik Overbeek and Catharina Dronrijp one finds in the Mortgage Register of Dokkum a deed dated 16 Oct. 1786/8 Nov. 1793 (registered 9 Nov. 1793), reading in the main as follows:

> Hendrik Overbeek Lz. and Catharina Overbeek born Dronrijp, spouses, owe 2000 guldens of 20 stuivers each to the Very Reverend Mr. Klaas Tigler, on account of money lent, advanced and paid over, promising to repay the above-mentioned sum a year from today free of cost and damage > with interest of from 4 to $3^1/_4$%, pledging for the performance and fulfilment hereof our persons and goods, movable and immovable, monies and securities, both that which is possessed by us in Friesland and here at Haarlem. Done at Haarlem, 16 Oct. 1786. (signed) Hendrik Overbeek Lz; Catharina Overbeek, born Dronrijp (in the margin stood): the interest has been paid, due 16 October 1787—1793.

> (on the reverse stood): Hendrik Overbeek and Catharina Dronrijp, spouses, at present living at Dockum, acknowledge and declare that they hold the debt mentioned in the foregoing bond to be in every respect lawful and valid, not only that, but also to undertake to make the repayment of the capital in hard coin without government bonds, and for that, over and above the general security given in the bond, to pledge especially our furniture and household goods, as well as everything further that might not be comprised under the general mortgage. In witness whereof our hands, in the presence of Notary Wierdsma, signed at Leeuwarden 8 November 1793 (signed) Hendrik Overbeek Lz., Catharina Overbeek, born Dronrijp, Petrus Wierdsma Notary.

According to the Register of Deceased within the municipality of Dokkum from 1774—1813, Catharina Dronrijp died on 20 May 1800 at the age of 43 years, and, according to the Civil Registry of Dokkum, Hendrik Overbeek died on 23 February 1834 at Dokkum, aged 79 years, without occupation, widower of Catharina Dronrijp, son of Lucas Overbeek and Maria Everhardi, in their lifetime spouses at Haarlem.

From another deed of the Civil Registry of that municipality it appears that on 5 July 1835 there died there Maria Catharina Overbeek, aged 53 years, unmarried, born at Haarlem, without occupation, daughter of Hendrik Overbeek and Catharina Dronrijp, in their lifetime spouses at Dockum.

In the Birth register of the Mennonite Congregation at Franeker there further occur: Pieter (b. 30 March 1813, † 8 August 1813) and Catharina (b. 6 May 1814), children of Klaas Jacobus Overbeek (son of Hendrik Overbeek and Catharina Dronrijp) and Aagje Klomp, both members of that Congregation.

His baptismal entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register (Great Church) of Harlingen reads as follows:

> "1765 The 2 April
> Tjeerd Greidanus the Father And Foekje
> Nauta the Mother And the child Ausonius Baptized."

From the Harlingen schools he came to the Franeker Academy on 4 June 1783, as appears from the following entry of his in the Album of that University, kept in the Provincial Library of Friesland:

(Latin) "In the fourth year, under Rector
Nicolaus Ypeij
the following declared their names

Of page 347, on which this entry was written in the Album by Ausonius Greijdanus in his own hand, a reproduction is given hereafter.

In the Provincial Library at Leeuwarden there is preserved an "Album of Aan and Haije Mulder, innkeepers of the Student Coffeehouse and Kolf-court in the old castle Nieuw Bothnia and afterwards in Oud Dekema at Franeker, containing 169 verses and inscriptions of students during the years 1783—1808". The verses and inscriptions were written in the Album by the students in their own hand. On page 89 one finds the following poem by Ausonius Greijdanus:

"That unanimity gives birth to Love, let Zethus and Amphion show;
the one rejects his harp, strung with art,
in order the better to resemble Zethus, who was inclined to the hunt.
Thus shall a friend, as a token of friendship, love that which his friend loves,

After he had taken the ecclesiastical examination before the Classis of Franeker, he was on 7 April 1788 called as Dutch Reformed minister in the villages of Oudwoude and Westergeest, which call was approved by the Classis on 13 May following. The letters of call relating to this are at present in the hands of Dr. H. Th. van Wimersma Greidanus at Utrecht (N° 457 of this genealogy). They are almost identical in wording; the contents of the letter of call concerning the village of Westergeest follow hereafter:

minister in the village of Westergeest.
Whereas the office of minister and the service in the Reformed congregation of Jesus Christ in the village of Westergeest has become vacant through the calling away of Ds. Henricús Broúwer, whose place most urgently needed to be filled with a capable person, the voting-entitled inhabitants there have again chosen to that Reverend office the Reverend Aúsonius Greidanús S: S: M: Candidatús under the Classis of Franequer, as appears from the accompanying voting proceedings, in order to exercise here the ministry of preaching, to administer the Sacraments, and further to attend to all that belongs to this office: His Reverence shall here during the five months from 1 May to the last of September have to preach twice on Sundays, and during the remaining seven months may suffice with preaching once on Sundays: to that end assigning to His Reverence the free parsonage standing at Oudwoude with the use thereof, and all its charges, profits, servitudes and rights belonging and appertaining thereto; with the request that the Reverend Classis of Dockum may be pleased to grant approbation hereupon in due form.
In witness whereof the hands of us, the commissioners, together with those of the Dorprechter (village judge) and the Fiscaal H: Faber as witnesses.

On 31 October 1790 Ds. Ausonius Greidanus took leave of the congregation at Oudwoude and Westergeest, since on 16 September, approved 5 October following, he had been called away to Oosterwierum, where Ds. Bernardus Arcerius Snoek had been deposed on 6 August of that year by the Deputy States of Friesland on account of his political principles (he did not belong to the Stadholder's Party, but to the Patriots).

The letter of call for Oosterwierum, now in the hands of Dr. H. Th. van Wimersma Greidanus at Utrecht (N° 457 of this genealogy), reads as follows:

> "Letter of call for the Reverend Mr. Dnús Ausoniús Greidanús as newly

> Whereas Bernardus Arcer Snoek, former minister of Oosterwierum, according to the resolution of the Noble Mighty Lords Deputy States of Friesland, dated 6 August 1790, has been deposed from his office as minister of Oosterwierum, whereby the parsonage of the said village of Oosterwierum has become vacant, it is consequently necessary that, to the honour of God, the edification and building up of his dearly purchased Church, and especially of the congregation of Oosterwierum, the vacant office of minister be again filled with another capable person.

> So it is that the voting-entitled and qualified inhabitants there, being lawfully assembled to that same end today in the church of Oosterwierum, have voted for and chosen, as they also hereby declare that they choose as minister of Oosterwierum, the Reverend D^{s} Ausonius Greidanus, at present minister at Oudwoude and Westergeest, henceforth to preach twice every Sunday in the village church for the congregation at Oosterwierum, to administer the Holy Sacraments, to exercise the congregation in Christian virtues and prayers, to maintain proper discipline and order, and generally to do all that a faithful servant of the divine Word is bound to do and ought to do according to God's word, Christian ordinances and the church ordinances of this Province.

Ds. Ausonius Greidanus delivered his inaugural sermon at Oosterwierum on 7 November 1790, but was dismissed from his office on 18 April 1795, since Ds. Snoek, in connection with the establishment of the Batavian Republic, was reinstated in his ministry at Oosterwierum by the Provisional Representatives of the People of Friesland. In N° 16 on page 121 of the "Dagverhaal der Handelingen van de Provisioneele Representanten des Volks van Friesland", printed at Leeuwarden by M. A. van der Wal and M. Koon, one finds the following on this matter:

"Liberty, Equality Fraternity.
DAILY RECORD of the PROCEEDINGS of the Provisional REPRESENTATIVES of the People of Friesland.
N° 16.
2 May 1795, the first Year of Batavian Liberty.
Continuation of the FIFTY-NINTH SESSION.
Further, after having heard the requested considerations and advice of the same Commission, it has been resolved to set aside the resolutions and dispositions by which the former Deputy States of Friesland deprived the Citizens F. Hellendoorn Cramer, Eelco Alta, B. A. Snoeck and Dominicus van der Schaaf of their posts as Teachers in the Reformed Congregations of Suawoude, Bosum, Oosterwierum and Minnertsga, under various pretexts, but all on account of their attachment to the principles of Liberty and Patriotism, and declared them unfit for church service in this Province, and in so far to restore the said Citizens in integrum; allowing however the term of six weeks to the Teachers now functioning in those places, to put their affairs and removal in order, and to obtain proper dismissal from the Classes; without these being in the least stigmatized thereby, and without prejudice to their right to sue for compensation, as they shall think fit."

The letter of dismissal issued to Ds. Ausonius Greidanus is in the possession of Dr. H. Th. van Wimersma Greidanus at Utrecht (N° 457 of this genealogy) and has the following content:

"Extract
The Citizen A: Greidanŭs
at Oisterwierŭm.
Extracted from the Resolution Book of the Provisional Representatives of the People of Friesland.
Having upon resumption deliberated on, and received, the advice and considerations of the Commission charged with the management of the affairs of the College, upon the proposal made to the meeting: whether the Resolution or disposition taken by the former Deputy States on 6 August 1790 to the detriment of the Citizen B: A:

[1] / Later surname "Stellingwerf".

[2] / Later surname "de Jong".

Snoek as minister in the congregation of Oosterwierum ought to be withdrawn and annulled? it has been found good and resolved to declare: that it has become fully apparent to the Assembly, after careful investigation, how arbitrary the adoption of the aforesaid Resolution to the detriment of him, Snoek, was; that he, being summoned and having appeared on account of a letter intercepted in the most despicable manner, did not acknowledge it as his, just as it was not proved against him that that letter had been written by him; that even if that letter had been written and sent by him, its contents nevertheless contained nothing criminal; that in that case too the alleged offence could only have consisted in keeping up a correspondence with a worthy patriot who had fled from here because of the violence of those times; but even if the writing of that letter had been proved against him, Snoek, or had been acknowledged by him, and even if his conduct had contained something criminal, and finally even if one had had to disapprove of his conduct as not agreeing with the then known way of thinking of the former government (which is by no means the case), even then the Resolution passed to his detriment would now have to be reckoned to have entirely lost its effect through the Publication of the 7th of February last: since the alleged grievance could not have arisen without the preceding disturbances of the year 1787.

Since it appears from the disposition or Resolution that both ways of thinking and persons were regarded as criminal, which were not to the detriment of the Country (as was alleged) but were to serve as a terror to arbitrary rulers.

That therefore the aforesaid Resolution, adopted on the 6th of August 1790, is reckoned as annulled and withdrawn, and consequently the citizen B: A: Snoek ought to be restored to his office as minister in the congregation of Oosterwierum, as is hereby done.

Provided that he, Ds. Snoek, shall be bound to allow the minister at present serving at Oosterwierum, A: Greidanūs, a period of six weeks reckoned from the date hereof, in order to be able to move and to request his dismissal from the Classis, so that after the lapse of those six weeks the office of Servant of the Divine Word in the congregation of Oosterwierum may again be taken up and continued by Ds. Snoek, provided that he first present to our Commission, which manages the affairs of the College, sufficient certificates of the good life and conduct which he, Ds. Snoek, has maintained during the time that he was without a fixed ministry.

That finally, far from this Resolution being reckoned to have cast any stain upon the minister at present serving at Oosterwierum, his right is left intact, as also that of the restored minister Snoek, to take action for compensation, as they shall think fit.

And an Extract hereof shall be conveyed in the usual manner to the Commission for the management of the affairs of the College, and shall be sent to the respective six Classes in this Province for their information, as also to Ds. A: Greidanūs and B: A: Snoek, that they may govern themselves accordingly.

Thus decreed at the Landschapshuijs in Leeuwarden on the 18th of April 1795, the first year of Batavian Liberty.

Agrees with the aforesaid Book
In witness whereof I, Secretary,
(w.g.) E: N: Beijma."

Within a year, namely on the 28th of March 1796, approved by the Classis on 5 April following, Ds. Ausonius Greidanus was again called to Oude Schild on Texel, as appears from the following letter of call, now in the keeping of Dr. H. Th. van Wimersma Greidanus at Utrecht (N° 457 of this genealogy):

The Reverend and very learned Mr. Ausoniūs Greidanūs was confirmed in the holy ministry in the congregation of 't Oude Schilt on Texel by Willem Honst, minister at den Bürg on Texel, on the 1st of May 1796, with the words of the Apostle Peter, 1 Peter 5 : 2, 3, 4, the confirmed minister having begun his ministerial work in the afternoon with Mark 16, 15, 16.

"Reverend, godly and highly learned Members of the Classis of Alkmaar, our Fathers and faithful Providers, all salvation and blessedness in Christ Jesus!

Whereas it has pleased the Lord of the Harvest, who always sends out and calls labourers into his vineyard, to make our Church of Oude Schild on Texel vacant through the deposition of Ds. Dirk Clūwens by Their Honourable Mightinesses the Committed Councillors of Holland and West Friesland in West Friesland and these Northern Quarters, and by the Classis of Alkmaar as resting in the pronouncement of Their Honourable Mightinesses, therefore it is that we, the undersigned officers of the Church, after ripe deliberation, considering the welfare of our congregation, in the fear of the Lord and with invocation of the Lord's Name, in the presence of a neighbouring minister who had been kindly requested by us thereto, have by a majority of the votes of our congregation called, as we do hereby call, D. AUSONIUS GREIDANUS, minister without fixed ministry, last having been minister at Oosterwierum in Friesland, under the Classis of Sneek, since we are sufficiently assured of his godliness, friendliness and outstanding gifts of preaching, not only by trustworthy witnesses, but also by our own experience, to be our worthy Pastor and Teacher, to fulfil all the parts of an overseer and provider of the flock, and together with our church council to exercise church Discipline, not doubting but that his Honour will, under God's blessing, be a blessed means of building up God's Kingdom more and more among us, and of destroying the Kingdom of Satan. We therefore request his Reverence to be willing to accept this our call as a divine call, just as we also promise to conduct ourselves towards his Reverence's person in all friendliness, teachableness and godliness, as honest and pious Christians; praying also to the God of peace and the Father of our Saviour Christ Jesus, that He may be pleased to grant him His divine and rich blessing in this his service, to the conversion of many people and to the honour of His most holy Name; wishing also that the Classis of Alkmaar may be pleased to approve this our nomination, and to let it reach us with all possible speed.

This has been done in all sincerity, as before the eyes of the Lord, just as we, both former and serving church council, have also signed this Instrument with our own hands as a token of our earnest intention.

The 28 March 1796.

With the acceptance of this call to a North Holland village, Ds. Ausonius Greidanus bade farewell to the soil of his birth, never to return there. His descendants too, apart from a few short stays of no significance, have not dwelt in Friesland. The branch of the family "Greydanus", of which Ds. Ausonius Greidanus was then still the only representative with male descendants, — namely the branch sprung from the 2nd marriage of the Achlum and Hitzum minister Ds. Tjardus Greydanus with Eelckien Steenkist —, thus with this Ds. Ausonius Greidanus left the (Frisian) "fatherland" for good, after having been established there for about a century and a half.

At Oude Schild on Texel Ds. Ausonius Greidanus worked for a good 23 months. As appears from the call letter below, now in the hands of Dr. H. Th. van Wimersma Greidanus (N° 457 of this genealogy), he was called away on 26 February 1798 to the congregation of Zuidzijpe and Eenigenburg, situated in the same province. From the "Acte van Verbintenis" (deed of obligation) reproduced here it further appears that he was called "at a yearly salary of Eight hundred guldens, namely 700 guldens from the Lands and 100 guldens, during his stay in this place, from the acting church council, representing the whole congregation".

"Deed of Call.

Whereas it has pleased God Almighty, through the ministry of the Holy Gospel, which is the power of God unto those that believe, not only to gather and assemble His congregation here on earth, but also, through that same ministry of the Gospel, as well as of the Holy Sacraments, to strengthen and preserve the Christian congregation gathered together here and there, therefore we the undersigned Minister, and Elders, and Deacons of the congregation of J. C. in de Zijpe, together composing the church council there, for the further advancement of the Kingdom of J. C. among us, and for the wider extension of the borders of the Lord, according to the offices laid upon us by God, after earnest invocation of the Holy Name of the Lord, and after hearing and making enquiry of and after various ministers and their gifts, have resolved to call, in the place of Joannes Wilhelmüs Brüijn, minister at the S[t] Maartensbrug, but now declared Emeritus by the Provincial Government of Holland, as we also do call by this present, the Reverend, godly and learned Mr. Aüsoniüs Greidanüs, minister at 't Oüde Schilt on Texel, faithfully to perform the whole service of a faithful shepherd, in the preaching of the Gospel, the administration of the Sacraments, and the exercise of church discipline, and being assured of his Honour's good life and conduct, we most respectfully request the Reverend Classis of Alkmaar to be pleased to consider these our letters and instrument of call in the fear of the Lord, and to approve them favourably, and also our Reverend called minister to be pleased to accept this our call, trusting that God, and the Father of our Lord J. C., will so bless his labour among us, that we on both sides shall have cause for joy and contentment, to the magnifying of the Lord's Holy Name, the edification and building up of His

Ds. Ausonius Greidanus remained minister of Zuid Zijpe and Eenigenburg for 34 years, until his death on 21 November 1832. He lived there in the little village of Sint Maartensbrug in the municipality of Zijpe, in the parsonage named "Kerklust".

His death was announced by means of the family notice given below:

"  This evening about twelve o'clock I, with my Children and Children-in-law, was plunged into the deepest mourning by the sudden and unexpected death of my worthy Husband, the Reverend and very learned Mr. A. GREIDANUS, Minister at Zuid-Zijpe and Enigenburg. He died at the age of 67 years, 8 months and 21 days, the thirty-eighth of our marital union; deeply mourned by his numerous Relations and by his whole Congregation.
Sint Maartensbrug, — M E T J E P L U I M, in de Zijpe — Widow of A. Greidanus."
21 November 1832.

Concerning his death the following is found in the periodical "Boekzaal der Geleerde Wereld":

1832, December, part II, p. 811:

> "Zijpe. On the 21st of Nov. last the united Congregation of Zuidzype and Eenigenburg suffered a grievous loss. Its Minister, the Reverend and very learned Mr. A. Greidanus, died unexpectedly of a rapidly increasing weakness, to the sorrow and grief of his Congregation and dear relations. On the 2nd of December following, Ds. T. G. Schomaker, Minister at Noordzijpe, delivered a solemn Funeral Oration upon his Reverence, on the oc> casion of Hebr. XIII : 7a. Remember your leaders, who have spoken to you the word of God. The annus gratiae (Latin: year of grace) will be served for the Widow by the ring of de Zijpe.

> Thus Zuidzijpe and Eenigenburg vacant."

Same part, p. 814/815:

> "Oosterwierum, the 2nd of Dec. Our Minister, L. A. Offerhaus, in the introductory remarks to the Sermon he delivered this morning, made known to us the death of the Reverend Mr. A. Greidanus, latterly Minister at Zuidzijpe etc., Province of Noord-Holland, in former years active in the ministry of the Gospel here. There are only a few remaining who remember the worthy Deceased, but among these his Reverence is known in a very favourable manner; our Minister roused us to a grateful remembrance, admonishing us to hold the Ministers of the Gospel, especially also in this Congregation, in esteem and blessing."

1833 First Part, p. 131:

> "AUSONIUS GREIDANUS, latterly Minister at Zuidzijpe and the Congregation of Eenigenburg united therewith, under the Classis of Alkmaar, began his ministry in the year 1788, at Oudwoude and Westergeest, under the Classis of Dokkum. From there he departed in 1790 for Oosterwierum, under the Classis of Sneek, and in the year 1796 came over to Noord-Holland, by answering the call of the Congregation of Oude Schild, on the Island of Texel, under the Classis of Alkmaar. — He was there for a good 23 months, working with satisfaction in the ministry of the Gospel, yet he exchanged that station for Zuidzijpe etc., where until his death he was untiringly busy in the work of the Lord, and which Congregation he edified for 34 years by teaching and example, until, after a rapidly increasing weakness, on the 21st of November 1832, at the age of nearly 68 years, he gently fell asleep and was relieved by his Lord. Repeatedly during that time he also served the Netherlands Church in an ecclesiastical capacity, on the Classical Board and otherwise.
> His Reverence sprang from a distinguished Frisian Family; but, what says more, he was a man of quickness, of judgment, versed in the learned languages, especially in the Oriental languages and in the exposition of the Bible, while he had made the advances of our Century, in various Sciences belonging to the theological field, particularly serviceable to himself.
> He was married twice; the last time to Miss M. PLUIM, and besides her he left seven grown-up Sons and Daughters, some of whom are married, and one son is at work in the ministry of the Gospel with the Congregation of Etershem and Schardam. Not only by these, but also by the whole Congregation, fellow-ministers and Friends, is the death of the dear man deeply mourned.
> Testimony of this sorrow was given by the solemn burial of his mortal remains, followed by the nearest blood relations, the members of the church council, some ministers from the ring of Zijpe, and his colleague Ds. T. G. SCHOMAKER, minister at Noordzijpe, who on the 2nd of December following dedicated a solemn funeral oration to his memory, on the basis of Hebr. XIII : 7.
> May the ashes of the departed Minister rest softly until the hour of a blessed resurrection, and may the memory of the life of this usefully active man remain a blessing with all who have known him."

> OUDWOUDE, the 2nd of December 1832. Today the church council here received the news of the sudden and unexpected death of the Rev. Mr. A. GREIDANUS, latterly minister at Zuidzijpe in Noord-Holland, where his Reverence passed away in the evening of the 21st of last month, at the age of over 67 years.
> It was in the year 1788 that his Reverence took up the office of Minister in this Congregation, which important office he fulfilled among us for two years with the utmost faithfulness. Our Minister, the Rev. Mr. J. H. NANNINGA, made the death of one of her former Ministers known to the Congregation on Sunday the 16th of December in a fitting introductory address, and on that occasion spoke to us of the inestimably great happiness which death brings to the sincere Christian, on the basis of Phil. I : 21b, further exhorting us so to live for CHRIST that we too may one day, at our departure hence, share in that happiness."

MARRIED:

1° TRIJNTJE WILLEMS HOUTSMA, 4 May 1788 at Harlingen (Groote Kerk).

The entries relating to this marriage follow below:

Reformed marriage register of Franeker:

"(1788) On the 20th and 23rd of April an extra proclamation during the week with the consent of their Honours—April today and on 27 April there were proclaimed here without impediment Ausonius Greidanus
S. S. M. Candidate at Franeker and Trijntje Willems at Harlingen and on 27 April an attestation was granted to marry at Harlingen."

Reformed marriage register of Harlingen (Groote Kerk):

May Ausonius Greidanus S. S. Minist.
Candidate of Franeker and Trijntje Willems of Harlingen had their last publication of banns on 4 May 1788, and were married on presentation of the attestation on the same day."

At the same time, on 4 May 1788, her brother Jan Willems Houtsma married at Harlingen Ds. Ausonius Greidanus' sister: Petronella Greidanus.

A baptismal entry for Trijntje Willems Houtsma could be found neither at Pingjum nor at Harlingen. She must have been born about 1765, since she died on 20 February 1789 at the age of 24 years.

She was a daughter of Willem Douwes and Ympkien Teunes[3], who married on 23 May 1745 at Pingjum. Willem Douwes was then Mr. Carpenter there. On 4 November 1765 he became a citizen of Harlingen, as appears from the following entry in the Burgerboek (citizens' register) of that town:

"on 4 Novemb. 1765
Willem Douwes born at Harbayum was admitted as a citizen of this town, having taken the oath of fidelity in the hands of the Hon. Presiding Burgomaster Jelger-sma and paid the fee amounting to 10—10."*

At Harlingen he was a timber merchant and architect. By the resolution given below, dated 18/22 April 1772, he was appointed, as successor to Eelke Jelles, Town Master Builder at a weekly remuneration of 5 Car. gld.:

> "The Magistracy of the town of Harlingen, being assembled at the Town Hall, taking into consideration the weak bodily condition of the presently serving town Master Builder Eelke Jelles, to such a degree that he is at present in the absolute impossibility of exercising any attention in his post. Has seen fit and resolved, in the place of the said E. Jelles, to appoint provisionally as overseer of the town works Willem Douwes, merchant here, on this condition, that he shall without exception faithfully and accurately attend to everything belonging to this post, and further bind himself under solemn

[1] Minister at: Wons (1788—1792), Hindeloopen (1792—1794), Dronrijp (1794—1795) and Achlum (1795—1824). At Dronrijp he was, like his friend Ds. Ausonius Greidanus at Oosterwierum, deposed by the People's Representatives and the former minister was restored in his place.

[2] From 1806—1821 V.D.M. at Lollum, from where he left for Scharwoude.

Oath not to charge the town for any timber wares, or whatever materials they may be, at a higher rate than he is accustomed to supply the same to his best and most important customers. For all of which the said Willem Douwes shall be authorized to enter weekly, as his remuneration, to the town's account the sum of five car. gulden, without being allowed to claim anything further for extraordinary services, and an extract of this shall moreover be issued to him. Thus resolved on 18 April 1772 and confirmed on the 22nd of the same.
* (signed) B. van der Meulen
* By order of the Magistrates.
* (signed) A. I. Conradi"*

Willem Douwes remained, alongside his office of Bouwmeester (master builder) of the town of Harlingen, a timber merchant, as appears from the wording of the resolution, that he bound himself "under solemn Oath": "not to charge the town for any timber wares, or whatever materials they may be, at a higher rate than he is accustomed to supply the same to his best and most important customers". At his request, since "on account of his extensive business and timber trade he was hardly able to continue to discharge his function as it ought to be, to the satisfaction of the Government and his own", he was granted discharge as Stadsbouwmeester (town master builder) on 31 August 1778, whereby the Magistrates declared "that they took complete satisfaction in the zeal, fidelity and vigilance with which he had discharged his post during these six years". The Magistrates' resolution by which this discharge was granted to him follows below:

> "On Monday 31 August 1778 the Bouwmeester Willem Douwes appeared before the meeting of the Magistrates, respectfully submitting that on account of his extensive business and timber trade he was hardly able to continue to discharge his function as it ought to be, to the satisfaction of the Government and his own, and therefore requesting to be discharged from his post as stadsbouwmeester and to be allowed to surrender the same again into the hands of Their Worships, with thanks for all the favours enjoyed by him in the meantime.
> Whereupon, after deliberation, it was found good to accept the said resignation and to relieve Willem Douwes of his office as bouwmeester, Their Worships declaring that they took complete satisfaction in the zeal, fidelity and vigilance with which he had discharged his post during these six years, in token of which satisfaction an extract of this shall be issued to him, which may at the same time serve him as evidence of his discharge.
> * Thus resolved and confirmed on the date as above.
> * (signed) E. F. Harkenroth.
> * By order of Their Worships.
> * (signed) A. I. Conradi."

On 27 June 1792 "Willem Douwes of Herbajum, merchant" became a burgher of Amsterdam, where he remarried on 11 June 1793 to Rinske Gerrits Hoogveld, aged 36 years, born at Bolsward. There he was the owner of the sawmill "De Ruiter", standing outside the Utrechtsche Poort, and he died in that city on 21 January 1797, as appears from the following family announcement in the "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" N° 2322, of 28 January 1797, the third Year of Batavian Liberty:

> "  This morning shortly after 8 o'clock my husband WILLEM DOUWES died at the age of 78 years, which death afflicts me and plunges me into mourning; I request to be spared letters of condolence.
> Amsterdam the RINSKE HOOGVELD, also > * 21 January in the name of the children
> * 1797. of the deceased.
> N.B. The Timber Trade will be continued, under the Firm of the Brothers Jan and Theunis Willems."

The timber business of Willem Douwes at Harlingen was continued by his sons Jan Willems Houtsma and Theunis Willems Houtsma under the Firm of the Brothers Jan and Theunis Willems.

Willem Douwes seems to have been a well-known architect in his day, since we repeatedly meet him as the designer of farmsteads and barns, of the repair works of bridges and locks, and above all of the new building and repair works of village churches and the like.

As regards the two first-mentioned kinds of design, we find concerning these the following advertisements of contract lettings in the Leeuwarder Courant:

> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N°. 1014 of 28 December 1771:
> "There is offered publicly to the lowest bidder to be contracted: The labour cost of the making of a New Stelp on a Koudsteed by the Blikvaart under St. Jacobi Parochi next to Cornelis van Gelder; as as well as the demolition and rebuilding of a Binnenhuis (inner farmhouse), and the building of a new Buitenhuis 'under St. Anna Parochie, on the farm used by Age Meinderts; the specifications can be seen at Willem Douwes' at Harlingen, the contracting will take place in the inn at St. Jacobi Parochi on Thursday 9 January 1772 at 10 o'clock in the morning."

The following advertisements from the Leeuwarder Courant relate to the repair and renewal works to church, parsonage and school buildings designed by Willem Douwes:

> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N° 728 of 5 July 1766:
> "The Church wardens of the village of Kimswert intend on Saturday 5 July 1766 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in the inn there, to contract out the building of a new kitchen to the parsonage house in the said village, both the labour cost and the supply of the materials, the specifications of which may meanwhile be seen at Willem Douwes' at Harlingen."
> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 582 of 29 June 1768 and following numbers:
> "There is offered for contract to the lowest bidder the labour cost of making a new vault in the church at Kimswert, the specifications of which may be found at the church warden Jouke Hoytinga's in the said village and at the merchant Willem Douwes' at Harlingen. Whoever is interested may present himself on 4 July 1768 in the afternoon from one to two o'clock in the inn at Kimswert."
> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N° 939 of 21 July 1770 and following numbers:
> "On Sunday 29 July 1770 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Church wardens of Kimswert intend, in the inn there, to contract out the flooring of the church, and the making of three stone ash bins etc. Further information from Willem Douwes at Harlingen."
> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 946 of 21 June 1775:
>
> "The Church wardens of Sexbierum intend on Friday the 23rd of June 1775 in the afternoon precisely at one o'clock, in the inn there, to contract out to the lowest bidder: the labour cost of a new door on the south side of the church, and further the demolition and rebuilding of the transept built on to the north side, all according to drawing and specification, to be seen at the Bouwmeester Willem Douwes' at Harlingen and at the schoolmaster Harmanus Broos' at Sexbierum."
> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N° 1197 of 1 July 1775 and following numbers:
> "On Thursday 6 July 1775, at one o'clock in the afternoon, the church wardens of Kimswert will contract out there in the inn: the necessary repairs to the parsonage and school, consisting of some carpentry and masonry work. The specifications may be seen at the Bouwmeester Willem Douwes' at Harlingen."

Willem Douwes appears to have built the following village churches:

1° At Molkwerum.

This may be inferred from the advertisement below in the "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 570 of 6 April 1768 and following numbers:

> "The COMMISSIONERS of the Village of Molkquern, publicly offer, with strijkgeld (bidding premium), to contract out to the lowest bidder: The LABOUR WAGES, both for the Demolition of the old, and for the Building of a new Church in the above-named Village. Whoever is interested, let him come on Monday the 25th of April 1768 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the House of Haantje Hanses, Innkeeper at Molquern, and take on the work under the Conditions then to be read out to those present, which in the meantime may be inspected at the Secretary T. Abbring at Coudum, and at Focke Renja at Molquern, as also at the merchant Willem Douwes at Harlingen. Pass it on."

2° At Holwerd.

This appears from the following advertisements:

"Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N° 1231 of 24 February 1776 and following numbers:

"The CHURCH WARDENS and COMMISSIONERS at Holwerd, in the presence of the Right Honourable Mr. E. de Windt, Grietman (district magistrate) over Westdongeradeel, intend to contract out: The Supply of the Materials and the Labour Wages for the Building of a New Church.
1. The Supply of Timber.
2. The Supply of Lime.
3. The Supply of Cement.
4. The Supply of Brick.
5. The Supply of Lead.
6. The contracting of Ironwork.
7. The Labour Wages for Bricklaying.
8. The Carpentry of the Roof, Beams and the Vault, 477 ft.
Whoever is interested may come on Friday the 15th of March 1776, at the House of Ruurd Hanses, Innkeeper in the Grauw Paard at Holwerd, beginning precisely at 9 o'clock in the morning.
The specifications may be inspected 8 days before the contracting at the House of the said Innkeeper, as also at the Fiscal E. Windelaar at Dockum and at W. Buising in the Blauwhuis at Leeuwarden, as well as at the Town Architect Willem Douwes at Harlingen, where the Drawings are kept."

"Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 1037 of 19 March 1777 and following numbers:

> "The CHURCH WARDENS and COMMISSIONERS at Holwert offer to contract out:
> 1st: The Supply of Timber for the interior Work in the Church.
> 2nd: The making of it.
> 3rd: The Plastering.
> 4th: The making and Supplying of the Windows.
> The specifications may be inspected at the Architect Willem Douwes at Harlingen and at Holwert.
> Whoever is interested, let him come on the 1st of April 1777 at the House of Symon Jans, Innkeeper in de Klok."

3°. At Berlikum.

Concerning the building of this Church, one of the few domed churches in our country and, I believe, apart from the new "Koepelkerk" built some years ago at Leeuwarden, the only domed church in Friesland, the following advertisements have been found:

"Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N° 1272 of 7 December 1776 and following numbers:

"The CHURCH WARDENS together with the COMMISSIONERS of the Village of Berlikum will, in the presence of the Most Nobly Born Mr. Jhr. Georg Frederic Baron thoe Schwartzenberg and Hohenlandsberg, Grietman over Menaldumadeel, publicly contract out to the lowest bidder: The Demolition of the Old Church, and thereafter the Labour Wages for the Bricklaying, for an Octagonal Domed Church there; and that in lots as follows.
I. The Erection of a Wooden Shed, to serve for the holding of Divine Service during the Demolition of the Old, and the Building of the New Church.
II. The Sale of the Slates lying on the Old Church: to the highest bidder.
III. The Demolition of the Church.
IV. The contracting of some 1000 pounds of Lead.
V. The Cleaning of the Old Brick, by the 1000.
VI. The Supply of some 100 Barrels of Lime.
VII. The Supply of Cement.
VIII. The Supply of finished Ironwork.
IX. The labour wages for the Bricking up of a New Octagonal Domed Church.
Whoever is interested in this may come on Friday the 27th of December next, at the house of Hendrik Everts, Innkeeper at Berlikum, at 9 o'clock in the morning, where in the meantime the Drawing and Specifications may be seen, as also at Evert Annes Nauta, Church Warden there, as well as at the house of Gerben Sikkes, Innkeeper in the Wagentje at Leeuwarden, and at Willem Douwes, Town Architect of Harlingen."

"Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant", N° 1288 of 29 March 1777 and following numbers:

> "The CHURCH WARDENS and COMMISSIONERS at Belkum[1], publicly offer to contract out with strijkgeld.
> I. The Supply of Timber, for the service of the New Church.
> II. The making of the Roof and the laying of the Beams etc.
> III. The Sale of Timber from the demolished Church for Ready money.
> Whoever is interested in this may come on Monday the 21st of April 1777 at 10 o'clock in the morning, at the house of Hendrik Everts Huising, Innkeeper at Belkum.
> The specifications may in the meantime be inspected 14 days before the contracting at Evert Annes Nauta's at Berlikum and at Willem Douwes' at Harlingen."

Concerning this domed church at Berlikum, which in the Aardrijkskundig Woordenboek van Nederland by P. H. Witkamp and in the Algemeen Aardrijks- en Geschiedkundig Woordenboek van de Provincie Friesland, published by F. W. v. B. Smallenburg at Sneek, is called a "fine" church building, particulars are found in: Dr. M. D. Ozinga "De Protestantsche Kerkenbouw in Nederland van Hervorming tot Franschen Tijd" — a book in which not all the churches built or rebuilt for Protestant worship during that period are mentioned, but in which a selection from them has been made, which was in the main limited to those church buildings that were of importance from an architectural, or at any rate an architectural-historical, point of view — on pages 138 and 139, from which the following is taken:[1] [1] / Belkum is an abbreviation and Bel/t/sum is the Frisian name of Berlikum.

> "Berlikum.
> The church at Berlikum (Fr.), built in 1777—1779 after a plan of, and under the direction of, the architect and timber merchant Willem Douwes[a]/, recalls the design for a domed church by Symon Bosboom in his "Cort Onderwijs van de Vijf Colommen", which appeared at Amsterdam in 1682. On 27 Nov. 1776 the members entitled to vote had, on the proposal of the Grietman (district magistrate) Georg Frederik thoe Schwartzenberg en Hohenlandsberg, resolved to replace the old church, founded in 1345, by a domed building according to the specifications of the Harlingen town architect; for according to a written report by experts this would work out cheaper than a repair of the existing building. On 10 April 1777 the Grietman's little son laid the first stone; the consecration took place on 22 Aug. 1779.

Both in Bosboom's design and here the ground plan is an octagon with alternately straight and curved sides, within which four pillars, standing at the points of intersection of the perpendiculars on the ends of the straight sides, form a square. In both cases the octagon is likewise closed off by a roof consisting of eight spherical surfaces, crowned by an open little tower which is also eight-sided and covered in the same manner. Bosboom's domed church, however, had internally the form of a Greek cross with lower annexes at the corners. The Berlikum church, on the contrary, is covered with one flat stucco dome; the four brick columns with freestone bases, which pass over into narrower wooden columns, contribute little to the support of the roof, but serve here chiefly as the junction points of the tie-beams connecting the walls. The disturbing manner in which those beams cut into the encircling entablature of the octagon, and also the less happy detailing of this entablature itself in comparison with that of the Harlingen church — on which it was evidently modelled — prove the more that Douwes cannot have been the architect of the church at Harlingen. The roof construction too, with its unnecessarily numerous and heavy timber, gives no high opinion of his insight as an architect; yet perhaps the circumstance that Douwes himself supplied all the timber suggests another explanation for this!

Although the Berlikum church can therefore in no way pass as an original architectural conception of importance, and the hemispherical form of the dome gives it something squat, the building nevertheless possesses outward attractiveness. Apart from its soberness, this is largely due to the curved lines of four of the sides, which as it were prepare for the roundings of the dome and the little tower[b]/. In this church too one is again struck by the particular care that was devoted to the fitting out of the interior in Lod. XVI style. The carving of the pulpit and the baptismal railing (perhaps also the entirely similar carving of the gentlemen's pews) was executed by Johann George Hempel, whom we saw at work, like Douwes, at Harlingen.

[a]/ In the church wardens' account book of the congregation, running from 1715 to 1787, there is also included the special account of the church building by the then administering Kerkvoogd (church warden) Evert Annes Nauta. This is preceded by a short introduction, from which the following is taken:

Introduction to the building account of the new church.

The old church, which according to the earliest notes that are at hand had already stood four hundred and thirty-two years, namely from the year 1345 — when, having fallen into decay through age, it had been improved again by the congregation — until the year 1777, but had now become so dilapidated and leaned over so much on the north side, that the congregation showed itself not a little apprehensive of calamities which might result from a sudden and unexpected collapse of the mass.

This then also moved the Grietman of this district to have this church building inspected most carefully by persons skilled in the matter, in order to have certain and reliable knowledge whether it could be restored by repairs, or whether an entirely new one ought to be erected. A detailed report of this having been made in writing, the aforesaid Grietman convoked the inhabitants entitled to vote, disclosed to them the true state of this matter, and resolved unanimously with them that it was by far the most advantageous to build an entirely new church. As, after the delivery of some drawings, it was then also settled that an eight-sided domed church should be erected, as appears from a deed of 27 Nov. 1776 inserted in this church book and to be found after the account closed on that same day. And according to the further contents of the same deed there were requested, authorized and commissioned for the execution of this important work, in article 8 the two church wardens, the high and well-born lord Jhr. Georg Frederik, baron thoe Schwartsenberg en Hohenlandsberg, Grietman over Menaldumadeel, and the honourable Ewert Annes Nauta, and in art. 9 there were added to them for their assistance two persons from among the other voters, the honourable Sybren van Gelder and Jetse Meinerts, together with, as architect over the whole building, the experienced and skilled Willem Douwes, former town architect of the town of Harlingen.

Thereupon a beginning was made with what had been resolved, namely with the demolition of the old church in the month of January 1777; while shortly afterwards, according to the contents of the 7th article of the same deed, a shed was erected out of the materials of the demolished church for the performance of divine worship. Meanwhile, the digging for the foundations of the new church having been done and the foundations laid therein, the first stone was thereupon laid on 10 April of that same year by jonkheer Georg Wolfgang, Carel Duco, baron thoe Schwartsenberg en Hohenlandsberg, aged 4 years 2 months and 14 days, son of the present Grietman of this district. And from that time the building was continually carried on and finally completed.

So that the highly esteemed minister of this congregation, the reverend and very learned Petrus Nota, was able to conduct the first service in it, and consecrated this new church building on 22 August 1779, having chosen as the subject of his sermon verses 15 and 16 of the 6th chapter of the book of Ezra.

Of the whole work, that is to say of each part in its kind, detailed specifications and precise conditions were made by the architect named above. Furthermore everything was in particular publicly let out by means of strijkgeld (premium bidding) and verlaaggeld, inspected after the work was done, and according to the findings the agreed sums were paid in full or with assessed deductions. But besides the general works there were nevertheless a few of particular art and importance let out privately, yet, as far as was possible, mostly according to specifications and conditions drawn up beforehand. And all of these were made and finished very ornamentally to general satisfaction, such as the pulpit, the baptismal screen, the plasterwork and especially the erection of an organ. This was undertaken by a skilled organ builder named Johannes Mithenreyter, living at Leyden, made particularly well according to an accurate specification, neatly executed and so delivered, and found fully in accordance with the specification by the experienced organist of the Groote kerk at Harlingen, Mr. Jan Feddema; this organ was consecrated by the aforementioned reverend Petrus Nota on 16 July 1780 with a sermon on Psalm 92, verses 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6.

Remuneration of the architect Willem Douwes.

1781. On 4 April paid to Willem Douwes for his commission of architecture on this building, for the making of drawings and calculations, specifications and designs, for the supervision of the materials, of the workmen and of the work done, having come here from time to time for those said purposes, with hire of horse-waggon or chaise and other travelling expenses and outlays, and all further salaries and expenses incurred in this service > from 18 July 1776 to 18 October 1779; is in all reckoned at 264 days and each day a rijksdaalder. So that the accountant has paid this architect six hundred and sixty Car. guldens, as may be seen in the receipts sewn together already shown under no. 8: f 660.

> b/ The late architect S. Koldijk rightly gave the consistory built a number of years ago a polygonal form and covered it with a hemispherical little dome, whereby it fits excellently with the church building and even helps to give it scale."

The two following advertisements concern the activities of Willem Douwes as Stads Bouwmeester (town architect) of Harlingen:

> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 818 of 6 January 1773 and following numbers:
> "The Magistracy of the town of Harlingen intends on Friday 29 January 1773 to let out to the lowest bidder:
> I. The labour wages for the making of a new Roof and Vault on the church now being built.
> II. The slating and soldering of the Lead on the same.
> The specifications and Conditions of this letting may be seen on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at the house of Willem Douwes, Stads Bouwmeester, in the morning from nine to twelve o'clock."
> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 964 of 25 October 1775 and following numbers:
> "The Honourable Magistracy of the Town of Harlingen intends on Wednesday the 1st of November 1775 publicly to sell at the Town Hall to the highest bidder: A fine parcel of tufa, to the quantity of about 80 Tons, and that precisely at one o'clock in the afternoon, further information being obtainable in the meantime from the Stads Bouwmeester Willem Douwes in the said Town."

Concerning this first advertisement it may further be noted that neither Willem Douwes nor his predecessor Eelke Jelles was the designer of the Nieuwe Kerk at Harlingen, although its construction did take place under their direction. Probably the designer of this church was the Amsterdam architect Jacob Otten Husly (see the work of Dr. M. D. Ozinga just cited, pages 131 and 132).

> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant", N° 1645 of 26 November 1788:
> "For sale by private treaty: A newly made carpenter's slipway, with a newly built shed, standing on the Y at Durkendam, enquiries to be made of Willem Douwes at Harlingen, of Laurens Swart at Amsterdam, and of Mr. Pyttersen at Durkendam."

After the death of Willem Douwes his sawmill "De Ruiter" outside the Utrechtsche Poort at Amsterdam was publicly sold, which is taken from the following announcement, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday 24 June A° 1797 N° 2343, The Third Year of Batavian Liberty:

> "On Monday 26 June 1797, there shall in the Oude Zyds Heeren Logement within Amsterdam be publicly sold: THE SAWMILL DE RUITER, standing outside the Utrechtsche Poort there, with the dwelling house belonging to it and further buildings with their appurtenances; this having been used for many years with good success for the sawing of oak timber by the late Willem Douwes."

Trijntje Willems Houtsma died at Oudwoude in childbed 20 February 1789, as appears from the notes of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus himself, included on page 437, and from the following, taken from "Kerkelijk leven der Hervormden in Friesland tijdens de republiek" by Dr. S. Cuperus (Part I, pages 59 and 60):

> "Especially the Acta from the latter half of the 18th century, when it became customary to inform the classis (the brethren) of family events, contain many a token of mutual good disposition between the members; which is not contradicted by the peculiar form in which this took place — betraying the nationalistic and town-hall-like spirit of the age — which often shocks us. When Ds. Beilanus (Ee) announces the "sad" loss of his wife Petronella Kock, "the classis takes a proper Christian part therein and instructs the scriba to condole with His Reverence on that account by a missive". The same instruction is given concerning a "letter of mourning, in which Ds. A. Greydanus (Oudwoude) made known what a bitter and heart-rending blow had been dealt to His Reverence, in that his tenderly beloved wife Tryntje W. Houtsma had on the 20th of February of this year, at the age of 24 years, been snatched from his loving arms by death, after Her Reverence had on the 15th previous been happily delivered of a well-formed daughter" (see Classis Dokkum 23 March 1789), with the addition "that the meeting was affected with heartfelt compassion at this sad decease". To Ds. G. T. de Cock a letter of condolence was sent "on account of the death of his only daughter", and to Ds. Is. Hemsing (Hempens) sympathy was expressed "on account of the most sad decease of his wife Baukje Faber, barely 19 years old, died in childbed after only 2 years of marriage". From the piety with which such announcements were recorded in detail in the Acta, one may indeed infer that a brotherly spirit prevailed among most of the members and that a classis was still something more than some thirty ministers."

The architect and timber merchant Willem Douwes has never been found with the surname "Houtsma". This surname is first used by his children, of whom Jan and Theunis continued the timber trade after his death. I take it that these children derived the name "Houtsma" from the timber-trading business of their father and of themselves. This then agrees with what Johan Winkler writes on page 562 of his "De Nederlandsche geslachtsnamen in oorsprong, geschiedenis en beteekenis", namely:

> "A peculiar correspondence between one or another surname and one or another characteristic of the bearer of such a name may also often be observed. Thus in my youth there was at Leeuwarden a wool-comber named Cammenga. Thus there is a timber merchant at Harlingen named Houtsma, and at Arum in Friesland a glazier who bears the name Glazema, just as a barber and a shoemaker at Wageningen, named Scheerder and Schomaker, and a poulterer at Amsterdam who bears the name Taling." (See also pages 240 and 246 of "Studiën in Nederlandsche Namenkunde" by the same author).

The surname "Houtsma" of the family of the architect and timber merchant Willem Douwes at Harlingen was therefore in my opinion formed differently from the old surname "Houtsma" already existing at that time, derived from the obsolete man's name Houtse, a diminutive form of Houte, Hout (Holt).

An indication that the surname of this Harlingen family "Houtsma" was indeed derived from the timber-merchant business of the progenitor Willem Douwes might be found in the coat of arms which appears on an old armorial cloth present in the Rijksarchief at Leeuwarden, which apparently served at the time as wall covering in the deaconry house at Harlingen. On this armorial cloth is found, namely, the arms of T. Houtsma 1817—1822, which arms are divided with 1. the Frisian eagle and 2. the, from a heraldic point of view less happy, figure of a sawmill. This T. Houtsma will be the Harlingen timber merchant Tjardus Houtsma, son of Jan Willems Houtsma × Petronella Greidanus and N° 186 of this genealogy. On this armorial cloth there appears for a H. Houtsma 1813 a coat of arms with the Frisian eagle, a kind of mortar and a tree. At present the family "Houtsma", descending from Willem Douwes of Harlingen, bears the arms shown below, of which the heraldic description reads:

Een aanwijzing, dat de geslachtsnaam van deze Harlinger familie „Houtsma" inderdaad ontleend is aan het houtkoopersbedrijf van den stamvader Willem Douwes, zou kunnen worden gevonden in het wapen, dat voorkomt op een ouden aan het Rijksarchief te Leeuwarden aanwezigen wapendoek, die blijkbaar destijds als wandbekleeding gediend heeft in het diaconiehuis te Harlingen. Op dezen wapendoek wordt n.l. aangetroffen het wapen van T. Houtsma 1817—1822, welk wapen gedeeld is met 1. den Frieschen adelaar en 2. de, uit een heraldisch oogpunt minder gelukkige, figuur van een houtzaagmolen. Deze T. Houtsma zal zijn de Harlinger houthandelaar Tjardus Houtsma, zoon van Jan Willems Houtsma × Petronella Greidanus en N° 186 van deze genealogie. Op dezen wapendoek komt van een H. Houtsma 1813 voor een wapen met den Frieschen adelaar, een soort vijzel en een boom. Thans voert het geslacht „Houtsma", afstammend van Willem Douwes van Harlingen het hieronderstaande wapen, waarvan de heraldische omschrijving luidt:

„Houtsma"
gedeeld: 1. de Friesche adelaar.
2. doorsneden: a. groen, met een zilveren roos.
b. zilver, met drie groene klaverbladen, 2 en 1.
Helmteeken: de roos van het schild divided per pale: 1. the Frisian eagle.

"Houtsma"
2. divided per fess: a. green, with a silver rose.
b. silver, with three green clover leaves, 2 and 1.
Crest: the rose of the shield.
Wreath and mantling: silver and green.

I do not know how this coat of arms came about.

A draft: fragment-genealogy of the family "Houtsma", descended from Willem Douwes, is appended herewith.

2° Metje Pluim, 7 December 1794 at Oosterwierum, daughter of Nicolaüs Pluim, Dutch Reformed minister at Mantgum and Schillaard, and Saakje/n/ Ydema (Idema), which marriage, as appears from the entries below, was solemnized by the father of the bride:

Dutch Reformed marriage register of Mantgum:

> "Ausonius Greidanus, minister at Oosterwierum, and Metje Pluim, > second daughter of Dns Pluim, minister at Mantgum, had on Sunday
> 16 November 1794 their first marriage proclamation, on Sunday > 23 ditto their second and on Sunday 30 ditto their third, without any > objection. They were subsequently married on 7 December 1794 by Dns N. Pluim at > Oosterwierum."

Dutch Reformed marriage register of Oosterwierum:

> "1794
> On 16 November — the marriage banns were proclaimed here
> — 23 ditto — of the Reverend Ausonius Grei> & — danus, minister at Oosterwierum, and Miss > — 30 ditto — Metje Pluim of Mantgum, the said per> sons having been on 7 December by the Reverend and very learned > Mr. N. Pluim, esteemed minister of the Gospel at > Mantgum, blessed in the state of matrimony."

Metje Pluim was born at Wijckel, where her father was then minister, on 25 May 1770 and baptized on 17 June following; she died at Edam on 21 July 1849 at the age of 79 years.

Her baptismal record in the Dutch Reformed baptismal and marriage register of Wyckel, kept in the church archive there, reads as follows:

"In the year 1770 On Sunday
17 June D^us
N. Pluim baptized his daughter himself, who was named { Metje and was held at the baptism by the mother.
the child born on 25 May in the evening at fully 10 o'clock."

Below follow the death certificate of Metje Pluim and two family announcements concerning her death:

"CIVIL REGISTRY

Ds. Ausonius Greidanus wrote a number of family notes in his own hand on the front fly-leaves of a small Bible, which is now in my possession. These family notes follow below:

"at Harlingen.
On 4 May 1788 D^{s} Ausonius Greijdanus was married to Trijntje Willems Houtsma.
In the year 1789, on 20 Febr., Trijntje W. Houtsma died in childbirth.
In the year 1789, on 15 Febr., our little daughter was born at Oudwoude and named Trijntje after her already deceased Mother on 8 March 1789.
In the year 1794, on 6 December, D^{s}
Ausonius Greidanus married for the second time
Metje Pluim at Oosterwierum.
In the year 1795, on 14 September, our little daughter was born and at her baptism named Saekje on the following 11 November at Mantgum.
In the year 1797 our second little daughter was born on 18 Febr. and baptized on the 26th ditto, named Foekonia Tjaardina, she being born & baptized at Oude Schild on Texel.
In the year 1799 on 12 April there was born at Kerklust by the St. Maartensbrug in de Zijpe, and on the 14th ditto baptized, our third child, a little son named Nicolaüs Pluim Greidanus.
1802 on 20 November there was born at Kerklust in de Zijpe, and on the 28th ditto baptized, our 4th child, the 2nd son, named Tjardus.
1805 on 7 February there was born at Kerklust in de Zijpe our 5th child, 3rd son, and baptized on the 10th ditto, being named
Joannes Henricus, but he died on 11 April 1806, aged 14 months.
1807 on 19 July there was born at Kerklust in de Zijpe our 6th child, 4th son, and baptized on the following 9 Aug.,
named Joannes Henricus.
1810 on 18 Sept. there was born at Kerklust in de Zijpe our 7th child, 5th son, and on the following 7 Octob. baptized, named Petrus.
1812 on 15 Sept. there was born at Kerklust in de Zijpe our 8th child, 6th son, and on the following 4 October baptized & named Jan Idema.
1809 on 24 Sept. Trijntje Greidanus was married to D^{s} A. van Ruijven, then still minister at Petten but called to Holijsloot.
1810 on 16 Sept. Trijntje Greidanus, wife of D^{s} A. van Ruijven, was delivered of a daughter, who was named Maria Geertruid.
1811 on 21 Novemb. Trijntje Greidanus, wife of Ds. A. van Ruijven, minister at Holijsloot but called to Nieuwendam, died, being 22 years & 9 months old.
1822 on 18 April Maria Geertruid died at Amsterdam, aged 11 years 7 months."

Thus Ds. Ausonius Greidanus added to the name of his first son Nicolaüs, called after his grandfather Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim, the family name "Pluim" of his wife Metje Pluim, and to that of his last son Jan, who, as we shall see below, was named after his great-grandfather Jan Idema, the family name "Idema" of his mother-in-law Saakje Idema. For that reason I now give some data concerning the families "Pluim (Pluym)" and "Idema (Ydema)", to which Metje Pluim and Saakje Idema belonged. In the course of time, however, the addition "Pluim" was lost from the family name "Pluim Greydanus".

Family "Pluim (Pluym)", to which the 2nd wife of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus, Metje Pluim, belonged.

Metje Pluim was a daughter of Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim and Saakje Idema.

Ds. Nicolaüs (Claas) Pluim was a son of Hendrik Pluim × Sydske Jelles at Leeuwarden, and was baptized there on 13 April 1735, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden 1731—1742, p. 73:

> "Baptized on 13 April 1735
> Claas.... { father Hendrik Pluym
> { mother Sydske Jelles."

Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim married at Wijckel on 14 October 1764 to Saakje Idema. The deeds relating to this marriage follow below:

Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden, 1764—1772, p. 2:

> "D^{s} Nicolaas Pluim, Minister of the Divine Word > at Wijckel, and Saakjen Idema at Leeuwarden, their > marriage banns were proclaimed for the first time on the 23rd > of September 1764, for the second time on the 30th ditto, for the third time > on the 7th of October following; a declaration hereof was sent to > Wijckel."

Reformed Register of Baptisms, Marriages and Members of Wijckel:

"In the year 1764. On the 23rd of Sept. Nicolaüs Pluim, V.D. Minister in this congregation of Wijkel, & S. Idema of Leeuwarden had their first marriage proclamation.
On 30 Sept. their second.
On 7 Octob. their third & they were married at Wijkel on 14 Octob."

In the work of Ds. T. A. Romein "Naamlijst der Predikanten, sedert de Hervorming tot nu toe in de Hervormde Gemeenten van Friesland" one finds the following concerning Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim:

> On page 430 under: Wijckel:
> "1763. NICOLAAS PLUIM, born at Leeuwarden on > 4 April 1735, was installed as candidate on 24 April, > and, called to Mantgum, took his leave in November 1777" > and on page 169 under: Mantgum and Schillaard:

> "1777. NICOLAÜS PLUIM, called from Wijkel, delivered his > inaugural sermon on 16 November and died 20 May 1802."

Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim died at Mantgum in the night of 20 to 21 May 1802 at about 12 o'clock; an announcement concerning his death in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday 22 May 1802, N° 2599 and following numbers, follows below:

" ‿ This night at about 12 o'clock there died, after a preceding lingering illness, at the age of a good 67 years, my tenderly beloved and likewise loving husband NICOLAAS PLUYM, in life minister first at Wyckel, and since the year 1777 at Mantgum and Schillaard.
However painful this loss may be for me and my children, yet I wish to acquiesce in the way of God's ever wise Providence, which I can do all the better since I trust that his end was peace, and that the exchange, on account of the atoning merits of our Saviour, was blessed for his Reverence; being assured of the sympathy of my friends and acquaintances, I request to be spared letters of condolence.
Mantgum SAAKJE IDEMA
21 May 1802. Wid. Pluym."

Saakje Idema died at Leeuwarden 8 November 1815, according to the Civil Registry of that municipality in the house N° 417 Lett. E. Concerning her death the following family announcement appeared in the "Leeuwarder Courant" N° 136 of Monday 13 November 1815:

"‿ It pleased Almighty God this evening, about seven o'clock, to take away our very beloved mother, Mrs.
SAAKJE YDEMA, widow of the late Very Reverend and Very Learned Mr. NICOLAUS PLUIM, in life minister at Mantgum and Schillaard, at the age of 78 years, 9 months and 6 days, after a long lingering illness, to have taken her up, as we hope and trust, into his Eternal Glory. We request to be spared letters of condolence.
Leeuwarden, L. HARSKAMP.
8 November E. HARSKAMP,
1815. born Pluim."
Also in the name of Sisters and Brothers-in-law."

Attached hereto is a draft: fragment-genealogy of the Leeuwarden family Pluim (Pluym), from which one may see that a brother of Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim, namely Sjouke Pluim, collecteur van het Beestiaal (collector of the cattle tax), Secretary of the Schutterij (civic guard) and of the Malefaitsgerecht (criminal court) at Leeuwarden, was married to a sister of his brother's wife, namely to Elisabeth (Lysbeth) Idema, and that this branch of the family in question died out.

Below follows also the heraldic description of the arms "Pluim (Pluym)", of which an illustration has been omitted, because it is not known whether the Leeuwarden family dealt with here bore these arms:

The family "Idema (Ydema)", to which the mother-in-law of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus, Saakje Idema, belonged.

Saakje Idema was a daughter of Jan Ydes Idema and Metje Michiels and was baptized at Leeuwarden on 7 February 1738, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed Church of Leeuwarden, 1731—1742, fol. 119:

"(Baptized)
On 7 February 1738
Saakje whose father is Jan Idema the mother Mettje Michiels".

According to the preceding page, Saakje Idema died at Leeuwarden on 8 November 1815 at the age of 78 years, 9 months and 6 days, so that she must have been born on 2 February 1737, thus before the marriage of her parents, which was concluded at Leeuwarden on 24 March 1737. This will be the reason why Saakje Idema was only baptized a year after her birth.

Jan Idema is called, in his marriage entry given below in the Marriage register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Leeuwarden (1732—1742): Jan Ydes, shoemaker's journeyman; he, as well as his wife, were then of Leeuwarden:

"Jan IJdes shoemaker's journeyman and Mettje Michiels both in this town, their marriage banns were 1 announced for the first time on 10 March 1737, and on the 2 17th ditto the second time and on the 24th ditto the 3 third time and they were on the same ditto in the afternoon × confirmed in the Westerkerk."

Mettje Michiels was baptized at Leeuwarden on 31 December 1713, as a daughter of Michiel Martens, whose marriage with Elysabet Hessels was confirmed at Leeuwarden on 23 Meij 1706. This appears from the following entries:

Baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Leeuwarden (1699—1715):

"/On the 31st ditto /= December: 1713// Mettjen, a daughter of Michiel Mar. . . ."

Marriage register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Leeuwarden (1698—1709):

"Michiel Martens mason's journeyman, and Elysabet Hessels, both here, their marriage banns were announced the 1st time on 2 Meij 1706 and on the 9th ditto the second time, and on the 16th ditto the third time and they were confirmed on the 23rd ditto in the evening."

On 19 January 1742 Jan Ydema was appointed "Collecteur van Stads Waagregt en Boterwaegh" (collector of the town's weigh-house duty and butter weigh-house) at Leeuwarden, which appointment appears from a deed of that date, in the Resolution register of the Magistrate of the Town of Leeuwarden, with the following content:

"The Honourable Council has, upon the petition submitted by Tjebbe Botenius, Collecteur of the town's Butter Weigh-house, granted the petitioner leave to transfer his said collectorship to the person of Jan Ydema, master shoemaker here, and accordingly, after the resignation of the petitioner, the aforesaid Jan Ydema is hereby once again appointed in his place as Collecteur of the town's weigh-house duty and Butter Weigh-house here, with the profits and emoluments belonging thereto, on condition however that the newly appointed collector shall be obliged to deliver the monies received in collection each year in the months of January, February and March to the town's Rentem^{r} (treasurer) within the space of six weeks thereafter, and so for each quarter of a year henceforth, within the like six weeks after the expiry of each quarter, strictly to continue in delivering such collected monies to the town's office, and first providing in that respect sufficient surety to the satisfaction of the Honourable Council for good administration and prompt payment of the monies, as also paying the advances and fees belonging thereto, of which a deed shall be made in the town's Acteboek (deed register), with the binding of the persons and goods of the collector as well as of the surety, with signature in due form."

The “deed in the Town's Acteboek (town register of deeds)” referred to in the preceding entry was found in that book under date of 20 January 1742 and reads as follows:

> “Jan Ydema, master shoemaker, having been appointed by resolution of the Honourable Council dated 19 January 1742, in the place of Tjebbe Botenius, as Collecteur (collector) of the town's Waagregt (weigh-house due) and Boterwaag (butter weigh-house) here, promise and undertake to administer the said collection well and faithfully; to deliver the monies arising from it, received in collection each year in the months of January, February and March, to the town's Rentemeester (treasurer) within the space of six weeks following, and thus henceforth for each quarter of the year, within the like six weeks after the expiry of each quarter, strictly to continue the delivery of such collected monies to the aforesaid Town Comptoir, under pledge of my person and goods, with submission to the Hof van Friesland and to the town's summary execution, as is customary in the collecting of the town's monies. And for greater security I, Claas Feddes, commissioner of the Sneek tow-barges, living at the Sneker Tolhuis, declare that I stand as true surety for the good administration and the receipt of the monies of the said collection, renouncing the benefit of discussion (having been informed of its force), together with pledge and submission as set out at length above; and in return I, Jan Ydema, undertake to relieve and indemnify my surety in this matter free of cost and damage, under the same mortgage and submission as above. In witness whereof our hands, together with the signature of me, Secretary, as witness, done 20 January 1742.
> Secretary 1742.”

Only a few years after his appointment as Collecteur of the town's Waagregt and Boterwaegh, Jan Ydema was on 29 May 1744 suspended from his office by the Council for six weeks “on account of his slovenly conduct in the discharge of this office and his daily excesses in drunkenness”. His “slovenly conduct in the discharge of the office” consisted in withholding the town's money. On 24 July 1744 he was restored to his office “yet so that he shall in future refrain from the aforesaid excesses and deliver the money in due time to the Rentmeester.” On 11 September following his office was vacant through his death, and on 2 October thereafter Piebe Wiaerda was appointed in his place.

The foregoing particulars are drawn from the Resolutieboek (book of resolutions) of the Leeuwarden Magistrate, in which the following entries occur:

> “29 May 1744. The Honourable Council has seen fit to suspend Jan Idema, Collecteur of the town's Waagregt, on account of his slovenly conduct in the discharge of this office and his daily excesses in drunkenness, after he had several times previously been corrected and seriously reprimanded for this by the Presidents in office, as he is hereby suspended, for the term of six weeks (Latin) from office and emoluments, and the President is requested during that time to have the said collection administered by another competent person to the satisfaction of the surety, and to take the substituted collector under oath thereto. An extract hereof to be served upon Jan Idema by the town messenger.”
> “24 July 1744. The Honourable Council had suspended Jan Idema, Collecteur of the town's Boterwaag, on account of drunkenness and of withholding the town's money without delivering it at the proper time to the town's Rentemeester, for the term of 6 weeks; and that term having now expired, he has been restored to his aforesaid office, yet so that he shall in future refrain from the aforesaid excesses and deliver the money in due time to the Rentemeester, as is hereby once more ordered him; further, that upon negligence in the one or the other, it shall then, to his regret, be further disposed of. Extract dispatched to the collector Jan Idema.”
> “11 September 1744. The Honourable Council has placed the clerk's post in the town's Boterwaag, having become vacant through the death of Jan Ydema, at the disposal of Burgomaster L. Vitringa.”
> “2 October 1744. The Honourable Council, upon the petition submitted by Piebe Wiaerda and the disposition of Burgomaster L. Vitringa, has appointed the petitioner, as Piebe Wiaerda is hereby appointed, as Collecteur of the town's Waagregt and Boterwaag here; etc.”

Jan Ydema therefore died at Leeuwarden between 24 July and 11 September 1744.

The surety provided by him at his appointment on 20 January 1742, Claas Feddes, Commissioner of the Sneek tow-barges at Leeuwarden, was his stepfather. This appears from the entries given below, dated 2 December 1728 in the Burgerboek (register of citizens) and dated 11 November 1732 in the Authorisatieboek (register of guardianship appointments) of Leeuwarden:

> “Claas Feddes from Weidum has acquired the citizenship for himself and his stepson Jan Ydes and paid 10 g.gls. for it.”
> “Claas Feddes, merchant and tow-barge skipper in Leeuwarden (stepfather) authorised as curator over Jan Ydes, in his 17th year, in Leeuwarden, assisted by notary Lamminga.”

From this last entry, reproduced in abridged form, it follows that Jan Ydes (Ydema) must have been born about 1716; his baptismal entry could not be found at Leeuwarden. There was indeed contracted there, as appears from the entry below in the marriage register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Leeuwarden (1709—1720), on 13 October 1720 the marriage of Claas Feddes of Britsert and Antje Saakes, “within the bell-toll jurisdiction” of the city of Leeuwarden, who is therefore the mother of Jan Ydes (Ydema):

> “Claas Feddes of Britsert and > Antje Saakes within the bell-toll jurisdiction of this city > had their marriage banns proclaimed for the first time > on 29 September 1720 and on 6 October the 2nd time and on > the 13th the third time, and, after presentation of an attestation, > were married on that same date in the evening in the great church.”

According to the Leeuwarder Reëelcohier (register of rental values for taxation), Jan Ydes (Ydema) lived in 1737 in the property Zuid-Oldehoofster Espel N^{o} 90, rental value 95 gl., of which his stepfather Claas Feddes was the owner. According to this cohier, Jan Ydes (Ydema) resided in 1740 in the property Zuid-Oldehoofster Espel N^{o} 380 (rental value 105 gl.), of which the heirs of Boumeester Posthumus were owners. Jan Idema appears to have lived here with his family until his death in 1744. After that the family will have been taken in by Claas Feddes.

The house in the Zuid-Oldehoofster Espel N° 90 must be sought somewhere in the Ruiterskwartier, while the other property was situated about 9 houses from the Vrouwenpoort, on the north side of the street, thus in the neighbourhood of the Burmaniahuis. The corner house next to the Vrouwenpoort, "where the Little Wagon hangs out as a sign", which house until a few years ago bore the name "het Klein Wagentje", was the property of Claas Feddes.

That Jan Ydema in the last years of his life indeed lived at Leeuwarden near the Vrouwenpoort is confirmed by an entry in the Leeuwarden burial register, according to which on 17 October 1742 there was buried in the Jacobijner Kerk "a child of Jan Ydema near the Vrouwepoort". This child was his little daughter Anna, baptized at Leeuwarden on 7 September previously.

According to the Leeuwarder Floreencohier (land-tax register) of 1728, which relates to the lands under the jurisdiction of the city, Claas Feddes was the user of N° 40, being 43 pondemaat in size and charged as a whole with about 31 Floreen, of which 26—27—12 Floreen are assessed to Leeuwarden and 5 Floreen to Deinum, which place was the property of the City of Leeuwarden, having the orphanage to the East, N. Treslingh to the South, the Swette to the West and the Marsumerdijk to the North.

In the Klein-Consentboek and in the Groot-Consentboek of Leeuwarden, Claas Feddes, whether or not together with his wife Antie Saakes, is repeatedly named as buyer or seller of houses and rooms at Leeuwarden: on Cleijenburg, near 't Droevendal, in the Haniasteeg, in the Torenstraat, on the Noordvliet, on Haakmaburen, on the Klein- and on the Groot Schavernek.

Claas Feddes died at Leeuwarden on 27 December 1767 childless, leaving his possessions to the two daughters Saakje and Elisabeth of his stepson Jan Ydema. This comes to light through the following deed entered in the Annotatieboek van de Collaterale Erfenissen (register of collateral inheritances) of Leeuwarden:

> "On 23 March 1768 Pr. Julius Pluim declared at the Secretary's office that Saakjen Ydema, wife of Dus N. Pluim, Verbi Divini Minister at Wijkel, for ½, and Elisabeth Ydema at Leeuwarden for ½, had together become heirs by testament of the former Commissaris Claas Feddes, who died within Leeuwarden on 27 December 1767, undertaking thereby to pay the collateral duty to the Province, according to the personal property assessment at which the deceased is rated in S. Oldeh. Espel, as per the annexed extract."

By Saakje Idema and Elisabeth Idema houses at Leeuwarden were also inherited from their father's stepfather, as may appear from: the Leeuwarder Reëelcohieren, according to which before 1768 Claas Feddes is entered as owner of the properties in the Zuid-Oldehoofster Espel and after that Sekr. Pluim for one half and Ds. Pluim for one half, as well as from the following sale in the Klein-Consentboek of Leeuwarden:

> "4 June 1808 (registered 30 June 1809). Miss Saakje Idema, widow of the late Do. Nicolaas Pluim, living at Leeuwarden, as co-heir of her late stepgrandfather, the former Commissaris Klaas Feddes and of her grandmother Antie Saakes, and having obtained the further right by partition from her late sister Elisabeth Idema, in her time wife of the Secretary Sjouwke Pluim, sells to Folkert Reitsma and Johanna Albertsma Zeel, married couple, merchants there:
> 1° a certain well-appointed house cum annexis standing and situated on the corner of the Klein
>
> Schavernek in Leeuwarden, being inhabited and used by the purchasing spouses, having as adjoining neighbours the street to the East and North, the following parcel to the South and van Geelen to the West, marked letter E, N° 312;
> 2° One likewise next to it, inhabited by Leendert van Forden for f 66.— rent per year, marked letter E N° 311, having as adjoining neighbours: the street to the East, the said van Geelen to the West, the Widow Bruinsma to the South, and the 1st parcel to the North, thus sold together in one purchase for the sum of 4000 cargl."

b. Harlingen, 31 March 1768 · d. Harlingen, 24 February 1853 · daughter of Tzeerd, Tjeerd or Tjardus Greijdanus (N^{O} 57) and Foekje Nauta · m. Jan Willems Houtsma, 1788

She was baptized on 31 March 1768 in the Wester Kerk at Harlingen, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen:

> "(1768) On the 31st ditto (March) Tjeerd Greidanus the Father
> And Foekje Nauta the Mother
> And the child Petronella baptized. W. K. (Wester Kerk)"

Petronella Greidanus was, as has already been reported on page 20, from 1796 to 1799 Regentess of the General Orphanage at Harlingen, in which capacity her family coat of arms, with a slight deviation, appears on a painted armorial board hanging in the Regents' Chamber of the said Orphanage. She died at Harlingen at the age of almost 85 years on 24 February 1853. Her death was announced by the following family notice:

> " . Harlingen, 24 February 1853. Today died at the age of almost 85 years our beloved Mother PETRONELLA GREIDANUS, Widow of J. W. D. Houtsma.
> T. HOUTSMA.
> D. HOUTSMA, née SPANNENBURG.
> Y. HOUTSMA, Widow of B. Rodenhuis.
> Sole notification."

According to the Civil Registry of Harlingen her death certificate reads as follows:

> "In the year One thousand eight hundred fifty-three, on the twenty-fifth of the month of February, there appeared before us, the undersigned Alderman, Registrar of the Civil Registry at Harlingen: Willem Lolkes Zwaal, aged fifty-one years, funeral announcer, and Petrus Posthuma, aged thirty years, clerk at the Secretariat, both living at Harlingen, who have declared to us that Petronella Greidanus, aged almost eighty-five years, without occupation, born and living at Harlingen, widow of Jan Willem Douwes Houtsma, daughter of Tjardus Greidanus and Foekje Nauta, both deceased, died on the twenty-fourth of the month of February of this year, at half past eleven at night, in the house standing in Ward F N^{O} 13; and we have read out this Certificate to the declarants, who have thereupon signed it together with us.

Below follows the entry of the marriage of Petronella Greidanus in the Reformed marriage register of the Groote Kerk at Harlingen:

> "Jan Willems and Petronella Greidanus, both of Harlingen, > had their last proclamation on 4 May 1788 and > were married on the same day."

Jan Willems Houtsma was a son of Willem Douwes and Ympkien Teunes, concerning which persons see under N^{O} 101 of this genealogy: Ds. Ausonius Greidanus.

He was born at Pingjum 26 July 1758 and baptized there 20 August following, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal and Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Pingjum 1746—1772:

> "1758. On 20 Aug. a child of > Willem Douwes and Ymk Teunes was baptized, with > the name Jan
> This one was born, according to > the note of his parents, > on 26 July 1758."

Jan Willems Houtsma was a timber merchant at Harlingen; together with his brother Theunis Willems Houtsma he continued the timber trade of his deceased father Willem Douwes under the firm Jan W. Douwes en Comp., as appears from the following advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" N° 2054, of 21 September 1796, The second Year of Batavian Liberty:

> "It is hereby made known that the timber trade carried on under the firm of Willem Douwes > at Harlingen will henceforth be carried on by Jan > and Theunis Willems, sons of Willem Douwes, under the firm > of Jan W. Douwes en Comp., and these kindly > request everyone's favour."

As has already been mentioned, this is probably the timber trade from which this generation "Houtsma" derived its surname.

Concerning Jan Willems Houtsma, the following advertisements have been found in the Leeuwarder Courant:

"Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" N° 2255 of 17 October 1795, The first Year of Batavian Liberty:

> "Everyone who has any claim upon, or is indebted to, the abandoned estates > of Pieter Lensius cum uxore, married couple at > Harlingen, is requested to give notice thereof or to make payment to the merchant Jan Willems Houtsma > in the said town, as authorized > co-curator over the aforesaid estates, and for this purpose specially > qualified by the other co-curators, at the latest before 1 November > next."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Wednesday 29 February A° 1804, N° 2442:

> "A journeyman, being willing to work at a timber sawmill on 12 May > 1804, may apply to Jan Willem Douwes, timber merchant at Harlingen."

Jan Willems Houtsma died at Harlingen 29 February 1816, as a result of a fall into the water, at the age of 57 years.

His death was announced in the "Leeuwarder Courant" N° 30 of Friday 8 March 1816 with the following family advertisement:

> " . Today in the early morning about four > o'clock, my dear husband, JAN WILLEM DOU-> WES HOUTSMA, was snatched away by death from me and my chil> dren; an unexpected fall into the water > has, as suddenly as heartrendingly, put an end to > his life, so useful and pleasant to us; he > reached the age of fifty-seven years and more than > seven months, of which I was permitted to spend nearly twenty-eight > years with him in a happy marriage; heavy and painful is this blow > for me and my children, but the comforting reli> gion of Jesus, and the hope of meeting again, in > the blessed regions of Immortality, encourage us, and > we wish, though deeply afflicted, to submit to the ways of > ever-wise Providence; hereby giving notice of this in > this customary way, I request to be letters of condolence.
> PETRONELLA GREYDANUS, > widow of Jan Willem Douwes Houtsma
> Harlingen, 29 February 1816.
> The business of the timber trade will be > continued."

According to the Civil Registry of Harlingen his death certificate reads as follows:

> "In the year one thousand eight hundred and sixteen, on the twenty-ninth of the month of February, there appeared before us P^{t} Burgomaster, Officer of the Civil Registry of the Municipality of Harlingen, Province of Vriesland, Jacobus de Heus, aged forty-six years, and Jacob Jacobi, aged thirty-nine years, who declared to us that Jan Willems Houtsma, aged fifty-eight years, living at Harlingen, died on the twenty-ninth of the month of February at three o'clock in the morning in N° 69 District H; and the declarants have signed this deed together with us, after it had been read out to them.
> (signed) Jacobus de Heus (signed) J. H. Olinjus" > Jacob Jacobi.

After the death of Jan Willems Houtsma, his timber business at Harlingen was continued, until the beginning of 1818 by his widow, and after that by his son Tjardus Houtsma (N° 186 of this genealogy). All this appears from the advertisement below in the "Leeuwarder Courant" N° 4 of Tuesday 15 January 1818:

> ")o( )o(The undersigned, widow of JAN WILLEM DOUWES HOUTSMA, at Harlingen, hereby makes)o(it known that she has transferred the timber trade, which she continued and carried on after the life of her late husband, to his son TJARDUS HOUTSMA, likewise there, thanking all esteemed patrons of this trade for their kind commissions, recommending the same to my said son, who herewith likewise makes it known that he intends to keep up and carry on the TIMBER BUSINESS on the same footing as it was with his late Father, and accordingly particularly recommends himself to the continued favour of his fellow townsmen and countrymen, with the promise of prompt and civil treatment.
> Harlingen, Widow of JAN WILLEM DOUWES HOUTSMA
> 1 January 1818. TJARDUS HOUTSMA."

Jan Willems Houtsma was buried in the Reformed Church (Groote Kerk) at Harlingen, in the grave of his mother Ympkien Teunes (Imkje Teunis), which grave is covered by a stone slab, on which the following inscription is still visible:

> † 1790 Mrt. 26 ..... Teunis, wife of .....husband Willem Douwes, 69 yrs.
> ..... dys.
> † 181. Febr. 29. Jan Willem Douwes, b. 26 July 175."

Line of descent: Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5^{II} ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1^{I}

Her baptismal entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of the Groote Kerk at Harlingen reads as follows:

> "(August 1774)
> 9 Janke born 13 July 1774.
> The Father being Tjeerdt Greidanus and > the Mother Foekje Nauta."

Nothing could be found concerning her, so that she presumably died at a young age.

Petrus Greidanus

Catharina Vellinga

He was born at Bolsward 4 February 1769, according to the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register there, in which the date of baptism is not given:

> "1769: Doctor Greidanus child born 4 Febr:, > baptized with the name Petrus."

On 14 May 1783 curators were appointed over Petrus Greidanus, evidently in connection with the 2nd marriage of his mother Johanna de Gavere with Jarichius Eelcoma on 3 June following, concerning which one finds recorded in the Authorisatieboek (register of guardianship appointments) of Bolsward, among other things, the following under the first-mentioned date:

> "Petrus Greijdanus, aged 14 years, son left behind by the late Mr. Johannes Greijdanus, in his lifetime Med. Doctor at Bolsward, petitioner, versus the Right Honourable Mr. J^{or} Idzert Æbinga van Humalda, ordinary councillor in the Court of Friesland and Petrus de Gavere Minister of the Divine Word at Oosterend as grandfather on the mother's side, respondents."

On 5 April 1786 he enrolled as a student at the Franeker University, with the following mention in the Album of the Academy, which is now in the Provincial Library of Friesland at Leeuwarden:

. . . . . .
1786 Petrŭs Greidanŭs
5 Apr. Bolsvardia Frisius f 3=3=:"

A reproduction of the page on which this entry occurs in the Album of the Academy is included with page 446.

On the Recensielijsten (review lists) of the said Academy one finds concerning him:

> 1790 at the Academy court P. Greidanus student of letters"

Although there has been preserved from him a dissertation drawn up in Latin, printed at Franeker in 4°, to be defended on 12 June 1790: "Dissertatio philologico-critica de nominibus hominum et locorum propriis librariorum culpa, aliisve de caussis in veterum scriptorum libris frequenter obliteratis aut vitiatis" and 12 theses — also mentioned as a dissertation on page 572 of volume II of Mr. W. B. S. Boeles' "Frieslands Hoogeschool en het Athenaeum te Franeker"[1] — he was nevertheless not promoted to doctor of letters at Franeker, as the "Acta" of the Academy there show. In accordance with this he has also never been found named as Dr. P. Greidanus.

A copy of this so-called dissertation is in the Provincial Library at Leeuwarden (see Cat. 1st part page 178) and in the Library of the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde in that city (see Catalogue 1st Supplement page 57).

A reproduction of the title page of the said dissertation is at page 447.

A translation of this title page into Dutch made by me reads as follows:

"That love for the study of proper names also directed his attention to the proper names in the writings of the Ancients, as one learns from the Diss. philol. crit. de nominibus hominum et locorum propriis, Librariorum culpa aliisve de causis in veterum scriptorum libris /re-quenter obliteratis aut vitiatis, which he had defended in 1790 by his pupil P. Greidanus."

The dissertation covers 39 pages and is followed by some 12 theses to be defended.

In the Album of the Innkeepers of the Students' Coffee House at Franeker, mentioned on page 422, one finds on page 119 the following little poem by Petrus Greydanus:

"To play a game of cards instead of studying,
(Latin) to sell books and to spend the money,
To play Tiktak or Verkeeren for a night —
Would not a Donkey too learn that well enough?
Always think, on reading

On 12 October 1792 Petrus Greidanus, as Lit. Hum. Stud. at Franeker, was on the list of candidates for Rector of the Latin Schools in that town, as appears from the following entry in the Resolutieboek (register of resolutions) of Franeker (kept in the Municipal Archives):

"12 October 1792. The Gentlemen Scholarchen (school governors) have submitted the nomination of three candidates for filling the Rectorship of the Schools here, which has become vacant because Mr. Hendrik Waardenburg has been called as Rector of the Schools at Lingen, consisting of the following persons:
I. van Druten, conrector at Yselstein
C. I. Wenckebach Litt. Hum. Stud. at Leiden
P. Greidanus Lit. Hum. Stud. at Franeker.
From these three C. I. Wenckebach has been chosen Rector of the Trivial Schools here at a yearly salary of 500 Carolus guilders.".

Petrus Greidanus was therefore not appointed, but on 5 Nov. of the same year followed his appointment as Conrector (under-rector) of the Latin Schools at Harlingen at a yearly salary of f 575.—.

Below follows this appointment, as it is recorded in the Resolutieboek present in the Municipal Archives of Harlingen, beginning 28 April 1792 and running to 1795:

> "Whereas the Forty or great Vroedschap (town council) of this City by Resolution of 1 November last have seen fit to unite the vacant Conrector's and Preceptor's Schools here and accordingly to raise the Rector's salary to 700 guilders yearly, commencing on 1 November of this year, and henceforth to confer upon the newly to be appointed Conrector a yearly salary of f 575.—, with further authorisation to the Honourable Magistrate to appoint Mr. Petrus Greidanus, at present Liter. Stud. at Franeker, (concerning whom very laudable testimonials had been produced by the Gentlemen Scholarchen), to the service of the just mentioned Schools under the title of Conrector, Their Honours have seen fit to issue this call de facto and indeed on the same day as the Vroedschap's Resolution that was taken, upon the said Petrus Greidanus.
> And since the same, (Latin) on the same day, has declared that he readily accepts this post, with the expression of his heartfelt gratitude and satisfaction at this token of confidence in his Person, the Honourable Magistrate declares that it appoints the said Petrus Greidanus in the name of the great Vroedschap, as he is hereby appointed, as Conrector in the combined lower Latin Schools here at the aforesaid salary of f 575.—.— yearly, to commence on 26 November of this year, being the > day, on which, in accordance with his own request, he is to take up the duties of this Post — whereby the Burgerrecht (citizenship) of this town shall first be granted to him. And at the same time, on taking the burgher's oath, he shall have to promise that in the performance of this his office he will proceed with all faithfulness and diligence.

> Thus resolved on 5 November 1792 and resumed during the Meeting.
> * (signed) Albert W. Bakker.
> * By order of the same
> * (signed) A. I. Conradi."*

He was registered as a Burgher of Harlingen on 22 November 1792 in the "Burgerboek (citizens' register) of that town, begun on 1 April 1683", as appears from the following entry:

> "22 November 1792
> To Petrüs Greidanüs, born at Bolsward, the Burgerrecht of this town has been granted, and to that end he has taken the oath of allegiance in the hands of the presiding Burgomaster A: W. Bucker . . . . . 10—10—."

In Register 2, Minutes of the Scholarchen of the Latin Schools at Harlingen, which register is kept in the Municipal Archives there, one finds the following:

> "5 January 1798. It is communicated to the meeting that the Gerecht (town court) of this town had received an unfavourable answer from the Committee of internal correspondence concerning their proposal regarding the demanding of the said declaration from our Rector and Conrector."

This concerned the declaration of 11 March 1796, by which one declared to the new Government of the Batavian Republic: to be an enemy of stadholderly, aristocratic, one-headed government.

From the said minutes dated 20 January 1798 it appears that the Rector Bottinga and the Conrector Greidanus had refused to make the said political declaration, whereupon they were dismissed from their posts by the Gerecht, with the request that they should provisionally continue in their work, which they had also accepted.

In these minutes there is moreover included the extract from the minutes of the Gerecht of Monday 8 January 1798, in which the above is dealt with, from which it appears that Bottinga and Greidanus "steadfastly and with that calmness and modesty which characterizes an honest and right-thinking man" continued to refuse to make the declaration.

Furthermore it was resolved by the Gerecht "to make the vacancies of these posts publicly known by advertisements in the Haarlemsche, Leeuwarder and Friesche Couranten".

In the "Friesche Courant" of Saturday 20 January 1798, N° 9, one accordingly finds the following advertisement:

> "P.S. Since the Posts of RECTOR and CONRECTOR of the LATIN SCHOOLS at Harlingen, with very comfortable salaries and emoluments, have fallen vacant, everyone who is inclined to take up the service of both or one of the two, and who shows by proofs that he has the required competence, is hereby invited to apply in that regard to the Gerecht of the said Town, or to the College of Scholarchen there."

Under the date of 6 February 1798 one further finds in the Minutes of the Harlingen College of Scholarchen: "The President produced 3 letters, addressed to the Gerecht of this town, containing applications from 2 Christians and 2 Jews for the vacant posts of Rector and Conrector. Two further such letters directed to the "College of Scholarchen" were read out, both written from Amsterdam, as one learned that the Gerecht, on account of the great change of affairs which had occurred in these days in our fatherland, now regarded this matter from an entirely different point of view and would withdraw the advertisements concerning those vacancies from the newspapers."

After that nothing more is heard of this matter, and Bottinga and Petrus Greidanus remained Rector and Conrector.

When the Rector Ynso Bottinga died on 3 March 1800, as appears from the following family announcement in the "Bataafsche Leeuwarder Courant" of Thursday 6 March 1800, N° 28, Petrus Greidanus was appointed his successor by resolution of 9 April following, at a salary of 700 Car.gl. a year:

> "⁂ This evening I received the unexpected and painful news that my Brother YNSO BOTTINGA, in life Rector of the Latin Schools at Harlingen, died there this morning after an illness of two days; he died at the age of 56 years and a good 5 months; I hereby give notice of this unpleasant decease to all Friends and Acquaintances, and am assured of their sharing in my grief, without wishing to receive Letters of Condolence in that regard.
> Leeuwarden, 3 March 1800. J. G. BOTTINGA."

In the Harlingen Resolutieboek (book of resolutions), beginning 3 February 1800, the appointment of Petrus Greidanus as Rector reads as follows:

> "Wednesday, 9 April 1800
> at six o'clock in the evening.
> The Council of the Municipality being assembled extraordinarily, it was taken into consideration that the Rectorate of the Latin Schools here, having become vacant some time ago through the death of the learned Rector Ynze Bottinga, very necessarily needed to be filled again by another capable Person, in order that the Latin Schools here might remain in that Lustre and Flourishing in which they presently find themselves through the well-taken Measures of the College of Scholarchen and the zeal and good services of the Teachers, and likewise in order to give the Studying Youth here, or whoever may wish to make use of it, Occasion to qualify themselves in the Latin and Greek Languages etc.
> The Council, taking into consideration and having seen to their heartfelt satisfaction the praiseworthy testimonials given before the College of Scholarchen concerning the Conrector of the Latin Schools, Petrus Greidanus here, both with regard to his knowledge and to his further good qualities, for the performance of the vacant Rectorate, besides that the man's good and moral Character is sufficiently known to the Council, the Council has thought that they would fall short of fairness and of the ever displayed zeal of the Conrector Greidanus in the performance of his Post, were they not to promote him to Rector; the Council, considering all this, after ripe and serious deliberation has thought fit and resolved to nominate and appoint the Conrector Petrus Greidanus as Rector of the Latin Schools here, in the place of the deceased Rector Bottinga, as he is hereby nominated and appointed thereto, and that on a yearly Salary of 700 Car. guldens, and further advantages, burdens and obligations, as laid down by the School regulations or as may in future be laid down; all this, with regard to the Salary and further advantages, reckoned to have commenced with the death of Rector Bottinga, since which time the Rector's school has been served by the now appointed Rector Greidanus.
> Being etc.
> Thus done and resolved, 9 April 1800."

At his installation as Rector, Petrus Greidanus took leave of the pupils of the Conrector's school, with the added "admonition to carry out their work steadily with untiring labour, to continue the study of the languages, and to follow the lessons of his successor therein; he addressed the pupils of the Rector's school with a short speech, and in his address to the Scholarchen he said among other things: "that his heart glowed with grateful acknowledgement of the benefits, friendship and affection shown to him during his stay in this city and his performance of the Conrectorate here — benefits all of such a nature that he would gratefully acknowledge them at all times, and would endeavour by his zeal and good conduct to show himself not unworthy of the recommendation of the gentlemen Scholarchen."

On 24 July 1800, on the occasion of the "Ordinary great Examination", the new Rector delivered an, according to the Archives of the School, "excellent inaugural oration (Latin) on the origin and progress of eloquence among the Greeks, which was listened to with intense attention and uncommon pleasure". The inaugural address was delivered in the Lutheran Church at Harlingen and went to press in 1801 with Volker van der Plaats, City Printer there. A copy of this printed address is present in the Provincial Library at Leeuwarden (see Catalogue 1st part page 140).

The address is entirely composed in Latin. Of the title page, of which a translation of mine into Dutch follows below, a reproduction is added at page 450:

"Petrus Greydanus'

Leaders of this city, most prudent men! And you who serve them as Secretary and keeper of the records, most skilled man!

Most learned governors of the Schools, men most greatly to be revered!

Appointed Conrector, whom the fellowship of labours binds to me, most learned sir!

Teachers of all arts and disciplines, most knowledgeable, most experienced!

And all you others besides, who have gathered in such great numbers to grace this solemn act by your honouring presence, citizens, guests, of whatever place and rank, most welcome listeners.

Finally, most choice pupils of the schools, hearts consecrated to the Muses, the hope and love of fatherland and of parents, our care, our delight!"

Governors of this city, most conscientious men! And you, who serve with them as Secretary, most capable man!

Most learned governors of the School, exceedingly venerable men!

Appointed Conrector, whom the fellowship in the work binds to me, most learned sir!

Teachers in all arts and sciences, very well informed, very experienced men!

Moreover all you others, who have gathered in great numbers to grace this solemn act by your honouring presence, citizens and strangers, of every station and rank, most welcome listeners!

Finally you most choice nurslings of the school, breasts consecrated to the Muses, the hope and love of the fatherland and of the parents, our care, our delight!"

Then follow another 16 pages.

Concerning Petrus Greidanus' rectorship I have the following further particulars:

Extracts from Reg. 3. Minutes of the College van Scholarchen (board of school governors) of the Latin Schools at Harlingen:

1 November 1804. Against the Rector Greidanus there seemed to be this objection, that he taught too much and questioned too little. In the minutes of the above-mentioned meeting it is accordingly said once more: — "moreover they had observed, that the Rector had in no respect yet changed his method of teaching instead of questioning his pupils."

5 May 1808. The Rector Greidanus was permitted "to be allowed, outside and besides the ordinary school exercises, to give lessons to young people who, having completed this trivial course and having in fact become ripe for the academic lectures, might wish to remain here some time longer — while then at the same time such persons would bear the title of studiosi and would occupy an intermediate rank between academic students and schoolboys."

6 June 1811. The Praezes "reported to, or reminded, the Members of the painful loss for the Latin Schools, namely the decease of the Conrector Johannes Stroband, which occurred on the 1st of this month. — The Rector Greidanus was invited to take charge of the vacant schools during the vacancy", to which the Maire gave his approval by letter of 10 June last. A recommendation for a new conrector was drawn up, but upon instruction from the Prefect it was decided by the Maire that the vacancy would not be filled, on account of the small number of pupils.

Extract from the "Journal du Departement de la Frise — Dagblad van het Departement Friesland" of Friday, 16 July 1813:

> "SCHOOL NOTICE FROM HARLINGEN.
>
> On Friday, 23 July 1813, the public examination of the Latin school youth here will be held in the morning at 9 o'clock in the Lutheran church. In the afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the excellent young men, D. Greydanus[2] and A. Deketh, after delivering orations, the first on the disgrace of luxury and the usefulness of industry; the second in praise of eloquence, will be promoted from the rector's school.
>
> The undersigned most kindly invites all lovers of ancient literature to attend this, and what further is to be performed on that day.
> PETRUS GREYDANUS, rector."

The following newspaper clipping:

> "HARLINGEN
> The 13th Feb. 1817. Today, pursuant to the Decree of H.M. and the Regulation for the Latin Schools, the winter examination took place in this town. The Praeses of the Scholarchen opened this ceremony with a very fitting address, and welcomed Mr. P. Greijdanus, as Rector of the Schools, together with the newly appointed Conrector and Praeceptor, B. van den Broek van Dijk, chosen from a submitted nomination by His Exc. the Commissaris Generaal for the education in the Schools and for arts and sciences, who thereupon both gave evidence of their ability, as well as of the progress of the pupils in the Greek and Latin languages, to the general satisfaction. This having taken place, this ceremony was concluded with appropriate addresses and an earnest exhortation to the youth to exercise themselves continually with all diligence, both in the languages and in the other branches of knowledge in which they are now being taught."

[2] Petrus Greydanus' son Dirk Greydanus (N° 189 of this genealogy).

Petrus Greidanus died at Harlingen 17 December 1829. His death was announced by the following family notice:

> "⁂ To the bitter grief of myself, my Children and Children-in-law, there died today quite unexpectedly, at the age of nearly 61 years, my beloved Husband, PETRUS GREIJDANUS, in life Rector of the Latin Schools here. CATHARINA VELLINGA, > Harlingen, Widow of P. Greijdanus.
> the 17th of December 1829.
> Family and Friends are requested to regard this general notice as a personal one. In accordance with the written wish of the deceased, no outward signs of mourning will be adopted."

In the Archive of the Latin Schools one finds the following concerning this death:

> Extraordinary Meeting of Scholarchen (school governors), held 23 Dec. 1829.
> The Praeses stated that, in consequence of the sad decease of the very able Rector of the Latin Schools here, the Honourable and Very Learned Mr. P. Greijdanus, he had convened this meeting in order to decide, in the interest of the schools, upon the care and filling of the vacancy which had arisen; and after ripe deliberation it was concluded that it would be necessary to have the vacant Rector's place filled by a separate Teacher, as before, rejecting the question whether the whole of the instruction might not possibly be united in one person; — that meanwhile, during the vacancy, the entire instruction should be entrusted to the Conrector, and that notice of this should be given by letter to the Honourable Government of this City.

For the filling of the Rector's vacancy the College van Scholarchen recommended the following three candidates:

1. J. H. A. Weijtingh, acting Rector, Harlingen.
2. J. G. Ottema
3. L. Hamming Utrecht.

[a brace joins lines 2 and 3, to the right of which "Utrecht." is printed once]

Of these three N° 1 was appointed. Mr. Weijtingh was installed 1 April 1830, concerning which the following is recorded in the Proceedings of the Committee from the Gentlemen Scholarchen, charged with the Installation of the newly appointed Mr. Rector Weijtingh on Thursday, the 1st of April 1830:

> "Amid the ebb and flow of the fortunes and vicissitudes of this life it had been reserved for this day to be allowed to pour a soothing balm into the wound from which the Latin School had until now continued to languish through the death of its learned teacher, the late Mr. Greijdanus.
> Thus it was that, in the forenoon of the 1st of April last, the committee from the Gentlemen Scholarchen, charged with the installation of the newly called Rector here, having betaken themselves to the schoolhouse, performed this task with due observance of the required ceremonial, in the presence of all the pupils, solemnly proclaiming and confirming Mr. Weijtingh as Rector.
> Etc."

Petrus Greidanus' name is met with several times in the article "Tooneelgezelschappen te Harlingen" by P. Leendertz Jr. on page 128 of the 28th Volume of "De Vrije Fries", the Journal of the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde at Leeuwarden.

In this article he is named as a fellow player of the new Theatrical Company founded at Harlingen in 1795 (page 139); in 1825 he was still a member of the company (page 145).

On page 140 the following letters are given:

"Harlingen the 31 Jan. 1797.

In the "Eisinga-Archief" kept at the Rijksarchief in Leeuwarden, section "Humalda" N° 438 (provisional numbering), the following Account concerning the guardianship of Petrus Greidanus is to be found:

"Account, proof and remainder rendered by Jr Idsert Aebinga van Humalda, Grietman (district magistrate) of Hennaarderadeel, at Dronrijp, for himself and on behalf of Doms Petrus de Gavere, Minister of the Divine Word at Oosterend, both in their capacity as authorized curators, of the administration conducted by them, Rendanten (those rendering the account), — to Petrus Greijdanus, Conrector of the Latin School at Harlingen, now of age, Rendeerde (the party to whom the account is rendered).

Receipts,

1783. 28 July. Brought as receipt the cash monies according to the inventory, amounting to 450— .—.

25 September. From the Comptoir der Losse Renthen (office of the loose rents), one year's interest due 1783 on three Landschapsobligatiën (provincial bonds), old capital amounting to 1900 £, after deduction of 6 st. receipt money 37—14—.

1784. July. Received from de Heer J. Eelcoma for the distribution of a $^{1}/_{12}$ share in the Hout- en Eekmolen, after deduction of one Daalder of chamber rent, due May 1783 23—15—8 as above, the rent of the land at Pietersbierum, after deduction of the Reëel (property tax), due 12 May 1784 22—10—.

as above, of the farm there, after deduction of the Reëel and repairs, due Petri 1784 239— 4—.

further the interest on a bond of 2000 car.gl., belonging for half to the Rendeerde, due May 1784 25—.—.

From this the outlay of de Heer Eelcoma according to note 4—14—..
Net remainder: 305—15—8
25 November, the interest on the three L. bonds, due 1784 37—14—.
N.B. the receipt of the auction monies for furniture sold is not entered, since that has been settled against the year's board money at 3 car.gl. a week and further outlay due to de Juffr. Eelcoma, to the advantage of the estate.
1785. 21 July. From de Heer Eelcoma for a $^{1}/_{12}$ share in the Hout- en Eekmolen, due May 1784 1— .—.
for interest on 1000 gls charged to Jurjen Britzes, due 17 March 1784, for a $^{1}/_{12}$ share 2—10—.
the rent of the land at Pietersbierum, after deduction of the Reëel, 12 May 1785 22—10—.
as above, of the farm there, after deduction of the Reëel and repairs, due Petri 1785 203—18—.
further the interest on the half of the bond, due May 1785 25— .—.
(this bond is charged to P. en A. de Gavere). 254—18—.
for books sold by D. Romar, after deduction of the expenses 95— 7—.
1786. 27 September. the interest on the three Landsobligatiën, due 1785 37—14—.
In this and the following years the receipt of the items accounted for in the two preceding years by de Heer and Juffr. Eelcoma is no longer found, since the Rendeerde undertakes to settle the same with their Honours outside this Account, against their claims for board money, maintenance at the academy, clothing and whatever else belongs to daily necessities.
1787. 1 September. the interest on the three Landsobligatiën, due 1786 37—14—.
1788. 4 September. as above, due 1787 37—14—.
as above, due 1788 37—14—.
The Rendant brings as receipt for the sale of the two L-bonds, amounting to 1000 1791. and 600 car.gl., sold at 70 pcto 1120— .—.
further the interest thereon due to date 4— .—.
Interest on the remaining L bond, amounting to 300 £, after deduction of receipt money, due 1789 5—18—.
as above, due 1790 5—18—.
1793. 12 November. as above, due 1791 5—18—.
as above, due 1792 5—18—.
1794. as above, due 1793 5—18—.
Received nine years' interest on a bond amounting to 1000 £ charged to P. en A. de Gavere at $2^{1}/_{2}$ p.c^{to}, taken over by the Rendanten by cession, thus annually 25 car.gl., being for 9 years from 1786—1794 225— .—.

The Rendant (accountant rendering the account) brings into receipt six years' interest on the proceeds of the sold Landsobligatiën, which remained in his hands without being invested, at 3 per cent, thus yearly 34 car.gl., being for six years due 1789—1794 . . . . . 204— .—.
The whole receipt amounts to: . . . . . 2914—14—8 Expenditure.
1784. For the expenditure of this year see the receipts.
1785. 18 May. Taken over by cession from Jan Minnes, a bond of 1000 car.gl., chargeable to the guardians P. and A. de Gavere . . . . . 1000— .—.
21 July. To Mr. Eelcoma for one year's board money, due 1785 . . . . . 150— .—.
See further the note on the year 1786 in the receipts.
1794. 2 February, 6 April, 12 May, 11 June, successively advanced to the Rendeerde (the party to whom the account is rendered) out of the moneys in hand . . . . . 800— .—.
The whole expenditure is 1950— .—.
Favourable balance 964—14—8
Thus reckoned and closed, and the surplus receipts amounting to 964—14—8, together with the papers belonging to this estate and which had been in the keeping of the Rendant, have been handed over to the Rendeerde, so that the Rendeerde thanks the Rendanten for the guardianship and administration and has signed this in order that it may serve his Honour as a complete and final receipt. In witness our hands. Done in two identical copies at Harlingen 15 October 1794.
(signed) I. Æ. v. Humalda.
P. Greijdanus."

The distributions of a "$^{1}/_{12}$ share in the Hout- en Eekmolen" referred to in this account will relate to the sale of the sixth part of the sawmill outside the Sint Janspoort on the Leeuwarder Trekvaart at Bolsward, which part was bought in 1766 by the parents of Petrus Greijdanus (see page 368).

The land and the farm at Pietersbierum mentioned in this account was the half of Gerbranda-State there, the other half of which had been sold in 1782 by Petrus Greijdanus' sister Maria Greijdanus to Pieter Steffens (see page 296). This appears from the following entry dated 3 December 1783 in the Recesboek (register of court proceedings) of Barradeel:

Court day 3 December 1783. "The same (Rienstra — probably the attorney) on behalf of P. de Gavere[1] and the Councillor Humalda as guardians of Petrus Greidanus for the one half and Steffen Pieters for the other half, plaintiffs — Protests the effect of the interdiction served on Pier Migchiels, farmer under Pietersbierum, defendant, to vacate freely on 5 March and 12 May 1784 the zathe (farmstead) and lands he holds in use, with the house, barn, yard, trees, plantation and appurtenances, the same having been served on the defendant in person by the bailiff of this district."

In 1824 Petrus Greijdanus was half owner of a zathe and lands of more than 19 bunder under Winsum, as follows from the advertisement given below in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 2 January 1824[?], N° 1.

> ")o( )o( )o(By sealed bids it is offered to let, for the term of 5 consecutive years beginning at St. Petri and May 1824: A Zathe and Lands, situated under the village of Winsum, comprising 19 bunders 10 sq. roeden 66 sq. ellen 88 sq. palmen of grassland, at present held in lease by Sjerp Dirks Piersma, of which the conditions may be learned from, and the bids must be delivered before 20 January 1824 to, the owners A. DE GAVERE, Assessor of the Grietenije Hennaarderadeel, at Oosterend, or P. GREYDANUS, Rector of the Latin Schools, at Harlingen."

In 1803 Petrus Greijdanus lived at Harlingen in a house "bij de breede plaats", as appears from the following entry in a "National Voting Register of 1803, in which, in accordance with the Publication of the State Government dated 18 Febr. 1803, the inhabitants of the City of Harlingen who are not excluded from the right to vote have entered their names, place of residence, and the date, in so far as they have come forward", which is present in the Harlingen Municipal Archives:

> "We the undersigned promise loyalty to the Constitution and submission to the Law.
> . . . . . .
> Pieter Sjoerds Hannema — etc.
> Petrus Greijdanus — bij de breede plaats — 21 March 1803".
> Jan Hannema etc.

This house, situated on the south side of the Groote Breede Plaats, had been bought in 1798 by Petrus Greijdanus and his wife for 2600 car.gl., according to the following proclamations in the Harlingen Proclamatieboek (register of property sales):

> "14/21 Oct./11 Nov. 1798/20/27 Oct./17 Nov. 1798. Petrus Greidanus Preceptor and Trijntje Fellinga, married couple, at the said town of Harlingen, purchase a certain excellent house and garden with appurtenances, standing on the south side of the Groote breede plaats within Harlingen, at present inhabited and used by Mejuffrouw the widow Albarda, who is entitled to the right of lease thereof until 12 May 1799 for f 140.— a year over and above the chimney and lantern money, having as adjoining neighbours: the heirs of the widow B. Ysenbeek to the east, Roelof Meints to the west, the Vijverstraat (into which this house and garden has a free exit and entrance and free loading and unloading) to the south and the Groote Breede Plaats to the north; thus acquired by purchase from Harmen Radsma, merchant, and Jacob Wassenaar, notary at Harlingen, as authorized curators of the abandoned estate of Harmanus de Waert, merchant at Harlingen, for a sum of 2600 car.gl."

[1] / Apparently the son of Pieter Steffens (Gerbranda).

At his death Petrus Greijdanus lived at Harlingen on the Zuiderhaven, as appears from his death certificate given below:

> "In the year One thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine, on the nineteenth of the month of december, at twelve o'clock in the forenoon, there appeared before us, Alderman Officer of the Civil Registry of the Municipality of Harlingen, Province of Vriesland, Cornelis Jacobs Zwart, aged fifty-five years, and Douwe Hessels Reidsma, aged forty-four years, undertakers' criers, living at Harlingen, who declared to us that Petrus Greydanus, aged sixty years, born at Bolsward, rector of the Latin Schools, living at Harlingen, husband of Catharina Vellinga, without occupation there, and son of Johannes Greydanus and Johanna de Gavere, died on the seventeenth of the month of december of this year at eleven o'clock in the evening, in the Zuiderhaven within this Town, and the Declarants have signed this Certificate, after it had been read out to them, together with us.
> (signed) Corn. J. Zwart (signed) D. C. Zijlstra."
> Douwe H. Reidsma

In the Provincial Almanacks from 1801 up to and including the year 1816 the Rector Petrus Greijdanus is mentioned by the name: Petrus de Gavere Greijdanus Aus. nep./Ausonius nepos/. After 1816 the Rector's name was again shortened to P. Greijdanus. Apparently, therefore, the Harlingen Rector for more than 15 years added his mother's family name to his own surname, very probably to distinguish himself from his namesake at Heerenveen, Petrus (Jacobus) Greijdanus (N° 64 of this genealogy). When this Petrus (Jacobus) Greijdanus had died in 1814, the addition of the family name "de Gavere" appeared less necessary. The further designation: "Aus/onius/ nep/os/" seems to refer to Ds. Ausonius (Tjeerds) Greidanus, at that time already minister at Zuid-Zijpe and Eenigenburg (N° 101 of this genealogy), a cousin of the Harlingen Rector.

MARRIED:

Catharina Vellinga, 25 May 1794 in the Groote Kerk at Harlingen, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed Marriage Register of Harlingen (Groote Kerk):

> "(May 1794)
> Petrus Greijdanus, conrector of the Latin Schools, and Catharina Vellinga, both of Harlingen, had the last banns published 25 May, 1794, and were married on the same day."

In my possession is a printed communication concerning this marriage. A reproduction of this communication, addressed to Ds. Zuringar at Oppenhuysen, is inserted at page 451; the parts written in by hand were done by Petrus Greijdanus.

Catharina Vellinga was, according to a family record, born at Harlingen 11 April 1767 and baptized there in the Mennonite Congregation 21 January 1797 (see the Baptismal Register kept by the Mennonite Minister at Harlingen). She was a daughter of Dirk Vellinga and Yttje Siercks Tolsma [1]/.

Dirk Vellinga was at Harlingen:

in 1779 and 1780 “Merchant”;

1781—1783 “Solliciteur” (Paymaster with the Army or the Fleet);

[1] An ancestor of Yttje Siercks Tolsma was, according to the Sententieboek (book of sentences) of Barradeel, Sierck Taekles Tolsma, Ontvanger (receiver of taxes) at Arum on 3 July 1678/14 July 1686. There he is mentioned as (Latin) ab intestato heir of his parents: Taekle Siercks Tolsma and Riempke Boijens, married couple who in their time had lived at Tzium, where lies the zathe (farmstead) “Tolsum”, from which the family name “Tolsma” seems to derive (see also N° 37 — Tolsum — of the village of Tzum in the stemcohieren (registers of voting farms) of 1640, 1698 and 1728, in which the following appear as owners respectively: Syds Johannes Tolsum, Sierck Taeckles Tolsma and the widow of the Ontvanger Taekele Sierks Tolsma).

in 1796 Acting Administrator of the Affairs of the Per-Head Payment of the “Provinciale Werving” (provincial recruitment) for the Navy; in 1799 “Commis” (clerk) at the “Agentschap der Marine” or at the “Comptoir van Aanneeming” (naval enlistment office) for the Navy; and in 1812 owner of the salt-works “de Valk”.

This is taken from various advertisements in the “Leeuwarder Courant”, of which one for each function follows below:

> “Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant” N° 1422 of 30 October 1779:
> “Whoever owes anything to, or has a claim on, the estate left and repudiated of the late Harmen Hendriks, master baker, and Yttie Hendriks, spouses at Harlingen, is requested to give notice thereof as soon as possible to the MERCHANT DIRK VELLINGA, and Lourens Cl. Coster, master butcher, as authorized Curatores Bonorum of the said estate within the aforesaid town.”

> “All the persons who have served on the State's frigate de Faam, and the State's snow de Meeuw, under the command of the Uitlegger (guard-ship) captains Jan Vlieland and Dirk Cornelissen, can obtain their settlement of account upon presenting their monthly certificates, on Monday 21 July next, and the following days, from the SOLLICITEUR (paymaster) DIRK VELLINGA at Harlingen.”
> “Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant” N° 2036, of 18 May 1796, The Second Year of Batavian Liberty:
> “The Municipalities and Courts of the Towns and Districts in the Province of Friesland are requested to inform the men who have been enlisted for the Provincial Recruitment and have not yet left for board of the State's Ships, to report on Monday next, 23 May, at the Zee Comptoir (naval office) at Harlingen, in order thereafter to proceed on board.”

JACOB HANEKUYK, at Harlingen, will on Wednesdays 23 and 30 September and 7 October 1812, each time in the evening from 5 to 6 o'clock, at the house of the innkeeper Hendrik Winter, in the Heeren-logement at Harlingen, offer for sale by premium bidding:
(French) Of a SALT-WORKS, well built and well situated, with its appurtenances, named the VALK, situated in section D, N° 64, 65 and 66, operated by Mr. Dirk Vellinga, in the same place; possession to be taken eight days after the final adjudication. The conditions of sale may be inspected at the office of the aforesaid notary, as well as at the residence of the advocate maître W. J. Hanekuyk, in the aforementioned town.	A well-built and very favourably situated SALT-WORKS, with appurtenances, called DE VALK, standing in ward D, under N° 64, 65 and 66, operated there by Mr. Dirk Vellinga; free to be taken over within eight days after the final adjudication. The conditions of the sale may meanwhile be seen at the office of the aforesaid notary, as well as at the house of the advocate mr. W. J. Hanekuyk, in the aforesaid town.”

From the following advertisements it appears that Dirk Vellinga was the owner of a zathe (farmstead) at Midlum and of the house at Harlingen inhabited by him in 1812:

> “Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant” N° 1504 of 8 March 1786:
> “To be rented by private agreement, an excellent ZATHE of 99 and one-half Pondemate in size, of which about 60 Pondemate are Greide (pasture) and the rest are arable land, situated on the Heere Weg under the jurisdiction of the Village of Midlum, having until now been used by T. S. Tolsma [1] and his wife; further information from the Owner Dirk Vellinga at Harlingen, and the Secretary Beyma at Leeuwarden.”

J. Hanekuyk, at Harlingen."

Dirk Vellinga died at Harlingen 14 December 1814 "from the consequences of a stroke" at the age of about 73 years (according to a family announcement in the "Leeuwarder Courant"); his wife Yttje Siercks Tolsma was baptized at Harlingen in the Mennonite Congregation in 1777 and died there 23 April 1807 at the age of 60 years.

Catharina Vellinga died at Harlingen 12 May 1852 at the age of 85 years.

Below follow: an advertisement concerning her death, and her death certificate, in which the names of both her parents are mentioned:

" Today there died here, at the blessed age of 85 years, Miss CATHARINA VELLIN-
GA, Widow of Mr. Petrus Greidanus.
HARLINGEN, the 12th of May 1852.
Sole notification."

"In the year One thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, on the fourteenth of the month of May there appeared before us, the undersigned Alderman, Registrar of the Civil Registry at Harlingen: Eelke Pieters Faber, aged twenty-eight years, undertaker's announcer, and Petrus Posthuma, aged twenty-nine years, clerk at the secretary's office, both living at Harlingen, who declared to us that Catharina Vellinga, aged eighty-five years, without occupation, born and living at Harlingen, widow of Petrus Greijdanus, daughter of Dirk Vellinga and Yttje Tolsma, both deceased, on the twelfth of the month of May of this year, at half past five in the afternoon, died in the house standing in district E, N° 63; and we have read this Certificate to the declarants, who thereupon signed it with us.
|signed| M. van der Plaats. |signed| E. P. Faber
P. Posthuma."

Of the Rector Petrus Greijdanus and his wife Catharina Vellinga there exist portraits painted in pastel. The original portraits are now in the possession of Mr. Ir. J. M. Goslings, co-Director of the Netherlands-Indies Gas Co., at 's-Gravenhage. A copy of those portraits is in my possession. A reproduction of that copy follows hereafter.

108 JANKE GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Jan 60 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5[II] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

Her baptismal entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Bolsward reads as follows:

> "(1770) On 6 September Doctor J. Greydanus > had his child baptized, which was born on the 20th of > August and named Janke."

[1] Taekele Siercks Tolsma, presumably a brother of Yttje Siercks Tolsma, the wife of Dirk Vellinga.

Nothing further could be found about her, so she will have died at a young age.

109 HARMEN PETRUSZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Heerenveen, 2 March 1772 · d. before 3 March 1782 · son of Petrus (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 64) and Trijntje (Terentia) Harmens Faber

His baptismal record is entered as follows in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Heerenveen (Schoterland) 1765—1772:

> "(1772) On the 15th of the same (March) was > baptized the child of Petrus > Jacobus and Trijntje Harmens > named Harmen
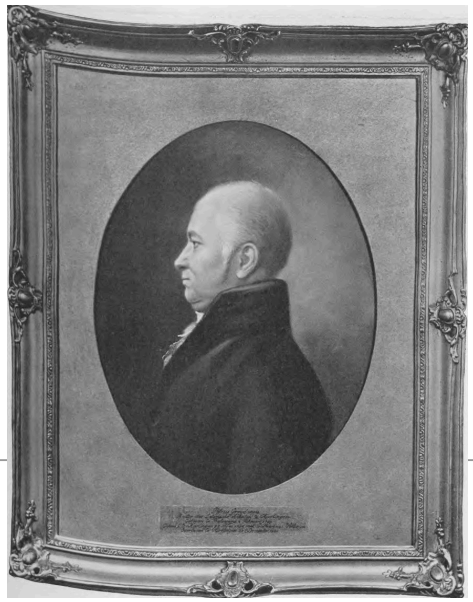
> b. the 2nd of the same."



Pastel portrait of Petrus Greidanus, Rector of the Latin Schools at Harlingen (see page 455) (reduced).

Portrait painted in pastel of Catharina Vellinga, wife of Petrus Greidanus, Rector of the Latin Schools at Harlingen (see page 455) (reduced).

He must have died before 3 March 1782, when Petrus Jacobuszoon Greidanus again had a son baptized with the name Harmen (N° 113 of this genealogy).

110 AUKJEN PETRUSDOCHTER GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Heerenveen, 4 February 1774 · d. 1799 · daughter of Petrus (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 64) and Trijntje (Terentia) Harmens Faber

Her baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Heerenveen (Schoterland), beginning with 1772, reads as follows:

> "(1774) Aukjen daughter of Petrus Greidanus and > Trijntje Harmens b. the 4th of Febr.
> at 't Heerenveen; baptized the 13th of the same."

On 25 November 1798 she must still have been alive, because on that date Petrus Greijdanus acts on behalf of his minor children from his first marriage (see the entry of that date in the Weesboeken (orphans' registers) of Aengwirden above on p. 379), namely Aukjen and Jacob Greijdanus, since Harmen had already died before 3 March 1782.

She must, however, have died in the years 1799—1806, since she does not appear in the death registers for the years 1806—1814 and Petrus Greijdanus at his death on 25 December 1814 left two children of age, namely Harmen and Jelle.

111 JACOB PETRUSZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Heerenveen, 10 January 1776 · d. before 26 September 1779 · son of Petrus (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 64) and Trijntje (Terentia) Harmens Faber

His baptismal record in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Heerenveen (Schoterland), beginning with 1772, reads as follows:

> "(1776) Jacob son of Petrus Jakobs and Trijntje > Harmens born at 't Heerenveen > the 10th of Jan. and baptized the 4th of Febr."

He must have died before 26 September 1779, when Petrus Jacobuszoon Greidanus again had a son Jacob baptized (N° 112 of this genealogy).

112 JACOB (JACOBUS) PETRUSZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Heerenveen, 10 September 1779 · son of Petrus (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 64) and Trijntje (Terentia) Harmens Faber · m. Joukje/n/ Martinus Veenstra, 1806

In the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Heerenveen (Schoterland), beginning with 1772, his baptism is entered as follows:

"(1779) Jakob son of Petrus Greidanus and Pietje [1] Harmens born at het Herenveen in Aengwirden the 10th of September, baptized the 26th of Sept."

He was Master Silversmith at Heerenveen, as appears from the following notice of his death on 28 December 1810 in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 4th of January A° 1811 N° 3049 and of Tuesday the 8th of January A° 1811 N° 2800:

" ⋆ On the 28th of this month my dear Son JACOBUS PETRUS GREYDANUS, in life Master Silversmith here, died of the consequences of a cramp colic, at the age of a good 31 years; of which notice is hereby given to Friends and Acquaintances, with the request to be spared Letters of Condolence.
Heerenveen Petrus Greydanus."
the 29th of December 1810.

[1] This is a mistake; it should be "Trijntje".

Jacob Petruszoon Greidanus is mentioned on p. 267 under N° 468 of "Merken van Friesche Goud- en Zilversmeden" by Elias Voet Jr., preceded by "De Leeuwarder Goud- en Zilversmeden uit de XVI^e, XVII^e en XVIII^e eeuw by R. Visscher. 's-Gravenhage, Martinus Nijhoff, 1932.

He is recorded there as a gold- and silversmith, being 27 years old in 1807. According to the Register of the Keurkamer (assay office) of Heerenveen 1807—1812 his master's mark was:

According to the Keurkamer Register he is said to have died 28 October 1810, which, as appears from his death announcement given above, must be 28 December 1810.

Furthermore, on the cited p. 267 it is stated in a note that he was a son of Petrus J. Greidanus, dealer in gold and silver, and 63 years old in 1807. It has been reported above on p. 378 that the father of Jacob Petruszoon Greidanus appeared to be a man who turned his hand to everything, since he has been found as gortmaecker (groats miller), merchant (grocer), sexton, organist and member of the Municipal Council of Aengwirden, but not as a dealer in gold and silver; he was born 12 January 1747 (see above p. 376), so on 12 January 1807 he turned 60.

MARRIED:

JOUKJE/N/ MARTINUSDOCHTER VEENSTRA, 23 February 1806 at Heerenveen (Schoterland).

The entries relating to this marriage follow here:

Reformed marriage register of Aengwirden:

"(1806) Jacob Petrus Greijdanus of 's H. veen in Aengwirden and Joukjen Martinus Veenstra of 's H. veen in Schoterland, banns published on 9, 16 & 23 February and then a certificate issued for 's Heerenveen: married there on the 23rd according to a declaration from there."

Reformed marriage register of Heerenveen (Schoterland):

"(1806) Jakob Petrus Greidanus of 't Heerenveen in Aengwirden and Joukje Martinus Veenstra of 't Heerenveen, had their banns published on 9, 16 and 23 February and were married here on 23 February."

A baptismal entry for Joukje Martinus Veenstra and the names of her parents [1] could not be found. As appears from the entry below of her death at Heerenveen under Terband on 9 May 1806 in the Register of deceased persons in Aengwirden kept in the State Archives at Leeuwarden, she must have been born about the year 1785:

"1806 Joukje Martines Veenstra wife of Jakob Petrus the 9th of May Greidanus 21 years (place of residence) Heerenveen under Terband.
married."

113 HARMEN PETRUSZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Heerenveen, 17 February 1782 · d. before 19 October 1783 · son of Petrus (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 64) and Trijntje (Terentia) Harmens Faber

His baptismal entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Heerenveen (Schoterland), beginning with 1772, reads as follows:

"(1782) Harmen son of Petrus Greidanus and Trijntje Harmens, born at 't Hereneveen in Aengewirden on 17 February, baptized on 3 March."

He must have died before 19 October 1783, when Petrus Jacobuszoon Greidanus again had a son Harmen baptized (N° 114 of this genealogy).

114 HARMEN PETRUSZOON GREIDANUS (GREYDANUS)

Line of descent: Petrus 64[1] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[1]

b. Heerenveen, 5 October 1783 · d. Wolvega, 29 December 1865 · son of Petrus (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 64) and Trijntje (Terentia) Harmens Faber · m. Sjoukjen Gerrits Jongschaap, 1811

He was born at Heerenveen in Aengwirden on 5 October 1783 and baptized on 19 October following at Heerenveen (Schoterland), as appears from the following record in the Reformed baptismal register of that congregation, beginning with 1772:

"(1783) Harmen son of Petrus Greidanus and Trijntje Harmens born at 't Herenveen in Aengewirden on 5 October, baptized on the 19th of the same."

[1] Those parents are possibly: Martinus Jans Veenstra and Baukjen van den Berg (both of 't Heerenveen), whose marriage banns were published on 20 (27 January) 3 February 1782 according to the ecclesiastical marriage banns register of Heerenveen (Schoterland).

Harmen Petruszoon Greidanus was Gold- and Silversmith at Wolvega, as is stated in his marriage certificate given below and in his death certificate. From the register of members kept by the Dutch Reformed minister at Wolvega it appears that he held the office of elder.

He is mentioned on page 268 under N° 476 of "Merken van Friesche Goud- en Zilversmeden" by Elias Voet Jr., preceded by "Leeuwarder Goud- en Zilversmeden uit de XVI^{e}, XVII^{e} en XVIII^{e} eeuw" by R. Visscher; 's-Gravenhage, Martinus Nijhoff, 1932 — as gold- and silversmith with the master's mark: [master's mark reproduced as a monogram of H, P and G] in 1807, according to the Register of the Keurkamer (assay office) at Heerenveen.

Harmen Petruszoon Greidanus died at Wolvega on 29 December 1865 at the age of 82 years. His death was announced in the following family advertisement:

> " ⋆ This evening about 6 o'clock our dearly beloved Father HARMEN PETRUS GREIJDA-> NUS passed away gently and calmly, at the age of 82 years and nearly 3 months, > deeply mourned by his Children and Children-in-law.
> Wolvega, A. JONGSCHAAP,
> 29 December 1865. In the name of all."
> General notice.

The following written letter of communication has also been preserved:

"Wolvega, 29 December 1865.
Dear Sir and Friend
It is our sad duty to inform you of the death of our beloved father Harmen Peterus Greydanus; he passed away gently this evening at 6 o'clock at the age of eighty-two years and nearly three months, after an ailing of nearly a year.
Painful as the parting is for us here, yet it comforts us that he was always resigned and praying, hoping that the all-good God and our Lord Jesus Christ has also received him, on which we trust.
Being assured of your sympathy in this our loss, we call ourselves
With friendly greetings
Your esteemed friends
A. Jongschaap
G. Hoffschlag.
T. Greydanus.
C. Greydanus."

Sjoukjen Gerritsdochter Jongschaap was born at Wolvega 10 November 1789, as daughter of Gerrit Paltz (Pals) Jongschaap and Catharina Smit/h/.

Her baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Wolvega etc. reads as follows:

> "Anno
> 1789 On 6 Decemb. Gerrit Paltz and Catharina Smit of Wolvega > had a child baptized, born in Wolvega on > 10 Nov. 1789
> father wit. named Sjoukje."

Gerrit Pals Jongschaap was, according to the marriage certificate given above, a shoemaker at Wolvega, where he also, like his son-in-law, held the office of elder in the Reformed congregation, as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the "Vriesche Courant" of Friday the 21st of July 1809, N° 87:

> "The Inhabitants of the Reformed Religion liable for floreen (land tax) are convoked to appear on Saturday the 29th of this month, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in the Church at Wolvega, in order to vote, in Person or by proper Power of Attorney, for a MINISTER in the combined Reformed Congregation of Wolvega, Sonnega, Nylamer and Nyholtwolde, and this in accordance with the Regulation concerning the same.
> In the name of the Church Council,
> Wolvega, the G. Pals.
> 12 July 1809. Jan Hendriks[1] } Elders."
> Luitjen Jans[2]

Here follows another advertisement from the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 20 February 1818, in which G. P. Jongschaap is mentioned, possibly our Gerrit Pals Jongschaap:

> "The TAX-FARMER of the levy of the Tax on the Provincial Milling Excise in Friesland for the Grietenij (district) Stellingwerf-Westeinde, being thereto authorized by Deed of the Court of First Instance sitting at Heerenveen, dated the 4th of this month, offers for public sale, before the Notary R. ATTEMA at Wolvega, on Thursday 26 February 1818, at the house of G. P. Jongschaap there, at ten o'clock in the morning, for ready money: :
> More than three thousand pieces of so-called DOUBLE and other DEVENTER CAKES, besides some pounds of RUSK, and some pounds of SUGAR BISCUITS, all of which were seized on the 23rd of November last, by the Receivers and Commissioners for the Surveillance of the Milling Excise at the so-called Helomaërsluis under Oldetrijne, from the Skipper Broer Ynes."

Sjoukje Gerritsdochter Jongschaap died at Wolvega on 16 April 1861, as appears from the following family announcement by her husband Harmen Petruszoon Greijdanus:

>  Today died my dearly beloved Wife SJOUKJE GERRITS JONGSCHAAP, at the age of 71 years and 5 months, after a most happy marriage union of 49 years and 7 months, to the deep sorrow of me, my Children and Children-in-law.
> Wolvega, 16 April 1861. H. P. GREIJDANUS.
> General notice to Family and Acquaintances."

He was born at Heerenveen in Aengwirden on 31 October 1785 and baptized at Terband on 13 November thereafter, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Aengwirden:

> "(1785) On 13 Nov^{ber} there was baptized at Terband a son of > Petrus Jacobus Greidanus and Geerte Jelles

[1] Family name: Woudsma.

[2] Family name: Middendorp.

married, at 't Herenveen in Ængwirden, and it is named Jelle b. 31 October 1785."

Jelle Petrus Jacobus Greijdanus was appointed Notary at Heerenveen on 4 July 1809 (see page 191 of "Het Notariaat in Friesland vóór 1811", A Sketch by S. Koopmans, Candidate Notary). According to the "Register der protocollen van Notarissen" published by the Broederschap der Notarissen in Nederland he was a notary from 1809—1841, — that is until just before his death —, and his protocol is preserved for the years 1809—1811 in the State Archives at Leeuwarden, and for the years 1811—1841 at Heerenveen[1] (pages 93 and 423).

Notary Jelle Petrus Jacobus Greijdanus appears to have had a busy practice; at any rate I have been able to collect from the "Leeuwarder Courant" in the volumes for 1809 up to and including 1836 about a hundred advertisements concerning sales announced by him of: houses, dwellings, country estates, farms, warehouses, mills, shop businesses, ships, land, private household effects, shop goods, timber, books, cattle etc., and summonses issued by him of creditors and debtors. Some sales were held together with other notaries such as: G. Attema Gz. at Oldeberkoop, A. Binnerts at Akkrum, S. P. van Goinga at Heerenveen, W. B. Kool van Heerens at Heerenveen, L. J. Mooi at Oldeboorn and P. Noyon at Sneek. A few of these advertisements follow below:

"Vriesche Courant" of Friday the 27th of October 1809, N^{o} 129:

> "NB. NB. There is offered for sale by private contract on favourable conditions: An extra fine COUNTRY PROPERTY, in the ORANJE WOUD under Oudeschoot, in the most pleasant part of Friesland, the house consisting of two rooms, two lofts, a kitchen, barn and two excellent cellars, two wells, a large rainwater tank; together with yard and gardens, 530 Roeden in size, provided with excellent fruit trees, free waterway and carriage road to and from the house, to be taken over free on 12 May 1810; further information may be obtained from the Royal Notary J. P. J. Greydanus and the merchant H. Munniks at Heerenveen. Letters post-paid."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 12th of February A^{o} 1811, N^{o} 2805 and following numbers:

> "The Imperial Notary J. P. J. Greydanus offers, on very easy conditions of payment, to sell publicly by advance-bidding money, to the highest bidder:
> A certain flourishing HOUSE and YARD, newly built in the year 1806, in the village of Tjallebird, numbered sub N^{o} 50, at present inhabited by Mintje Jans, as tenant, but to be taken over free of lease on 12 May 1811; having as adjoining neighbours to the east the seller, to the west and south the Honourable M. B. van Idema[2], and to the north the Heereweg.
> Whoever is interested, let him come on Friday the 22nd of February 1811, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, to the house of K. K. de Jong, innkeeper in the nieuwe Aanleg at Gersloot, at the final knock-down, and buy on conditions about which meanwhile information may be had from the aforesaid Imperial Notary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Wednesday the 5 April 1815, N^{o} 41:

> "J. P. J. Greydanus, public notary, residing at Heerenveen, offers for sale:
> 18 head both milking and calving COWS, 7 HEIFERS, 4 YEARLINGS, 1 black seven-year-old MARE, 1 SOW IN PIG, 2 SHEEP with LAMBS, 7 cow's-portions of best hay, 2 farm wagons, 1 churn, 7 copper buckets, 2 ditto large hand kettles, 20 milk vessels and various other farm implements; besides some FURNITURE and HOUSEHOLD GOODS, men's and women's clothing, a quantity of new fine East Indian cloths and some pieces of linen; various GOLD- and SILVERWORK, among which a gold and a silver pocket watch, a gold ear-iron and whatever more shall be brought forward.
> Whoever is interested, let him come on Tuesday the 11th of April 1815, in the forenoon at ten o'clock, at the house of mourning of the late PIETER HEINES de GROOT, in life farmer at Oudehaske, and act as he pleases."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 30 June 1815, N^{o} 78:

> "SALE OF BOOKS
> In the presence of the notary J. P. J. GREYDANUS, at Heerenveen, the bookseller F. Hessels there will, on WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY the 12 and 13th of JULY 1815 (instead of the 5 and 6th of JULY, as stated in the Catalogue), at the house of the widow of Joh^{s} Meyer, innkeeper's wife in the Posthuis, publicly offer for sale: A fine collection of Theological, Legal, Political, Antiquarian, Philosophical and Literary WORKS; besides travel, topographical and biographical descriptions, novels and tales, mostly bound in handsome bindings. All these BOOKS shall be available for inspection at the aforesaid house on the preceding MONDAY and TUESDAY."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 8 December 1815, N^{o} 147:

To be taken over four weeks after the final award or earlier; whereon f 7300.— has been bid."

As has been mentioned on page 378, one of the witnesses in several deeds executed before the notary Jelle Petrus Jacobus Greijdanus, recorded in the Mortgage and Proclamatieboeken (registers of property sales) of Schoterland, is his father Petrus Greydanus.

Like his father, Jelle Petrus Jacobus Greijdanus appears to have been a versatile man. For besides holding the office of notary for 32 years, he has been found as: organist, sexton and Major in the Landstorm in Vriesland.

According to the Kerkvoogdij (church wardens) accounts of Heerenveen (Schoterland) kept in the Church Archive, he was organist from 1806 until his death. Initially at a salary of f 64 a year, which in 1821 was reduced to f 55, but in 1828 was raised to f 100.—.

As organist at Heerenveen in the year 1816 he is mentioned on page 520 of Volume XXII for the year 1872 of the periodical "De Navorscher".

In the accounts just mentioned one also finds that he performed sexton's or notary's services; on 6 May 1818 he received f 11.58 "for the letting of the men's and women's seats in the church, with stamps Registration":

In the "Sminia-Archief" present in the State Archive at Leeuwarden (provisional numbering N° 239) one finds the extract reproduced herewith, issued by him as sexton at Heerenveen, probably in 1811 (see the seal).

In the "Leeuwarder Courant" it has been found that he was Major in the Landstorm in Vriesland on the Staff at Aengwirden. For in N° 21 of 12 March 1833 one finds a: "List of the cadre of Officers of the Landstorm in Vriesland, in alphabetical order", in which one finds:

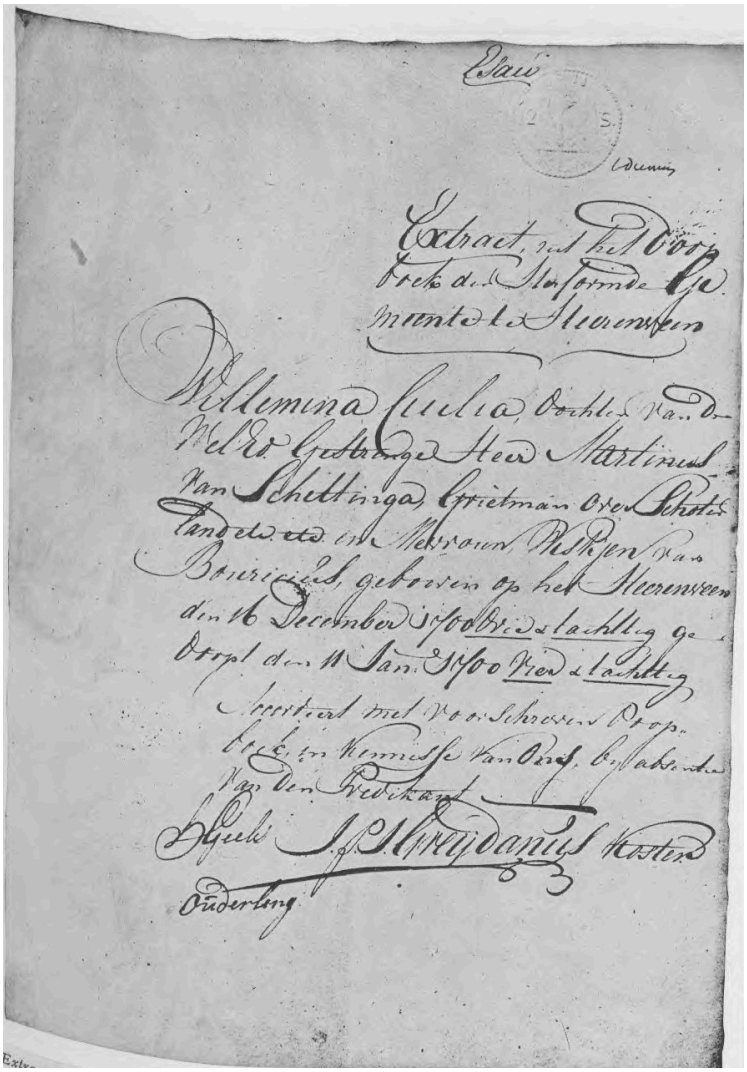
> ".....
> Aengwirden. Staff: Major J. P. J. Greidanus, ...
> ....."

Further, added at page 463 is a reproduction of the close of a letter written by him as notary. The letter, dated 27 January 1817, bears his family coat of arms in red sealing wax (see page 20) and occurs in the Archive of the former Court of Peace of Heerenveen.

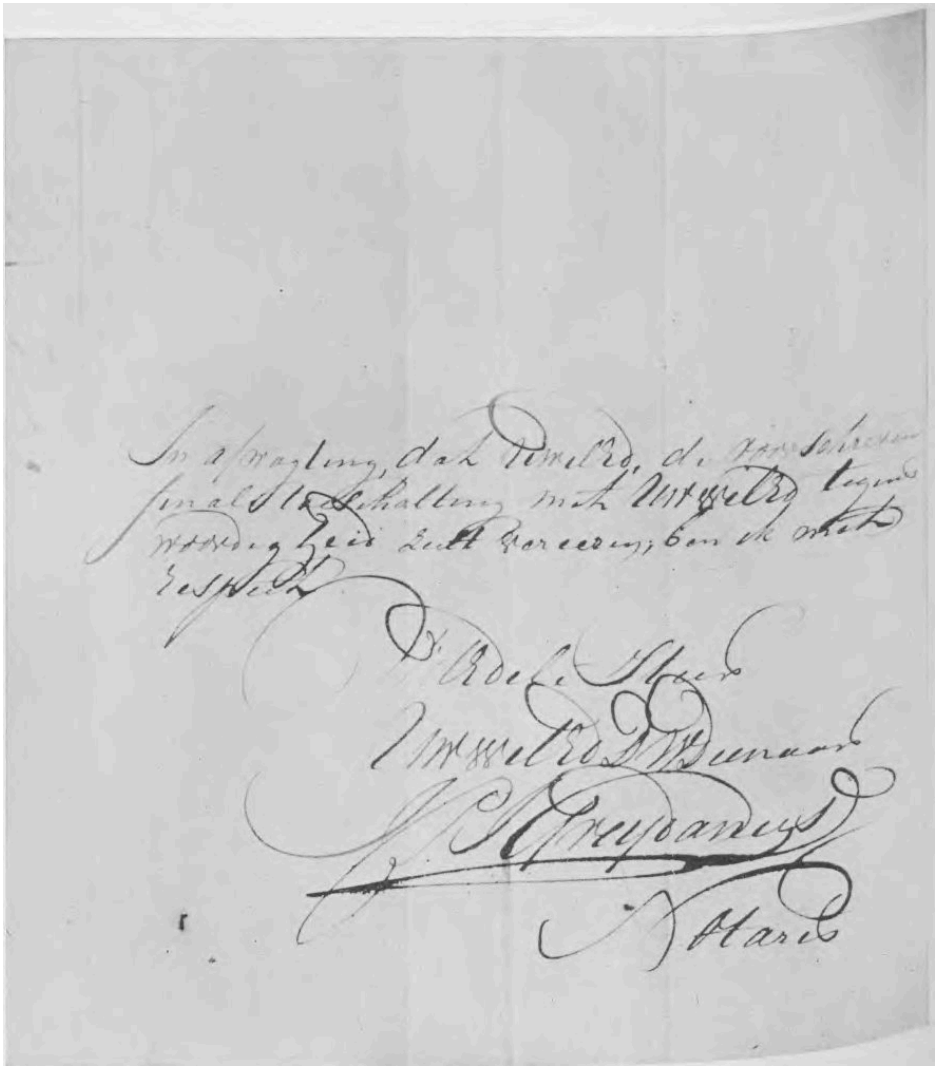
In my possession is his Imperial notary's stamp, being a large copper stamp with a wooden handle. An illustration of the stamp impression will be found at page 463, in regard to which I note that "C. P. J. Greidanus" should be "J. P. J. Greidanus."

Jelle Petrus Jacobus Greijdanus died at Heerenveen on 2 August 1842 at the age of 56 years, as appears from the following family announcement:

> “ * * This morning our dear Father, Mr. JELLE PETRUS JACOBUS GREIJDANUS, formerly Notary here, died at the age of 56 years and about 10 months.
> Heerenveen G. C. DE VRIEZE,
> 2 August 1842. G. G. DE VRIEZE, née Greijdanus.*”



Extract from the Reformed baptismal register of Heerenveen, issued by Notary Jelle Petrus' Jacobus' Greijdanus as Koster (sexton), probably in 1811 (somewhat reduced).



Above: Close of the written part of a letter dated 27 January 1817 from Notaris Jelle Petrus' Jacobus' Greijdanus (see page 462) (approximately actual size). Below: Notary's stamp of Jelle Petrus' Jacobus' Greijdanus at Heerenveen (see page 462) (actual size).

MARRIED:

Suzanna (Zusanna) le Heux (Leheux, Le Heux, La Heux), according to the Civil Registry[1], 1 September 1811 in Aengwirden.

Suzanna le Heux was born 20 January 1789 at Heerenveen, as daughter of Petrus le Heux and Inkjen Johannes, and baptized 8 February following at Heerenveen (Schoterland), as appears from the following entry in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation there:

> Zusanna daughter of Petrus Le Heux and Inkjen Johannes born at 't Herenveen on 20 January, baptized 8 Februarii."

Petrus le Heux was surgeon at Heerenveen, which is derived from a deed dated 25 Sept./9 Oct./6 Nov. 1782 in the proclamatieboek (register of property sales) of Schoterland, whereby "Petrus Leheux, surgeon and Inkjen Johannes, spouses at 't Heerenveen, a house with its site etc., standing and situated on the Dragt at Heerenveen" purchase for the sum of 3714 car.gl.. Inkjen Johannes has not been found with a surname. Her death certificate states that she, as Inkjen Johannes, died on 11 December 1818 at Heerenveen (Schoterland) in the house N° 213 at the age of 59 years, as wife of Heine Gaeles de Groot[2], merchant, living at Heerenveen, leaving behind her said husband, together with two children begotten in a previous marriage with Petrus Le Heux.

After the death of Heine Gaeles de Groot and Inkjen Johannes, their creditors and debtors were summoned by Inkjen Johannes' son-in-law, the notary Jelle Petrus Jacobus Greijdanus, as appears from the advertisement below, published in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 30 March 1819, N° 26:

> ")o( )o(Those who have any claim upon, or are indebted to, HEINE GEELES DE GROOT, merchant, and the late INKJEN JOHANNES, in their time spouses at Heerenveen, are requested to give notice and statement thereof at the office of the notary J. P. J. Greydanus, residing at Heerenveen."

Suzanna le Heux died at Heerenveen on 7 May 1841 at the age of 52 years, as appears from the family announcement below:

" * * This morning at 9 o'clock there died, to our bitter sorrow, after a long and painful illness, our beloved wife and mother SUZANNA le HEUX, at the age of 52 years and about 4 months.
Heerenveen,
7 May 1841.

> Ds. A. Snethlage/.
> Petrus .. born the 12 March 1784 > whose father is Georg Ulberg
> And mother Bottie Greidanus."

He died, without occupation, unmarried at Leeuwarden on 14 November 1837. According to the death record he was 51, according to his baptismal entry 53 years old. Presumably he had been admitted to the Town Almshouse; at any rate the notification of death was made by the resident master of that institution.

121 JAKOB (JACOB) SYBESZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Spannum, 24 June 1781 · d. Marrum, 28 July 1857 · son of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Kinke Aukes Fennema, 1808

He was born 24 June 1781 at Spannum and baptized there 8 July following, as appears from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Edens and Spannum:

> "(1781)
> On the 8 July was baptized at Spannum Jakob (born the 24 June) > a little son of Sybe Greijdanus, schoolmaster etc. at > Spannum and Willemke Hesselius (The father witness)."

Jacob Sybeszoon Greidanus was a farm labourer at Marrum, where he died 28 July 1857.

MARRIED:

KINKE (KEINKE) AUKESDOCHTER FENNEMA, 29 May 1808 at Marrum, daughter of Auke Eeltjes Fennema and Baukje Sybrens Oostrenga. The marriage record appearing in the Reformed Marriage Register of Marrum reads as follows:

> "on 29 May 1808 the following persons were confirmed by us at Marrum in the > married state, after three preceding proclamations at our village church > assemblies, the last of which was on > 29 May 1808: Jacob Sybes Greidanus } both at
> and > Kinke Aukes } Marrum."

Kinke Aukesdochter Fennema was born 13 November 1785 at Leeuwarden and baptized there in the Jacobiner Kerk on 14 December of the same year, with the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden, 1780—1788 fol. 123[r]:

On 14 December 1785 there was baptized in the Jacobinerkerk by Ds. L. van Bolhuis:
Keinke ... Born on 13 November 1785, whose father is Auke Eelties
And mother Baukje Sybrens."

Auke Eelties (Fennema) was a farmer within the klokslag (bell-ring district) of Leeuwarden, on the basis of a deed found in the Groot-Consentboek of Leeuwarden dated 1 March 1794 (registered 5 December 1794) of the following content:

> "Eduard Marjus van Beijma, Receiver-General of the Vijfdeelsdijken, living at Kingma Staate under Sweins, sells to Auke Eeltjes and Baukje Sijbrens, farmers under the klokslag of the town of Leeuwarden, 2 P.M. of excellent arable land, charged with ¾ landsfloreen, situated under Leeuwarden, belonging to the farmstead and lands in use by Reinder Douwes cum uxore, having as adjoining neighbours the owner of certain 4 P. M. of pasture on the east; Been Cornelis on the south, the St. Antony Gasthuis on the west and the Burger Weeshuis of Leeuwarden on the north, for a sum of 531 ggl. 14 st.".

Kinke Aukesdochter Fennema died at Marrum 28 April 1859, aged 74 years. From her death certificate one can learn her surname and that of her mother, as they are given above.

b. Spannum, 22 May 1783 · son of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius

He was born at Spannum 22 May 1783, baptized there 29 May of the same year, and on 2 March 1791 fell into the water and drowned.

This has been drawn from the entries below:

Reformed Baptismal Register of Edens and Spannum:

> "(Latin) He died on 2
> March 1791 On 22 May 1783 a son was born at Spannum to Sijbe Jakobus
> Greijdanus & Willemke Hesselius, married couple, baptized 29 May 1783 > & named Jentje, the father being witness."

The register kept by Sybe Jacobus Greijdanus himself, in the keeping of the minister:

"Baptismal register of the Schoolmaster at Spannum pursuant to the resolution of the Noble Mighty Lords States of Friesland dated 28 February 1772":

> "1783
> Died on the 2nd On 29 May there was baptized at Spannum Jentje, > of March 1791 born on the 22nd of the same month /a little son > in the water. of me, Sybe Jakobŭs Greijdanŭs and Willemke > Hesselius, married couple at Spannum/ the father being witness."

123 TAEKE SYBESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Spannum, 8 October 1784 · d. Tzum, 11 April 1859 · son of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Wijbrig Feikes Bijlsma, 1809

According to the deed below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Edens and Spannum, he was born at Spannum 8 October 1784 and baptized there 10 October of the same year.

On 10 October Sybe Jacobus Greijdanus had his little son, born at Spannum on the 8th of the same month, baptized with the name Taeke, whose mother is Willemke Hesselius."

Taeke Sybeszoon Greidanus was a farmer, first at Hijdaard, where in 1821 another son of his was born, and later at Tzum. At Tzum he was tenant farmer of the farm "Groot Laquaart (Laekwerd)", measuring over 38 hectares, which comes to light through the following advertisement, placed in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 20 January 1835, N° 6:

> "Isaac Telting, Notary at Franeker, will, on Thursday 29 January 1835 > at the final award, in the afternoon at two o'clock, in the Heeren Logement > at Franeker, by bidding money, sell to the highest bidder:
> A splendid ZATHE (farmstead) with the DWELLING, BARN, TREES, > PLANTATION and WATERMILL standing upon it, situated under the village of Tzum, > named Groot Laquaart, in size according to the measurement of the cadastre 38 hectares 59 sq. rods > 70 sq. ells, almost entirely pasture land; the Dwelling being registered under Tzum > with no. 102, charged with $33^{1}/_{4}$ Dijksfloreen on no. 39, assessed in the > Verponding (land tax) for 1834 at f 216:47, at present inhabited under lease by Taeke Sijbes Greijdanus, who > has lease rights thereto until Petri and 12 May 1839, for f 1166 > annually. Described more fully in the Bills; on which f 16,297:60 has been bid."

From this advertisement it further appears that "Groot Laquaart" was a cattle farm.

In the Floreencohier (land-tax register) of Hennaarderadeel of 1838 Taeke Sybeszoon Greijdanus appears as owner of some lands at Wommels, and in the Floreencohier of Franekeradeel of 1858 as owner of several hectares of land at Tzum.

Taeke Sybeszoon Greijdanus was also a member of the Kerkeraad (church council) of the Dutch Reformed congregation at Tzum; in the Book in which are recorded the Acts of the Kerkeraad 1645—1886 and the Members 1645—1772 of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Tzum, the following records were co-signed by him: 5 May 1841, 31 October 1841, 13 February 1842, 24 April 1842 and 30 April 1843.

He died at the age of 74 on 11 April 1859 at Tzum, as appears from the following family announcement:

> "TZUM, 11 April 1859. Last night at about half past twelve it pleased > the Lord of life and death to let my dear Husband and my Children's loving Father TAEKE SIJ-> BES GREIJDANUS, former Farmer here, exchange the temporal for the eternal, > at the blessed age of > seventy-four years, after a pleasant marriage of nearly > fifty-one years. Thankful for the long possession, we wish, in his loss, > to be silent before God, whose doing and refraining is wisdom.
> W. F. BIJLSMA,
> Sole notification. Wid. T. S. Greijdanus > also on behalf of my Children and Children-in-law."

MARRIED:

WIJBRIG FEIKESDOCHTER BIJLSMA, 3 April 1809 at Hijdaard, daughter of Feike Jacobs Bijlsma and Akke Jans Winia (Wijnia).

The relevant marriage entry in the Reformed marriage register of Wommels and Hijdaard reads as follows:

> "(1809)
> On 12 and 19 March, as well as on 2
> April, were proclaimed in our church, > and on 3 April confirmed in the married > state, the following persons Taeke Sijbes Greijda> nus and Wijbrig Feikes both of Hydaard."

Wijbrig Feikesdochter Bijlsma was born 22 November 1782 at Hijdaard and baptized there on 1 December following.

Her baptism is entered in the Reformed baptismal register of Wommels and Hijdaard as follows:

> "(1782)
> On 1 December Feike Jacobs > had his little daughter, born at Hidaard on > 22 November 1782, of whom the mother is > Akke Jans, baptized, and she was named > Wijbrig."

She died at Tzum on 22 August 1859 — thus some months after her husband — at the age of 76 years, as follows from the family announcement below:

> " This morning at about six o'clock our beloved Mother WIJBRIG FEIKES BIJLSMA, Widow of Taeke S. Greijdanus, died from the consequences of a short but severe catarrhal illness, at the blessed age of more than seventy-six years. — She survived our dear Father by only a few weeks, with whom, as we hope and wish, she is after a short separation for ever reunited.
> Family, Friends and Acquaintances are requested to regard this as the only notification.
> Tzum, 22 August 1859. On behalf of Brothers and Sisters, > SIJBE T. GREIJDANUS."*

The occupation of Feike Jacobs Bijlsma could not be found; his death record states that he died on 22 November 1826 in the house Hijdaard N° 3, at the age of 76 years, without occupation, living there as widower of Akke Jans Wijnia. The surname Winia of his wife Akke Jans is also recorded in the death record of Wijbrig Feikesdochter Bijlsma, as well as in the death record of Akke Jans herself, according to which Akke Jans Winia, aged 65 years, wife of Feike J. Bijlsma, died on 6 August 1818 at Hijdaard in the same house Hijdaard N° 3.

124 AUKJEN SYBESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Spannum, 6 February 1786 · daughter of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Yde Lolles Roosma, 1812

She was born at Spannum 6 February 1786 and baptized there 12 February following, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Edens and Spannum:

> "1786
> On 12 February Sybe Jacobus Greydanus had his little daughter, > born at Spannum on the 6th of this month, baptized and named > Aukjen, of whom the mother is Willemke Hesselius."

Aukje Sybesdochter Greijdanus died at Burgwerd 15 December 1874.

MARRIED:

Ide (Yde) Lolleszoon Roosma, 21 May 1812 in Hennaarderadeel (at Wommels), born at Winsum 31 March 1786, as son of Lolle Reinders (Roosma) and Trientje Alberts at Winsum.

Yde Lolleszoon (Roosma) was baptized 14 April 1786 at Winsum, as appears from the following entry in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation at Winsum (1772—1812):

> "1786. On 14 April Lolle Reinders had his child > baptized, born of his wife Trijntje > Albertz on the 31st of March last, being a little son, > and then named Yde.
> See n. 22[1]."

The couple Roosma × Greijdanus became members of the Dutch Reformed congregation at Spannum 21 or 22 May 1813 and left there 2 August 1818 with a certificate for Burgwerd. This is taken from the following entry in the "Members' register of the Schoolmaster at Spannum pursuant to the resolution of the Honourable Mighty Lords States of Friesland of 28 February 1772":

> "1813. on the 22nd of May[2] were admitted upon Confession of Faith as members of this congregation
> Yde Lolles Roosma and > Aukjen Sybes Greijdanus > married couple at Spannum.
> 1818 on the[3] August departed for Burgwert with certificate."

Yde Lolleszoon Roosma was a carpenter's journeyman at Burgwerd, where he died 25 January 1860.

125 TJITSKE SYBESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Spannum, 2 May 1787 · d. Tzum, 20 May 1870 · daughter of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Dirk (Durk) Meintes van der Berg, 1816 · m. Jacob Johannes' Bergsma, 1823

She was born at Spannum 2 May 1787 and baptized there 6 May following. This is entered as follows in the Reformed baptismal register of Edens and Spannum:

[1] This means "see appendix N° 22".

[2] According to another book the date is 21 May.

[3] According to another book the certificate was dated 2 August.

> "1787
> On 6 May S: J: Greijdanus had his little daughter, > born at Spannum on the 2nd of the same, baptized and > named Tjitske, of whom the mother is Willemke > Hesselius."

She died at Tzum 20 May 1870, at the age of 83 years.

MARRIED:

1° DIRK (DURK) MEINTESZOON VAN DER BERG, 6 July 1816 in Baarderadeel (at Bozum), b. at Wolsum 17 January 1764, as son of Meinte Ruurds (van der Berg) and Pleuntie (Pleuntje) Jorrits. His baptismal entry in the church book of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Westhem and Wolsum (1715—1772) reads as follows:

> "1764
> 12 Febr. A little son of Meinte Ruurds and Pleuntie > Jorrits baptized, and named Durk. B.: 17 Jan:".

According to the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of Wymbritseradeel, Meinte Ruurds (van der Berg) was from 1754 to 1787 the occupier of a farm at Wolsum N° 5, of 44 pondemaat; afterwards that farm was in use by Durk (Dirk) Meintes (van der Berg).

At the time of his marriage Dirk Meintes van der Berg, farmer at Baard, was widower of Eelkjen Epkes, who had died there on 17 October 1806; he too died at Baard, aged 57 years, on 25 May 1821.

2° JACOB JOHANNESZOON BERGSMA, 25 October 1823 in Baarderadeel (at Weidum), son of Johannes Gerbens (Bergsma) and Dieuwke Reins.

Jacob Johanneszoon Bergsma was born 9 November 1783 at Sybrandaburen and baptized there 26 December following, as appears from the entry below in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Sybrandaburen:

> "/1783/
> On the 26th of December Johannes Gerbens > and Dieuwke Reins, spouses at Sibrandabuiren, > had their son baptized, he being born there > on the 9th of November, and named Jacob."

Johannes Gerbens (Bergsma) was a day labourer at Terzool.

A son from the first marriage: Sijbe Dirkszoon van der Berg, born in Baarderadeel 22 February 1819, married 18 December 1852 in Hennaarderadeel (at Wommels) Willemke Petrusdochter Greijdanus (N° 213 of this genealogy), a daughter of a brother of his mother.

126 PETRUS SYBESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Spannum, 11 November 1788 · son of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Jeltje Gabes de Hoop, 1820

He was born at Spannum 11 November 1788 and baptized there 16 November following, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Edens and Spannum:

> "/1788/
> On 16 November Sybe Jacobus Greijdanus, schoolmaster > at Spannum, had his little son, born there on the 11th of the same, baptized > and named Petrus, of whom the mother is Willemke Hesse-> lius."

According to the entry below in the "Ledemaatregister (register of members) of the Schoolmaster at Spannum pursuant to the resolution of the Noble and Mighty Lords States of Friesland of 28 February 1772", Petrus Sybeszoon Greijdanus was admitted on 12 or 13 May as a member of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Spannum:

> "1821. On the 12th[1] of May there were admitted, upon confession of faith, as mem> bers of this Congregation
> . . . . . .
> . . . . . .
> Petrus Sybes Greydanus."

[1] In another "Register of Members at Edens and Spannum" 13 May is given, with the addition "departed for Cubaard on 20 November 1825."

Petrus Sybeszoon Greijdanus was a farm labourer at Spannum; on 18 January 1824 he was installed as deacon of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Edens and Spannum, an office which his father had also held. In 1825 he was administering deacon and in May 1825 handed over his administration to D. W. Hylarides, because of his departure on 12 May to Cubaard. Concerning this the following is found in the Proceedings of the Church Council:

> Meeting of 28 December 1823:
> "Art. 1. The male members having been summoned to appoint, together with the Church Council, new members in place of the retiring members of the Church Council, the Minister opened . . . etc.
> Art. 2. The votes having been counted, it appeared that as Elder had been chosen . . .
> . . . and as Deacon Petrus S. Greydanus, which persons, having been presented three times to the congregation, were installed in their offices on 18 January 1824.
> Therefore the Church Council for the year 1824 consists of > as Elders
> . . . . . .
> . . . . . .
> and as Deacons
> . . . . . .
> Petrus Sybes Greydanus"

"/Year 1825/.
. . . . . so that for this year,
besides the Minister E. Nauta,
. . . . . } as elders
. . . . . .
Petrus Sybes Greydanus
and } as deacons
. . . . . .
have seats in the Church Council.
N.B. The serving Deacon Petrus S. Greydanŭs being about to leave his dwelling on 12 May, there was appointed in his place on 1 May . . . etc."

At Cubaard too Petrus Sybeszoon Greijdanus was a farm labourer; he died there already on 26 January 1830.

MARRIED:

Jeltje Gabesdochter de Hoop, 3 August 1820 in Hennaarderadeel (at Wommels), daughter of Gabe Jelles de Hoop, farmer at Heeg, and Trijntje Andrijs (Andries).

Jeltje Gabesdochter de Hoop was born at Heeg on 5 September 1796 and baptized at Spannum on 19 May 1823 upon profession of faith. This is taken from the following entry in the "Register of Names of those Baptized at Edens and Spannum according to the resolution of the Noble Mighty Lords States of Friesland dated 28 February 1772.":

"1823 On 19 May there was baptized upon profession of faith Jeltje Gabes Jeltje de Hoop, wife of Petrus Greijdanŭs, born at Heeg on 5 September 1796."

On the day of her baptism she was admitted as a member of the congregation of Spannum, as appears from the following entry in the "Register of Members of the Schoolmaster at Spannum pursuant to the resolution of the Noble Mighty Lords States of Friesland of 28 February 1772":

"1823. On 19 May there were admitted upon profession of faith as Members of this Congregation: . . . . . .
Jeltje Gabes de Hoop, after the administration of baptism had been performed upon the last-named."

Jeltje Gabesdochter de Hoop remarried with Petrus Sybeszoon Greijdanus' brother Ymte Sybeszoon Greydanus (N° 130 of this genealogy) and died at Tzum on 28 January 1862.

b. Spannum, 31 January 1791 · d. Bolsward, 23 September 1861 · son of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Pietje Jentjes Sieswerda, 1819

He was born at Spannum 31 January 1791 and baptized there on 13 February following, according to the entry below in the Reformed baptismal register of Edens and Spannum:

(1791) On 13 February Sijbe Jacobus Greijdanus, schoolmaster at Spannum, had his little son, born on 31 January, baptized and named Johannes, of whom the mother is Willemke Hesselius."

Johannes Sybeszoon Greijdanus has been found, first as a labourer at Wommels, then as a farm servant at Burgwerd and finally as a merchant in grocery wares and as a native pedlar at Bolsward, in which town he died at the age of 70 on 23 September 1861.

MARRIED:

PIETJE JENTJES/JENTIES/DOCHTER SIESWERDA (SYSWERDA), 8 May 1819 in Wonseradeel (at Bolsward), dau. of Jentje Dirks (Sieswerda) and Sjoerdje Anes.

Pietje Jentjesdochter Sieswerda was born at Hichtum 23 April 1792 and baptized on 6 May following, according to the following entry in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Burgwerd, Hichtum and Hartwerd 1772—1812:

"(1792)
On 6 May a child baptized, of whom the father is Jentje Dirks and the mother Sjoerdje Anes, being a daughter, named Pietje, born at Hichtum on 23 April 1792.
Both parents present as witnesses at the baptism."

Jentje Dirks (Sieswerda) was a farmer at Hichtum; in the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of Wonseradeel he appears under the village of Hichtum, N° 9, as user of 36 P.M. of land, belonging to the Church at Hichtum (rental value 58—10—..).

Pietje Jentjesdochter Sieswerda died at Bolsward 17 February 1842, aged 49 years.

b. Spannum, 15 May 1793 · d. after 1842 · daughter of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Jan Jans Postma, 1833

She was born at Spannum 15 May 1793 and baptized there on 26 May following, on the basis of the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Edens and Spannum:

> "(1793)
> on 26 May Sijbe Jacobus Greijdanus, schoolmaster > at Spannum, had his little daughter, born on the 15th of the same, baptized > and named Anna, of whom the mother is Willemke Hesselius."

She was admitted as a member of the Reformed congregation at Spannum on 15 or 25 May 1820, according to the following note in the "Register of members of the schoolmaster at Spannum pursuant to the resolution of the Noble Mighty Lords States of Friesland of 28 February 1772":

> "1820 On the 15th[1] of May there were admitted, upon confession of faith, > as members of this congregation
> . . . . . .
> . . . . . .
> Anna Sybes Greijdanüs, young woman."

She presumably died after 1842.

MARRIED:

JAN JANSZOON POSTMA, 11 April 1833 in Hennaarderadeel (at Wommels), "Bolloper"[2], living at Spannum, born there 27 December 1792, son of Jan Jans (Postma), widower of Trijntje Hendriks de Vries, who died in the Municipality of Franekeradeel, and Trijntje Ages de Jong.

129 JENTJE SYBESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

He was born 22 August 1794 at Spannum and baptized there 7 September following. This is based on the following entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Edens and Spannum:

> On 7 September Sijbe Jacobus Greijdanus, schoolmaster at Spannum, had his little son, born on 22 August, baptized and named Jentje, whose mother is Willemke Hesselius."

On 16 November 1817 he was admitted as a member of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Spannum, from where he departed on 2 August of the following year with a certificate to Burgwerd. This appears from the following note in the "Ledemaatregister (members' register) of the schoolmaster at Spannum pursuant to the resolution of the Noble Mighty Lords States of Friesland of 28 February 1772":

> "1817. On 16 November was, upon > confession of faith, admitted 1818 departed to > as member of this Congregation Burgwert with certificate > Jentje Sybes of the[1] August" > Greydanus.

At Burgwerd Jentje Sybeszoon Greijdanus was schoolmaster, just as his father had been at Spannum. He was also municipal receiver there. On 12 May 1852 he settled at Anjum as State receiver, which post he held there until his death on 29 November 1856.

MARRIED:

BEITSKE JOHANNESDOCHTER ALTHUSIUS, 22 September 1821 in Wonseradeel (at Bolsward).

Beitske Johannesdochter Althusius was a daughter of Johannes Jans (Althusius), who died as a farmer at Burgwerd on 30 June 1818, and Jantjen (Janke) Tjerks (Veldhuis), and was born at Heeg 27 October 1797. Her baptismal record, appearing in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Heeg, has the following content:

> N° 3.[2] Johannes Jans as father and witness, and Jantjen Tjerks as mother, have had a daughter, born here on 27 October 1797, baptized on 19 November 1797 with the name Beitske."

After the death of her husband Beitske Johannesdochter Althusius departed with her children Ymte and Willemke on 12 May 1857 from Anjum to Ylst, where she died 18 July 1866.

The heraldic description of the arms of the family "Althusius" is as follows:

> silver, with a blue house (with stepped gable), of > two storeys, standing on a grassy ground.
> Crest: presumably the house or a pair of wings.
> Wreath and Mantling: silver, blue.

Since it is not known whether Beitske Johannesdochter Althusius belonged to the Althusius family that bore these arms, a depiction of them has been omitted.

CHILDREN:

1. Johannes Jentjeszoon Greijdanus, who follows under number: 219.
2. Siebe Jentjeszoon Greijdanus, who follows under number: 220.
3. Petrus Jentjeszoon Greijdanus, who follows under number: 221.
4. Willemke Jentjesdochter Greijdanus, who follows under number: 222.
5. Jantje Jentjesdochter Greijdanus, who follows under number: 223.
6. Jan Jentjeszoon Greijdanus, who follows under number: 224.
7. Ytje Jentjesdochter Greijdanus, who follows under number: 225.
8. Ymte Jentjeszoon Greijdanus, who follows under number: 226.

130 YMTE SYBESZOON GREYDANUS

Line of descent: Siebe 66 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Spannum, 15 March 1796 · d. Tzum, 1 April 1881 · son of Siebe (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 66) and Willemke Hesselius · m. Jeltje Gabes de Hoop, 1833

He was born at Spannum on 15 March 1796 and baptized there on 3 April following. His baptismal record in the Reformed baptismal register of Edens and Spannum reads as follows:

> "(1796)
> On 3 April Sijbe Jacobus Greijdanus had his little son, born at Spannum on 15 March, baptized and named Ymte, whose mother is Willemke Hesselius."

In 1826 he was still living at Spannum, as may be gathered from the following entry in the Deacons' accounts of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Edens and Spannum for the year 1826:

> "Receipts.
> . . . . . .
> 28 August from Jimte Siebes Gredanes > for wages owed to > Anne Pieters 2—50".

At the time of his marriage on 13 April 1833 he was a "gardener" at Cubaard.

In the floreencohier (land-tax register) of Hennaarderadeel of 1838 he appears as user and as owner of various parcels of land at Wommels, and in the floreencohier of Franekeradeel of 1858 as user and owner of two parcels, one of which at that time was in joint ownership with his brother Petrus Sybeszoon Greidanus (N° 126 of this genealogy).

He died on 1 April 1881 at Tzum, at the age of 85 years, according to the following family announcement:

> "TZUM, 1 April 1881. Today, gently and peacefully, at the age of over 85 years, there died YMTE S. GREIJDANUS.
> On behalf of the Family,
> S. D. v. d. Berg.[1]
> Sole notification to Friends and Acquaintances."

After his death the following announcements by Notary D. Cannegieter at Tzum appeared in the newspapers:

"SUMMONS
Everyone who has any claim against, or is indebted to, the estate of YMTE SYBES GREIDANUS, deceased at Tzum, is requested to submit a statement and to make payment at the Office of Notary Cannegieter at Tzum."
"SUMMONS OF HEIRS.
THE HEIRS OF YMTE SIJBES GREIDANUS, DECEASED AT TZUM ON THE 1st OF APRIL LAST WITHOUT ANY KNOWN LAST WILL, ARE REQUESTED TO APPEAR ON WEDNESDAY 20 APRIL NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING, IN THE INN OF KLAAS WESTRA AT TZUM.
D. CANNEGIETER, Notary."

MARRIED:

JELTJE GABESDOCHTER DE HOOP, 13 April 1833 in Hennaarderadeel (at Wommels), widow of his brother Petrus Sybeszoon Greijdanus[2] (N° 126 of this genealogy). As stated on page 469, Jeltje Gabesdochter de Hoop was born at Heeg on 5 September 1796 as the daughter of Gabe Jelles (de Hoop) and Trijntje Andries, and she died at Tzum on 28 January 1862.

Presumably NO CHILDREN.

[1] Apparently his nephew named on page 468: Sijbe Dirkszoon van der Berg.

[2] Because of the degree of consanguinity forbidden for marriage by affinity, permission for this marriage was granted by Royal Decree of 27 December 1833.

131 JACOB YMTESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Ymte 67[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

He was born at Jorwerd on 17 August 1784 and baptized on 29 August following, as appears from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

"/1784/ On 29 Aug. 1784 was baptized the little son of Ynte Greidanus and Wikjen Strikwerda, born at Jorwert on 17 Aug. 1784, and he was named Jacob. presented for baptism by the Father."

At the time of his marriage in 1809 Jacob Ymteszoon Greijdanus lived at Britswerd. At the beginning of 1810 he seems to have been sexton at Oosterend; for in the members' register of Oosterend one finds, on 28 January 1810, the handwriting and the signature of: "I. I. Greidanus, sexton."

On 10 May 1810 he rented a farm of 65 P.M. (pondemaat) at Wommels, at a yearly rent of 800 car.gl., from the gentlemen Jr. Idsert Aebinga van Humalda, Governor of Vriesland, and Wijgerus Folkersma, Doctor of Medicine, at Leeuwarden. This is drawn from a lease contract, to be found in the "Eisinga-Archief" kept at the State Archives at Leeuwarden, which reads in the main as follows:

> 8 March 1816. Jr Idsert Aebinga van Humalda, Knight of the Netherlands Lion, Governor of Vriesland, at Leeuwarden, and Wijgerus Folkersma, Doctor of Medicine, likewise at Leeuwarden, each owner of one half, let to Jacob Ymtes Greydanus and Hidtje Baukes, husband and wife at Wommels, the sathe (farmstead) and lands at Wommels, house n° 60, of 65 P.M., already inhabited and used by the tenants, for the term of five years (1816—1821), at a yearly rent of 800 cargl., and that the advance of 250 cargl., being the half of the advance as the same was stipulated in the previous lease contract of 10 May 1811, shall during these years of lease remain interest-free with Mr. Folkersma, to be refunded by Him to the Tenants at the expiry thereof; that this article has no bearing on the co-owner, since the payment of the other half of that advance stipulated in the said contract was not made to Mr. Humalda and that condition has therefore remained unmentioned.

Even before the expiry of this lease contract Jacob Ymteszoon Greydanus seems to have left the farm, as may be gathered from the following advertisement, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 3 March 1820, N° 18:

> "The Notary W. K. HOEKSTRA, at Dronrijp, intends to sell publicly, by auction and for cash:
> 8 COWS, both in milk and in calf, 7 YEARLINGS, 1 ONE-YEAR-OLD STALLION, 3 SHEEP, 2 LAMBS, 2 best iron-shod Hay wagons, 1 Drag trough, 1 Cheese press, about 4 Koesēten (measure of hay) of best-made Hay, 1 Churn with copper hoop, 1 exceedingly fine Cheese kettle; further Beds, Tables, Chairs, Copper, Tin and Ironware, and whatever more shall be brought forth on the day of the sale.
> Whoever is interested, let him come on Monday 6 March 1820, in the forenoon precisely at 9 o'clock, at the house of Jacob Ymtes Greidanus, near Wommels, and buy on the conditions then to be read out."

According to this advertisement, then, Jacob Ymteszoon Greijdanus sold his livestock and household goods at Wommels at a public sale on 6 March 1820. In connection with what this sale took place, and where he settled afterwards, is not known. It is true that a little daughter (N° 229 of this genealogy) was born to him at Wieuwerd on 29 March 1822. The date and place of his death have likewise not been found; according to the Alphabetical indexes to the Registers of the Civil Registry up to and including the year 1842, he would not have died in the Municipality of Baarderadeel. Perhaps he died after 1842.

MARRIED:

HITTJE BAUKESDOCHTER KUPERUS, 29 January 1809 at Britswerd or Wieuwerd, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed Marriage Register of Britswerd and Wieuwerd:

> "1809. On 29 Jan^{rij}, after three preceding > proclamations, the last of which was > on the 22nd of the same, were confirmed in the state of matrimony:
> Jakob Ymtes Greydanus of Britswerd and Hittje Baukes of Wieuwerd."

Hittje Baukesdochter Kuperus, whose surname appears for example from the death certificate dated 17 April 1906 of her daughter Antje, who died at Huins, was a daughter of Bauke Petrus (Kuperus) and Antje Jans, was born at Britswerd 11 March 1787 and baptized there 25 March following. Her baptismal entry in the Dutch Reformed Baptismal Register of Britswerd and Wieuwerd reads as follows:

> "/1787/
> On the 25th ditto (March) was baptized a little daughter > of Bauke Petrus and Antje Jans, born at > Britswerd on the 11th ditto, held at the font by the father, > and was named Hittje."

It is not known where and when Hittje Baukesdochter Kuperus died; her death has not been found in the Municipality of Baarderadeel.

Her father Bauke Petrus Kuperus was a carpenter at Wieuwerd, and as such died there in house N^{o} 18 on 1 December 1830 at the age of 76.

132 CORNELIS (KORNELIS) YMTESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Ymte 67^{II} ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1^{I}

b. Jorwerd, 16 March 1789 · d. Jorwerd, 15 February 1862 · son of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N^{o} 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda · m. Antje Jentjes Groustra, 1811 · m. Pytie Jochems Kingma, 1831

He was born at Jorwerd 16 March 1789 and baptized there 29 March following, according to the following entry in the Dutch Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "/1789/ On the 29th of March was baptized a son of the Schoolmaster > Ymte Jacobus Greidanus and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda, > spouses at Jorwerd, born here on the 16th of March 1789 and was > named at his baptism Cornelis."

Kornelis Ymteszoon Greijdanus was a farmer, first at Hijlaard and later at Jorwerd. Probably from him comes the silver sealing-wax seal with the initials K Y G mentioned on page 20. He died at Jorwerd 15 February 1862, according to the following family announcement:

> "* * * This evening at about 12 o'clock my beloved > Husband KORNELIS IJMTES GREIJDANUS died, at the > blessed age of nearly 73 years. In him I lose > a support in my advancing years and the Children a

MARRIED:

1° ANTJE JENTJESDOCHTER GROUSTRA (GROUWSTRA), 31 August 1811 at Hijlaard.

Antje Jentjesdochter Groustra was born at Hijlaard 8 November 1791 and baptized there 27 November following. She was a daughter of Jentje Willems Groustra and Grietje Martens. All this comes to light through the following entry in the Dutch Reformed Baptismal Register of Hijlaard:

> "1791 On the 8th of November was born here,
> the daughter of Jentie Willems and Grietje > Martens spouses at Hylaard, bap> tized on the 27th ditto and was named Antje."

Jentje Willems Groustra had his own cattle farm under Hijlaard and was the tenant of the Kerkeplaats there. This appears from the following advertisements in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of:

Tuesday the 12th of January 1830, n° 4:

> "The Notary J. KAMMINGA BOLTJES, and the Clerk T. GOSLINGA, both at > Jorwerd, will offer for sale by public auction and ready money:
> 16 in-calf and milking Cows, 7 ditto Rieren (dry cows), 4 Hokkelingen (yearlings) and 1 Bull, 1 black short-tailed Mare, 12 Sheep, about 20 Koeseeten (cow-feeds) of extra best highland Hay, 2 iron-shod Hay Wagons, 1 unshod Ditto, 2 Earth Carts, 1 Drag Trough, Land Roller, Tieme (cattle tether), 40 wooden Melkaden, Brokaden and Boteraad (milk, mash and butter utensils), 1 Cheese Press with Tubs, Vats and accessories, 1 copper Cheese Kettle, Churn with copper hoop, Milk Vats, copper and wooden Buckets, 1 Kret (manure cart) and Dung Planks, 2 Cupboards, 2 Clocks, Mirrors, Tables, Chairs, China Cabinets with fine Porcelain and Glassware, 5 Beds, with Bolsters, Pillows, Blankets and accessories, a considerable lot of Copper-, Tin-, Iron- and Earthenware, Furniture, Household Goods, Farm Implements, smoked Bacon and Meat; further everything belonging to a complete Household and Farm, and which will be brought forward on the day of the sale.
> Whoever is interested, let him come on Wednesday 20 January 1830, in the morning at nine o'clock, at the house of mourning of the late Jentje Willems Grouwstra, in life Farmer under Hijlaard
> PASS IT ON."

Tuesday 19 January 1830, N° 6:

> "The CHURCH WARDENS of Hijlaard intend to let, for a number of years, by sealed tenders: DE KERKEPLAATS, to be entered upon at St. Petri and May 1830, last used by the late J. W. Grouwstra. The tenders to be sent postage-paid before the 31st of this month, to P. W. de Jong, from whom the conditions may also be learned."

Friday 26 March 1830, N° 25 (Supplement):

> "PUBLIC SALE. Upon judicial authorisation, before the Justice of the Peace Court of the canton Rauwerd, through the ministry of the Notary J. KAMMINGA BOLTJES, residing at Jorwerd, of:
> 1. About three hectares sixty-seven square rods and fifty square ells of PASTURE LAND, situated under Beers.
> 2. About one hectare eighty-three square rods and seventy-five square ells of PASTURE LAND, situated on Fons under Jorwerd.
> 3. About two hectares eleven square rods and thirty-two square ells of PASTURE LAND situated on the Hijlaarder Mieden under the village of Hylaard.
> 4. About one hectare and forty-seven square rods of PASTURE or LOW LAND, lying under the village of Hylaard.
> 5. A HOUSE and GARDEN (Latin) with appurtenances, standing and situated at Deinum, numbered N° 9, in lease and use by Klaas Luitzens Hiemstra.
> All belonging to the estate of the late Jentje Willems Groustra, except the last parcel, of which the half belongs to Luitzen Klazes Hiemstra and others.
> The parcels may be taken possession of immediately after the final award, except the last parcel, of which the taking of possession will occur on 12 May 1831.
> Whoever is interested, let him come on Monday 5 April 1830, for the provisional, and on the 14th ditto for the final award, each time in the afternoon at two o'clock, at the house of Tjeerd Pieters Bosma, innkeeper at Hylaard."

Antje Jentjesdochter Groustra died at Hijlaard 30 August 1826. On the leaf mentioned on page 389, probably coming from a small family Bible, one finds concerning her death:

"1826. On 30 August
Antje J: Groüstra died at the age of 34 years
8 mon: 22 days, and had been married
15 years, and lies buried at Hijlaard in N° 10."

Concerning her parents: Jentje Willems Groustra and Grietje Martens, the following occurs on this leaf:

"1828. On 2 May Grietje Martens died at the age of 67 years and 7 months and lies buried at Hijlaard.
1829. On 9 November at 2 o'clock in the night died Jentje Willems Groüstra at the age of 69 years and some months, and lies buried at Hylaard."

2° Pytie Jochemsdochter Kingma, 12 February 1831 in Baarderadeel (at Weidum), widow of Douwe Jurjenszoon Kingma.

Pytie Jochemsdochter Kingma was a daughter of Jochem Heeres, living at Oosterend and probably later merchant at Jorwerd, and Dieuke Yntes. She was born 24 January 1780 at Oosterend and baptised there 6 February following.

Her baptismal entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Oosterend reads as follows:

"In the year 1780 On 6 February was baptized the child of Jochum Heeres, mother Dieuke Yntes, born at Oosterend on 24 January, being a daughter and named Pijtie."

She died 14 May 1863 at Wirdum at the house of her stepson Haaye Korneliszoon Greijdanus, according to the following family announcement:

> " Today there died at my house PIETJE JOCHEMS KINGMA, last widow of Kornelus Ymtes Greijdanus, at the blessed age of 83 years and a good 3 months.
> Wirdum, 14 May 1863. H. K. GREIJDANUS."

Pytie Jochems Kingma and a brother of hers, Heero Jochems Kingma, probably took over their surname "Kingma" not from their father Jochem Heeres, but from their mother Dieuke Yntes, who would therefore have been a Dieuke Kingma.

Jochem Heeres was a son of Heere Jochems (of Edens) and Grietje Hobbes (of Winsum), who married at Winsum 9/23 October 1746.

Dieuke Yntes was a daughter of Ynte Klaases and Grietje Tjommes, who married in 1735, both from Weidum, in that place. Dieuke Yntes was baptized at Beers 5 September 1745, and on 1 May 1748 in the same place her brother Tjomme Yntes, who on 11 May 1814, as Tjomme Yntes Kingma, appears as witness at the marriage concluded in Baarderadeel of Heero Jochums Kingma (the brother of Pytie Jochems Kingma) with Gepke Tjerks Stellingwerf.

All this is clarified by the following diagram:

none - Heere Jochems - ⚭ Grietje Hobbes — m. Winsum 2/23 Oct. 1746. - Jochem Heeres - ⚭ Dieuke Yntes (see below) — bapt. Beers 5 Sept. 1745. - Pytie Jochems Kingma — b. Oosterend 24 January 1780. - ⚭ I Douwe Jurjens Kingma — son of Jurjen Douwes and Antje Douwes, spouses at Beers. (The family name "Kingma" is derived from the grandfather on the father's side Douwe Ymkes – see page 490 –, whose mother was called Baefke Intes Kingma). - ⚭ II Kornelis Ymtes Greidanus - Heero Jochems Kingma — b. Oosterend 18 January 1789. - ⚭ Gepke Tjerks Stellingwerf - Ynte Klaases (Kingma) - ⚭ Grietje Tjommes — m. in 1735 at Weidum - Dieuke Yntes — bapt. Beers 5 Sept. 1745. - ⚭ Jochem Heeres (see above) - Tjomme Yntes Kingma — bapt. Beers 1 May 1748. - ⚭ Antje Hessels

133 JAN YMTESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Jorwerd, 28 March 1792 · d. Jorwerd, before 4 August 1793 · son of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda

He was born at Jorwerd 28 March 1792 and baptized 1 April following, according to the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "On 1 April 1792 was baptized a little son of Mr Ymte Jacobus Greydanus and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda > spouses at Jorwert, born here on 28 March 1792 > and at the baptism named Jan."

He died before 4 August 1793, when Ymte Jacobus Greijdanus and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda again had a son Jan (N° 134 of this genealogy) baptized at Jorwerd.

---

134 JAN YMTESZOON GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

He was born at Jorwerd 28 July 1793 and baptized 4 August following, as appears from the following entry in the Dutch Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "(1793) On 4 August was baptized the little son of Mr Ymte Greijdanus and Marijke Cornelis Strikwerda, married couple at Jorwert, born here on 28 July 1793 and at the baptism named Jan."

Jan Ymteszoon Greydanus was at first a farmer at Boxum, which follows from both of the advertisements below, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of:

Tuesday 10 July 1827, N° 55:

> "With the knowledge of the gentlemen Grietman (district magistrate) and Assessoren (assessors) of Menaldumadeel, the owners of the lands situated on the Nieuwland under Boxum, as well as of those extending to the Jellumer Vaart, are convoked for Wednesday 18 July 1827, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in the inn at Boxum, in order to attempt a poldering of those lands, and if necessary to appoint Commissioners to carry this out. Boxum, 26 June 1827. K. H. KALMA. J. Y. GREIDANUS."

Tuesday 1 February 1831, N° 9:

> "To be LET by sealed notes, for the term of three years, to commence at Sint Petri and May 1831: A HOUSE, BARN, GARDEN and a good fourteen bunder (hectares) of best GREIDLAND (pasture land), all standing and situated at Boxum, at present occupied and used by J. Y. Greijdanus, from whom also the Conditions may be learned, and the notes must be sent in postage free before 14 February 1831."

The K. H. Kalma mentioned in the first advertisement is presumably Karst Hommes Kalma, an uncle of Jan Ymteszoon Greijdanus' wife (see the draft fragment-genealogy "Kalma" belonging with page 400). The poldering referred to in the advertisement appears to have been carried through; the new polder perhaps received the name of Boxumer Polder and K. H. Kalma became its Boekhouder (treasurer).

All this is derived from the following advertisement, which was placed in N° 77 of Friday 25 September 1829 of the "Leeuwarder Courant":

> "The Participants in the BOXUMER POLDER are hereby convoked to appear on Saturday the third of October 1829, at half past ten o'clock precisely in the forenoon, in the Inn at Boxum, in order then to deliberate on a draft of a new Regulation for the Polder, and all further proposals which will then be made. On behalf of the Commissioners for the Boxumer Polder, > K. H. KALMA, Boekhouder."

According to the second advertisement, Jan Ymteszoon Greijdanus thus offered his 14-bunder farm at Boxum for rent in February 1831. He seems afterwards to have become a carpenter at Boxum, for at the end of 1836 he wished, as appears from the advertisement below in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 30 December 1836, N° 105, to let his house, garden, large carpenter's shop and timber shed at Boxum:

> "TO BE LET PRIVATELY, > for the term of 3 years:
> A HOUSE, GARDEN, and a large CARPENTER'S SHOP and TIMBER SHED, standing and situated at Boxum; to be enquired after from J. Y. Greydanus there."

Jan Ymteszoon Greijdanus then became a farmer again and died as such at Boxum 5 June 1867.

His death at the age of 73 was made known by the following family announcement:

> "* * * This evening at $7^1/_2$ o'clock there died, after a protracted illness of some weeks, to the deep sorrow of me and my Children, my dear Husband and the Children's caring Father Jan IJmtes Greijdanus, in life Farmer here, at the age of nearly 74 years, of which I was permitted to be united with him in marriage for 50 years.
> Boxum, HILTJE JACOBS KALMA,
> 5 June 1867. Widow of J. IJ. G r e ij d a n u s.
> Sole notification to Friends and Acquaintances."

MARRIED:

HILTJE JACOBSDOCHTER KALMA, 17 May 1817 in Baarderadeel (at Weidum), daughter of Jacob Hommes Kalma and Jeltje Gjolts (Gjalts, Jolts) Tadema.

Hiltje Jacobsdochter Kalma was born at Boxum 30 April 1796 and baptized there on 16 May following, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Boxum:

> "(1796) On 16 May a daughter was baptized > of Jacob Hommes and Jeltje Jolts, born > on 30 April, and she was named Hiltje."

Jacob Hommes Kalma was a brother of Jetze Hommes Kalma, who was married to Antje Greydanus, N° 70 of this genealogy (see the draft fragment genealogy "Kalma" belonging with page 400).

Jacob Hommes Kalma was first established at Boxum and later at Hijlaard. At Boxum he was a farmer, as well as deacon of the Dutch Reformed congregation in 1785 and 1797. In 1799 and 1804 the farm rented by him and the pasture land rented by him at Boxum were sold at public auction, as appears from the following advertisements in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of:

Saturday 14th September A° 1799, N° 2459, The Fifth Year of Batavian Freedom:

> "* * * It is intended to sell publicly to the highest bidder, in parcels:
> A fine ZATHE and LANDS, with HOUSE and BARN and appurtenances, standing and situated at Boxum, in use by Jacob Hommes and his wife, until Petri and May 1802, for a yearly rent of 13 Carolus guilders per pondemaat, and in addition two kintjes (a measure of butter) of best grass butter, in all 81 pondematen in size, all pasture, namely:
> I. The house with 15 pondematen of fen land, charged with 6 floreen, the house being included in the purchase of these 15 pondematen, and the two kintjes of butter over and above the stipulated rent of 13 Carolus guilders per pondemaat likewise being to the advantage of this parcel.
> II. Six pondematen of hayland, charged with 2½ floreen.

> III. Four pondematen, charged with 1½ floreen.
> IV. Nine pondematen, charged with 4 floreen.
> V. Three pondematen, charged with 1½ floreen.
> VI. The terp near the house, 3 pondematen in size, charged with 2 floreen.
> VII. Three pondematen on the Nieuwland, charged with 1½ floreen.
> VIII. Twelve pondematen there, charged with 4 floreen.
> IX. Four pondematen there, charged with 1½ floreen.
> X. Ten pondematen likewise there, charged with 4 floreen.
> XI. Twelve pondematen on the Nieuwland, being the front 12, charged with 5 floreen.
> Whoever is interested should come on Saturday 28 September 1799 for the description and the raising of bids, and on 19 October following for the giving of the provisional and final Palmslag (striking of the bargain), each time at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the house of Fedde van der Veen, innkeeper in de Valk in Leeuwarden.

Saturday 4th February Aº 1804, Nº 2688:

> "Furthermore THE SAME [1] will, at the aforesaid time [2] and place [3], publicly offer for sale with strijkgeld and verhooggeld (bidding premiums):
> I .....
> II Thirteen pondematen of excellent PASTURE LAND, situated near the Boxumer Dam under Boxum, charged with 6¼ floreen, last in use by Jacob Hommes, to be taken over at the final Palmslag; having as adjoining neighbours the Sneker Vaart to the east, Douwe Gerbens to the west, Jochum Jans to the south, and the Anthony Gasthuis to the north."

In 1802 or 1803 Jacob Hommes Kalma seems to have moved from Boxum to Hijlaard, since on 4 July 1802 he still had his daughter Akke baptized at Boxum, but his son Gjalt was born at Hijlaard on 2 August 1803. He died at Hijlaard 12 September 1807 and must have been a farmer there with his own farm and his own land, as may be gathered from the two following advertisements, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of:

Saturday 9th April Aº 1808, Nº 2906:

> "N.B. It is intended to let out by private contract: the partial renewal of a farm BARN, with the MATERIALS, standing and situated at Hilaard, inhabited by the widow of Jacob Hommes Kalma. Whoever is interested should apply as soon as possible at the said place, or to Homme Dirks Kalma at Boxum, where the conditions and specifications may be seen."

Friday 2 November 1827, Nº 88:

> "The GRIETMAN (district magistrate) and ASSESSORS of BAARDERADEEL hereby summon the Reformed floreen-payers of the village of Hijlaard, in the village church there, for Monday 26 November next, at eleven o'clock in the morning, in order to deliberate and decide upon a proposal for the division and partition of the Zathe (farmstead) and Lands there, held in common between the Kerkvoogdij (church wardens) of Hijlaard and the heirs of JACOB HOMMES KALMA and JELTJE GJALTS, in their lifetime married couple there, and in use by Bouwe and Gjalt Jacobs Kalma.
> BERNH. BUMA, Vt.
> J. H. J. VAN WAGENINGEN, Secretary."

[1] The advocate Pieter Andreæ, in the Bagynestraat in Leeuwarden.

[2] 11 February 1804.

[3] At the house of Douwe Byl, outside the Wirdumer Poort near Leeuwarden.

The Homme Dirks Kalma at Boxum mentioned in the first-named advertisement is probably a son of Jacob Hommes Kalma's brother Dirk Hommes Kalma; the Bouwe and Gjalt Jacobs Kalma occurring in the second advertisement are sons of Jacob Hommes Kalma, and therefore brothers of Hiltje Jacobs Kalma.

Hiltje Jacobsdochter Kalma died at Boxum 28 July 1880 at the age of 84 years, according to the following family announcement:

> " * * * It has pleased the sovereign God of life and death to take from us our dearly beloved and caring Mother HILTJE JACOBS KALMA, Widow of Jan IJmtes Greijdanus, at the age of 84 years and 3 months. After a slow decline of strength she passed away gently and peacefully, in the hope of eternal life, which comforts us in this loss.

Line of descent: Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Jorwerd, 1 March 1796 · d. Mantgum, 24 March 1860 · son of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda · m. Ruurdje Sytzes Wiersma, 1820

He was born at Jorwerd 1 March 1796 and baptized there 6 March following, according to the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Jorwerd:

> "On 6 March 1796 was baptized the little son of M[r] Ymte J. Greydanus and Maryke C. Strikwerda, married couple at Jorwert, born here on 1 March 1796, and was named Petrus."

Petrus Ymteszoon Greydanus was, like his father and his grandfather, a Schoolmeester (schoolmaster), and indeed in the same place as his grandfather, namely Mantgum. As may be inferred from the death announcement to be included hereafter, he must already have taken up the office of Schoolmeester at Mantgum about 1817.

At Mantgum he was at the same time koster (sexton), as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 2 June 1826, N° 44:

> "With the prior knowledge of the Grietenij Administration (district government) of Baarderadeel, the Church Wardens of the village of Mantgum will have a new Register drawn up of the Graves which are to be found in the Church and in the Churchyard there, and hereby invite all owners of Graves there to report themselves in that regard before 1 July next to the Teacher and Koster PETRUS Y. GREYDANUS, at Mantgum, and to state their property to him as accurately as possible, either in person or by post-paid letters, with payment of five cents for each declaration; those owners who may neglect this will have to blame themselves for the unpleasant consequences arising therefrom.
>
> The Church Wardens aforesaid,
> B. M. MEINTEMA, Vt."

The deaconry accounts for the years 1817 up to and including 1825 in the Church Book of Mantgum and Schillaard were signed by him with "P. IJ. Greydanus".

In 1857 he sent to the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde at Leeuwarden a report in which various particulars concerning the local history of Mantgum were given.

He died at Mantgum on 24 March 1860 at the age of 64 years, as appears from the following family announcement:

> " This morning, to our deep sorrow, after a slow decline of strength, my dear Husband and the Children's and Children-in-law's caring Father PETRUS IJMTES GREIJDANUS passed away, at the age of just over 64 years, of which I was permitted to spend 40 years with him in a happy marriage, and he was active here as Teacher of the Youth for almost 43 years.

MARRIED:

RUURDJE SYTZESDOCHTER WIERSMA, 4 January 1820 in Baarderadeel (at Weidum).

Ruurdje Sytzesdochter Wiersma was born at Spannum on 26 January 1800 and baptized there on 2 February following, as appears from her baptismal entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Edens and Spannum:

> "(1800)
> On 2 February Sijtze Ruurds > had his little Daughter, born at Spannum on 26 January, > baptized and named Ruurdje, > whose mother is Trijntje Jentjes."

She was therefore a daughter of Sijtze Ruurds (Wiersma) and Trijntje Jentjes.

Ruurdje Sytzesdochter Wiersma died at Mantgum on 29 March 1861 at the age of 61 years, as appears from the family announcement below:

> " Today, to our deep sorrow, our highly esteemed and beloved Mother and Mother-in-law RUURDJE S. WIERSMA, Widow of Petrus IJ. Greijdanus, passed away, at the age of just over 61 years.

b. Jorwerd, 20 September 1798 · d. Mantgum, 27 June 1879 · daughter of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda · m. Sjoerd Klazes Bijlsma, 1818

She was born at Jorwerd on 20 September 1798 and baptized there on 30 September following, as appears from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "(1798)
> On 30 September the little Daughter of Ymte
> Greydanus and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda, married couple at Jorwert, was baptized, born here on 20 September 1798, and was named Rigtsje."

She died at the age of 80 years on 27 June 1879 at Mantgum, as appears from the following family announcement:

> " Today it pleased the Lord of life and death, very unexpectedly, to take from our side our Mother and Grandmother RIGTJE IJMTES GREIDANUS, at the age of almost 81 years.

MARRIED:

SJOERD KLAZESZOON BIJLSMA, 18 April 1818 in Baarderadeel (at Weidum).

Sjoerd Klazeszoon Bijlsma was a son of Klaas Sjoerds Bijlsma and Meintje Hendriks Colae (Collee), was born at Jorwerd 6 March 1799 and baptized there 7 April following. His baptismal record in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd 1772—1811 reads as follows:

> "1799. On 7 April was baptized the little son of > Claas Sjoerds and Meyntje H. Collee, married > couple at Jorwert, born 6 March > 1799 and is named Sjoerd."

Klaas Sjoerds Bijlsma was owner of a farm of 27 bunder (hectare) at Jorwerd, which he sold publicly at the beginning of the year 1834, as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 11 March 1834, N° 20:

> "ZATHE (farmstead) AND LANDEN (lands) AT JORWERD.
> The Griffier (clerk of court) T. Gosliga, at Jorwerd, will, in the presence of Mr. G. A. A. van Nauta, Notary residing at Rauwerd, with the offering of strijk- en verhooggelden (bidding premiums), now sell publicly: The ZATHE and LANDEN advertised some time ago, standing and situated near the hamlet of Jorwerd, in use by Klaas Sjoerds Bijlsma and wife as owners, measuring according to new survey a good 27 bunder, all Greidland (pasture land); the dwelling to be taken possession of on 12 May next and the lands immediately after the knock-down, and this in parcels indicated by notices. — The payment of the purchase price has been fixed at 12 May next, 12 November following and 12 May 1835, each time the due $^{1}/_{3}$ part, with 5 per cent on the unpaid.
> The bids on the parcels being as follows: on the 1st parcel f 635, 2nd parcel f 105, over the whole 3rd parcel f 125. 4th parcel f 140. 5th parcel f 61. 6th parcel f 62. 7th parcel f 136. 8th parcel f 75. 9th parcel f 67. 10th parcel f 103. 11th parcel f 128. 12th parcel f 152, and 13th parcel f 110. Per 36 $^{3}/_{4}$ sq. roede (square rod).
> Whoever wishes to bid, let him come on Thursday 13 March next at the final award, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Inn at Jorwerd; while it is further requested that the holders of notices of this sale hang the same up for public view."

Sjoerd Klazeszoon Bijlsma died at the age of 52 at Jorwerd on 7 October 1851.

137 AUKJEN YMTESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Jorwerd, 9 April 1801 · d. Leeuwarden, 4 April 1870 · daughter of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda · m. Pieter Pieters Kleiterp, 1818 · m. Pytter Klases Kleiterp, 1855

She was born 9 April 1801 at Jorwerd and baptized there 19 April following, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "1801 On 19 April was baptized the little daughter of Imte Jacobus > Greydanus and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda — married couple > at Jorwert, born here on 9 April 1801 and is named > Aukjen."

She died at Leeuwarden at the age of 68 on 4 April 1870, as appears from the following family announcement:

"* * * It has pleased the Lord of life and death to take from our side our dearly beloved Mother Aukje Greidanus, at the age of almost 69 years, after a long and painful suffering, in the hope of a better and blessed life.
Leeuwarden, 4 April 1870.
On behalf of the Children,
T. and A. KLEITERP.
This serving as general notice to Friends and Acquaintances."

MARRIED: 1° Pieter Pieterszoon Kleiterp 20 September 1818 in Menaldumadeel (at Menaldum).

Pieter Pieterszoon Kleiterp was born 18 October 1794 at Wieuwerd, as son of Pieter Everts and Baukje Jans, married couple at Wieuwerd, where he was baptized 23 November following, as appears from the following extract from the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Britswerd and Wieuwert (1772—1812):

> "(1794)
> On 23 November 1794 was baptized
> Pieter Pieters, son of Pieter Everts and Baukje Jans, > married couple at Wieuwert, born at Wieuwert on 18 October > 1794, having been held at the font by the father."

Pieter Pieterszoon Kleiterp was at the time of his marriage a farm labourer at Deinum and later labourer at Beers. Around 1832 Aukje Ymtesdochter Greidanus seems to have left Pieter Pieters Kleiterp and to have settled in Leeuwarden, where she formed a relationship with her later second husband, whom she could only marry after the death of her first husband. Presumably the data concerning Aukje Ymtesdochter Greidanus in the population registers of Leeuwarden around this time are not correct.

2° PYTTER KLASESZOON KLEITERP, widower of Antje Sjoukes Swart, 7 November 1855 at Leeuwarden, as widow of Pieter Pieterszoon Kleiterp.

Pytter Klaseszoon Kleiterp was a son of Klaas Pytters Kleiterp and Tjal Ydes and was born at Lutkewierum 2 and baptized 6 February 1791, as appears from the following baptismal record in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Lutkewierum:

> "1791 On 2 February 1791 there was born at Lutkewierum a son of Klaas Pytters and Tjal Ydes, married couple there, which son on 6 February 1791 was held at the font by his father and thereby named Pijtter."

In the Floreencohier (land-tax register) of 1818 and of 1828 of Baarderadeel there appears at Mantgum under N° 3, as user of a farm, property of the Burger Weeshuis at Leeuwarden, of 28 P.M., the Wed[e] Tjaltje of the late Klaas Pieters, probably the mother of Pytter Klaseszoon Kleiterp.

Pytter Klaseszoon Kleiterp, who at his marriage to Aukje Ymtesdochter Greidanus was already 64 years old, died before her, thus before 4 April 1870.

Line of descent: Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Jorwerd, 23 January 1805 · daughter of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda

She was born at Jorwerd 23 January 1805 and baptized there 3 February following, as follows from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "1805 On 3 Febr.: was baptized the little daughter of Ymte Greydanus and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda, married couple at Jorwerd — born here on 23 Jan. 1805 and is named Wikjen."

According to the death register of Baarderadeel for the years 1806—1811 she died at Jorwerd on 4 February 1811.

139 ANTJE YMTESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Jorwerd, 16 November 1809 · d. Marssum, 9 April 1899 · daughter of Ymte (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 67) and Maryke Cornelis Strikwerda · m. Heerke Alberts Jonghoff, 1827

She was born 16 November 1809 at Jorwerd and baptized there 3 Dec. following, as appears from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Jorwerd:

> "1809. On 3 Dec. was baptized the little daughter of Ymte Greydanus, and Marijke Strikwerda, married couple at Jorwert — born here on 16 Nov. 1809 and is named Antje."

She died in the Popta-Gasthuis at Marssum, at the age of 89 years, on 9 April 1899, which follows from the family announcement below:

"* * * Today there died in the Popta-Gasthuis at Marssum our dear Mother, Grandmother and Great-grandmother ANTJE IJ. GREIJDANUS, at the blessed age of over 89 years, since 1860 Widow of H. A. Jonghoff, in his life Teacher at Jorwerd.
Marssum, 9 April 1899.
D. H. JONGHOFF,
Widow of Æ. F. G e r b e n s.
Sole notice to Friends and Acquaintances."

MARRIED:

HEERKE ALBERTSZOON JONGHOFF, 15 September 1827 in Baarderadeel (at Weidum).

Heerke Albertszoon Jonghoff was a son of Albert Heerkes (Jonghoff) and Dieuwke Gjalts. He was born 2 December 1799 at Bornwerd and baptized there 5 January 1800. His baptismal entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Hiaure and Bornwird reads as follows:

"Herke was born on 2 Dec. 1799 at Bornwird and baptized on 5 Jan. 1800 at Bornwird, the father being Albert Heerkes and the mother Deuke Gjalts, married couple at Bornwird."

Albert Heerkes Jonghoff was first Schoolmaster at Bornwerd and later at Winsum, where he was also Dorprechter (village judge) (later constable) and Ontvanger der Dijksflorenen (collector of the dike floreen tax). Below follow some advertisements relating to him:

"Bataafsche Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday 23 April 1803, N° 49:

> "Anyone who has any claim upon, or owes anything to, the ESTATE of TRIENTJE TJISZES, widow of the late JOHANNIS JANS, in her lifetime shopkeeper in the Brugge Buuren at Winzum, are requested to make proper declaration or payment thereof, before or at the latest on 4 May 1803, to A. H. JONGHOFF, Dorprechter of the said village, being appointed and qualified thereto."

"Bataafsche Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday 21 July 1804, N° 87:

> "The Secretaris W. TUINHOUT intends, on Tuesday 31 July[?] 1804, in the morning precisely at 9 o'clock, at the house of LOLKE ANDRIES at Winsum, to sell by public auction and for ready money: 1 bed and bolster, pillows, blankets, 1 cabinet, 1 writing desk, 1 tea cupboard, 2 clocks, one of them with double striking work, pewter dishes, porcelain and Delftware, copper kettles, cooking pots, tables, chairs, a remainder of peat and wood, and further whatever else belongs to a good household; also market-gardener's tools, such as sacks, baskets, forks, spades, etc. — On that day there will further be sold 4 to 5 Pondematen of POTATOES and LEGUMES standing in the field, in parcels; those interested may view the furniture three days before the sale, and the potatoes daily; to be enquired of the Dorprechter A. JONGHOF at Winsum, who will point them out."

"Feuille d'Affiches, annonces et avis divers de Leuwarde Blad van aankondigingen, bekendmakingen en onderscheidene berigten van Leeuwarden" of Friday 20 December 1811:

(French) "Mr. P. Noyon, Imperial Notary, will proceed on Saturday 21 of the month of December 1811, to the final award, in the afternoon at two o'clock, at the house of the innkeeper Bauke Piers at Winsum, to the public sale of the parcels mentioned below: N.B. Six Pondematen of GRASSLAND..... The Conditions may be learned from the said Notary and from the Schoolmaster Jonghoff at Winsum, with whom bids on the parcels may also be raised."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 22 July 1836, N° 59:

"GRIETMAN (district magistrate) and ASSESSOREN (assessors) of Baarderadeel hereby summon the voting-entitled floreen-payers of the village of Winsum, for Thursday 4 August 1836, in the forenoon at eleven o'clock, in the village church there, in order to elect a new ONTVANGER of the DIJKSFLORENEN there, in place of A. H. JONGHOFF, deceased.
Grietman and Assessoren aforesaid,
W. B. BUMA
By order of the same,
J. H. J. van Wageningen."

Heerke Albertszoon Jonghoff was schoolmaster at Jorwerd. In his marriage certificate of 15 September 1827 he is already called schoolmaster, living at Jorwerd, so that he must have been the successor of his father-in-law Ymte Jacobszoon Greijdanus, who until his death on 26 January 1827 was schoolmaster at Jorwerd. Below follows another advertisement concerning him, from the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 15 August 1828, N° 66:

> "The COLLEGE of CHURCH WARDENS of the village of Jorwerd, having taken into consideration the necessity of establishing a new REGISTER of the GRAVES, hereby summons all the owners of the Graves in the Churchyard of the said village, to make declaration and > notification thereof before the first of September next, at the house of the Schoolmaster H. A. Jonghoff, at Jorwerd, with notice at the same time that such Graves concerning which no declaration has been made within the appointed time, shall fall as lawful property to the church. On behalf of the Collegie, S. O. Hogenbrug[1], Bookkeeper."

Heerke Albertszoon Jonghoff remained Schoolmaster — later called Head Teacher — at Jorwerd until his death on 4 May 1860.

His death was announced by the following family announcement:

> "JORWERD, 4 May 1860. This morning, most unexpectedly, there died > my much beloved Husband HEERKE A. JONGHOFF, for 33 years > Teacher of the youth at this place, at the age of 60 years and 5 months.
> May God support me and my only Daughter and Son-in-law in our deep > sorrow. A. IJ. GREIJDANUS, > Sole notification. Wed. H. A. J o n g h o f f."

140 AAFKE (AFKE) JOHANNESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Arend 681 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

She was born at Tjalleberd 31 August 1781 and baptized there on 9 September following, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Tjalleberd and district:

> "(1781) On the 9th of September there was baptized at Tjalbert > a daughter of Johannes Greydanus school> master in Aengwirden and Trijntje Piers, married > couple residing at Tjalbird, named Afke, > born the 31st of August 1781."

She died on 11 May 1828 at Tjalleberd at the age of 46.

MARRIED:

LAMMERT JANSZOON VOS, 22 February 1801 at Tjalleberd, as appears from the following record in the Reformed Marriage Register of Tjalleberd and district:

> "(1801) Lammert Jans Vos and Aafke Johannes Greidanus, > both of Tjallebird, banns published the 1st, 8th and 15th of February at > Tjallebird, married the 22nd of the same."

Lammert Jans Vos was thus of Tjalleberd at the time of his marriage; nothing else is known of him than that he must have died after his wife, in whose death record he is called peat contractor at Tjalleberd.

141 AUKJEN JOHANNESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Arend 681 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

She was born 26 March 1783 at Tjalleberd and baptized there 13 April following. Her baptismal record in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Tjalleberd and district 1772—1812 reads as follows:

> "1783
> on the 13th of April there was baptized at Tjalberd a daughter of Johannes > Greidanus, Schoolmaster in Ængwirden, and > Trijntje Piers, married couple residing at Tjalbird, and she is > named Aukjen,
> b. the 26th of March 1783."

She died at Oudeschoot (at that time belonging to the municipality of Knijpe) 15 December 1813.

MARRIED:

JACOB JANSZOON STOFFER, 13 December 1807 at Knijpe, which marriage is entered as follows in the Reformed Marriage Register of Knijpe 1772—1812:

> "1807 Jacob Jans from the Beneden Knype and Aukjen Jo> hannes Greydanus of 't Heerenveen were pro> claimed the first time on the 22nd of November

Jacob Janszoon Stoffer was a son of Jan Jacobs Stoffer, Master Baker in the Knijpe, and Elske Martens; he was born in de Knijpe 17 January 1782 and baptized there 3 February following, as appears from the extract below from the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Knijpe (1772—1812):

[1] Sybren Oenes Hoogenbrug, also mentioned on page 490.

> Jacob, son of Jan Jacobs and Elske Martens, married couple in de Benedenknijpe, born 17 January 1782, baptized 3 February 1782."

Jacob Janszoon Stoffer was at first Mr. Bakker (master baker) at Oudeschoot. According to the proclamatieboek (register of property sales) of Schoterland, on 7 Dec. 1808/25 Jan. 1809/8 Febr. 1809 Jacob Jans, Mr. Backer, living at Oudeschoot, bought a certain house and bakery cum annexis, newly built in the year 1807, standing and situated to the west of the Heereweg running to 't Heerenveen under or in the village of Oudeschoot, for 2000 car.gl.. And by the following deed of 14/27 January 1809 Jan Jacobs, Mr. Backer, living in de Knijpe, stood surety for his son Jacob Jans, Mr. Backer at Oudeschoot.

He remarried 8 June 1816 at Schoterland (Knijpe) Antje Tobias Huizinga and died, as a labourer, in de Beneden Knijpe 12 April 1819, at the age of 37 years.

CHILDREN:

1. Elske Jacobsdochter Stoffer, baptized at Oudeschoot 13 November 1808.
2. Trijntje Jacobsdochter Stoffer, baptized at Oudeschoot 31 March 1811.
3. Antje Jacobsdochter Stoffer, baptized at Oudeschoot 7 April 1813, of which children no particulars will follow.

142 KLAASKE JOHANNESDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Johannes 68[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Tjalleberd, 24 January 1786 · d. Oranjewoud, after 1842 · daughter of Johannes (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 68) and Trijntje Piers Swierstra (Zwierstra) · m. Gosse Gosses Posthumus, 1810

She was born 24 January 1786 at Tjalleberd and baptized there 19 February following, as appears from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Tjalleberd c.a. 1772-1812:

> "(1786)
> on 19 February there was baptized at Tjalbird a daughter of Joh. Greidanus, schoolmaster in Ængwirden, and Trijntje Piers, married couple at Tjalbird, and she is named > Klaaske
> b. 24 January 1786."

She presumably died after 1842 at Oranjewoud.

MARRIED:

GOSSE GOSSESZOON POSTHUMUS of Oudeschoot, 20 May 1810 at Oudeschoot. The relevant marriage entry in the Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Oudeschoot (1772—1810) reads as follows:

> "(1810)
> On the 6, 13 and 20 of May were proclaimed without hindrance and on that date confirmed in the state of matrimony at Oudeschoot GOSSE GOSSES
> and > KLASKE JOHANNES
> both of Oudeschoot."

Gosse Gosseszoon Posthumus was born 26 October 1777 at Sonnega, as son of Gosse Gosses and Gertjen Wijtzes. This appears from the Reformed Baptismal Register of Wolvega, in which one finds under date 7 December 1777 the baptismal entry of Gosse, son of Gosse Gosses, baptized after the death of his wife Gertjen Wijtzes of Sonnega; the child was born at Sonnega on 26 October 1777.

Gosse Gosseszoon Posthumus was a labourer at Oranjewoud near Oudeschoot, where he died at the age of 42 on 12 February 1829, leaving 5 children who are not further mentioned here.

Line of descent: Johannes 68[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Tjalleberd, 14 November 1788 · d. Oldeboorn, 17 June 1852 · son of Johannes (Jacobus') Greidanus (N° 68) and Trijntje Piers Swierstra (Zwierstra) · m. Trijntje Karstes Harsma or Haringsma, 1816

He was born 14 November 1788 at Tjalleberd and baptized there 30 November following, as appears from the deed below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Aengwirden:

> "(1788) on 30 November there was baptized at Tjalberd a son of Johannes Jacobus Greidanus, organist and schoolmaster here, and Trijntje Piers, married couple at Tjalberd, and he is named Jacob, b. 14 Nov. 1788."

485 Jacob Johanneszoon Greidanus was at first, together with Tjitte Jelmers Visser, owner of the 33-hectare cattle farm “het Hooghiem”, situated under Boornbergum on the Peemster Ee near Grouw, which farm, with the cattle and the hay, was sold publicly at the beginning of 1824, as is taken from the following advertisements in the “Leeuwarder Courant” of:

Friday 13 February 1824, N° 13:

> “Shortly, at a time and place to be determined later, there will be publicly sold:
> A FARMSTEAD and LANDS, with HOUSE and BARN, het Hooghiem named, numbered 85, measuring a good 33 hectares, under Boornbergum, situated on the Ee near Grouw, being used by J. J. GREIDANUS and T. J. VISSER as owners; to be taken over free on 12 May 1824.”

Tuesday 24 February 1824, N° 16:

> “The Notary Mr. H. CANNEGIETER, at Grouw, intends on Saturday 28 February 1824, at the provisional, and on Saturday 13 March following, at the final striking of the bargain, each time at two o'clock in the afternoon, at the house of Hantje Minnes Oudhuis, innkeeper in het Lands Welvaren at Grouw, to sell publicly by strike- and raising-money to the highest bidder:
> A splendid FARMSTEAD and LANDS, het Hooghiem named, with a HOUSE built entirely new some years ago, BARN, GARDEN, TREES and PLANTATION cum annexis, numbered 85, measuring by name and repute 33 hectares 6 sq. Rods 92 sq. Ells 70 sq. Palms of pasture land, standing and situated on the Peemster Ee under Boornbergum, being inhabited and used by J. J. Greidanus and T. J. Visser as owners; to be taken over free on 12 May 1824, and that in 13 parcels, further specified in Bills.”

Friday 9 April 1824, N° 9:

> “AUCTION SALE. There is offered for public sale by auction: 20 cows, both in calf and milking, 6 ditto heifers, 7 yearlings (among which 1 Bull), 1 black Mare, 1 six-year-old black Gelding, further about 10 cows' portions of best-won Hay, and furthermore whatever may be further offered for sale on the day of the auction.
> Whoever has an interest therein, let them come on Saturday 10 April 1824, in the morning at 9 o'clock, at the house of Jacob Johannes Greidanus and Tjitte Jelmers Visser, farmers under Boornbergum.”

Jacob Johanneszoon Greidanus seems to have farmed badly, for he died on 17 June 1852 at Oldeboorn as a lime-burner's servant. He became the progenitor of a numerous branch of mainly skippers.

MARRIED:

TRIJNTJE KARSTES- or KERSTESDOCHTER HARSMA (or HARINGSMA), 19 December 1816 in Opsterland (at Beetsterzwaag).

Trijntje Karstesdochter Harsma (or Haringsma) was born about 1798 at Nes near Oldeboorn, but in the Reformed baptismal register of Oldeboorn, under which Nes falls, her baptismal entry could not be found.

She was a daughter of Karst (Kerst) Harings Harsma (or Haringsma), farmer, and Beitske Aukes (Butstra), and died at Oldeboorn on 21 October 1845.

Line of descent: Arend 681 ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

She was born 6 January 1791 at Tjalleberd and baptized 6 February following at Aengwirden, as appears from the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Aengwirden:

> “1791 On 6 February a little daughter baptized of Johannes Jacobus
> Greidanus Schoolmaster and Organist of Aengwirden and Trijntje > Piers married couple at Tjallebird, born at Tjallebird on 6 January 1791 and > named Trijntje.”

She died at the age of 84 at Grouw on 22 February 1875.

MARRIED:

PIETER SIJTZESZOON YESTRA (IESTRA), 20 August 1842 in Idaarderadeel (at Grouw).

Pieter Sijtzeszoon Yestra was, according to his marriage certificate and his death certificate, born about 1786 at Boornbergum, where his baptismal entry could not be found. He was a skipper at Grouw and a son of Sijtze Martens Yestra and Antje Pieters. In the Floreencohieren (land-tax registers) of Boornbergum for the years 1818, 1828 and 1838 Sijtze Martens Yestra appears as the tenant of the vote-bearing zathe N° 39.

He died 13 May 1852 at Grouw at the age of 66 years.

He was born about 1781 at Harlingen, where he was a journeyman tailor.

MARRIED:

PIETJE WIJTSESDOCHTER POSTHUMUS, about 1802.

Of this couple the following children have been found in the Civil Registry of Harlingen:

1° Duuwke Baukes Fopma, born about 1804, married 11 June 1829 at Harlingen to Doeke Jans Fokkema, journeyman shoemaker at Harlingen;

2° Wijtze Baukes Fopma, born about 1810, married 18 May 1837 at Harlingen to Aafke Zeilmaker;

3° Frans Baukes Fopma, born about 1812, married 2 June 1842 at Harlingen to Froukje Hendriks Duman;

4° Jacob Baukes Fopma, born about 1819, died at Leeuwarden 11 July 1840 as a fusilier and unmarried.

5° Antje Baukes Fopma, born at Harlingen 21 December 1809 (baptized there 7 January 1810), died unmarried at Harlingen 9 May 1839; and 6° Neeltje Baukes Fopma, born about 1823, died unmarried at Harlingen 16 April 1840.

b. Jorwerd, 19 June 1796 · son of Jetze Hommes Kalma and Antje Greydanus (N° 70) · m. Fetje Sipkes Feijkema, 1818

He was born at Jorwerd 19 June 1796 and baptized there 10 July following. His baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Jorwerd (1772—1811) reads as follows:

> "1796 On 10 July was baptized the little son of Jetze
> Hommes Kalma and Antje Jacobs Greijdanus, married couple at Jorwert, born here on 19 June > 1796, and is named > Jacob."

At the time of his marriage Jacob Jetzeszoon Kalma was huisman (farmer) at Marssum; he presumably died after 1842.

MARRIED:

FETJE SIPKESDOCHTER FEIJKEMA, 31 May 1818 in Menaldumadeel (at Menaldum).

She was born 25 April 1796, as daughter of Sipke Annes Feijkema and Martjen Herkes (Goslinga), and was baptized at Bozum on 15 May of the same year, according to the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Bozum (1772—1812):

"(Day of birth) (1796)	(Day of baptism)	(Parents and Witnesses)	(Child's name)

He was born at Jorwerd on 26 April 1798 and baptized there on 17 May of the same year, as appears from the following record in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Jorwerd (1792—1811):

> "1798. On 17 May was baptized the little son of > Jetze Hommes Kalma and Antje Jacobs
> Greijdanus, married couple at Jorwert, > born here on 26 April 1798 and is > named > Bouwe."

At the time of his marriage he was huisman at Boxum; he presumably died after 1852, because in that year a B. J. Kalma is found as a member of the Municipal Council of Baarderadeel.

MARRIED:

TJITSKE NANNESDOCHTER KUPERUS (CUPERUS), 31 May 1818 in Menaldumadeel (at Menaldum).

According to the deed of notoriety submitted with her marriage certificate she had not been baptized, because her parents were Mennonites. She was born at Marssum on 2 August 1794, as daughter of Nanne Sjoerds Kuperus, farmer at Marssum, and Rimmertje Sijbes, who in the marriage certificate is named Hinke Sijbes and in her death certificate dated 7 May 1823 as well as in that of her husband dated 16 June 1837: Rindertje Sybes Veeman.

Tjitske Nannesdochter Kuperus presumably died after 1842.

According to his death certificate Bouwe Feddeszoon Poort was master baker at Franeker, where he died at the age of 46 on 6 December 1819, ward E. N. N° 24.

156 CLAAS THOMASZOON WIEGERSMA

Line of descent: Aaltje 73 ← Grijttje 41 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

His baptismal entry is recorded as follows in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Franeker (1732—1772):

> "(1771)
> On 27 February Tomas Claases, > master baker, had his child baptized, > named Claas."
> whose mother's name is Aaltje Rinses."

He will probably have died before 8 August 1773, when Thomas Klaseszoon Wiegersma and Aaltje Rinses had a daughter baptized with the name Klaaske.

157 KLAASKE THOMASDOCHTER WIEGERSMA

Line of descent: Aaltje 73 ← Grijttje 41 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

Her baptism was recorded as follows in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Franeker (1772—1812):

> "(1773)
> The month of August
> 8. A child baptized by the name of Klaaske, born at Franeker on 25 July 1773, whose father and mother are Thomas Klases and Aaltje Rinses, married couple."

She must have died before 26 March 1802 (see page 402).

158 RENSE THOMASZOON WIEGERSMA

Line of descent: Aaltje 73 ← Grijttje 41 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

He was born at Franeker 4 January 1776 and baptized there 21 January following, as appears from the entry below in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Franeker (1772—1812):

"(1776)
(The month of January).
21. Sunday. A child baptized by the name of Rense Rense born at Franeker on 4 January 1776, whose father and mother are Thomas Clases and Aaltje Renses, married couple."

He died at Franeker on the 4th of November of the year 1810, aged 34 years, living in ward 1e Noord N° 85, leaving three children.

MARRIED:

ZWAANTJE RUITENBACH, 28 June 1801 at Franeker, as appears from the following entry in the Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation of Franeker (1772—1811):

> "(June) On 14, 21, 28 June 1801 there were proclaimed here without impediment Rinze Wijgersma and Zwaantje Ruitenbach, both of this place, and they were married here on the 28th of the same month."

Zwaantje Ruitenbach, whose baptismal entry could be found neither at Franeker nor at Harlingen, died at Franeker at the age of 36 years, as widow of Rinse Wiegersma, 13 April 1813 in ward E. N. N° 85.

Line of descent: Nijs 80 ← Benedictus 42 ← Trijntie 9II ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

b. Groningen, 14 May 1778 · d. Groningen, 9 May 1843 · daughter of Nijs (Denys) (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 80) and Fiepke (Feipke) Wilts · m. Jacob Wolthuis, 1807

She was baptized at Groningen in the Nieuwe Kerk on Thursday 14 May 1778, as appears from the following entry in the Register of Baptisms kept by the Dutch Reformed congregation at Groningen:

> "Thursday (the) 14 (May) 1778 N. K.
> Pietertje dau. of Denijs Greijdanus and Fiepke Wilts
> O. Jatstr."

She died at Groningen 9 May 1843 at the age of 65 years, as appears from the following extract from the registers of the Civil Registry of Groningen:

> "On 9 May 1843 there died at Groningen Pietertje Greijdanus, aged 65 years, without occupation, born here and last having lived in the Bredegang Letter P number 194, widow of Jacob Wolthuis, daughter of the late D'Nijs Greijdanus, during his life a bookseller by occupation, and of the late Fypke Wilts, having lived here."

MARRIED:

JACOB WOLTHUIS (WOLDHUIS), about May 1807, as appears from the following entry in the register of marriage proclamations of Groningen:

> "18 April 1807: Jacob Woldhuis, present, from Veendam, > and Pietertje Greidanus, from Groningen, > on whose behalf Denys Greidanus as father."

According to the extract from his death certificate mentioned hereafter, Jacob Wolthuis must have been born at Noordbroek in 1777 or 1778 as son of Tjalling Wolthuis, later baker at Veendam, and Grietje Tebbens.

Jacob Wolthuis was at Groningen first a baker and at his death a sack-hirer.

On 19 May 1807 Jacob Wolthuis and Pietertjen Greijdanus bought from Balster Scheepvaart and Aaltjen van Slogteren, spouses, for 2654 car. guldens a house in the Nieuwe Ebbingestraat at Groningen (see Judicial Archives Groningen, Inventory N° III x 220 folio 227). The house was described as "a dwelling standing and situated on the west side of the Nieuwe Ebbingestraat, lett. A N° 59, paying yearly to the town as ground rent six gulden, having as nearest neighbours to the north H. de Jonge, to the east the street, to the south Pieter Kiel and to the west R. Nienhuis". On the signing of the deed of purchase 654 car. guldens of the purchase sum were paid, while the remaining amount of 2000 car. guldens remained as a debt, on which until repayment 4% interest had to be paid yearly; Pietertjen Greijdanus' parents acted here as sureties: D'Nijs Greijdanus and Feepke Wilts.

Jacob Wolthuis died at Groningen on 11 May 1827 at the age of 49 years, as appears from the following extract from the registers of the Civil Registry of Groningen.

> "On 11 May 1827 there died at Groningen in the Achtermuur Lett. E N° 171, Jacob Wolthuis, aged 49 years, sack-hirer, born at Noordbroek, living at Groningen, married, husband of Pietertje Greidanus, son of the late Tjalling Wolthuis, during his life a baker, and of Grietje Tebbens, without occupation, living at Veendam."

CHILD:

D'Nijs Greijdanus Wolthuis, who married Antje Hemmes van Oosten, from which marriage there were no descendants. D'Nijs Greijdanus Wolthuis was a carpenter at Groningen and died there on 11 December 1850 at the age of almost 40 years. An extract from his death certificate follows here:

> "On 11 December 1850 there died at Groningen D'Nijs Greijdanus Wolthuis, almost 40 years of age, by occupation carpenter, born here and last having lived at the Zuiderdiep E 173, widower of Antje Hemmes van Oosten, son of the late Jacob Wolthuis, during his life a baker by occupation, and of the late Pietertje Greijdanus, deceased here."

b. Groningen, 25 February 1781 · d. Groningen, 8 March 1858 · daughter of Nijs (Denys) (pseudo) Greidanus (N° 80) and Fiepke (Feipke) Wilts · m. Jacob, Hemmes Hebers, 1803

She was baptized on Sunday 25 February 1781 in the Nieuwe Kerk at Groningen, as appears from the following entry in the Register of baptisms kept by the Dutch Reformed congregation at Groningen:

> "Sund. the 25 February 1781 N. K.
> Ida, dau. of D'Nijs Greidanus and Fiepke Wiltz in the Oude Kijkintjatstr."

On 26 May 1803 Ida Greidanus in the O. Kijkintjatstr. became a member of the Dutch Reformed congregation at Groningen.

She died at Groningen on 8 March 1858 at the age of 77 years. An extract from her death certificate follows below:

> "On 8 March 1858 there died at Groningen Ida Greijdanus, 77 years old, without occupation, born here and last having lived in the Breede gang letter P. number 191[s], widow of Jacob Hemmes Hebers, daughter of the late D'Nijs Greijdanus, in his lifetime bookbinder, and of the late Feijpke Wilts, died here."

MARRIED:

JACOB, HEMMES HEBERS, 5 June 1803 at Groningen, according to the following entry in the marriage proclamation register of Groningen:

> "Saturday 21 May 1803: Jacob Hemmes Hebers, present, — > and Ida Greijdanus, both of Groningen, > pro qua Denys Greijdanus as father.
> Pursuant to apostille dated 6 May 1803.
> Married 5 June 1803."

According to the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation at Groningen, Jacob Hemmes Hebers was baptized on 30 April 1780, as son of Klaas Hebers and Geertje Hemmes.

On 19 February 1801 Jacob Hemmes Hebers, at the Vischmarkt, became a member of the Dutch Reformed congregation at Groningen.

As appears from the following extract from his death certificate, Jacob Hemmes Hebers was "bailiff at the court of first instance" at Groningen.

Jacob Hemmes Hebers and Ida Greidanus sold on 26 December 1805, as has already been reported on page 408, for 2800 car. guldens a house in the Nieuwe Boteringestraat at Groningen, to Denijs Greidanus and Fiepke Wilts (see Judicial Archives Groningen, Inventory N° III x 218, folio 184).

Jacob Hemmes Hebers died at Groningen at the age of 58 years on 23 May 1838, according to the following extract from the Groningen registers of the Civil Registry:

> "On 23 May 1838 there died at Groningen Jacob Hemmes Hebers, 58 years old, bailiff at the court of first instance at Groningen, born here and last having lived Achter de muur Lett. A., N° 161, husband of Ida Greijdanus, son of the late Klaas Hebers, in his lifetime latterly without occupation, and of the late Geertien Hemmes, having lived here."

CHILDREN.

From this marriage several children were born, who apparently all died at a young age at Groningen, except Feipke Hebers, who on 8 August 1841 at Groningen married Johannes de Vries, with which couple Ida Greidanus was living in 1850. Of the couple Johannes de Vries × Feipke Hebers there are at present still several descendants, who are chiefly settled in the city of Groningen.

Cornelia Greijdanus

Johan Michaël Bölger

According to her death announcement to be given hereafter, she died on 18 October 1828 at the age of 63 years and 21 days, so that she would thus have been born on 27 September 1765, and indeed at Leeuwarden.

She was baptized on 11 October 1765 by Ds W. Winterswijk in the Wester Kerk at Leeuwarden, according to the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Leeuwarden, in which the surname "Greidanus", as is indicated here, has been added with a small stroke, apparently in the same hand as that which wrote the rest of the text:

> "On the 11th of October 1765 there was baptized by Ds W: Winterswijk > in the Westerkerk
> GREIDANUS/
> CORNELIA... — whose Father is TAEKE CORNELIS / and mother
> GERTIE BAUKES."

She died at Franeker 18 October 1828 at the age of 63 years and 21 days, according to the following family announcement:

> " * * After an illness of barely more than eight days, our dearly beloved Mother CORNELIA GREYDANUS, Widow of JOHAN MICHAËL BÖLGER, passed away this night at half past one, at the age of 63 years and 21 days. — Most painful to us is the loss of that good, upright Mother, the last of our dear Parents, and never will the affecting moment of her death and our bereavement be erased from our hearts, which feel it so deeply.
> C. T. BÖLGER.
> F r a n e k e r, T. C. BÖLGER.
> 18 October Also in the Name of our Sisters and > 1828.* Brothers-in-law.
> The INN will for the present be continued in the usual manner."

According to a family note, she was buried at Schalsum near Franeker on 22 October 1828.

A drawn portrait of her exists, at one time in the possession of Mr. Johan Bölger, former Director of the N.V. Kloos & Zonen's Werkplaatsen, at Kinderdijk, now living at Amsterdam. A reproduction of this portrait is included with page 501/502.

MARRIED:

JOHAN MICHAËL BÖLGER, 8 January 1792 at Franeker, according to the following marriage entries:

HUWELIJKS-PROCLAMATIEBOEK (marriage proclamation register) OF THE CITY OF FRANEKER 1784—1795:

> "Appearance before the Commissioner B. Broersma > associated with the Secretary Herbell.
> 17 Dec. 1791.
> JOHAN MICHAEL BOLGER, Major of the city of > Franeker, and CORNELIA GREIJDANUS, here, > are granted their marriage proclamations by this > honourable Court. Done as above."

REFORMED MARRIAGE REGISTER OF FRANEKER:

> "(1791)
> 1792 On the 18th and 25th of December and the 1st of January 1792 > were here proclaimed without impediment > December JOHAN MICHAEL BÖLGER, Major of the > and January city of Franeker, and CORNELIA GREIJDANUS, > young unmarried woman, both here, and they were > married here on the 8th of January."

JOHAN MICHAËL BÖLGER was born 9 September 1758 at Heppenheim [1] (im Loch), Provinz Rheinhessen, Kreis Alzeij, and was baptized on 17 September following in the neighbouring Framersheim.

His baptismal record in the (German) "Protocol for the Christian Reformed Congregation at Heppenheim, begun by me Abr. Koch, minister, 1708 the 11th of November, when I entered upon the parish service" reads as follows:

> "1758.

(German) the 9th of September, the 17th of the same	JOH. MICHAËL	H. THEODOR BÖLGER, Reformed Schuldiener (school caretaker) here, and ANNA CATHARINA, his wife.	Joh: Michael, surviving unmarried son of H. Herman, former Gerichts-Verwandte (court associate) here, and Maria Barbara [2] . . . . . ."

[1] Now called Gau-Heppenheim, in order to prevent confusion with other Heppenheims.

[2] 1¼ lines illegible.

He was a son of Johan Theodor Bölger, "Schuldiener"[1] at Heppenheim (Rhein Hessen) and Anna Catharina Deforth.

In 1778 Johan Michaël Bölger took his examination as Reformed schoolmaster; as such he was registered as School-Expectant in the Eximinal Protocol of the Kur-Pfälzische consistory at Heidelberg on 15 June 1778.

On the second day of Easter 1784 he left for Franeker, probably in the company of German students, who as foreigners were then able, by obtaining "scholarships", to study at the Franeker University at very small cost. At Franeker they were received by Baron J. A. J. Rengers.

On 14 September 1791 he became a burgher of Franeker, as appears from the following entry in the Burgerboek (burghers' register) of that town:

> "Johan Michaël Bölger, born at Hippenheim in the Electoral Palatinate, has likewise been admitted as a burgher here, after having taken the oath belonging thereto in the hands of the presiding Burgomaster Bart Bouwens. Done 14 Sept. 1791."

On that same date he was appointed at Franeker: Stadsmajoor (town major), "wagtmeester" (watch master), "quartiermeester" (quartermaster) and "merktmeester" (market master), concerning which one finds the following in the "Diarum van de stad Franeker" 1771—1815, p. 51, preserved in the Municipal Archives of Franeker:

> D. P. And it was resolved on that same day that Burgomaster Nauta, by disposing of the post of merktmeester, shall not be prejudiced in his turn, but shall remain in his turn. Done 14 Sept. 1791. By order of Their Honourable Worships.
> signed I. F. M. Herbell.
> "On this day 14 September 1791 the Honourable Magistrate of this town has granted to Johan Michael Bölger here the post of Wagtmeester[2] and Majoor as well as the post of quartiermeester of this town, which offices had fallen vacant through the death of the late Cornelis Maasbach, and that upon such emoluments and profits as were enjoyed by his predecessor; and the said J. M. Bölger has taken the oath, in the hands of the presiding Burgomaster B. Bouwens, that he will discharge the aforesaid offices well and faithfully according to his instruction. Done as above.
>
> On this day 14 September 1791 Burgomaster Nauta has, with the permission of the Honourable Magistrate of this town, granted to the person of I. M. Bölger, town watch master here, the post of merktmeester here in place of Ynte Yntema — but on the express condition that he, I. M. Bölger, shall leave all the advantages and emoluments arising therefrom to the said Ynte Yntema for as long as he lives, and that during that time nothing more shall be demanded by him, I. M. Bölger, than Y. Yntema was accustomed to give to the late Majoor Cornelis Maasbach, which has been graciously accepted by Bölger, and by him, under solemn oath taken in the hands of the presiding Burgomaster B. Bouwens, it has been promised and undertaken that he will discharge the aforesaid office in all faithfulness according to the Regulation existing or still to be made concerning it. Done as above.
> Further it has been resolved that Majoor Bölger may suffice with the payment of the 600 gl. equivalent as Majoor, and shall remain exempt from the equivalent as Merktmeester, which is hereby remitted to him: but out of particular favour, without consequence for the future. Done 30 July 1792.
> (signed) I. Broersma
> By order of the same (signed) I. F. M. Herbell."

In 1793 he became Captain of the Night Watch at Franeker and in 1794 Boelgoedhouder (auctioneer of estate sales).

Because, as a supporter of the Prince, he refused to sign the declaration of the Representatives of the People of Vriesland, that he was an enemy of the stadholderly, aristocratic, one-headed government, he was dismissed from his offices on 23 May 1796. In the Resolution Book of Franeker the decision by which this was done reads as follows:

> "23 May 1796. Resolved to appoint as Majoor and Wagtmeester here Sjirk Haitsma, burgher here, in place of Johan Migchiel Bölger, who, since he has refused to sign the declaration of the Representatives of the People of Friesland, according to the publication of 11 March 1796, has been dismissed from his office; and that upon the ordinary profits and emoluments, provided that he shall be bound to pay the equivalent of 300 car.gl. to the Town Treasurer in 3 instalments, namely 100 car.gl. at once and on 23 May 1797 and 1798 each time 100 car.gl., further according to the Instruction existing thereof."

N° 3043 of the Telting Archive further contains: "Notes kept of the persons who made difficulties about signing the declaration required by Publication of the Representatives of the People of Friesland dated 11 March 1796 and further missive of 15 March 1796", on which appear among others: Adam Lentz, member of the Court, Dr. Rudolf Oostenbroek Nauta[1], J. M. Bölger, town Wagtmeester.

[1] Caretaker of a school.

[2] Post of watch master.

The Stadsmajoor (town major) Johan Michaël Bölger thus shows himself here to be a true Orangist, one of the Prince's supporters of those days. He even sacrificed his position for his conviction. He shared this fate among others with the member of the Franeker Vroedschap (town council): Jhr. L. J. J. Rengers, who in 1792 acted as his surety, as appears from the following entry in the Hypotheekboek (mortgage register) of Franeker, and who was dismissed not only as member of the Vroedschap, but even as Kerkvoogd (church warden) at Franeker:

> "13 May 1792 (registered 14 May 1796).
> Johan Michael Bölger, Major of the town of Franeker, declare that I truly owe to Mr. Gellius Tamminga, Reigning Burgomaster of the town of Franeker, the sum of 300 car.gl. (of XX stuivers each) on account of money advanced, received to my satisfaction, wherefore I, waiving the plea of money not counted out, undertake to repay the above-mentioned 300 car. guldens in hard coin and not with national bonds upon first demand, and moreover 3 gl. 5 stuivers as interest yearly without any deduction, and further yearly in reduction of the said capital 25 car.gl., and should I, the debtor, come to enjoy the revenues of the Merktmeester's post (market master) clear without payment, then 50 gulden a year until full redemption.

— For the greater security of the creditor I, Jr. L. J. J. Rengers, stand as true surety for the above-named debtor.
* (signed) J. M. Bölger (signed) L. J. J. Rengers."*

Soon after his dismissal the inn "het Heeren Logement" on the Voorstraat at Franeker came up for sale, as appears from the following advertisement, placed in the "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" of 5 October 1796, N° 2056, The second Year of Batavian Liberty:

"The Advocate P. Adama, will on Thursday 6 October 1796, in the afternoon precisely at two o'clock, at the final knock-down, at the house of the Widow Nicolaas Sjoeck at Franeker, offer for Sale:
An excellent House and Inn (called het Heeren Logement), standing on the Voorstraat there, free to take possession 14 days after the Final knock-down. Whereon has been bid 4000 g.gls."

As appears from the following entry in the Protocolboek of Franeker (p. 76 verso), the Logement was purchased for 4000 g.gls by Johan Michaël Bölger:

"13 October 1796. Maria Doré, Widow of the late Nicolaas Soek, in his lifetime innkeeper at 't Heeren Logement at Franeker, for myself and as administratrix of my late husband's estate, declare hereby to have sold and conveyed in ownership to Johan Michaël Bolger, former Major of the town of Franeker and residing there, my house and inn called 't Heeren Logement, together with coach house, stabling and bakehouse, garden and further appurtenances (not including therein however the summer house and dovecote in the garden), standing and situated on the corner of the Voorstraat at Franeker, last inhabited by myself as owner, free of ground rent and to be taken possession of on the 21st of October next free of lease, further with actions, burdens, servitudes and rights as of old, having to the East Professor H. Cannegieter, to the South and West the street and to the North the widow of Gerke Feddis[2] as neighbours, and this for a sum of 4000 ggls (of 28 stuivers each) to be paid in two instalments, namely on the first of February 1797 and the first of May 1797, each time the just half."

The purchase price, considerable for those days, could not be paid by Johan Michaël Bölger; he remained owing the purchase sum of 4000 g.gls to Maria Dorée, Wid. of Nicolaas Soeck, borrowed the costs falling on the purchase etc. of 600 car.gl. from Tjeerd Banga, wine merchant at Franeker, and had to pay to Johan Philip Dumont, innkeeper at Leeuwarden, 500 car.gl. as "the remainder of a larger sum according to an agreement made", whereby Dumont renounced his right, by virtue of blood relationship, to "niaeren" (exercise the right of pre-emption) the Heerenlogement purchased by Bölger.

All this is drawn from the Franeker Hypotheekboeken, in which the following is recorded:

"13 October 1796 (registered 4 July 1800). Johan Michael Bölger, former major of the town of Franeker and residing there, declare that I owe to Maria Doree, widow of the late Nicolaas Soeck, in his lifetime innkeeper at 't Heerenlogement at Franeker, for herself and as administratrix of her late husband's estate, a sum of 4000 g.gl. (of 28 stuivers each) on account of the purchase of a house and inn called 't Heerenlogement, together with coach house, stabling, bakehouse, garden and further appurtenances, standing and situated on the corner of the Voorstraat within Franeker, and there shall also be taken over by me (Bölger) the loose goods present in the house at the valuation of two impartial persons.

[1] Also mentioned on page 428 in the "Album Amicorum" of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus.

[2] On the following page called the Widow Gerke Rost.

Tjeerd Banga, wine merchant at Franeker, stands surety for the debtor."
According to an endorsement, there was received from Tjeerd Banga on 29 January and 15 May 1797 respectively 2800 car.gl. (first instalment) and 2595 car.gl. 2 strs 8 penn. (second or last instalment).
Further J. M. Bölger promises to pay his lawful creditor Tjeerd Banga an interest of 4%.; "29 May 1797 (registered 27 January 1800). Johan Michael Bölger, logement keeper at Franeker, and Cornelia Greidanus, married couple, hereby declare that they are duly indebted to Mr. Tjeerd Banga, wine merchant in the said town, in a sum of 600 car.gl. (of 20 sts each) on account of money advanced for the legal costs paid on our behalf for the house and Heerenlogement we bought, and interest on account of the money advanced on our behalf for the payment of the 1st instalment of the purchase price of the same house, with in addition 3 like guilders per cent interest per year.
* (signed) J. M. Bölger (signed) Cornelia Bölger";
"26 November 1799 (registered 18 February 1801). Johan Michael Bölger, logement keeper at Franeker, at present present at Leeuwarden, acknowledges that he is duly indebted to Johan Philip Dumont, logement keeper at Leeuwarden, in a sum of 500 car.gl. (at 20 strs each) as the remainder of a larger sum according to an agreement made, on account of J. P. Dumont having refrained from claiming by right of pre-emption the house I bought at Franeker, to which he was otherwise entitled by virtue of kinship; — to be paid in two instalments, namely on 2 Nov. 1798 and 12 Nov. 1799, each time one half. (signed) J. M. Bölger.
On 26 November 1799 the debtor undertakes to pay off 50 car.gl. every year on 1 August, beginning 1 August 1800, and to pay 4% interest.
Below is stated:
Received hereon in part payment on 1 August 1800 the sum of 50 car.gl., besides 15.— in interest, so that up to 12 Nov. 1800 there remained still owing in Interest 5.—.—."*

Johan Michaël Bölger remained keeper of "het Heerenlogement" at Franeker until his death. After his death on 17 April 1826 the running of "het Heerenlogement" was continued by his widow Cornelia Greijdanus. According to the advertisements below in the "Leeuwarder Courant", the logement was to be sold publicly at the beginning of 1827, which sale however had no result.

"Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Friday 2 February 1827, N° 10:

"The Notaries I. TELTING and A. STINSTRA at Franeker offer for public sale to the highest bidder: The considerable and from of old renowned HEEREN LOGEMENT at Franeker, in ward t.w. no. 53, as it was in its time conducted by the late Mr. J. M. BÖLGER, and to this day by his widow, with the best success, and which on 12 May 1827 is free for the purchaser to take possession of; consisting of 12 rooms, both large and smaller, all convenient and well appointed, 3 spacious provision rooms, a large cellar, a commodious kitchen, bakehouse and oven, a new coach house and > carriage house and stabling for 50 horses, peat and hay loft, bleaching field, garden and all further conveniences. Apart from the ordinary passing trade, this logement at present has a daily open table of 20 persons; one may also count on a number of dinners and meals of importance taking place from time to time, public auctions, concerts, parties and meetings, so that the business, kept up on its present footing, yields an ample living. The provisional award is fixed for Thursday 22 February 1827, and the definitive one for 8 March following, each time at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, to be held in the said logement at Franeker, while the conditions of sale may in the meantime be learned from the Notaries."

"Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Friday 2 March 1827, N° 18:

> "The Notaries TELTING and STINSTRA at Franeker will, on Thursday 22 March 1827, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at the final palmslag (final knock-down of an auction), to be held in the logement mentioned hereafter, offer for public sale to the highest bidder: The HEEREN LOGEMENT with STABLING, COACH HOUSE and further appurtenances, standing in ward T. W no. 53, within Franeker, at present inhabited by the widow Bölger, and to be taken possession of on 12 May 1827; more fully described in handbills and on conditions of sale to be learned from the Notaries.
> On which a bid has been made of f 5500:00."

Concerning this auction one finds in the archive of Notaris Stinstra at Franeker:

> that at the provisional auction dated 22 February 1827 and at the final auction dated 22 March 1827 there was offered for sale by Cornelia Greidanus, widow of Johan Michael Bolger, logement keeper living at Franeker, as owner of one half; and Taeke Cornelis Theodoor Bolger, deurwaarder (bailiff) at the Vredegerecht (Justice of the Peace court) of the canton Franeker[1], and /Carel Cornelis Theodoor Bolger, surgeon and man-midwife, both living at Franeker, the first-named Bolger, spouse of Dirk Betlem, lithographic printer living at Amsterdam, and of his sister Anna Louisa Bolger, spouse of Gerrit Meijnema, sailmaker at Zaandijk: The from of old renowned Logement called the Heerenlogement, consisting of various large and smaller rooms, provision rooms, kitchens, bakehouse, oven, cellar, coach and carriage house, stabling, bleaching field, garden and yard, with the fittings and conveniences present in all of this and whatever further belongs to it: the widow Oostenbroek Nauta to the East, the street to the South and West, and the widow Gerke Rost and Ysbrand Pieters de Vries to the North. For a sum of 175 g.l. there could be taken over specially designated movable goods, present In the large front room; In the passage; In the beer and wine cellar; On the Cellars; Room, In the new guest rooms and hall; In the servants' room; In the copper passage and provision room; In the Hall; In the large upper rooms; In the kitchen; In the gallery, In the bakehouse, In the stable and in the so-called little bedroom and Old Room.

At the provisional auction Johannes Jans Timmer, carpenter at Tzum, was the highest bidder with f 5500.—. This bid was not raised at the final auction and therefore the property was then withheld.

By deed dated 16 October 1828, present in the Archive of notary I. Telting at Franeker, the Heerenlogement was however sold by the above-mentioned owners to Lubartus Westendorp, innkeeper at Kampen, for f 6000.— (including the movable goods). In this deed the property sold was described as a spacious dwelling, bleaching field and yard, large stabling and coach house. As appears from the end of the deed, Cornelia Greijdanus had herself excused with regard to the signing of the deed; "on account of illness and the exhaustion and fatigue accompanying it" she declared that she was unable to write. As we have seen, she indeed died 2 days later.

Concerning the transfer of the Heerenlogement the following advertisement also appeared in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 28 November 1828, N° 96:

> "The surviving children of the late Weduwe J. M. Bölger, having lived in the Heeren Logement at Franeker, make known that the aforesaid Heeren Logement has been transferred by sale to Mr. LUBARTUS WESTENDORP, of Kampen. They hereby thank all the good patrons of their late Parents for the favour always shown, and most kindly recommend the said Successor anew to everyone's favour.
>
> The undersigned LUBARTUS WESTENDORP, having become owner by purchase of the Heeren Logement at Franeker, lately run by Mrs. the Widow J. M. Bölger, has the honour of kindly recommending himself therewith to everyone's favour, reckoning from the 1 December 1828; he promises to do everything that may serve for good service and treatment, and as far as possible, on every occasion, to follow that manner of serving and treating by which his predecessors have always been able to earn everyone's approval and satisfaction.
> Franeker, the 24 November 1828. L. WESTENDORP."

As has already been stated in the advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of 2 February 1827, included on the preceding page, there were held at Johan Michaël Bölger's in the Heerenlogement at Franeker: dinners, meals, public auctions, concerts, parties and meetings. In the "Leeuwarder Courant" one indeed finds, in the period concerned, more than a hundred advertisements regarding auctions, contract lettings, votings, meetings etc. to be held at the Castelein J. M. Bölger's in the Heerenlogement at Franeker, and applications to be made to him, from which the conclusion may be drawn that the Heerenlogement in that time must have been a well-patronized business. Some of those advertisements may find a place here:

"Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" of the 23 November 1796, N° 2063, the Second Year of Batavian Liberty:

> "The Secretary Dr. Cornelis Scheltema, will tomorrow, Thursday the 24 November 1796, in the > Franeker, 19 June 1810. J. COOPMANS."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 8 September 1820, Nº 72:

> "The members of the Netherlands Bible Society in Franeker, Franekeradeel, 't Bildt and Barradeel, forming the fourth District of the Frisian Division of the same, are requested to appear at the usual annual Meeting, which will now be held on Tuesday next the 12th of September, in the forenoon at 10 o'clock, at the house of Mr. Bölger, in the Heeren Logement at Franeker.
> Franeker, the W. ZIMMERMANN.
> 4 September 1820. Secretary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 5 June 1821, Nº 45:

> “)o( )o(The Undersigned hereby make known to their Patrons and to all who choose to make use of it, that as long as the Passage for Carriages and Horses through the Noorder Poort at Franeker shall be blocked, their Stabling and housing of Horses and Carriages has been arranged in the so-called Rode Schuur, outside the Noorderpoort, where this is visible on a Board. Good Hay & Grass and prompt attendance will be provided there.
> Franeker
> 2 June 1821. J. M. Bölger, in the Heeren Logement
> Ysbrand Pieters de Vries, Kastelein in the inn het Wagentje.”

According to the descriptions given above, “het Heerenlogement” was situated on the corner of the Voorstraat, with the street to the South and to the West, from which it follows that it stood on the corner of the Voorstraat and the Sjaerdemastraat, diagonally opposite “de Bogt van Gunè”, one of the oldest inns of the town.

[1] Family name: Bosch.

At present “het Heerenlogement” no longer exists in Franeker. The former inn, which appears to have had one upper floor, is now a dwelling house, numbered 82, with two storeys and an attic storey. That “het Heerenlogement” will have had only one upper floor may be inferred from a steel engraving of a view of the town of Franeker, occurring in the work of J. L. Terwen, Het Koningrijk der Nederlanden, G. B. van Goor at Gouda 1858—62. — For this engraving, after a drawing by L. Rohbock, gives a view of the Voorstraat, — then still a canal with a street on either side —, with on the corner of the Voorstraat and the Sjaerdemastraat a house of one upper floor (in the foreground one sees the land on which the former Sjaerdemaslot stood, the so-called Sternse Slotland — see page 98, note 4 —).

Johan Michaël Bölger was in 1814, upon the establishment of the new government of the Kingdom of the Netherlands, restored to his former office of Stadsmajoor (town major) at Franeker. He appears at the same time to have been appointed bailiff at the Justice of the Peace Court of the Canton of Franeker. Both appear from the following entry in the Resolutieboek (book of resolutions) of Franeker:

> “Thursday 11 July 1816. A letter having been read from the Governor of this province of the 4th of this month, Division of Finance N° 383, serving as a covering letter for a memorandum from J. M. Bolger, Stads Majoor and at the same time bailiff at the Justice of the Peace Court here, in which he requests the aforesaid Governor to maintain him in the possession of both posts, with an invitation to provide His Honour, upon return of the said memorandum, with a report and considerations on its contents.
> Taking into account the slight service which the Government of this town has had, and also could have had, from Bölger as Stadsmajoor during the period from his reappointment in the year 1814 up to this moment, on account of his occupations as bailiff at the Justice of the Peace Court. And it having been considered that these two posts, on account of their directly opposing tendencies, can never be properly discharged by one and the same person.
> It has been resolved to reply to the aforesaid Governor with the necessary motives, that this assembly is of the opinion that the posts of Stadsmajoor and of bailiff at the Justice of the Peace Court cannot be united in one person.”

On 30 October 1816 the Governor of the Province decided that J. M. Bölger had to relinquish one of his two posts; at first Bölger seems then to have relinquished the post of bailiff at the Justice of the Peace Court, so that he remained Stadsmajoor; later he was again bailiff at that court, and finally once more Stadsmajoor, in which capacity he also died.

The above is based on the following entries in the Franeker Resolutieboek:

> “Saturday, the 23 November 1816. Communication of the letter of the Governor of this Province of the 30 October last, Division of Finance N° 614, in which His Honour, upon the memorandum of J. M. Bölger, concerning which the Council deliberated in the meeting of the 11 July last, has resolved to notify the aforesaid Bölger that, since he, holding two posts, falls entirely within the terms of the Royal decree of the 15 February 1815, he will have to relinquish one of them, unless it should please His Majesty to grant him, upon his special request, the retention of both those posts.”
> “Friday, 27 December 1816. The following municipal officials have taken their oath in the hands of the President Burgomaster, each in accordance with his own instruction, namely: Sjierk Haitsma, as Town messenger and Philippus Salverda as Town messenger and at the same time also as Guard- and Market-master; Johan Michael Bölger as Stads Majoor, etc.”
> “Tuesday 29 June 22 May 1819. A letter has been read from the Governor of this province of 7 Mai last, 2nd Bureau N° 389, in which it is communicated that for a considerable time J. M. Bolger, formerly Majoor at Franeker and now bailiff at the Justice of the Peace Court of the Canton of Franeker, has requested by petition that payment be made to him and to his assistants, either by the State or by the municipality, of f 300.75, being the costs, salaries and fees earned and expended by him in arresting, keeping in custody and maintaining prisoners, during the time that there was as yet no Gendarmerie stationed at Franeker. Since these costs are not paid by the State, the Governor suggests requesting authorisation from the Deputy States to pay these costs out of the fund for unforeseen expenditure of the municipal budget for the year 1819, of which the share for the municipality of Franeker of the Canton, calculated according to the population, will amount to f 111.47.
> The said authorisation requested from the Deputy States and at the same time declarations to the sum of f 1955—8—10 submitted to the Governor, on account of expenditure made at the time by the Town in the service of the aforesaid Justice of the Peace Court and of the Gendarmerie under French rule; with the request that these declarations likewise be apportioned over the municipalities of the Canton.”
> “Monday, 4 February 1822. A petition has been read from J. M. Bölger, Stads Majoor here, dated

> today's date, addressed to Their Honourable Worships the Councillors of the City of Franeker, that there is still due to him 226 gl. 70 ct, on account of food and drink supplied by order of the Burgomasters of Franeker to various prisoners, as well as the keeping and guarding of the same by his subordinate assistants, during the years 1813, 1814 and 1815, as appears from the specification available at the Secretary's office of this City.
> That although (as the Petitioner has been informed) the payment of these moneys has been ordered by Their Honourable Worships the Deputed

> States of Friesland and the necessary authorisation has long since been granted, this is not being carried out; requesting that this specification, which has remained unpaid for so long, may at last and speedily be settled.
> The Petition held over without advice, until the decision of the Deputed States concerning the petition earlier submitted to Their Honourable Worships by the Petitioner Bölger shall have been received."

In the Municipal Archive of Franeker, for instance in the Receivers' accounts, the name J. M. Bölger is repeatedly found as Stadsmajoor (city major), Wagtmeester (watch-master), Quartiermeester (quartermaster) and Castelein (innkeeper). In N° 3194 of the Telting Archive the following is found in an appendix to the budget of 1811:

> (French) " The costs of administration.
> the salary of the Major & Executor (first Sergeant of Justice and Police) > for the past months of January and February . . . . . 50—..—.."

From this it appears that the salary of Johan Michaël Bölger as Stadsmajoor of Franeker therefore amounted to f 300 per year.

According to the family announcement below, Johan Michaël Bölger died at Franeker on 17 April 1826, where he was buried on the 21st of the same month in the Martinikerk:

> " * + * Today, at half past ten in the morning, after a long indisposition, and after a severe illness of only six days, my dear Husband, JOHAN MICHAËL BÖLGER, in life Innkeeper and Stadsmajoor here, died at the age of 67 years and 7 months. — As my years advance, this blow strikes me all the more keenly, and I weep, with our children and children-in-law, bitter tears over the loss of the beloved Deceased; his memory will always remain a blessing with us. CORNELIA GREYDANUS, > F r a n e k e r, Widow of J. M. Bölger.
> 17 April Also on behalf of our children and > 1826. children-in-law.
> NB. The Logement will provisionally continue on its present footing."

A drawn portrait of him exists, formerly in the possession of Mr. Johan Bölger, former Director of the N.V. Kloos & Zonen's Werkplaatsen, at Kinderdijk, now living at Amsterdam. A reproduction of this portrait follows hereafter.

After the death of the couple Bölger × Greijdanus, the children also sold the household effects of "het Heerenlogement" by public auction, as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the Supplement to the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 24 April 1829, N° 33:

> "HOUSEHOLD SALE. The surviving Children of the late Mrs. the Widow J. M. BÖLGER, at Franeker, offer, before the Notaries ISAAC TELTING and Mr. A. STINSTRA, for public sale: FURNITURE, HOUSEHOLD GOODS and IMPLEMENTS, consisting of: a Cabinet, Chests of drawers, Cupboards, Tables, Chairs, Mirrors, Clock, many Copper, Pewter and Tin wares and Kitchen utensils; furthermore various Beds, Blankets, Pillows, Bedsteads with their Hangings, Bed- and Window curtains, Mattresses, etc.; a quantity of English Earthenware and Glassware, Dinner services, Porcelain and Tea ware, Table- and Bed linen, and whatever more shall be put up, on Monday 27 April 1829, in the morning at 9 o'clock, and the following days, in het Heeren Logement, at Franeker."

According to a deed d.d. 27/30 April 1829 in the Archive of Notary A. Stinstra at Franeker, the sale yielded in total the sum of f 2004.20.

On various occasions the buyer was: Johannes Numan, the husband of Cornelia Greijdanus' sister: Johanna Greijdanus (N° 164 of this genealogy)

CHILDREN:

1. Carel Theodoor Bölger, who follows under number: 253.
2. Getje Bölger, who follows under number: 254.
3. Taeke Cornelius Bölger, who follows under number: 255.
4. Anna Catharina Bölger, who follows under number: 256.
5. Anna Louisa Bölger, who follows under number: 257.

162 SIJTSE GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44II ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

His baptismal record in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Leeuwarden reads as follows:

> "/On 4 November 1767 was baptized by Ds H: Sijpkens
> in the Jacobinerkerk/:
> Sijtse... — whose father is Taecke Cornelis, and mother
> Grietie Baukes."

He must have died before 7 December 1781, when Taecke Cornelis and Gertie Baukes again had a son Sytze baptized at Leeuwarden (N° 167 of this genealogy).

163 WIKJE GREIJDANUS

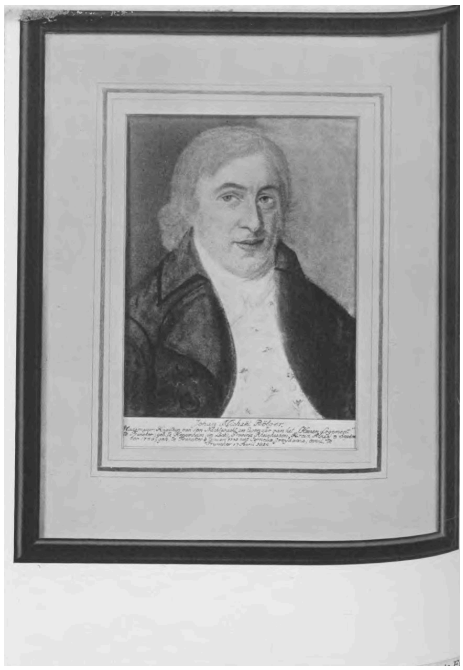
Line of descent: Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44[II] ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

She was baptized on 6 June 1770 in the Jacobinerkerk at Leeuwarden, as appears from the entry below in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Leeuwarden:

> "/On 6 June 1770 was baptized by D[s] M: van Marum, Minister at Embden, in the Jacobinerkerk/: Wikje... — whose father is Taecke Cornelis and mother Gertie Baukes."

She died at Leeuwarden 31 August 1823. In her death record she is entered as being 52 years old, by occupation tradeswoman, born and living at Leeuwarden, and daughter of Tæke Greidanus and Gertje Assewee. She died in the premises N° 94 of ward Letter F.

Drawn portrait of Cornelia Greijdanus, wife of Johan Michaël Bölger (see page 494) (reduced).



[the handwritten inscription on the drawing is largely illegible at this resolution; the first line reads "Johan Michaël Bölger." and the last line ends "Franeker 17 April 1826.", the intervening lines mentioning "het Heeren Logement" at Franeker, Regensburg and Cornelia Greydanus are [illegible] in detail]

MARRIED:

DAVID NIJKAM (NIEKAM, NYEKAM, NYKUM, NIJKAMP), 5 November 1801 in the Galileërkerk at Leeuwarden, as appears from the following extract from the Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden 1789—1809 p. 46:

> "David Nijkam and Wikje Gordanus, both here, > had their marriage banns proclaimed the first time > on 18 October 1801, the second time > on the 25th ditto, the third time on 1 November > following. And they were joined in marriage on the 5th ditto in the evening in the > Galileër church by D[s]
> N. Brink."

From the following substance of the birth record of his son Cornelis in the birth register of Leeuwarden it appears that David Nijkam, of whom no baptismal record could be found, must have been born in 1755 or 1756 and that he was in the service of His Imperial and Royal Majesty as coastal gunner:

> "On 3 July 1813 it was declared that on 28 June 1813, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at the house in the Groote Kerkstraat, ward F N° 94, was born: Cornelis of Wikje Gredanus, having no occupation, living in ward F N° 94, wife of David Nijkamp, aged 47 years, in the service of His Imperial and Royal Majesty as coastal gunner." The witnesses acting at this record were: Taeke Gredanus, aged 73 years, by occupation peat measurer, living ward F N° 95 and Sipke Oudkerk, aged 64 years, carpenter, living ward F N° 93, of which witnesses Taeke Gredanus declared that he could not write. The witnesses were thus the two neighbours, one of whom was the father-in-law of David Nijkam.

In the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of Leeuwarden for the year 1805 David Nijkam is still found as co-occupant of the premises Noord Oldehoofster Espel N° 106 — which will be the same as the later ward F N[os] 94 and 95 in the Groote Kerkstraat — beside the owner and co-occupant Taeke Cornelis (Greidanus). The family name is here recorded as "Nykum."

A son born at Leeuwarden on 11 November 1806 to David Nijkam and Wikje Taeckes Greidanus and baptized there on 23 November following: Taecke Nijkam, died 8 August 1826 at Den Helder, unmarried, aged 19 years, as a fusilier. By reason of his domicile (place of residence of his father or guardian), the death record was also entered at Leeuwarden in the Registers of the Civil Registry. Apparently at his death his father was still living, or at least his death was not yet assumed at that time.

In a marriage record found at Harlingen dated 15 May 1828 of Saake Baukes Tolsma, aged 24 years, merchant, born in the grietenije of Barradeel, living at Harlingen, and David Nijkam's daughter Barbera Nyekam, aged 23 years (she was born at Leeuwarden 5 July 1804 as daughter of David Niekam), it is noted concerning that daughter that she was: "daughter of full age of David Nijekam, absent or deceased, as appears from a certificate of notoriety, drawn up before the Justice of the Peace of the Canton of Harlingen on the 1st of this month, and of Wikje Greidanus, in her lifetime a merchant woman at Leeuwarden, who died there on 31 August 1823, her grandparents on both sides also being deceased."

So at that time it was not known whether David Nijkam was still alive or not, which, as he was a gunner, may be connected with the Napoleonic campaign to Russia and the battles of that period. Presumably he was already absent before the death of his wife on 31 August 1823, which is why she, as a merchant woman, had to provide for her own upkeep.

164 JOHANNA (JOANNA) GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44[II] ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

She was born at Leeuwarden 12 December 1772 and baptized there on 27 December following in the Jacobinerkerk by Ds. Hend. Sijpkens, as derived from the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Leeuwarden:

> "/On 27 December 1772 was baptized by Ds. Hend. Sijpkens
> in the Jacobiner Kerk/:
> Johanna — Born on 12 December 1772. Whose father is > Taecke Cornelis, and mother Gertie Baukes."

She died at Harlingen on 4 September 1849 at the age of 76 years.

MARRIED:

JOHANNES KAREL/CAREL/ZOON NUMAN (NIEUMAN), about 1803. The place and date of this marriage are unknown; the marriage must however have been contracted about 1803, because from the following death announcement of Johannes Karelszoon Numan it appears that at his death on 28 July 1841 he had been married 38 years.

Johannes Karelszoon Numan was born 10 June 1772 in Noorder-Drachten and baptized at Drachten on 28 June following, as son of Carel Carels Nieuman and Stijntje Jans. His baptismal entry in the Dutch Reformed baptismal register of Drachten (1772—1812) reads as follows:

> "On the 28th ditto (June) was baptized
> Johannes the child of Carel Carels Nieuman and Stijntje > Jans born on 10 June 1772 in N. D.[1]"

Johannes Karelszoon Numan was skipper on the revenue vessel stationed at den Abt, that is a sandbank in the Wad between Barradeel and Terschelling. He apparently lived, however, at Harlingen, where his name occurs for the first time in the Reëelcohier (real-estate tax register) of the year 1803, 1st town quarter N° 103, and where he, according to the following family announcement, died on 28 July 1841 at the age of 69 years:

> " * * * After a lengthy illness there died today, at the age of > more than 69 years, after a marriage of 38 years, my beloved husband > Johannes Karels Numan, former skipper on the revenue vessel, > stationed at den Abt.
> Harlingen JOHANNA GREIJDANUS,
> 28 July 1841. Widow of J. K. Numan."

According to the civil registry of Harlingen, he died in the premises Wijk A N° 42.

Children of the couple Numan × Greijdanus are not known; very probably the couple had no children, which would then have led to a son of Johanna Greijdanus' brother Sijtse Greijdanus (N° 167 of this genealogy) being baptized with the names Johannes Numan (N° 263 of this genealogy), which names have been preserved in this branch of the family down to the present day.

165 GERTIE (GEERTJE, GRIETJE) GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44[II] ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1[II]

She was born at Leeuwarden 27 September 1775 and baptized there on 13 October following in the Westerkerk by Ds. M. van Marum, minister at Dokkum.

This is derived from her baptismal record given below, occurring in the Reformed baptismal register of Leeuwarden:

> "/On 13 October 1775 was baptized by Ds. M: van Marum > minister at Dockum in the Westerkerk/:
> Gertie — Born on 27 September 1775 whose father > is Taecke Cornelis, and mother Gertie Baukes."

[1] Noorder-Dragten.

According to the "Doodregister" (death register) of Leeuwarden dated 11 December 1807, she died as Geertje Greidanus on 10 December 1807 in Droevendal at the age of 30, leaving her husband Hendrik Grasman, who, according to what follows, did not bear the surname Grasman, but Emmelkamp (or Emmerkamp), and married for the second time with Foekje Grasman; a clear proof of how oddly people in that time muddled about with surnames.

MARRIED:

HENDRIK ALBERTS (EMMELKAMP), according to the Reformed marriage register of Leeuwarden (1798—1809) there in the Galileërkerk 24 May 1807, as appears from the following entry:

> "Hendrik Alberts, and Geertje Gardanüs, both of this place,
> had their marriage banns proclaimed the first time > on the 10th of May 1807, the second time on the 17th, the third time > on the 24th of the same, and were that same afternoon in the Galileërkerk > confirmed in their marriage by D^{s} H. Kuipers."

Hendrik Alberts (Emmelkamp) was born 24 September 1774 and baptized on 26 Oct. thereafter in the Jacobiner Kerk at Leeuwarden, as son of Albert Hendriks (Emmelkamp) and Janke Rienks, as appears from the following baptismal entry in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Leeuwarden (1772—1780):

> "/On the 26th of October 1774 was baptized by D^{s} I. H. Schrader in the > Jacobinerkerk/:
> Hendrik, born the 24th of September 1774, whose > father is Albert Hendriks and mother
> Janke Rienks."

Hendrik Alberts (Emmelkamp) was a peat carrier at Leeuwarden and his father Albert Hendriks Emmelkamp a drayman there, as is stated in the entry dated 5/31 May/14 June 1812 in the registers of the Civil Registry of Leeuwarden of the following 2nd marriage of Hendrik Alberts Emmelkamp with Foekje Grasman:

> "Hendrik Alberts Emmelkamp, widower of Grietje Greidanus, aged 37 years, peat carrier, > born and residing at Leeuwarden, of full age and son of Albert Hendriks Emmelkamp, by occupation > drayman, and of Janke Rienks, — and Foekje Grasman, aged 32 years, seamstress, daughter of full age of > Hendrik Harmanus Grasman and Johanna Berends, both deceased at Leeuwarden."

On 19 September 1817 there died at Leeuwarden at the age of 43 years: Hendrik Alberts, husband of Foekje Grasman.

166 TJEMKJE GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44II ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

She was born at Leeuwarden 23 September 1778 and baptized there on 9 October thereafter in the Westerkerk by D^{s} A. Snethlage, as appears from the following notation in the Reformed baptismal register of Leeuwarden:

> "/On the 9th of October 1778 was baptized in the Westerkerk > by D^{s} A. Snethlage/
> Tjemkje... — born the 23rd of September 1778, whose father is > Taecke Cornelis and mother Gertie Baukes."

Nothing further could be found about her, so that she presumably died at a young age.

167 SIJTSE (SIJTZE, SIETZE, SITZE, SIJSE) GREIDANUS (GREIJDANUS)

Line of descent: Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44II ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

He was born 15 November 1781 at Leeuwarden and baptized there on 7 December thereafter in the Westerkerk by D^{s} D. Snethlage, as appears from the following entry in the baptismal register of Leeuwarden 1780—1788, fol. 37^{v}:

> "On the 7th of December 1781 was baptized in the Westerkerk by > D^{s} D. Snethlage S. S. M. Cand:
> Sytse... — born the 15th of November 1781.
> Whose father is Taecke Cornelis
> And mother Gertie Baukes."

Sijtze Greidanus was a dealer in spirits at Leeuwarden. Already in the following advertisement, placed in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of 13 Nov. 1818, N^{o} 91, we find him as such:

> "12 November 1818.
>)o( )o(
>)o(With the undersigned, in the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden, may be obtained: pure Dutch GENEVER and foreign BRANDY, as also domestically manufactured BRANDY and Frisian GENEVER, both by the Oxhoofd (hogshead) and in the smaller measure, at reasonable Prices; he promises prompt service. S. GREIJDANUS."

Besides this, he has also been found as a Dealer in Spirits in an advertisement of 1823 and of 1835, which advertisements follow below:

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 28 February 1823, N^{o} 17:
> ")o( )o(
>)o(Choice foreign VOORLOOP (first distillate) of BRANDY may be obtained from S. Greidanus, in the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden."

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 16 January 1835, N° 5:
> "The undersigned warns you, slanderer, who have spread it about that my affairs are not in good order. You know yourself that you have no proof of this, not even of any summons against me, and therefore cease your dishonourable, malicious slanderous lies.
> Leeuwarden, 15 January 1835. S. GREIDANUS, > Dealer in Spirits."

In the advertisement below he appears, besides as a Dealer in Spirits, also as intermediary in the letting or the sale of a well-patronized distillery and malt-house with appurtenances on the Nieuweburen at Leeuwarden:

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 26 March 1819, N° 25:
> "TO LET OR FOR SALE
> A HOUSE with a spacious INTREK (upstairs dwelling), COURTYARD and BLEACHING GREEN, with a well-patronized DISTILLERY and MALT-HOUSE, with spacious Grain and Peat lofts, standing in letter K, no. 110, on the Nieuweburen at Leeuwarden, free to be entered upon on 12 May 1819; to be enquired after with the Undersigned, in the Groote Kerkstraat there, with whom there is also to be obtained: strong Dutch GENEVER and VOORLOOP, at a reasonable price.
> S. GREIDANUS."

Although Sijtze Greidanus is always recorded as a Dealer in Spirits or as a merchant at Leeuwarden, in 1823 he calls himself in the following advertisement "Mr. Timmerman (master carpenter) at Leeuwarden":

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 14 November 1823, N° 91:
> ")o( )o(
>)o(Letting by sealed tenders: A ZATHE (farmstead) AND LANDS, with DWELLING and BARN cum annexis (Latin: with appurtenances), amounting to 31 Bunders 59 sq. Roeden, situated in Kollumerland under the village of Kollum, rented by Gerben Sjoerds Wiersma cum uxore (Latin: with his wife), until Petri and 12 May 1824, and then to be entered upon. The tenders must be submitted post-free, to S. GREYDANUS, Mr. Timmerman at Leeuwarden, in the Groote Kerkstraat, before or at the latest on 20 November 1823. The Conditions lie meanwhile for inspection at the House Ter Noord, on the Kollumer Trekvaart."

He is furthermore called "charpentier" (French: carpenter) at Leeuwarden in 1812 (see page 509) and "timmerknecht" (journeyman carpenter) there in 1806 (see page 510).

From the foregoing it appears that Sijtze Greidanus lived at Leeuwarden in the Groote Kerkstraat. From the following advertisement his dwelling place appears more precisely, namely "Groote Kerkstraat, letter G, N° 144":

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 5 February 1819, N° 11:
> ")o( )o(
>)o(The Undersigned, medicinae Doctor (Latin: Doctor of Medicine) and Surgeon, hereby makes known that he has come to live in this place, in the Groote Kerkstraat, letter G, no. 144, above the merchant S. Greydanus.
> Leeuwarden, 3 February 1819. W. T. VAN GURKOM."[1]

This house on the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden, Letter G N° 144, was bought in 1809/1810 by Sijtze Greidanus and his wife for 2020 car.gl., which is taken from the following entry in the Groot-Consentboek (register of consents to sales) of Leeuwarden:

> "7 December 1809/26 January 1810.
> Woutertje de Roos, wife of and assisted by my husband Lucas Bosker, Merchant at Leeuwarden, declare hereby to have publicly sold to Sitse Grijdanus and Alberdina de Raad, spouses likewise living within the said City, a certain dwelling of mine cum annexis, standing and situated within this city, such as it is at present used and inhabited by me and others, numbered no. 144 letter G, but free to be entered upon on 12 (Mey) May 1810, having as adjoining neighbours, to the East the Gasthuissteeg, to the South the Street, to the West Mr. A. A. van Boelens and to the North myself the seller, for the sum of 2020 car.gl.; on this purchase sum there has remained owing the sum of 2020 car.gl. and 5 strs, of which, after payment of 20 car.gl. 5 strs, there remained owing 2000 car.gl. at interest of 5 per 100 yearly."

At the establishment of the Land Registry about 1830, this parcel stood as house and yard, situated on the Groote Kerkstraat, Section C N° 206, of 119 c.A., as well as the parcels situated on the Groote Gasthuissteeg, Section C N°s 202 (house and yard), 203 (warehouse) and 204 (house), in the name of "Erven Sytze Greidanus".

[1] This upstairs dwelling — called "intrek", a word which is still used in Friesland today — came to be for rent again in 1823, as appears from the following advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of 14 February 1823: ")o( )o( )o(An INTREK TO LET, with a separate Stairway, above S. GREIDANUS, in the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden."

These parcels (municipally numbered district G N°s 240ª, 243 and 144) passed by sale in 1858 to Sijtze Greidanus' son Johannes Numan Greidanus (N° 263 of this genealogy), from whom they passed by sale in 1895 to his son Johan Wilhelm Greidanus (N° 426 of this genealogy), who still lives there today and still has his business established there.

The house on the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden, which has thus now been in the possession of the "Greidanus" family for more than 120 years, is at present numbered 43 and is situated opposite the St. Anthony Gasthuis on the corner of the Wijde or Groote Gasthuissteeg. The parcels on the Groote Gasthuissteeg lie behind the main building, with which they nowadays form practically one whole.

This premises at Groote Kerkstraat N° 43 is the house with the well-known gable stone, showing an old castle and the inscription:

Aed Levwerd
1171 41
MB
renewed
1762

Of this stone, which has given occasion to all manner of conjectures and investigations, a depiction from before the renewal is included at the front of Gabbema's description of Leeuwarden.

Concerning this stone one finds the following in:

W. Eekhoff, "De Stedelijke Kunstverzameling van Leeuwarden", Leeuwarden 1875: page 94 under "Historical plates":

> "Depiction of an old memorial stone, representing a castle, with parapet and corner towers, against which the coat of arms of the town, a rampant Lion, is hung, according to the inscription: AED LEWERD 1171, the house, castle or Olde Stijns, also called Cammingaburgt, which is said to be the origin of Leeuwarden.
>
> Of this puzzling memorial stone, placed against the front of a house in the middle of the Groote Kerkstraat, Gabbema gave this depiction in his Verhaal van Leeuwarden, p. 5, engraved by U. Sprong. At a later renewal of that house this castle was also carved anew in stone and there was added to it: Vernieut 1762. Further reports on this matter occur in the Geschiedk. Beschrijv. v. Leeuw. I 32 and 295."

and page 179 under "Depictions of noble houses etc."

See G. B. v. L. I 32, 295; II 385."

The House: Aed Levwerd

To the origin of the town and the name of Leeuwarden there is still attached a tradition, a building and a memorial stone, which have given occasion to manifold conjectures and investigations, since from antiquity no certain report concerning their origin has been handed down to us. About in the middle of the north side of the Groote Kerkstraat there is, namely, still today in the front of a building of a later time the depiction of an old castle, carved in freestone. It shows a square building, two storeys high, with a pointed gable and roof. The east front has a door or front gate, with two windows or openings above it. The masonry is surrounded by a parapet with corner towers, while against the middle of the south wall the present coat of arms of the town, a rampant Lion, is hung. Below that is chiselled as inscription:

Aed Levwerd
1171 41
MB
1762

Most probably this building, which in old documents is called het Olde Stijns, or stone house, was originally a castle of the noble family Cammingha, which already early inhabited this place, had great possessions here, and contributed much to the expansion and the standing of this town. Just like the old castles Burmaniahuis at Oldehove, Britsenburg at Britsum, Groustins at Englum, Barrastins under Wirdum and others, this Camminghaburg was perhaps built here already at an early date, in order to protect these shores of the M i d d e l z e e and the inhabitants of these terps against the repeated invasions of the Norsemen, who in former times so often troubled the coasts of our fatherland with plundering and robbery.

The nobleman who inhabited such a castle, and whose strong fortress in times of danger was a refuge for his dependants and for the villagers living round about, at whose head he held the command at every defence, thereby obtained as it were of itself great authority and influence in his place of residence. The habitation of that place was more and more sought after by those who no longer thought themselves safe in the open field, and who likewise desired the protection of such a lord and his fortress. Hence it is that such a castle, to which naturally great value was attached, often became the cause of the increase of the population and of the growth in wealth and standing. This was especially the case in such places which, through a favourable situation on the sea and on inland canals, and through increasing navigation and trade, with the greater mutual union and intercourse of the peoples, and under the influence of various great events, possessed in themselves the causes and occasions to develop by degrees and to rise above others (See Note 12)." and pages 295 and following:

"NOTE 12, ON PAGE 33

The House: Aed Levwerd.

According to tradition the memorial stone, placed in the front gable of this house, would be the representation of an old building which, as the first beginning of the city, is said to have stood there. Some understand by it a Castle, namely the "Leuwerda Stins or Leuwenburch", of which Scharlensis, fol. 29, speaks; others take it for the dwelling and inn of the innkeeper Lieuwe, who, in order to make the correspondence of the name still clearer, had as signboard a Lion, which is said to have been slain here in former days. That house is said to have stood there on the

M i d d e l z e e, and the name of h a r b o u r behind it to have remained known for a long time. See Gabbema, Verhaal van Leeuwarden 5; Schotanus Beschrijv. 229 and Tegenw. Staat van Friesland, II 26.

Against this, however, various objections may be made. That the house was not situated immediately on the beach or the harbour, but more safely on the western slope of the terp, is clear after all that has been adduced; while also the O u d e g r a c h t, in the neighbourhood of this house, was dug more than two hundred years after the date which the memorial stone bears. — Also the notion of an i n n (h e r b e r g) was still foreign to those days. Only later did those houses acquire the name of h e e r-b e r g, where the Lords or Counts, in the beginning mostly with their vassals, took their lodging, shelter or quarters when travelling, and which house was thenceforth called 's G r a v e n H e e r e-b e r g. During that stay the Arms of the Lord were displayed in front of the house. It is held that the names and signboards of the later inns or lodging-houses derive from this. Such at least was the case in Holland and Braband, where the oldest known inns of the Counts occur in 1324 at Bergen-op-Zoom, in 1332 at Dordrecht and in 1333 at Rotterdam. See the excellent Geschiedkundige Beschrijving van Rotterdam, by my esteemed friend G. van Reyn, I 44, note p. 12; besides Racer's Overijss. Gedenkst. IV 28, VI 295; Ypey en Feith, Oudheden van Groningen, 61; Hoeufft, Fransche Woorden uit de Noordsche talen ontleend, I 21, on Auberge; du Cange, Glossarium in voce; Kiliaan, on her-berghe; Streso en van Maanen, Verhandd. bij Teijler, XIX, 68, 186 etc.

However incomplete the old reports may be — we believe we have sufficient ground to hold this building for one of the "very strong castles of clinker bricks", which, according to van Rijn, note on de Oudh. en Gestichten, I 282, "the Frisians, in order to keep off that rabble, the Norsemen, made on both sides of the bay, the M i d d e l z e e"; — and indeed for that same Camminghaburg which Schotanus has also included on his map of Old Friesland, and of which our historians relate that it was destroyed in the flood of about 1230, just like Britsenburg. F. Sjoerds, Jaarb. II 544, III 11; Outhof, Watervloeden, 308. This last writer even says: "Also the sea-dike walls (?) of an aged (?) Stone house Kangaburg remained standing only half." Perhaps this is exaggerated, and we shall perhaps do better to read here damaged, since not a single wooden house in Friesland would have been left, if such houses of stone, situated on terps, could be demolished or "drift away" in a flood. One also finds mentioned in a Chronicle (in the Frieschen Almanak of 1755) that the house was rebuilt or restored in 1238 —, and that it was afterwards inhabited by the Potentate Rienk Camminga, son of Hajo, who died in 1306. — We are strengthened in this opinion: 1° because Schotanus places this house precisely here at Leeuwarden, and because absolutely no other site of Camminghaburg in the vicinity is known; the building of the same name, to the east of the city, having been founded only later; 2° by the Charter mentioned in Schaten, Falke and Kluit, in Note 10, which already in 839 mentions a villa (farmstead, manor house or village) of the Cammingha's in Friesland, and which furnishes a proof how early that possession of this family already existed here, and will have given occasion to the rise of Nyehove and Leeuwarden, so that hereby the tradition concerning this building, as the first occasion of the origin of the city, would be confirmed; and 3° because this building also in later time, namely in 1543, occurs in the Beneficiaalboek van Friesland, 75, under the name of t olde Stijns by Sinte Anthonis Gasthuys, still as a possession of Rints Minnema, the widow of Wytze Cammingha; while it is also called het Olde Stins in the accounts and other documents of the St. Anthonij-Gasthuis, on the occasion that Heer Wabbo, vicar of Lekkum, in 1535 bequeathed "five tiled chambers" behind this building, in the Gasthuissteeg, to this institution. It was then an old and sturdy building, with a large front gate in the alley beside it. From about 1550 to 1625 it served as a Latin school; but already in the time of Schotanus and Gabbema it seems to have been replaced by another building, which was renewed in 1762, and at the same time with it the Memorial Stone.

The drawing and the spelling of the inscription of this stone, however, now differ somewhat from the representation communicated by Gabbema. Strange on both is the escutcheon, the rampant lion, as the city now bears it. For the oldest arms of the city were an image of Mary with the child Jesus, to whom the Parish church of Nijehove was dedicated. Later, or else still at the same time as the one mentioned, there was used for the city seal a church building with two towers and a bell between them, and a lamb with a cross-banner upon the church, and a small walking lion in the base, as it is depicted at the end of the chronicle of Winsemius, and hangs on several Archives. See also the representation and description of it in de Vrije Fries, I 342. Only at the end of the fifteenth century did I find the present escutcheon with the springing lion in use, as it appears in this representation. Since now many cities have taken over their arms wholly or in part from their Olderman (alderman), or from some other noble family held by them in high esteem, and agreeing with their name, the correspondence of these arms with those of Minnema has made us think that the city adopted these simpler arms, which seemed more in accordance with its name, under the Oldermanschap of Frans Minnema, who died in 1512[1]. This family now was, as we saw above, related to that of Cammingha, and thus these arms could have been applied to this house, just as to this day a similar coat of arms of the Minnema's is seen in the gable of the corner house of the Wortelhaven and Eewal, as the corner of the former grounds of Minnema-huis. We rather think, however, that when in the sixteenth or seventeenth century a representation of it was made in stone, the city arms of that time will have been added. For that this coat of arms stood in that way on the side wall of the building itself – or hung against it, is not likely.

[1] This is also the opinion of Mr. Van Halmael, and of D° A. Wassenbergh, in one of the Friesche Volks-Almanakken.

And why was this building now called Oud-Leeuwarden? Very probably, because it, as the oldest stins and protecting stronghold of the inhabitants, was considered to be connected with the origin of the town; because it was the dwelling place of the most distinguished nobleman, whose family as Olderman long held the greatest authority; and because it perhaps[?] in the fifteenth century served for a time as Town Hall or meeting place of the members of the Government. It may also be, that this name was only later given to the house, when this representation was made, as a monument of the first existence of the town, as Oud-Leeuwarden, in contrast to the town later more extended, as a result of its union with the neighbouring parishes Oldehove and Hoek, in 1435. Since so little is known to us with complete certainty from those earlier periods, nothing remains for us but, on the ground of various traces, to guess at the truth or the greatest probability."

"De Vrije Fries", journal, published by the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde.

Thirty-second Volume, 1934, in the article "Iets over eenige huizen in de Groote Kerkstraat te Leeuwarden" by Miss R. Visscher, on pages 71 to 73:

"THE CAMMINGHA STINSEN.

In former times the Cammingha family possessed three houses in the Groote Kerkstraat, namely the house described above, standing on the spot where one now finds the building of the Provincial inspection service; a stins, situated opposite the St. Anthony-Gasthuis, and a stins, which stood opposite the former Walloon church.

In the façade of the house of Mr. Greidanus, opposite the St. Anthony-Gasthuis, on the corner of the Wijde Gasthuissteeg, a stone is built in, representing a stins, which in its side wall shows the coat of arms of Leeuwarden. Under the stins stand the words: "Aed Levwerd". Beneath that another stone has been placed, on which stands "1171 vernieut 1762". In the upper right-hand corner one finds presumably the mark and the initials of the name of the stonemason. This is probably Cornelis Noteboom, who in 1749 was admitted into the masons' guild. The first time that I found this house designated by the name "Aed Leeuwaerd", I saw this in a deed of sale from 1669, when the master tailor Willem Willems transferred it to Wybrandus Heems, bailiff of the Court of Friesland. The house is there called: "Aed Leeuwaerd or Oude Stins" and its situation precisely described as: "having to the east the Groote Gasthuissteeg, to the south the Groote Kerkstraat; to the west Miss Vierssen, widow of the late captain Potter, to the north the house inhabited by master Feye Dirx as tenant."

This old stins, which in, or shortly before, 1594 was demolished, already occurs earlier in the archives. Probably it is indicated in the Register van den Aanbreng, of 1511, where in Oldehoofster Espel stands: "Item a dilapidated stone house (owner) Renick Emingen". This Rienck Eminga van Cammingha was the father of Wytze van Cammingha, who married Rins Fransdr. van Minnema. Wytze died in 1533; his widow in 1546. In the Beneficiaal-boek van Vriesland of 1543 "the old stins by the St. Anthony-Gasthuis" is mentioned in a declaration of this Rins van Cammingha concerning the goods belonging to a benefice (apparently founded by a Cammingha). She says there[1]: "there still lie behind the aforesaid stins house-plots, but it is uncertain whether they belong to the aforesaid benefice, or under the parcel of Frans Cammingha." Frans van Cammingha must therefore have been owner of the stins, or of one of the adjoining parcels. Now it appears irrefutably from an award or ruling in the dispute over the division of the sum which the sale of the old stins had yielded, that this building later came by inheritance into the possession of three of the thirteen children of Wytze and Rins Cammingha, namely of Frans, Doedt and Tiete. This award dates from 17 May 1594. The parties were: 1° Schelte van Aebingha, a grandson of Frans; 2° Upco van Burmania, as husband of Rins Roorda, a daughter of Doedt; he also acted for the other heirs of Doedt; and 3° Rins Cammingha, widow of Lolle van Ockinga, who also looked after the interests of the remaining heirs of her father, Tiete van Cammingha. She had one sister and two brothers, of whom one was likewise called Tiete. Her father had died in 1552, her brother Tiete died in 1592 at Luik. This Tiete van Cammingha had held to the Spanish side; probably his goods were therefore under sequestration and the States of Friesland could dispose of them. At any rate, by resolution of 15 April 1584 they designate "Tiete van Cammingha's house in the Groote Kerkstraat" as residence of the stadholder Willem Lodewijk. This can have been none other than the stins opposite the St. Anthony-Gasthuis, since the Cammingha stins, now inspection service, was at that time inhabited by Sybrand van Cammingha, and the old Cammingha stins, situated opposite the church of the White Nuns (the later Walloon church), in the 16th century belonged to the Wyngha family. The old stins of Tiete van Cammingha, which in 1584 must already have been in a state of decay, offered no suitable dwelling for the stadholder; hence the States in 1587 bought the house of Boudewijn van Loo, to serve as stadholder's court.

A year after the death of Tiete van Cammingha the heirs of Frans, Doedt and Tiete sold the stins to the master mason Wybe Lieuwes, who had it pulled down and put a new house in its place. In the above-mentioned award of 17 May 1594 the stins is already called: "a certain old and now demolished stins, having stood in the Groote Kerkstraat opposite St. Anthonis Gasthuys". From what time the façade stone, which keeps the memory of the old stins alive, dates, cannot be said with certainty. In the "Verhaal van Leeuwarden" by S. A. Gabbema, which appeared in 1701, an engraving of the stone already occurs, as mr. P. C. J. A. Boeles pointed out to me. The stone, drawn by Ulpianus Sprong, who married here in 1639, bears the inscription "Aed Lewerd 1711[?]". It is now possible, that Noteboom in 1762 renewed the whole stone in two parts. It may however also be, that he kept the upper piece with the fanciful representation of the stins, and added the lower one to it. How one arrived at the year 1171, as year of the founding of the stins, is not known, but it is not at all improbable, that a stins can be preserved for four centuries. It is remarkable, that this Cammingha stins is called old-Leeuwarden and that the coat of arms depicted on the façade stone is that of the town of Leeuwarden[2]. This brings us to another Cammingha stins, etc.".

[1] See fol. 75.

[2] The name of this house cannot be derived from that of the master mason Wybe Lieuwes, who built a new house on the spot on which the demolished stins had stood, since Ocka Scharlensis in the first edition of his "Beschrijvinge van Vrieslant", of 1597, fol. 29, already mentions an "old house", which is called "Leuwerde stins"."

Besides these houses in the Groote Kerkstraat and the Groote Gasthuissteeg in Leeuwarden, Sijtze Greidanus was also the owner of other real estate.

Thus in the Archive of Notary J. C. Kutsch at Leeuwarden it is recorded (N° 625) dated 25 August 1812, that (French) "Sietze Greidanus carpenter and Albertina de Raad, spouses of Leeuwarden" bought: (French) "1° a house in the Grote Gasthuissteeg Letter G N° 234 and 2° a house in the same place Letter G N° 234" Price f 410.56.

As appears from the advertisement below, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 11 December 1835, N° 99, he was the owner of a house and inn with appurtenances near Wijns:

> "TO LET FROM MAY 1836.
> A HOUSE and INN, with OUTBUILDING and GARDEN, standing near > Wijns on the Dokkumer Ee and footpath. To be enquired of the owner > S. GREIDANUS, in the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden."

And at the institution of the Kadaster (land registry) about 1830, there were still registered in the name of: "Heirs of Sytze Greidanus":

1°. the parcel, a house, situated op de Modder at Leeuwarden, Section A N° 743;

2°. the parcels, houses, situated on the Stadsdwinger near the Boterhoek at Leeuwarden, Section C N°s 362 and 363 (each 36 M²);

3°. the parcel, a house, Groote Kerkstraat Leeuwarden, Section C N° 385 (21 M²).

Including the premises in the Groote Kerkstraat and the Groote Gasthuissteeg at Leeuwarden, a total area of 357 centiare stood in the name of the Heirs just mentioned.

The house mentioned under 1° was sold to others before 1849.

Perhaps the houses near the Boterhoek mentioned under 2° are indeed the former dwellings of Taeke Cornelis (Greidanus) and David Nijkam, for the Boterhoek is the north side of the Oldehoofster Kerkhof (see page 412); but it is also possible that by these former dwellings is meant the parcel indicated under 3° in the Groote Kerkstraat, because this street runs out onto the Oldehoofster Kerkhof. The house of Taeke Cornelis will in any case not have been a rented house.

Sijtze Greidanus died on 27 February 1849 at Leeuwarden at the age of 67 years, as a merchant. His decease was made known by the family announcement below:

> " This evening at 8 o'clock there died, from the consequences of a chest complaint, at the age of a good 67 years, our beloved Father SYTZE GREIDANUS, in life Merchant here.
> Leeuwarden, 27 February 1849.* T. GREIDANUS,
> Sole notification to Friends and Acquaintances. in the name of all.
> P.S. The Business will continue on the same footing."

As appears from the two following entries, Sijtze Greidanus wished to marry ANTIE JANS at Leeuwarden in November 1805, but on 15 November 1805 the marriage proclamations were held "in statu" by order of the Drost (bailiff) and Court of Leeuwarden, or as they said in those days: the marriage was "gespierd" (barred = prevented):

Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Church of Leeuwarden, 1798—1809, fol. 107v:

> "Sytse Gredanus and Antie Jans both of this place, their > marriage banns were proclaimed the first time on 13[1] November > 1805. On the 15th of the same month these Proclamations were, by order of the Drost and > Court of this Town, held in Statu."

Judicial Marriage Proclamation Register of Leeuwarden. (1795—1809):

> "(1805, the 8th of Novemb.)
> "The bridegroom for himself — Sijtze Gredanus and Antje Jans > and Jacobus Walstra[2] for the bride — both of this place as above (= ordinary Banns)" > in statû.

[1] Date unclear; it may be 10 or 13 November 1805, probably 13.

[2] This Jacobus Walstra was a citizen of Leeuwarden and married, according to the Church Marriage Register of that town, 26 January /2/9/12 February 1800 to Jacomina Cup.

It is possible that the "spiering" (blocking) of the marriage was connected with a promise of marriage which Sijtze Greidanus was said to have made to one Eva Hofman, for in the Interlocutory Sentence Book of Leeuwarden one finds, on 27 October 1806, mention of a lawsuit between:

> Eva Hofman, supported by her father Coenraad Hofman, residing at Leeuwarden (having, upon request, obtained permission from the Drost and Court of Leeuwarden to be served gratis and free of stamp duty) plaintiff on the one side; — against Sijtze Greidanus, carpenter's journeyman at Leeuwarden (having obtained permission to be served gratis and free of stamp duty) defendant on the other side".

The definitive decision was then postponed. In the Definitive Sentence Book of Leeuwarden one finds the following ruling, after the same opening as above has been included:

> 15 July 1807. The plaintiff, supported by her father, is declared inadmissible in the claim and conclusion she had made, they absolve the defendant thereof by order, with the lifting of the granted status on the marriage proclamations of the defendant with his bride Antie Jans, and for reasons > they set off the costs of the proceedings.

The marriage of Sijtze Greidanus with Antie Jans, who was a daughter of Jan Louws, could however no longer proceed, since Antie Jans had meanwhile — on 1 December previously — died at the house of Sytze Greidanus' father Taeke Cornelis, as appears from the following entry in the Leeuwarden Burial Register:

> "Antie Jans, daughter of Jan Loŭws, aged 30 years, unmarried, > died 1 December 1806 at Tæke Cornelis' on the Oudehoofdster > Kerkhof."

MARRIED:

ALBERDINA (ALBERTINA) DE RAAD (DE RAADT), 24 September 1809 at Leeuwarden, as appears from the following extract from the Marriage Register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden 1809—1811, fol. 10^{v}:

> "Sijtze Gredanus and Albertina de Raad both of this place > had their marriage banns proclaimed for the first time > on 10 September 1809, the second time on the 17th, the > third time on the 24th of the same, and hereof on that date a > declaration was passed and they were that same afternoon > confirmed in their marriage before the Court of Leeuwarden."

Alberdina de Raad was a daughter of Jan Klaassens de Raad and Willemtje Jacobs Edens and was baptized on 21 May 1788 in the A-Kerk at Groningen, as appears from the following entry in the Register of Baptisms, kept by the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Groningen:

> "Wednesday 21 May 1788 A. K.
> Alberdina, dau. of Jan Klaassens Raadt and Willemtje Jacobs, > Hardewikestr."

From the death certificate of Alberdina de Raad it appears that her mother was named Willemina Edens.

As appears from the following family announcement, Alberdina de Raad died 5 March 1848 at Leeuwarden at the age of 60 years:

> "⁂ Today, after a long illness, my dear Wife AL-> BERDINA de RAAD died, at the age of nearly 61 years, after a happy > Marriage of more than 38 years, deeply mourned by me, her Children and > Children-in-law.

b. Oosterend, 24 March 1772 · daughter of Klaas Baukes Greidanus (N^{o} 98) and Antie Hendriks

She was born 24 March 1772 at Oosterend and baptized at Edens on 2 May 1784, together with her brother Bauke, as appears from the following extract from the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at Edens and Spannum (1772—1812):

> "1784. On 2 May Klaas Baukes > had his children baptized at Edens, > the daughter being named Akke
> Inspected d. and born at Oosterend on the 24th > 24 Aug: 1784 of March 1772 and the son named Bauke > born at Oosterend on 26 May > 1773, the mother is Antje Hendriks."

Nothing further could be found about her, so that she probably died soon after the baptismal entry.

169 BAUKE KLAZESZOON GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Klaas 98 ← Bauke 54 ← Johannes 14^{I} ← Tjardus 5^{I} ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1^{I}

b. Oosterend, 26 May 1773 · d. Oosterend, 2 September 1856 · son of Klaas Baukes Greidanus (N^{o} 98) and Antie Hendriks · m. Antje Harmens Ruitinga, 1804

According to the above extract from the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at Edens and Spannum (1772—1812), he was born 26 May 1773 at Oosterend and baptized at Edens on 2 May 1784, together with his sister Akke.

Bauke Klazeszoon Greidanus is consistently — namely in his marriage entry and in the baptismal entries of his children — called "Bauke Klazes". In the Register of family names of the former municipality of Wommels, however, one finds under the date 16 December 1811:

> "Bouke Klazes residing at Oosterend (adopts the family name Greidanus), has 3 children Renske (5 years); Klaas (3 years); Harmen (8 weeks)."

He became, together with his wife, a member of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Oosterend on 1 June 1804 after profession of faith, as appears from the following entry in the Members' Book of that Congregation:

> "Bauke Klazes † 2 Sept. 1856 and his wife > Antje Harmens † 26[1] Sept. 1846."

In 1804 Bauke Klazes Greidanus lived at Oosterend in a dwelling of his father-in-law Harmen Gerbens (Ruitinga). This appears from the Speciecohier (tax register) of Hennaarderadeel, in which one finds in 1804 at Oosterend, under N^{o} 91 as occupants: Harmen Gerbens, Dirk Hendriks and Bauke Clases (with the note: "has been a bachelor"). The following year 1805 the situation seems to have changed: at any rate one then still finds under N^{o} 91 Harmen Gerbens and Dirk Hendriks, but there it says: "Bauke Clases has moved to N^{o} 54". And indeed one then finds under N^{o} 54 of Oosterend the inhabitants: Bauke Klazes and Auke Harmens, which change will be connected with the marriage concluded on 13 May 1804 of Bauke Klazes with a daughter of Harmen Gerbens.

[1] According to the death certificate 27 (see page 512).

At the marriage in 1844 of his son Harmen, Bauke Klazes Greidanus is recorded as inlandsch kramer (native pedlar).

He died on 2 September 1856 at Oosterend (N^{o} 87) at the age of 83 years.

MARRIED:

ANTJE HARMENSDOCHTER RUITINGA, 13 May 1804 at Oosterend.

The relevant marriage entry in the Reformed marriage register of Oosterend and Hennaard reads as follows:

> "1804. Bauke Klases, and Antje Harmens, both > of Oosterend, after three preceding > Sunday marriage proclamations > in our church at Oosterend, of which the > last was on 6 May 1804, on the following > Sunday, being 13 May 1804, > were confirmed in the married state at Oosterend."

Antje Harmens Ruitinga was a daughter of Harmen Gerbens (Ruitinga) and Rinske Idses Hoytema [1] and was born 12 November 1773 at Oosterend. Her baptismal entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Oosterend and Hennaard reads as follows:

> "(1773) On 19 December was baptized the child > of Harmen Gerbens, mother Hinke [2] Hoy> tema, born at Oosterend on 12 November, > being a daughter and named Antie."

Harmen Gerbens was, according to the Floreencohieren (land-tax registers) of Hennaarderadeel of 1788 and 1798, at Oosterend meijer (tenant farmer) of a farm of 62 P.M. /N° 26 of the Stemcohier (register of voting farms) and N° 52(69 of the Floreencohier). In 1798 and following years this farm was the property of the de Gavere family. Probably Harmen Gerbens was later "glazier and painter" at Oosterend; his surname "Ruitinga" might then be connected with his trade, namely the setting in of window panes.

Antje Harmens Ruitinga died 27 September 1846 [3] at Oosterend at the age of 73 years. From her death certificate her surname and the full names of her parents also appear.

b. Oosterend, 22 September 1772 · d. after 1842 · daughter of Dirk Dirks Posthumus and Lolkien Baukes Greidanus (N° 99) · m. Hidde Ypes de Vries, 1810

She was born 22 September 1772 at Oosterend. Her baptismal entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Oosterend and Hennaard follows below:

> "(1772)
> On 27 September was baptized the child > of Dirk Dirks Posthumus, mother Lol-> kien Greijdanus, born at Oosterend on > 22 September, being a daughter and named > Dedtie."

During her marriage she lived at Baard; after the death of her husband on 25 March 1815 she seems to have moved to Jorwerd, at least the Reformed members' register of Winsum and Baard the entry that Dedtie Durks came in the year 1817 from Jorwerd to Baard with a certificate, where she was thereafter again settled. She appears to have died after 1842.

[1] / Rinske Idses Hoytema was baptized 4 September 1740 at Grouw as daughter of the Bijsitter (assessor) of Idaarderadeel Ids (Pijters) Hoitema and of Afke Hotzes. This Bijsitter lived at first at Grouw, but later at Roordahuizum, where on 18 August 1765 he remarried with Trijntje Hessels Wallinga at Hallum.

[2] / Should be: Rinske.

[3] / According to the Lidmatenboek (members' register) of Oosterend 26 September 1846 (see page 511).

Married:

HIDDE YPESZOON DE VRIES, widower of Haùkjen or Hankjen Gerrits, 17 June 1810 at Baard. The relevant marriage entry in the marriage register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Baard (1772—1810) reads as follows:

> "1810. On the 3rd of June, the 10th and the 17th of the same, the marriage banns of Hidde Ypes and Detje Durks, both of Baard, were proclaimed, and on the 17th of June they were confirmed in the married state."

He was a son of Ype Hiddes (de Vries) and Antje Gerrits and was baptized 2 December 1753 at St. Jacobi-Parochie, as appears from the following entry in the baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed congregation of Sint-Jacobi-Parochie (1714—1772):

> "/1753/ December the 2nd, Hidde Ypes, son of Ype Hiddes."

Hidde Ypes de Vries was a shoemaker at Baard, where he died 25 March 1815 at the age of 60 in the house N° 18, which is the same house in which his father-in-law Dirk Dirks Posthumus (Postma) exchanged the temporal for the eternal on 29 October 1817.

DS. ANTHONY VAN RUYVEN, 24 September 1809 at Zijpe.

The relevant marriage entry in the Schepentrouwboek (aldermen's marriage register) of de Zijpe, running from 23 January 1735 to 10 March 1811, kept in the State Archives in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem, reads as follows:

"1809
24 September Mr. A. van Ruyven widower and with certificate to Petten.
Miss Trijntje Greidanus young woman."

Ds. Anthonij van Ruyven was the widower of: 1°. Eefje van Vuure and 2°. Hillegond Duijts Bakker.

He married Eefje van Vuure at Broek in Waterland on 17 June 1798, as appears from the following extract from the Marriage Register of the Municipality of Broek in Waterland, running from 1793—1811, and kept in the State Archives of North Holland, at Haarlem:

"(1798) June 3. 10. 17 ditto.

After the three above marriage proclamations had been duly proclaimed and posted at the town hall; so today, Sunday 17 June 98, after the conclusion of the afternoon service, in the presence of the commissioners for the solemnization of marriage of this village, were lawfully solemnized and confirmed in the married state
Anthony van Ruijven bachelor, born at Arnhem, having last resided here at Broek, with Eefje van Vuure young woman, born and living here at Broek aforesaid."

Eefje van Vuure died at Broek in Waterland already on 27 October 1798, as appears from the following extract from the Register of the impost on marrying and burying at Broek in Waterland, running from 1765—1803, and kept in the State Archives of North Holland, at Haarlem:

Fol. 72vo.

"(1798) On the 27th of October died here Eefje van Vuure wife of Antonij van Ruijven: her body was on that date reported here at the secretary's office by the citizen Dirk Ditmarsch, as belonging under the class of thirty guldens (guilders). Thus received for the state f 30."

On 21 March 1802 Anthonij van Ruyven married at Broek in Waterland Hillegond Duijts Bakker. The relevant marriage entry on fol. 27 of the Marriage Register of the Municipality of Broek in Waterland of 1793—1811, kept in the State Archives of North Holland, at Haarlem, reads as follows:

"(1802). 7 March 14 ditto 21 ditto 1802
1st. 2nd. 3rd marriage proclamation.
After the three above marriage banns of Anthonij van Ruijven, widower here at Broek, with Hillegond Duijts Bakker spinster here, had been published and posted without hindrance from the steps of the community house; so the aforesaid persons were today, Sunday the 21st of March 1802, in the presence of the committee for marriage affairs of this village, lawfully solemnized and confirmed here in the married state."

Hillegond Duijts Bakker died at Broek in Waterland on 5 May 1803 in childbed, as appears from the following entry in the Register of the impost on marrying and burying of the Municipality of Broek in Waterland, of 1765—1803, kept in the State Archives of North Holland, at Haarlem:

Fol. 78vo.

"(1803) on the 5th of May died here Hillegond Duits Bakker wife and woman in childbed of A. van Ruiven this body was reported here at the secretary's office by Harmen Bakker as belonging under the class of three guldens."

Anthonij van Ruijven was a son of Lubbartus Johannes van Ruijven and Maria Geertruid Haverkamp and was baptized on 16 July 1778 in the Groote Kerk at Arnhem, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of that Church:

"1778
The 16th of July
F. Lubbartus Johannes van Ruijven
M. Maria Geertruid Haverkamp.
C. Antonij."

Around 1798 he was settled at Broek in Waterland, and from there he had himself enrolled on 4 October 1806 — thus at the age of already 28 years — be enrolled as a student of theology at the University of Utrecht, as appears from the following entry, included in column 202 of the Album Studiosorum Academiae Rheno-Traiectinae published in 1886:

(Latin) "Under Rector Philippus Guilielmus van Heusde. 1806.
4 Oct. A. van Ruyven from the village of Broek in Waterland, Theology."

According to the notes of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus given on page 437, Ds. A. van Ruijven was, at the time of his marriage on 24 September 1809 to Trijntje Greidanus, minister at Petten, afterwards at Holysloot, subsequently at Nieuwendam, while, as appears from the family announcement below, he died on 16 September 1819 as minister at 's Heeren Jansland in Zeeland at the age of 41 years.

> ” * * * Today we received the tidings, as sad as they were painful for us and for his only surviving child, that > our only Son, ANTHONIJ van RUIJVEN, minister at 's Heeren Jansland, in Zeeland, after a very long illness, on the 12th of this month, at the age of 41 years, has died.
> A m s t e r d a m L. J. van R U I J V E N > the 16th of September, and > 1819. M. G. H A V E R K A M P.”

As appears from the notes of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus just quoted, the only child left by Ds. Anthonij van Ruijven was his little daughter: Maria Geertruid van Ruyven, born at Holysloot 16 September 1810, died on 18 April 1822 at Amsterdam, where her grandfather Lubbartus Johannes van Ruijven, of Arnhem, had already been enrolled as a merchant in the burgher register on 3 November 1786.

Added here is also the coat of arms of the Arnhem family Van Ruyven, to which Anthonij van Ruyven evidently belonged. Its heraldic description is as follows:

silver, with three green water-lily leaves, 2 and 1. Crest: a water-lily leaf from the shield, between a golden stag's antlers.

Saakje Greidanus

Wijger Lijkles Hellema

She was born in 1795, that is the year in which Ds. Ausonius Greidanus was deposed at Oosterwierum on account of the recovery of Ds. B. A. Snoek. According to the entry below in the Dutch Reformed baptismal register of Mantgum, Saakje Greidanus was born on 14 September 1795 at Mantgum, where Ds. Ausonius Greidanus thus evidently settled after his deposition. At Mantgum his father-in-law Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim was then still minister, so that Ds. Ausonius Greidanus may, during his deposition, have lived with his family in his father-in-law's house:

> ”On the 11th of October 1795 there was baptized here a daughter of Ausonius > Greijdanus and Metje Pluim, married people at Mantgum, born > at Mantgum on the 14th of September 1795, baptized by the father himself > and named Saekje, > held at the font by the mother.”

Saakje Greidanus died at Leeuwarden on 8 December 1875 at the age of 80 years, as appears from the family announcement below:

> ” * * * After a short indisposition there died today > my dearly beloved wife SAAKJE GREIDANUS, at the blessed age of more than 80 years, after a more than 47-year happy marriage. Grateful for having possessed her so long, I feel this loss deeply as my years increase, but I wish reverently to submit to the will of the Most High.
> W. L. HELLEMA.
> Leeuwarden, 8 December 1875.
> General notice to family, friends and acquaintances.”

A portrait of her, after a photographic likeness, has been included among the portraits.

Married:

Wijger Lijkleszoon Hellema, 21 May 1828 at Leeuwarden, as appears from the following advertisements:

> “ * * Married:
> Leeuwarden, W. L. HELLEMA, and > 21 May 1828. S. GREIDANUS.*” > “FORTY-YEAR MARRIAGE UNION > of
> WIJGER LIJKLES HELLEMA
> and > SAAKJE GREIDANUS
> on 21 May 1868.
> Reception at the house of VAN DER WIELEN > in the Sacramentstraat[1]“.

Wijger Lijkleszoon Hellema was born 6 March 1803 at Wanswerd, as son of Lijkle Wijgerszoon Hellema and Jeltje Sijbrens Teitsma. His baptismal record in the Reformed Baptismal Register of Wanswerd etc. reads as follows:

"(1803)
Wijger son of M[r] L. W. Hellema and Jeltje S. Teitsma born at Wanswerd on 6 March 1803 baptized on 3 April."

Lijkle Wijgerszoon Hellema was Schoolmeester (schoolmaster), Koster (sexton) and Organist at Wanswerd; in 1813 he was deacon there and in 1831 Kerkvoogd (church warden). All this is derived from the following advertisements:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday 21 March A[o] 1801, N 2538. The Seventh Year of Batavian Liberty."

> "NB. Since the Kerkvoogden (church wardens) of Wanswerd intend to make a new Register of the Graves in the Church and in the Churchyard, the Owners of the Graves are requested to report their Graves before the 1st of May of this Year to
> at Wanswerd; the Graves will otherwise be deemed to have reverted to the Church."

"Blad van Aankondigingen, Bekendmakingen en Onderscheiden Berigten van Leeuwarden", N[o] 82 of Friday 9 July 1813:

"The floreen-liable inhabitants of the Reformed religion are convened, in order to appear, on 31 JULY 1813, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in the Church at Wanswerd, so as to vote, in person or by proper proxy, for a MINISTER in the vacant combined Reformed congregation of Wanswerd and Jislum, and that according to the regulation thereof.
In the name of the Church Council of the aforesaid congregation,
Wanswerd, TJEERD OENSES STRAATSMA, elder
8 July DIRK FOPPES ROEDA }
1813. JAN F. FABER } deacons."
L. W. HELLEMA }

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 8 February 1831, N[o] 41:

"With the prior knowledge of the Grietenij (district) Administration of Ferwerderadeel, the Kerkvoogden of the village of Wanswerd intend to make a NEW REGISTER of the GRAVES in the Churchyard there, and consequently call upon all owners of the said Graves to report them to the Teacher of the Youth at Wanswerd, in person or by postage-free letters, at the latest before 25 March 1831; it being furthermore held that those Graves of which no report has been made before or on the appointed time have reverted to the Church.
The aforesaid Kerkvoogden,
Wanswerd, S. J. TEITSMA.
14 February 1831. W. S. JANSMA.

[1] At Leeuwarden.

From the advertisement below it appears that Lijkle Wijgers Hellema had in 1806 been called away elsewhere, and that it was proposed to grant him "an increase of One Hundred Guilders yearly salary from the church purse", which proposal was apparently accepted, since he remained settled at Wanswerd:

> "Vriesche Courant" of Saturday 21 June 1806, N[o] 74:
> "The DROST (bailiff) together with the MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT of FERWERDERADEEL hereby convoke the Reformed floreen-liable inhabitants of Wanswerd, on Wednesday 25 June 1806, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon in the church there, in order to decide by majority of votes whether or not an increase of One Hundred Guilders yearly salary from the church purse shall be granted to the presently functioning Koster (sexton), Schoolmaster and Organist L. W. Hellema, (who has been called away elsewhere).
> Ferwerd, — By order of the same,
> 19 June 1806. — W. ALBARDA."

At the end of the year 1826 Lykle Wijgers Hellema resigned his posts of Schoolteacher, Koster and Organist at Wanswerd, as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 17 November 1826, N[o] 92:

"GRIETMAN (district magistrate) and ASSESSORS of FERWERDERADEEL bring once again to the knowledge of those concerned that the functions of Schoolteacher, Koster and Organist at Wanswerd have become vacant through the resignation of the Teacher L. W. Hellema, and hereby invite applicants of the second or, if need be, of the third Rank, for Tuesday 12 December 1826, at 9 o'clock in the morning at the Grietenijehuis at Ferwerd, where the comparative examination will be held; the required certificates of rank and conduct to be sent carriage-free to the Secretary's office of the Grietenij at Marrum, before or on 6 December next: the advantages attached to these functions consist 1[o] of a fixed yearly Salary of f 160:00 from the church purse, 2[o] of the use of 3 bunders and more than 30 square roods of Greidland (pasture land), 3[o] of a free Dwelling and large Garden partly planted with Fruit trees, and 4[o] of the school fees of about 30 Pupils at 30 Cents each, per quarter of a year.
Grietman and Assessors aforesaid,
Ferwerd, — C. WESTENBERG, Vt.
14 November 1826. — By order of the same,
ALBARDA, Secretary."

Apparently he then became Collector of the State Taxes at Blija, since he appears as such in the marriage certificate of his son dated 21 May 1828.

Wijger Lijkles Hellema was a dealer in colonial goods at Leeuwarden on the corner of 't Nauw near "de Brol", a double stone bridge (called a "pijp").

About his business we are informed by the following first part of the "Lines spoken at the celebration of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. W. L. Hellema and Miss S: Greidanus on 21 May 1853 by D: Wijngaarden":

"Today twenty-five years ago
For the very first time as a merchant
You began your own business
It has gone rather nicely
Since you, my friends, now henceforth
Are going to hang that business on the peg.
No wonder that in that space of time
You had no lack of trade,
In buying exceedingly much luck
And on market days, always terribly busy
Then many a chest or sack went out
With Tea, with Coffee or Tobacco.
Then many a full wagon went
From the house on the corner by de Brol.
Then Mimerda hauled and carted,
Verschoor along with him, the maid after them,
While Sijtske trotted to the office
So it went on the whole market day through.
It was weighing! measuring! without end,
And profits, at how many percent!
That busy measuring and busy weighing Often made the warehouse empty
But more often still the cash drawer full,
In the house on the corner by de Brol.
Those profits steadily gathered together
Which have now seen their twenty-fifth year
Are the cause, good financier,
That we now see you as a man of private means."

He died at Leeuwarden at the age of 74 years on 28 September 1877, as appears from the family announcement below:

" * * Sole notification.
Today died my dear brother, Mr.
WIJGER LIJKLES HELLEMA, widower of Miss Saakje Greidanus, at the age of more than 74 years.
W. L. HELLEMA,
widow of D. Boersma.
L e e u w a r d e n, 28 September 1877."*

A portrait of him, from a photographic likeness, has been included among the portraits.

CHILDREN:

None.

179 FOEKONIA TJAARDINA GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Ausonius 101[II] ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5[II] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

She was born 18 February 1797 at Oude Schild on Texel and baptized there on 26 February following, as appears from the following extract from the baptismal register of the Reformed Congregation at Oude Schild, running from 1727 to 1811, kept in the Rijksarchief (State Archives) in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem:

"1797.
On 18 February, at 2 o'clock in the morning, a daughter was born here and baptized on the 26th, named — Foekonia Tjaardina.
Of whom the father is Ausonius Greidanus, minister here
Mother Metje Pluim.
Witnesses Antje Visser."

She died at Amsterdam on 14 December 1877 at the age of 80 years, as follows from the family announcement below:

> " * * * At Amsterdam there died on 14 December 1877, at the age of over 80 years, Miss FOEKONIA TJARDINA GREIDANUS, widow of Mr. A. Hottentot."

MARRIED:

Abraham Hottentot, 18 May 1845 at Edam, on which marriage the following poem was made by Foekonia Tjaardina Greidanus' brother Jan Idema Greidanus (N° 185 of this genealogy), the manuscript of which is in my possession:

"On the Marriage of A. Hottentot and my sister F. T. Greidanus
18 May 1845.
I will, newly-weds, I will venture
To offer you in doggerel
My wish at this wedding table.
May bride and bridegroom pardon me
If you find that the expression of my wish
Has turned out defective.
Taste, married pair, in this life,
Given us by God for a blessing,
Health, prosperity, without affliction;
Seek to bear with each other's failings
And to pursue sanctification,
Then your life is true happiness.
You newly-weds, I may say it
(For no one will contradict me)
That your choice was well considered,
That it, after mature deliberation,
After the bestowal of the Lord's blessing,
Has been brought about by both.
May your chimney smoke well,
May the oven also always be kept warm,
To your own advantage and gain.
This, married pair, may I flatter myself,
Will prosper for you together;
Exert to that end the strength of both.
I shall not point you to the duties
To be performed in the married life,
My brain is unfit for that,

For that in married life
One strives after the well-being of both
I know too well that you will affirm.
Whatever may come to pass,
May you both, yes, let all also know,
That I commend my Mother;
Her uprightness and her old age
Earn her in ample measure
The portion of a son's and a daughter's heart.
In the page of the Bible the All-Preserver says
That he who honours a good Mother
Is one of God's elect,
But also, that whoever should dare
To gnaw her bosom with grief,
Hell shall be his inheritance.
Idema."

Abraham Hottentot was a son of Sijmon Cornelisz. Hottentot and Trijntje Velthuijsen at Edam, and was baptized there on 1 February 1786, as appears from the following extract from the baptismal register of the Reformed Congregation at Edam, running from 1761 to 1811, kept in the Rijksarchief in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem:

"1 February 1786
Father. Sijmon Cornelisz. Hottentot.
Mother. Trijntje Velthuijsen
The child Abraham.
Godmother holding the child at baptism. Maartje Velthuijsen."

He was a baker at Edam and died there, at the age of 84 or nearly 84 years, on 19 January 1870.

180 DS. NICOLAÜS, PLUIM GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Ausonius 101II ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5II ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

His birth was recorded by his father as follows (see page 437):

"In the year 1799 on 12 April there was born at Kerklust by the St. Maartensbrug in the Zijpe, and on the 14th of the same month baptized, our third child, a little son named Nicolaüs Pluim Greidanus."

In the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at St. Maartensbrug, Zuid Zijpe, running from 1756 to 1800, kept in the State Archives of North Holland, at Haarlem, his baptismal entry reads as follows:

"14 April 1799.
A child baptized Nicolaus Pluym Greidanus
Father Do. Ausonius Greidanus minister in the Zuijd-Zijpe.
Mother. Metje Pluym
Witness. Belitje Hoogland."

Ds. Ausonius Greidanus thus added to his son's family name the family name "Pluym" of his wife, such additions being frequently made in those days by ministers and similar persons. This son has always been found with the family name "Pluim Greidanus"; with his children the addition "Pluim" occurs only occasionally, but with his grandchildren and up to the present with their descendants the name "Pluim" has no longer appeared. Why the name "Pluim" was again omitted is not known to me.

Nicolaüs Pluim Greidanus was enrolled on 10 June 1817 as a student of literature and theology at the University of Leiden. In the "Album Studiosorum Academiae Lugduno Batavae", published at 's-Gravenhage by Martinus Nijhoff in 1875, one finds in column 1246 the following entry concerning him:

"Under Rector SIMON SPEIJERT VAN DER EIJK
II. 1817.
June
10. Nicolaas Pluim Greidanus of Zijpe, Batavian. 18, L. and T."

He was Reformed minister in 1823 at Koedijk, in 1826 at Etersheim and Schardam, and in 1867 Emeritus, after which he settled at Bennekom. According to the "Boekzaal der Geleerde Wereld", 1832, p. 679, he appeared in that year on the list of twelve for minister at Bergen.

At Bennekom he died on 6 October 1878 at the age of 79 years, as appears from the following family announcements, and from the private communication in my possession given below:

" * * * Today there died, to my deep sorrow,
my beloved husband, Mr. N. PLUIM GREI-DANUS, in life Emeritus Minister, at the age of more than 79 years.
Widow W. C. J. PLUIM GREIDANUS,
née van WESEL.
Bennekom, 6 October 1878.
Sole notification."
" * * * For the many tokens of sympathy received on the death of my husband, I express my sincere thanks.
Widow W. C. J. PLUIM GREIDANUS,
née van WESEL.
Bennekom, 5 November 1878."
"Herewith I fulfil the sad duty of informing you that my beloved husband Mr.
N. PLUIM GREIDANUS, in life Emeritus Minister, today passed away gently and calmly, at the age of more than 79 years.
Widow W. C. J. PLUIM GREIDANUS,

Bennekom, née van Wesel.
6 October 1878."

MARRIED:

1° MARIA DOROTHEA BERG, 31 August 1823 at Zijpe, as appears from the following family announcement:

"+ Married:
N. PLUIM GREIDANUS,
Z ij p e, called as Minister at Koedijk, the 31st of August and 1823. MARIA DOROTHEA BERG."

She was born 16 December 1805 at Zuid-Scharwoude, as the daughter of Gerrit Frans Berg and Kato van Waard. Her baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at Zuid-Scharwoude, running from 1747 to 1826, kept in the State Archives of Noord-Holland at Haarlem, reads as follows:

"1805.
22 December. A child baptized named Maria Dorothea.
Of which the father was Gerrit Frans Berg.
Mother Kato van Waard.
This daughter was, according to the statement of the parents, born here on 16 Dec. 1805."

She died at Etersheim (Etershem) on 4 April 1845 at the age of 39 years, to which the following family announcement relates:

"+ Today I was, with both my Children, plunged into the deepest mourning by the death of my much-beloved Wife and careful Mother MARIA DOROTHEA BERG; she reached the age of thirty-nine years and almost four months; yet, however dark His ways may be, we wish to be silent before God.
N. PLUIM GREIDANUS.
E t e r s h e m, near Oosthuizen, 4 April 1845."

2° Willemina Clasina Johanna van Wesel, 13 April 1848 at Amsterdam, as appears from the following family announcements:

"Betrothed:
N. PLUIM GREIDANUS,
Widower, Minister at Etersheim and annexes,
and
A m s t e r d a m, 30 March 1848. W. C. J. VAN WESEL."
"+ Married:
A m s t e r d a m, N. PLUIM GREIDANUS,
13 April 1848. Minister at Etersheim and annexes, and Sole notification. W. C. J. van WESEL."
"+ TWENTY-FIVE-YEAR MARRIAGE of the Reverend
N. PLUIM GREIDANUS, em. Minister, and
W. C. J. van WESEL.
B e n n e k o m, 13 April 1873."
"+ Mr. and Mrs. PLUIM GREIDANUS hereby express to relatives and friends their heartfelt thanks for the many proofs of esteem and distinction received on the occasion of their birthdays and 25th wedding anniversary.
B e n n e k o m, 24 April 1873."

Willemina Clasina Johanna van Wesel was born 13 April 1799 at Amsterdam, as the daughter of Hendrik van Wesel and Johanna Smit. Her entry on folio 196 of the Baptismal Register of the Zuiderkerk at Amsterdam reads as follows:

"1799
Sunday 28 April by the Rev. van Voorst
1 child
Willemina Clasina Johanna
B.: 13 April
F. Hendrik van Wesel
M. Johanna Smit.
W. Willem Smit and Gerridina Clasina Brandt."

Hendrik van Wesel was "master cabinetmaker" at Amsterdam. This is taken from a will of Margaretha Broeland, executed 5 May 1780 before notary G. Bouman at Amsterdam, in which she appointed as executor Hendrik van Wesel, "master cabinetmaker", who in his first marriage had been married to a sister or other relative of the said Margaretha Broeland, namely Johanna Margaretha Broeland or Bruland.

Willemina Clasina Johanna van Wesel reached the age of 87 years and died at Bennekom on 29 July 1886. All this appears from the following family announcements:

(1886) "Mrs. the Widow N. PLUIM GREIDANUS-VAN WESEL, at Bennekom, hereby expresses her kind thanks to Relatives, Friends and Acquaintances for the many tokens of interest shown to her on the occasion of her 87th Birthday on 13 April last."
" Today died, at the age of over 87 years, our beloved mother and grandmother WILLEMINA CLASINA JOHANNA van WESEL, widow of the Reverend and Very Learned Mr. Nicolaas Pluim Greidanus.
Bennekom, A. GREIDANUS.
29 July 1886. L. PEEREBOOM.
Sole and general notification."
"For the many tokens of sympathy received at the death of our esteemed Mother and Grandmother, WILLEMINA CLASINA JOHANNA VAN WESEL, Widow of the Reverend and Very Learned Mr. NICOLAAS PLUIM GREIDANUS, we hereby express, also on behalf of the further Family, our heartfelt thanks.
Avenhorn, A. GREIDANUS.

Of Ds. Nicolaüs Pluim Greidanus with his 2nd wife a portrait after a photographic exposure has been included among the portraits.

181 TJARDUS GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Ausonius 101II ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5II ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

His father Ds. Ausonius Greidanus recorded his birth as follows (see page 437):

"1802 on 20 November was born at Kerklust in the Zijpe and on the 28th of the same month baptized our 4th child, the 2nd son
named Tjardus."

Below follows an extract, concerning his baptismal entry, from the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at St. Maartensbrug, Zuid-Zijpe, running from 1801 to 1813, kept in the State Archives in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem:

"28 November 1802
A child baptized named Tjardus.
Father. A. Greidanus. minister in the Z. Zijpe.
Mother. Metje Pluim.
Witness. Jantje Borst."

Tjardus Greidanus was appointed Surnumerair (supernumerary clerk) in the tax service by K.B. (Royal Decree) of 27 December 1826 at the Inspectorate at Hoorn. In 1828, in his charge of the office of Zijpe and Petten, he was assisted by his brother Jan Idema, 10 years younger (N° 185 of this genealogy). On account of the Belgian disturbances, the state officials were obliged to take service in the army. Because of his weak health he could not comply with this. He therefore remained successively in various acting capacities in the function. By Decree of the Governor of Overijsel of 8 June 1832 he was appointed Commies (clerk) with the Provincial Government in Overijsel, at Zwolle, where he married on 27 May 1834. Through a reorganization of the service he received honourable discharge on 30 April 1844 and was then without a living. By K.B. of 21 August 1844

N° 19 he was however appointed Ontvanger der Belastingen (tax collector) at Goor and Diepenheim; for want of a dwelling there he had to leave his family behind in Zwolle until May 1845, when he was able to find a poor sort of house. In April 1848 he was appointed Ontvanger at Dalfsen, on 31 July 1860 at Heusden and in November 1864 at Heerenveen, where he was honourably discharged at his own request in March 1870. He settled as a private citizen without office on 1 May 1870 at Harderwijk, in February 1877 at Haarlem, in October 1877 with his children at Dalfsen on "de Ruytenborgh" and in the spring of 1879 in the village of Dalfsen itself, where he died on 1 July 1882 at the age of 79 years.

His autobiography has been preserved, which is now in the keeping of his grandson Dr. H. Th. van Wimersma Greidanus at Utrecht (N° 457 of this genealogy), and follows below:

"Particulars of the life of T. GREIDANUS, set down in writing by himself.

Tjardus Greidanus was born at the St. Maartensbrug in the Zijpe, at the house Kerklust, on 20 November 1802. Of his earliest youth he can remember nothing, but according to what his parents said, a serious illness must have brought him to the brink of the grave when he was just over four years old, from which, after long ailing, he gradually recovered, yet retained a very weak and sensitive constitution. Only from the time when he attended the public village school has any conscious recollection of experiences of life remained with him, which amount to this: That he was soon fully accomplished in pranks, that he had a great fondness for boys' games such as rolling hoops, playing marbles, spinning tops and the like, so that his trouser pockets were filled to bursting with all manner of objects of that kind, while his eagerness to learn left a good deal to be desired, so that the worthy schoolmaster Frans Jongerling, who was however equipped with but little scholarly knowledge, could hardly boast of the desire to learn of his pupil, who, besides playing, preferred to occupy himself with his passion for angling with the rod when the season allowed it, rather than to gain knowledge and practice in learning to read, write and reckon, all of which moreover had little that was attractive about it, given the public education of that day, which stood at a very low level, indeed was given in a very mechanical manner. The turbulent circumstances of the years 1811, 1812 and 1813 had made an impression, not only upon grown people, but also upon the youthful mind, and it has not escaped the writer of this that after the incorporation in 1811 of the then so-called Kingship of Holland into the French empire, under the iron sceptre of the oppressor Napoleon I, who would gladly have laid down the law to all Europe, a general despondency, rancour and resentment prevailed everywhere; of that time, when most sources of livelihood had dried up and trade and shipping were crippled, and only agriculture could keep itself going through the rising prices of grain and other articles of food, which caused a general dearness, the writer of this remembers that in the year 1812 he beheld the first cavalry soldier, namely in the mounted guard, which accompanied the usurper Emperor Nap. I as a bodyguard on his journey in this country to den Helder and the island of Texel, all of them splendidly turned out, the head covered with a brass helmet to which horsetails were fastened, hanging down over the back, all of which had a fine appearance — thereupon followed in November 1813 the blessed turn of affairs, since the allied powers dethroned and banished him to the island of Elba, and as a result of which a number of Frenchmen placed here in this country as officials fled from it, and the house of Oranje Nassau, which had gone into exile in 1795, took up the reins of government again, being invited to do so by right-thinking patriotic men, such as the Counts Van der Duyn, Van Hogendorp and prof. Kemper, and that as sovereign Prince, later acclaimed as King Willem I over the Netherlands united with Belgium; thereupon followed in 1814, at some places, still anxious political days; in the neighbourhood the siege of the fort Kijkduin near den Helder, where the French Vice-admiral Verheull had established himself with a garrison of 2200 soldiers, and which required from the provisional government (which was utterly destitute of soldiers) the formation of corps (Landstorm), called pikemen, who together with the militia from Alkmaar, and backed by some hundred Russian Cossacks (marauders or undisciplined troops), were charged with keeping a watchful eye on the garrison of the aforesaid fort, until after the lapse of some time a capitulation followed with free withdrawal of the garrison, and this stronghold too, which had remained in the power of the French, passed with others elsewhere to the new government. That all this made much impression upon the youthful heart, which the number of the years does not efface, but which always remains, will surely need no proving to such as bear a warm heart towards Fatherland and Prince. Restraining my inclination to reflections on this matter, I will confine myself again to the school years, which came to an end when I was just over 14, in order to proceed to the choice of a calling, something which has so much influence upon the destiny of every individual. After much pondering and weighing of the matter, on 3 November 1817 I entered as apprentice with the notary and Burgomaster T. Waagmeester at Warmenhuizen, not yet fully 15 years old and equipped with nothing but common sense, without any scholarly experience whatever, unable to write Dutch soundly or to express myself correctly in it. Having barely outgrown my childhood years, the office work in the beginning could afford me little that was agreeable, given my slight general knowledge of affairs; it is true that at my Father's I had attended the lessons in the Latin language between school hours, by learning words by heart and studying the grammar, but the progress made in it was slight or poor, so that on my placement at Warmenhuizen it was thought advisable to take private lessons in the French language with the schoolmaster P. Mink; but I soon noticed that the good man himself was not well versed in that language, and therefore soon gave it up. My employer T. Waagmeester was likewise no great scholar in the notarial office, and it was therefore to be foreseen that with that gentleman (a lover of wine-drinking and of strong liquors) I should not profit much for the future. To my great satisfaction, however, I there became acquainted with the state Ontvanger, Mr. W. J. Slijper, a very cultivated, very learned and worthy man, who occupied rooms in the same house where I was a boarder. In the daily company of that gentleman I passed pleasant years and learned much, spending most of the long winter evenings either working, reading or talking about scholarly subjects, and now and then assisting his honour in his sphere of work as collector, also of the municipal revenues, whereby perhaps some fondness was awakened in me for the branch of taxation; the notarial office, however, remained the main thing, and my employer obtained for the countryside a relatively good practice, in which his honour was faithfully assisted by me with zeal and promptitude, so that, after the lapse of two or three years, I obtained a considerable allowance, more than sufficient to meet my board money of f 3.25 a week. Warmenhuizen is a quiet, monotonous and remote village, having however a relative prosperity, inhabited exclusively by the farming class (dairy farming), with grassy meadows, clay soil: there was thus no question of associating with any young people other than farm boys, for which the writer of this felt neither inclination nor need, and it still stands vividly before my mind how happy I was in winter when the Thursday evening of the week had come, so as to be able to take part in the game of omber in the company of my employer, the priest of the village, a certain Vinckers, and the Ontvanger (tax collector) Slijper; other recreation was among the rarities, in summer going fishing a few times with the trammel nets. The cold, indeed severe winter of 1822 to 1823 I spent at Warmenhuizen; a fiercer and colder east wind than there was on the 24th, 25th and 26th of January 1823 I have never experienced; it was dangerous to be out of doors, since postillions and carters sometimes returned home from their journeys with frozen hands, ears or feet, notwithstanding the precautions taken. The rapid passing of that cold and its replacement by a mild, indeed balmy south wind was likewise remarkable, and had as a result that the ice in the inland waterways, frozen to the very bottom, was, despite complete calm, entirely cleared away within a few days.

At the beginning of the year 1824 my employer was, to my no small joy, transferred at his own request as notary to the town of Alkmaar, but that gladness soon changed into vexation, for after having in 1824 worked several times for His Honour at Alkmaar as clerk, with the increasing town practice, my employer decided to attach to his office a candidate-notary more skilled in the matter, to remove me as the old employee, temporarily as it was called, and to make me return to Warmenhuizen, in order to conduct his administration there in civil matters, also as collector of dike and polder levies and otherwise, so that of the notarial office I profited in nothing but the making of copies and extracts of deeds. That state of affairs, together with other unlawful or at least not excusable practices which my employer in my opinion took in hand, worked in every way to the detriment of the study of the notarial office, and made me consider passing over to other functions. An attempt to be placed at a commercial office on the Zaan side failed; likewise an application to be appointed to the vacancy of Griffier (clerk of the court) at the Vredegeregt (justice of the peace court) at Zijpe. Thereupon efforts were made to be appointed as collector of the taxes at Schermerhorn, likewise fruitlessly, but with the promise that at a suitable opportunity the necessary regard would be paid to my person, until in the summer of 1826 an audience was requested and obtained with the Councillor of State, Governor of North Holland, Mr. Van Tets van Goudriaan, who later shone as Minister of Finance, to whom I made application for placement as State collector elsewhere. His Excellency, an exceedingly eloquent and withal popular man, received me very courteously and humanely, declared that he would gladly oblige me, but could not, as His Excellency expressed himself, create offices or remove others for my benefit, yet, in view of the great number of candidates to whom, as well as to my person, regard had to be paid by the head administration, suggested to me that I should become Surnumerair (supernumerary) with the State revenues, in which case I should after some time step in as Ontvanger. However gladly I wished to enter that branch, I could not, being fairly well salaried as a notary's clerk, resolve upon it, pretending that in that respect I first had to consult my parents, to whom I afterwards declared that I could not resolve upon it, as it would require too great expenses for board, lodging and the like. After the lapse, however, of two or three months, still working at the office at Warmenhuizen, the old gentleman received a letter from the aforesaid Governor, to the effect that in case I should still desire, in accordance with the proposal made, to be admitted to the rank of Surnumerair, there was now an opportunity for it, and that His Honour in that case would await word without delay. Whereupon my father, without thinking it necessary to inform me of it, replied that such an appointment would be agreeable to His Honour. The appointment as Surnumerair was consequently not long in coming and followed by Royal Decree of 27 December 1826, with orders in the month of January 1827 to betake myself as speedily as possible to the Arrond. Inspectie (district inspectorate) at Hoorn, in order to be installed there after taking the oath and to be employed. Not particularly pleased with the placement at Hoorn, on account of my complete unfamiliarity with that town, I departed thither on 21 January 1827, having first taken a very cool leave of my employer, in freezing weather, so that the shipping was blocked in the afternoon of the next day, and, continuing the journey from Alkmaar by carriage, I reached my destination in the afternoon of the 22nd of January, yet still in time to present myself in the early evening to Mr. Inspector Van Stralen, without however being admitted on account of the man's indisposition, but receiving on his part the order to present myself in the forenoon of the following day, 23 January, at the Zeekantoor, where the Inspection Bureau was established, in order to be installed in office by Mr. P. Opperdoes Alewijn, at that time Controleur (revenue inspector) at Enkhuizen, as being charged with Mr. Van Stralen's functions during his indisposition. Betaking myself at the appointed time and place, I met there, together with and besides the clerk named Tate, the Surnumerair N. C. J. Velius Baart, made the acquaintance of him and of Mr. P. v. Alewijn, and was by the latter, after taking the oath in writing, installed in office.

At the beginning and in the continuation the work pleased me well enough, less so the lodging which I had provided for myself, having, in order to save expense, taken board in the family of the schoolmaster Alders and his wife behind the great Church next to the Zeekantoor, without a room of my own; and this because the married couple did not live on the best of terms on account of the absence of the head of the family in the evenings, which soon made me consider exchanging my boarding house for that with a certain shopkeeper J. Bus on the corner of the Kerk- and Muntstraat opposite the Town Hall, where I went to occupy a spacious room with adjoining bedroom together with a certain notary's clerk J. W. Roelofss Valk of Zaandam, and with which agreeable person a bond of friendship was entered into by me lasting until his death, which occurred on 1 May 1868. Meanwhile I soon became acquainted with various persons, and in particular with the acting Ontvanger of the Excise Duties there, the Surnumerair Geraerds Thesing, whom, to shorten the long winter evenings (the Inspection Bureau was closed in the evening), I assisted in keeping up his writings. Furthermore I next made the acquaintance of the Surnumerair Ouwens of Alkmaar, an altogether courteous and agreeable young man, who, on account of the appointment of Mr. P. v. Alewijn as Controleur at Hoorn, during the continuing indispositions of Mr. Inspector Van Stralen, had been added to and took part in the work of the Inspection; while I also spent idle hours in an agreeable manner with the above-mentioned Mr. Opperdoes Alewijn and soon acquired his full confidence, he entrusting to me during a fortnight's leave in the month of May 1827 the performance of his function. The Surn. Velius Baart being meanwhile charged with the administration of a vacant collectorship, I continued to work at the Inspection without any earnings, but later received as a compensation a gratuity of f 75.— from the Legeskas (fund of official fees), which came in particularly useful in my penniless condition.

In the last days of May 1828 I succeeded, upon the withdrawal of the temporary charge of the Controle (district controllership) of Hoorn, in being assigned the interim administration of the office of the Ontvanger (receiver of taxes) Voorstad at Zijpe and Petten, who had been suspended on account of disorder in his management — the first-named place being where my father was established and active as minister, so that I could provisionally lodge in the parental home, though I had to keep office daily at the Schagerbrug, half an hour distant from my father's parsonage, which I kept up until late autumn, when I decided to take up my quarters in the inn at the Schagerbrug with the widow Kooper, being meanwhile assisted, for his training in the profession, by my nearly 10 years younger brother Jan.

After having managed the aforesaid office for more than 7 months, by Governor's Decree of 7 January 1829 N^{o} 12/128 I was charged with the administration of the vacant receivership at Schagen, only $^{3}/_{4}$ hour distant from the Schagerbrug, where, the day after handing over the management to the new incumbent Geraerdt Thesing aforementioned, and thus on the 13th of that month of January, I was installed in office by the Controleur Jonkheer Gerh. Pieter van Vladeracken, a man of noble pride, anything but popular. At Schagen I was permitted to remain at work about 6 months, when, upon the filling of that vacancy and the handing over of that office to the newly appointed Ontvanger Brouwer on 30 June 1829, by virtue of the Governor's Decree of 14 July 1829 N^{o} 26/8660, I was charged with the interim management of the office of Receipt of the duties and excises at Hoorn, which management I took over from the Surnumerair (supernumerary official) J. J. Lieveloo, who was at that time charged with it and was appointed Controleur at Monnikendam on 30 July 1829, and I was employed there for seven months, thus up to and including 29 January 1830, transferring that management to the Captain at Sea P. S. L. van Wickevoort Crommelin, who had been appointed Ontvanger of those revenues, so that from then on I again placed myself as Surnumerair under the orders of the Arrondissement Inspector A. van Sijpestein, meanwhile appointed at Hoorn, after having received the assignment to be of occasional assistance to the appointed Ontvanger Crommelin, as a newcomer in the profession, in the proper handling of matters at his office.

After having been charged for about $1^{1}/_{2}$ years with fairly well paid receiverships and having saved f 900.— therefrom by thrifty management, I now had henceforth, being without earnings, to live upon that during my continued stay at Hoorn, until in the month of December of that year the Belgian disturbances developed and by Royal proclamation the cry of To Arms, To Arms, was raised to all, the Schutterijen (civic militias) were declared mobile and incorporated in the Army as separate corps equipped for battle, while all state officials who did not voluntarily join the colours had to state in writing the reasons which prevented their voluntary enlistment. Among the latter I had to rank myself, not from lack of patriotism or of sufficient sympathy for the Illustrious House of Orange, a descendant of which, as King Willem I, had reigned since the year 1815 over the United Kingdom of Belgium with the North Netherlands — by no means — but because my weak constitution and physical strength did not allow me to endure the fatigues of war with the bearing of arms, having on that account in earlier days been rejected as a militiaman, although I had drawn a number liable to service. Meanwhile many, both married men and bachelors, gave heed to the call To Arms, among whom also: the Controleur P. Opperdoes Alewijn at Hoorn, who obtained permission to depart with the mobile part of the town militia, retaining $^{3}/_{4}$ part of his salary of f 1400 a year, with the Army in the rank of Captain in one of the militia corps, while by the 2nd paragraph of the Governor's Decree of 19 November 1830 N^{o} 10/13419 there was assigned to me, without charge to the state, the functions of Controleur at Hoorn during the absence of the incumbent, in which functions, notwithstanding my work at the Inspection (consisting of the drawing up of the Arrondissement monthly return and matters connected therewith), assisted as clerk by the youth of 16 years of age Willem Alewijn, brother of the Controleur, I served from 20 December 1830 up to and including 20 August 1832, when, upon my request to that effect, I obtained honourable discharge as Surnumerair temporarily charged with the functions of Controleur at Hoorn, in order to pass over to other functions in the branch, to which I saw myself impelled by particular circumstances, namely the few promotions which at that time fell to the lot of the Surnumerairs, since most appointments upon a vacancy in the rank of Ontvanger were made to persons outside the branch, and my desire, at nearly thirty years of age, to be able to provide for my own maintenance by holding a salaried post and no longer to be a burden to my parents. On these grounds, being approached by third parties, I accepted, by Decree of the Governor of Over Yssel of 8 June 1832, made to provide for the fulfilment of the duties of the Commies (clerk) at the Directie at Zwolle, an appointment as Comm. (Adj.) of the 2nd class with the Provincial Government in Over Yssel, at a yearly salary of f 600, without prejudice to the due share in the Leges (official fees). Having only obtained my discharge as acting Controleur at Hoorn on 20 August 1832, I departed thence, after a hearty farewell had been called out to me by a number of acquaintances, on 23 August 1832, having some time before paid a visit to and taken a hearty leave of the so beloved and worthy parental couple at Zijpe, unaware that it would be the last time it would be granted me to meet one of them, namely my highly esteemed Father, on this earth.

Upon my arrival in Zwolle I at once took up the functions of Chef de Bureau in the department of Taxation etc. under the immediate orders of the Provincial Inspector in the branch, Mr. van Hanswijk etc., a man who, as soon appeared to me, lacked common sense and who personally was reluctant to concern himself with the handling of affairs, which before my coming had also been less required of him, when he was supported in his sphere of work by the 1st Commies W. Grobbé (called to other functions), an excellent, indeed accomplished official in the branch, whose equal or match, after a service of more than 40 years, I have not met with, so that I, having formed myself without any special training, soon perceived that I was not conversant with all the branches of the extensive administrative management, the consequence of which was that I had to apply myself thoroughly to the studies for the various branches and to master a number of laws and instructions, for which in the first period, given the total lack of acquaintances and friends, there was good opportunity in the hours that remained to me from the usual time appointed for the work at the Bureau premises. The officials and clerks placed under me, all of them coming from the Province, viewed my placement among them with reluctance, and at the outset I found little support and help from these young men, fellow workers, most of whom, being of lower station, had little sympathy with me, and with none of whom, except the Adj. Commies Vituarius (the son of a former Naval officer), could a friendly association could be attempted, and for which he was also less suitable on account of deafness. After a stay of only three months at Zwolle, and having meanwhile received one reassuring letter from my Father, my feelings were violently affected and shaken by the receipt of a letter from the schoolmaster Frans Jongerling of St. Maartensbrug, precisely on my birthday 20 November 1832, reporting my Father's alarming condition through attacks of fever, followed by a mucous stroke. Whereupon on the following day there followed, from the same schoolmaster, the news of the man's calm and submissive passing away on the 21st of that month, not yet having reached the age of 67, and this to the great sorrow both of myself and of his other sons and daughters, and no less to the regret of his parishioners, by most of whom the deceased was highly esteemed, beloved and honoured. The advanced season of the year, together with the great distance and the then deficient means of passenger transport, did not allow me to be at the house of mourning in time to be present at the burial of the mortal remains of the beloved Father, which was likewise the case with the other sons of the deceased, except the eldest son Nicolaas Pluim, at that time minister at Etersheim and Schardam near Hoorn, who alone was able to attend this mournful duty. Overwhelmed with sorrow at this unexpected death, deprived of the conversation of family and good friends, nothing remained for me but to obtain distraction and encouragement in the circle of my official duties, with application and zealous striving to qualify myself more and more, with the happy result that, after having worked for a good year to the satisfaction of my superiors, I might rejoice in promotion in rank and increase of salary, which, in the prospect of further promotion, made me at my advanced age consider entering into a marriage, since the life of a lodger had entirely lost its attraction in the absence of friends and acquaintances. To that end, after previous acquaintance, I made known my inclination to the eldest Daughter of Mr. Jacobus Bodde, begotten in marriage with Johanna Buisman, then a person of private means living in the Diezerstraat at Zwolle, with the result on her side that, the consent having soon been spoken, with the approval of both families our marriage was solemnized at the Town Hall at Zwolle on 27 May 1834, and afterwards, at the house of the bride's parents, blessed in church by my eldest Brother Ds. N. Pluim aforesaid.

At the beginning our union did not answer expectation, owing to indisposition on my part. For some days before the solemnization I had an attack of Rheumatism, from which I had earlier suffered for some time at the age of 18 and later while at Hoorn, though at that time less severely; this affliction soon increased to such a degree that I had constantly to keep to my bed, could not walk, indeed could not even stand without support, being continually in need of help (faithfully nursed by my youthful Spouse and receiving her loving care), and had to undergo a course of baths, upon which some relief followed, and with the use of suitable remedies, prescribed by two Doctors, complete recovery followed in the month of August.

From then on it could be said that married life had begun, and change soon came with alternation of bright and dark sides, namely through the birth of children in the month of August 1835 and in May 1837, both of a daughter, while in July 1838 a son was born to us.

In the month of December of that year I received, in addition to my work at the Provincial Government, the interim administration of the Control of Zwolle, arising from the transfer to other functions of the incumbent M. P. Bicker Caarten, together with the honourable commission from the council of the City of Zwolle to perform the duties of Controller over the Municipal Revenues, which interim lasted about four months, much to the benefit of the financial administration and to the satisfaction of both sets of superiors, and concerning which, as far as the State finances are concerned, the very flattering letter of the then Arrondissement Inspector C. A. van Everdingen can testify, especially with regard to a gauging, carried out by his order and under my supervision as acting Controller, with precise weighing of the stock of salt and brine in store in the two salt-works then operating at Zwolle.

In the year 1840, precisely on the birthday of the eldest Daughter (13 Aug.), a fourth child was granted to us in the birth of a girl, and in the course of 1841 I was promoted, without increase of salary (which had gradually risen to f 950), to the rank of Commies, in which I continued to serve until the separation of the revenues from the Provincial Governments, by virtue of His Majesty's Decree of 25 October 1843 N^{o} 65, as a consequence of which, by the Governor's Decree of 30 April 1844, an honourable discharge from the service followed, but without claim to a pension. So that I (being unable to assert any claim to a pension) became on 1 May 1844 a Citizen without office, as it were without bread, with wife and three children, since the girl born in 1840 had come to die in the month of November after a painful illness of eight months.

However wisely the High Government had resolved to replace in the department of Revenues, as vacancies occurred, the officials who had thus fallen out, and however much every effort was made on my part to be appointed as Controller, yet I received, without having applied for it, by Royal Decree of 21 Aug. 1844 N^{o} 19 the not very desirable appointment as Ontvanger (receiver of taxes) at Goor and Diepenveen in remote Twenthe.

After having lived half a year without earnings, on my wife's own means, obtained from[?] both her parents, I took up the duties on 1 November 1844 at the station of Goor, leaving wife and children behind at Zwolle for lack of a dwelling there, and that with a loss of income of f 500 a year compared with what I had enjoyed as Commies. That the taking up of the duties had little attraction for me in so entirely strange a region as remote Goor in Twenthe (6 hours' walk distant from the towns of Zutphen and Deventer), and that too at the beginning of the winter season, separated from the Family, is not to be doubted, something which indeed soon became apparent since the common people literally spoke an unintelligible language, not to be understood without the interpretation of the Clerk: and which servant, a courteous, trustworthy young man, was of great use to me and stood me in good stead in the many exertions which the excise on milling and the holding of sitting days elsewhere brought about. Thereupon followed a fairly severe winter with long-lasting frost into the spring of 1845, to such a degree that the Maas before Rotterdam was frozen and covered with ice in such a way that on both Easter days one found tents with victuals on that River, the public could merrily skate upon it and ate Easter eggs on the ice, circumstances which seldom occur.

Having long looked out in vain for obtaining a suitable dwelling at Goor, I succeeded in this in a manner which still left much to be desired, so that at the beginning of May 1845 the family took up residence with me, far from comfortably, but from that moment intent on making efforts to improve our lot by transfer elsewhere, but always in vain, until at the beginning of April 1848, thus after having been banished to Goor for $3^{1}/_{2}$ years, I succeeded in being appointed Ontvanger (tax receiver) at Dalfsen near Zwolle, which in so far amounted to promotion in that, besides an increase in income, I was placed in a more agreeable and better known region, although through the abolition of the emolument for issuing permits for the grinding of untaxed grain the remuneration diminished by about f 200, and had only risen to the sum of about f 900 a year, after deduction of the costs of administration. Added to this came the expenses for an increased surety together with removal costs in May 1848, the family increased in 1846 by the birth of a daughter, and in 1847 and in 1848 each time by a son, so that the number of living children had risen to six and the proceeds, with the rise in house rent, were insufficient to meet the necessary expenses given the rise in the price of foodstuffs for so large a family, so that what was lacking had to be supplied out of my own means. This state of affairs, still somewhat supported by my lawful share of $^{1}/_{2}$ portion in the estate of my mother, who at that time died at Edam at the age of over 79 years, insufficient income that is, coupled with considerable medical expenses of both heads of the family during the more than twelve years' residence at Dalfsen, lasted until the year 1860, when at last, after manifold disappointments in my efforts to improve my lot, my request for transfer to the vacant collectorship of Heusden in Noord-Braband was granted, where the duties were begun on 31 July 1860 and four years and three months were spent amid varying life experiences on account of indisposition of myself and my family, but always with increasing income. It was also at Heusden that we with pity beheld the misery which a high water level of the rivers during freezing weather can bring about in that part of Gelderland near Heusden, and which were of such a nature that a number of inhabitants saw their houses flooded and fled in haste, some leaving behind their goods and chattels, others taking with them what was portable, and sought shelter or refuge within that town, where, provisionally housed in public buildings, through the charity of well-meaning friends of mankind, who had formed themselves into a committee for that purpose, they were fed, nursed and housed in an altogether suitable manner for a considerable time. More than 300 refugees were provided with necessities in that town alone, while from far and near all kinds of necessaries for clothing, cleaning and feeding were brought in and distributed in the most obliging manner.

After this followed, after an unsuccessful attempt to be appointed Ontvanger at Franeker, in 1864 my transfer to the office of Heerenveen in Friesland with an increase of collection fee. On the evening of 31 October 1864, the handing over of the Heusden office having been completed, we departed thence with goods and chattels by tjalk ship, hired expressly for the purpose at great cost, by way of Gorinchem, Gouda and the Ringvaart of the Haarlemmermeer, and arrived in fine autumn weather on the evening of 3 November at Haarlem. The fear which the skipper entertained of reaching in good time the further voyage across the Zuiderzee as far as de Lemmer and thence inland to Heerenveen, made me decide in the early morning of 4 November to leave the tjalk ship, and in order to hasten the arrival, accompanied by my youngest son Gerh., I departed by rail to Amsterdam and thence by steamboat to Harlingen, where we arrived in the evening about five o'clock, in order thence to reach Leeuwarden by rail, in which town we both arrived shortly after seven o'clock in the evening, taking up our lodging with brother-in-law Hellema, at whose house we spent the night, and the following morning about ten o'clock by stagecoach reached the new station Heerenveen, just in time to be able to take up the duties after the close of office hours on the evening of 5 November 1864. For the present, awaiting the arrival of the tjalk ship, lodging in the Heeren Logement there, while my wife and both youngest daughters (who had remained on board) reached the harbour of de Lemmer on Sunday afternoon and had themselves conveyed thence by carriage to Heerenveen, where they arrived in the evening about six o'clock in excellent health, and the tjalk ship followed at midday on Monday 7 November 1864.

Just as at Heusden, I was able at Heerenveen (for 5 years and 5 months) to fulfil my official duties with satisfaction, except for the small unpleasantnesses on account of dishonesty committed by the accredited assistant Bosscher, but the housing at both stations left much to be desired, when, urged thereto by circumstances, such as my years, the decline of bodily and mental strength, and the lack of assistance by others on account of the appointment of my son Gerhard, who worked at my office, as Surnumerair in the service, I decided humbly to request His Majesty the King to grant me honourable discharge from the service of the State with retention of claim to a pension. This discharge having soon been graciously granted, the transfer of the archive of the office took place on 31 March 1870, after a completed period of service in the branch of more than 43 years, in order to return to an officeless, untroubled life with the enjoyment of an allotted pension of f 1383 a year. If during that period I sometimes experienced disappointment, yes even lack of appreciation, much that was good and gratifying, which aroused self-satisfaction, likewise fell to my lot, in that I was able on the whole to be on the best terms with my superiors, indeed to be treated with distinction by most of them, and (a few cases excepted) to enjoy from the side of the public every sign of esteem and goodwill, while with satisfaction and gratitude mention could be made of the six children brought up by the parental couple and formed into useful members of society, however much, as regards the sons, this was accompanied by considerable financial sacrifices in order to make them fit and capable for a career of their own, and all which children have up to the present distinguished themselves by irreproachable, indeed praiseworthy conduct, since each of them has striven to make a proper use of the gifts bestowed upon them; witness thereof the three daughters, who successively entered into marriage with their worthy husbands, and the three sons, who have all been placed in careers suited to them, in such a manner that they, subject to the ever necessary prudence and the practice of thrift, are able to provide for their own maintenance in a becoming way, truly a gratifying self-satisfaction for the parental couple to be so favoured in this above others. May it remain so with perseverance in what is good with and by all, coupled with constant zeal and praiseworthy diligence in the sphere in which each, whether Sons or Daughters, is placed, and which will surely rouse the parents in the hour of death, which indeed may not be long in coming, yes perhaps may follow soon, to heartfelt gratitude, calm disposition of mind and full contentment in God's ordering, ways and works.

On leaving the station Heerenveen in April 1870, it was thought fit, in consideration of the then existing high rents of dwellings in connection with the means necessary for a livelihood, to leave Friesland, the cradle of the ancient family, as a place of residence, and from 1 May 1870 to settle in the town of Harderwijk, where the eldest son had for some years taken up residence as an apothecary and who in April 1870 entered into marriage with a certain Johanna Prins, in order, barring pressing circumstances which might make residence there inadvisable, to pass the remaining days of life in rest and calm contentment and peace of mind within that town until the last hour.

Thus drawn up and sketched in my own hand and faithfully by me in December 1873.

Postscript of 29 Sept. 1879.

The final period has not been recorded as regards the dwelling place at Harderwijk, because circumstances arose in that town which required a removal elsewhere in the year 1876. After having converted some superfluous household goods into money, we departed in February 1877 for Haarlem (having until that time lodged with one of the Daughters at Heerenveen), to occupy two or three unfurnished rooms with board and lodging with respectable folk on the Spaarne, which however was of short duration owing to indispositions and increasing infirmities and other matters, all of which made it advisable, for better nursing, to establish our residence in the month of October 1877 at the house of the children at the Ruitenborgh, where amid alternating lingering ill health the winter of 1877/8 was passed, as also that of 1878/9. But in the early spring of 1879 there unexpectedly became vacant a small but very neat dwelling in the village on the street opposite the church tower, which, with the improving health of us both, was after mature deliberation rented, in order there, assisted by a lady as housekeeper, to open or set up a hearth of our own once more, — which began on 14 May 1879 and up to now, notwithstanding a few drawbacks, suits us fairly well, especially because of the nearness of the family of the eldest of the daughters and also because of the better opportunity for the other children to visit us now and then.

May the All-good God and Father be and remain ever near to us and of help to us on the further path of life, and grant a calm hour of death in His own time.

Jacobus Bodde belonged to Dr. Gerrit Bodde's descendants, who for a long time had a drapery shop on the Nieuwe Markt at Zwolle (see the note on page 18, 2nd volume of M^rs van Doorninck and Nanninga Uiterdijk "Bijdragen tot de Geschiedenis van Overijssel", Tijl, Zwolle, 1875). In 1803 Jacobus Bodde inherited from his mother's stepmother two houses on the corner of the Aa and the Diezerstraat, to which the drapery business, at that time the only cloth shop in Zwolle, was then transferred.

Gerridina Jacoba Johanna Bodde, of whom a portrait appears among the portraits, died 26 February 1883 at Dalfsen at the age of 74, as appears from the following family announcement:

"Today there died, at the age of a little over 74 years, our beloved Mother and Mother-in-law, Mrs. the Widow G. J. J. GREIDANUS—BODDE.
In the name of all,
A. GREIDANUS,
Dalfsen, 26 Febr. 1883."

Attached hereto is a draft: fragment-genealogy of the family "Bodde", which settled at Zwolle in the 17th century and presumably originates from the County of Bentheim, at that time the Bishopric of Munster, where the family name "Bodde" occurs. There is likewise attached an illustration of the family coat of arms of the said family, of which the heraldic description (the colours are unknown) is as follows:

3 horses' heads, 2 and 1. Crest: an eagle.

182 JOANNES HENRICUS GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Ausonius 101[II] ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5[II] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Sint Maartensbrug, 7 February 1805 · son of Ds. Ausonius Greidanus (N° 101) and Trijntje Willems Houtsma

Concerning him the following was recorded by his father Ds. Ausonius Greidanus at the front of a small bible (see page 437):

> "1805 on 7 February there was born at Kerklust > in the Zijpe our 5th child, 3rd son > and on the 10th of the same baptized, being named > Joannes Henricus, but he died on 11 April 1806, aged 14 months."

His baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at St.-Maartensbrug, Zuid-Zijpe, running from 1801 to 1813, kept in the State Archives in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem, reads as follows:

"10 February 1805.
A child baptized Joannes Henricus.
Father. Do. Ausonius Greidanus.
Mother. Metje Pluim.
Witness Jeltje Dissel.
B. Z.-Zijpe 7 February 1805."

In the Register of deceased persons in de Zijpe, running from 1806 to 1809, kept in the Rijksarchief in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem, his death is recorded as follows:

> "April 1806
> Johannes Henricus Greidanus, 14 months St. Maartensbrug."

183 JOANNES HENRICUS GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Ausonius 101II ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5II ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

By his father Ds. Ausonius Greidanus the following was recorded concerning him in a small bible (see page 437):

"1807 on 19 July was born at Kerklust in de
zijpe our 6th child, 4th son and baptized on 9 Aug. following,
named Joannes Henricus."

His baptismal entry in the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at St. Maartensbrug, Zuid-Zijpe, running from 1801 to 1813, kept in the Rijksarchief in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem, reads as follows:

"9 August 1807.
A child baptized Joannes Henricus
Father. Do. Ausonius Greidanus Minister in the Zuid-Zijpe.
Mother. Metje Pluim.
Witness. the mother."

On 9 February 1830, at the birth of his son, he was a merchant at Bolsward.

On 17 August 1844, at the death of his first wife, he lived at Leeuwarden, while on 19 June 1866, at his death, he was Binnenvader (resident master) of the Oud-Burgerengasthuis at Nijmegen, as appears from the family announcement below:

> "  This afternoon there died, after a brief nervous indisposition, my beloved husband, Mr. JOANNES HENRICUS GREIDANUS, in life Binnenvader of the Oud-Burgerengasthuis here, at the age of nearly 59 years.
> N ij m e g e n C. BOMHOFF,
> 19 June 1866. widow of J. H. Greidanus."

Of Joannes Henricus Greidanus a portrait after a photograph appears among the portraits.

MARRIED:

1° ALLARDA ANTONIDES, on 18 May 1829 at Leeuwarden, as appears from the following family announcement:

"  Married:
L e e u w a r d e n, J. H. G R E I D A N U S the 18th of May and 1829. A. A N T O N I D E S.
Family, Friends and Acquaintances are requested to accept this general notice in lieu of a personal one."

Allarda Antonides was born on 24 December 1807 at Leeuwarden, as daughter of Jan Antonides and Allarda (Allardje) Gramsma. In the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 2nd of January A^{o} 1808 N^{o} 2892 one finds concerning her birth the following family announcement:

> "  This afternoon about 3 o'clock, my beloved wife, ALLARDJE GRAMSMA, was delivered of a DAUGHTER, — but, to my bitter sorrow, two hours later she was snatched from me by Death, at the youthful age of 17 years and 9 months.
> Leeuwarden JAN ANTONIDES."
> the 24th of December 1807.

She was baptized on 10 February following in the Westerkerk by Ds. B. van Weemen. Her baptismal record in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden 1802—1809 fol. 134^{v} reads as follows:

"On 10 February 1808 baptized in the Westerkerk by Ds. B. van Weemen.
Allarda... Born on 24 December 1807
Whose father is Jan Antonides
And whose mother was Alarda Gramsma died 24 December 1807.
Witness Christiana Tettje Gramsma."

At the end of 1806 Jan Antonides bought the "brick factory with all the bricks belonging to it" at Midlum near Harlingen from Miss Hendrina Wildschut, widow of P/ieter/ Hannema, as is taken from the following advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 29th of November A° 1806, N° 2835:

> "The undersigned, at present still living in Leeuwarden, having acquired by purchase the BRICK FACTORY with all the BRICKS belonging to it from Miss Hendrina Wildschut, widow of the late Mr. P. Hannema at Harlingen, who for many years supplied her customers with every kind of brick, requests everyone's favour and recommendation, also of those who formerly used to take their bricks from the said factory; promising prompt service.
> Leeuwarden, 29 November 1806. JAN ANTONIDES."

Although we find Jan Antonides in 1809/1811 as special Correspondent for the Department of Friesland of the Administration Office of the National Debt, under the direction of A. L. van Harpen, Gebr^{s} de Lange, and Pluim & Bakker at Amsterdam, and in 1814 as "Contractor of the Forage for the Dutch troops in Friesland", he nevertheless appears to have kept on his tichel — that is brick — factory at Midlum all along, as may appear from the advertisement below, occurring in the Supplement of the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 12 June 1829, N° 47:

> "The Secretary S. Wybenga, will, in the presence of the Notary A. Stinstra, on Wednesday the 17 June 1829, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at the inn at Midlum, sell by public auction: 73 sq. roeden 48 sq. ellen 73 sq. palmen of the best standing RYE, situated to the east of the brickworks of Mr. J. Antonides there."

The said posts of Correspondent and Contractor appear from the following document and the advertisements below:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 23 June 1809, N° 2969:

"JAN ANTONIDES attends on Wednesdays at the Heeren Logement in Harlingen, and on Thursdays and Fridays at the lodging above the merchant N. KESLER, opposite the Waags-plein in Leeuwarden, beginning on Wednesday the 28th of this month, for the taking over and handling of the called-up Securities, being National Bonds, bearing interest at $2^{1}/_{2}$ per cent, which fell due on the 1st of July."

"Feuille d'affiches, annonces et avis divers de Leuwarde. Blad van aankondigingen, bekendmakingen en onderscheidene berigten van Leeuwarden" of Wednesday 11 December 1811:

[the two following advertisements are printed side by side in two columns]

> (French) " JAN ANTONIDES informs the Public that every day payment of the interest on the Inscriptions in the Great Book at $2^1/_2$ per cent may be received at his Office, for the Certificates issued by him. For the half-year which fell due 22 September 1811.
>  JAN ANTONIDES hereby gives notice that daily at his office there may be received the half-year's interest of $2^1/_2$ per cent perpetual Debt in the Great Book, on Certificates issued by him. Fell due 22 September 1811."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Monday 2 May 1814, N° 65:

> "JAN ANTONIDES, Contractor for the FORAGE for the Dutch troops in Vriesland, invites such local authorities as, during the stay of the Russian Imperial troops in this department, have supplied FORAGE and PROVISIONS to the said troops and have received Bons (vouchers) for the same, to send these to him, duly in proper form, before the 6th of May next; payment for the same will follow speedily, as soon as they have been found in order at the general bureau of the Contractor-general of the allied troops.
> Leeuwarden, 26 April 1814.
> N.B. In the absence of Bons at hand, the president-burgomaster is authorized to issue Bons for the Forage and Provisions distributed, a model of which may be seen at the Contractor's."

After the purchase of the brickworks at Midlum, Jan Antonides settled there, though not immediately, for his daughter Allarda, for example, was still born and baptized at Leeuwarden (on 10 February 1808). As appears, however, from the advertisement below, published in the "Byvoegsel op de Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 10 May 1811, N° 3067, Jan Antonides, when he lived at Midlum, had an address at Leeuwarden where the messages and letters intended for him could be delivered:

> "The MESSAGES and LETTERS addressed to the undersigned at Leeuwarden are received at the house of > AREND BEKKER, in de Nieuwesteeg.
> Midlum near Harlingen, 10 May 1811. JAN ANTONIDES."

In 1828 Jan Antonides was one of the founders of the "Vriesche Stoomboot-Maatschappij" at Leeuwarden, and in 1833 he was Captain in the Landstorm (militia) in Vriesland at Harlingen. All this is derived from the following:

"Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Tuesday 20 May 1828, N° 41:

> Among the founders — 7 March 1828 — of the "Vriesche Stoomboot-Maatschappij" at Leeuwarden was, among others: Jan Antonides, Merchant, residing at Midlum, for 2 shares of the 240 shares at f 500.—.

"Leeuwarder Courant" of 12 March 1833, N° 21:

> "Roll of the Cadre of Officers of the Landstorm

> . . . . . .
> Harlingen
> 2nd Register. Captains: J. Antonides, ..."

Allarda Antonides died at Leeuwarden 17 August 1844 at the age of 36 years, as appears from the family announcement below:

> " To the deep sorrow of myself and of her highly esteemed Aunt, there passed away this night, after much and bitter suffering, my so dearly beloved Wife ALLARDA ANTONIDES, at the age of 36 years and about 8 months, and after a happy Marriage of more than 15 years.
> May God grant me strength to submit with quiet resignation to His ever wise will.

2° Catrina Bomhoff (BOMHOF), widow of Willem Boonacker, 10 April 1850 at Haarlem, to which marriage the following family announcement relates:

> "  Married:
> H a a r l e m, J. H. G R E I D A N U S
> 10 April 1850. and
> C. B O M H O F F."

Catrina Bomhoff was born 22 April 1806 at Zwolle and baptized there on 27 April following, as daughter of Jan Bomhoff and Hendrica Vosch. Her baptismal record reads as follows:

"Year, day and month of Birth.	Year, day and month of Baptism.	Record of Reformed children 1806. Boys:	Girls:	Parents And their places of residence.	Witnesses And their places of residence:

Petrus Greidanus

Johanna Hess

In a small bible the following was recorded concerning him by his father Ds. Ausonius Greidanus (see page 437):

"1810 on 18 Sept.: there was born at Kerklust in de Zijpe our 7th child, 5th son, and on 7 Octob. following baptized,
named Petrus."

His baptismal record in the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at St. Maartensbrug, Zuid-Zijpe, running from 1801 to 1813, kept in the State Archives in North Holland, at Haarlem, reads as follows:

"7 October 1810.
A child baptized, named Petrus.
Father D[s] Aus. Greidanus minister in de Z. Zijpe
Mother Metje Pluim.
Witness Maartje Slot.
Born in de Z.-Zijpe on 18 Sept. 1810."

Petrus Greidanus was enrolled on 10 June 1828 as a student of theology at the University of Leiden. His enrolment appears as follows in column 1279 of the Album Studiosorum Academiae Lugduno Batavae published in 1875 by Nijhoff at 's-Gravenhage:

(Latin) "Under Rector JANUS BAKE 1828.
June
10 Petrus Greidanus from the village of Zype in Holland, Sept. 18, T."

He was first established at Alkmaar and later a dealer in colonial wares at Zuid-Scharwoude, where he died at the age of 62 on 21 January 1873, as appears from the following family announcement:

"_ Today there died, after a long illness, my beloved husband, Mr. P. GREIDANUS, at the age of sixty-two years.
Z u i d s c h a r w o u d e, J. Hess,
21 January 1873. wid. P. Greidanus."

MARRIED: Johanna Hess, 24 April 1836 at Venhuizen, as appears from the following family announcements:

[1] Willem Jacob Teengs, who in his first marriage was married to Debora Margaretha Boomsma, a sister of Elisabeth Boomsma, the wife of Joannes Henricus Greidanus' brother: Jan Idema Greidanus.

Johanna Hess was a daughter of Ds. Jacob Hess, Minister at Venhuizen, and Niesje Vaa. She was born 18 February 1808 at Venhuizen and baptized there on 6 March following, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Venhuizen, kept by the minister:

"on the 6th of March 1808 was baptized
Johanna, daughter of Jacob Hess and Niesje Vaa, born 18 February 1808."

She died at Zuid-Scharwoude on 29 December 1891 at the age of 83 years, as appears from the following private announcement:

"Zuid-Scharwoude, 29 December 1891.

185 JAN, IDEMA GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Ausonius 101^{II} ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5^{II} ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1^{I}

Concerning him the following was entered by his father Ds. Ausonius Greidanus in a small bible (see page 437):

"1812 on 15 Sept. there was born at Kerklust in the Zijpe our 8th child, 6th son, and on 4 October following baptized
& named Jan Idema."

In the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation at St. Maartensbrug, Zuid-Zijpe, running from 1801 to 1813, kept in the State Archives in Noord-Holland, at Haarlem, his baptismal entry reads as follows:

"4 October 1812.
A child baptized, Jan Idema
Father. Ds. A. Greidanus
Mother Metje Pluim.
Witness: the mother.
Born in the Z.-Zijpe on 15 Sept. 1812."

Ds. Ausonius Greidanus, Minister at Zuid-Zijpe and Eenigenburg, who placed before the surname of his first son the surname of his wife Metje Pluim (see page 520), thus added to the surname of his sixth and last son, at the same time his last child, the surname of his wife's mother: Saakje Idema. As has already been mentioned on page 520, in those days such additions were very customary among ministers and similar persons. This surname "Idema Greidanus" has been borne down to the present day by all the descendants of Jan Idema Greidanus.

A year after he had retired from his office, that is about half a year before his death, Jan Idema Greidanus set down a description of his life, which autobiography follows below in full:

"LIFE DESCRIPTION of Jan Idema Greidanus

On 15 September 1812 it was granted me to see the light of day at Kerklust, by the Sint Maartensbrug in de Zype, Province of Noord-Holland.

Of the first years of my life I have heard little, and I may therefore assume that my childhood passed prosperously.

In due course I was taken to school and received from the schoolmaster Frans Jongerling instruction in reading, writing and arithmetic, while through private lessons from the schoolmaster J. Hoek at the Schagerbrug some knowledge of the French language as well as Algebra & Mathematics was acquired.

And so I reached the age at which a choice of profession for the support of life had to be made, to which end I was placed on 12 January 1829 as a volunteer with the Rijks Ontvanger (state tax collector) in de Zype, Mr. G. A. L. Thesingh.

The Belgian disturbances called the said Thesingh "to arms", and on 11 November 1830 I was, at the age of 18, charged with the management of his administration.

While Mr. Thesingh was in military service, His Honour was in 1832 promoted to Ontvanger (collector) at Ouder Amstel & Thamen, and the head administration entrusted the management of these offices to me as well.

In the summer of 1833 the volunteer fighters came home from the army, my employer Thesingh again took the management upon himself, and I had the satisfaction of seeing myself appointed Surnumerair (supernumerary official) with the taxes in Holland (Northern Part) and attached to the Amsterdam Inspectorate.

After having worked there and at the Alkmaar Inspectorate, and having also temporarily managed a number of collectors' offices as well as the Haarlem Controle, I had the satisfaction of seeing myself appointed in 1836 Rijks Ontvanger at Middelie, near Edam, at a salary of f 550,, per year.

The Ontvanger who had retired there was at the same time municipal collector, and that post too I saw entrusted to me.

With pleasure I accepted those posts, and also gratefully, that I had acquired a means of existence in society, indeed with the firm intention of trying to rise in the tax service through diligence, zeal and knowledge of affairs.

At first I succeeded in this; already in 1838 I had the satisfaction of seeing myself promoted, without any request, to Rijks Ontvanger at Krommenie at a salary of f 1130,,.

Since Krommenie might at that time be called one of the most prosperous villages in Noord-Holland, I felt there very much to my liking and at my ease.

In the year 1841 I married there Miss Elisabeth Boomsma, daughter of Mr. Pier Jelles Boomsma and Welmoet Versteveren of Purmerende.

Upon the organization of the postal service the post of Brieven Gaarder (letter collector) there was also entrusted to me in the year 1850.

After a stay of twelve years and after having been blessed there with 3 children, I had the satisfaction of seeing myself promoted in the year 1850 to collector of the direct taxes, import and export duties, and excises at Enkhuizen.

Here too I worked with great pleasure, and passed very agreeable but busy years of my life, since I was soon appointed Member of the Council, afterwards Alderman, also deputy Kantonrechter (cantonal judge), President of the Poor Board, Commissioner of the Savings Bank as well as of the Loan Bank, Member of the School Commission, Registrar of the Civil Registry, Elder of the church community to which I belonged, etc..

The care and upbringing of some seven children, as also the increasing weakness of my so very good and careful Wife, laid upon me the obligation to improve my income if possible; an attempt to that end, to be appointed collector of the direct taxes and import & export duties at Harlingen, was crowned with the best result, and so on 31 January 1866 I laid down all my posts in the good town of Enkhuizen, and enjoyed the honour, on my departure, of receiving from some of the foremost and most cultivated inhabitants a handsome silver inkstand as a memento, as also a vote of thanks from the Municipal Council for the services rendered.

On 3 February 1866 I took over the management of the Harlingen office, and although I had indeed anticipated that this removal would cost me sacrifices, I could not have imagined that those sacrifices would be of such wide extent as experience taught; the unfamiliarity with the customs and conditions at Harlingen, the unobliging attitude of the public, the so-called humble pride of the better, not always cultivated inhabitants, were unpleasant to me, while the increasing weakness, indeed the suffering of my dear wife, and the fevers to which I and my children were continually subject, make my stay there not to be called one of the most agreeable periods of my life; which less than cheerful condition was so aggravated by the death of my so dear Wife and also of a most promising son Ausonius, and so weighed me down, that, had not my eldest Daughter Metje encouraged me with her composure and clear understanding and promised to be everything for me and the household, then, I believe, the trials of life would have made me unfit for my sphere of work and for society.

Through her support, through reason, and through distraction in busy occupations, I was able to get over the losses I had suffered, and at last came on somewhat better terms with the inhabitants of Harlingen, so that at Harlingen too membership of the Municipal Council as well as the post of Kerkvoogd (church warden) was entrusted to me.

After a stay of seven years at Harlingen I was transferred to Amsterdam and charged with the collection of the excises; in this extensive management I was very much at my ease and quite to my liking, until at almost 65 years of age, in the year 1877, I was appointed and installed as Collector of the import and export duties and of the excise on sugar at Amsterdam, at a salary of f 6000.

This so comprehensive and grand tax office I managed with the greatest pleasure until in > the year 1881, at the age of well over 69, I became aware that my mind no longer grasped the proper understanding of matters as quickly as before, indeed that the work no longer went so smoothly, and since I had never seen through the eyes of another, I resolved to lay down my post on 31 Dec. 1881 and to that end requested my honourable discharge, subject to a claim to a pension.

> This requested discharge fell to me not only honourably, but by Royal Decree dated 21 October 1881 N^{o} 119 His Majesty expressed to me his thanks for the services rendered to the country during more than 50 years, while by another Royal Decree dated 15 December 1881 N^{o} 20 an annual pension of f 4000 was granted to me.
>
> And so the day of 31 December 1881 has sunk to the horizon, the day on which I would for the last time be at work in an administration and management in which, whether by inclination or by habit, I moved with pleasure and which was dear to me; awakening with the concern of handing over in proper order my management of between 6 and 7 million annually, I was surprised in the early morning of that day by receiving a keepsake from the staff of my office, consisting of a splendid Voltaire[1] accompanied by a pleasant letter, while soon afterwards, upon my arrival at the office, a committee from the world of commerce presented itself to me and, through the mouth of Mr. J. W. Schut, expressed its regret at my decision to lay down my post, that it nevertheless felt it must approve of this on account of my advancing years, and as a proof of appreciation and esteem, in remembrance of our pleasant working together, honoured me with and offered me an elegant silver tea service with accessories.
> Amid the solemnity that attended the parting from a beloved post, more than one tear of gratitude escaped me, that it was granted to me to lay down, amid such tokens, a demanding, indeed hazardous post in good health. This I did, and with the exclamation
>
> GRATEFUL & CONTENTED

> I laid down the administrative pen on the thirty-first of December 1881.
> Oosterbeek 30 December 1882. (signed) Idema Greidanus."

Concerning the departure of Jan Idema Greidanus from Enkhuizen on 1 February 1866, the following report is found in the Handelsblad of Saturday 3 February following:

> "Enkhuizen 1 Febr.
> Today Mr. J. Idema Greidanus left here, in order to exchange his post of collector of direct taxes, filled by him in this town for 15 years, for a similar one at Harlingen. Both by the manner in which he discharged his state office and on account of his enlightened ideas and useful activity in various other posts, especially as alderman of the municipality, he was highly esteemed here. Some 20 inhabitants[2] gave him proof of this on the evening before his departure, by the presentation of a gift in silver, which was handed to him with a cordial address."

and in the Haarlemsche Courant of 7 May 1866 the following advertisement:

"ENKHUIZEN.
On our departure for Harlingen we feel the need to express to the inhabitants of Enkhuizen our SINCERE THANKS for the many proofs of affection, cordiality and friendship which we and our children were privileged to experience in ample measure during fifteen years.
With the wish that the municipality of Enkhuizen may continue to increase in prosperity, that the striving for development and progress may ever remain its aim, we call out to all: Farewell, remember us.
The 7th of May 1866.
J. Idema Greidanus
E. Idema Greidanus—Boomsma."

The silver tea service presented by the Amsterdam world of commerce on 31 December 1881, made by A. D. Verschuur, Purveyor to the Court at Amsterdam, was accompanied by a document calligraphed by the Court Calligrapher A. Grevenstuk, a reproduction of which appears opposite and the contents of which read as follows (both the service and the document are in my possession):

After his honourable discharge Jan Idema Greidanus settled at Oosterbeek, where he died on 24 July 1883 at the age of 70, as appears from the following private announcement:

"Oosterbeek, 25 July 1883.
On 24 July 1883 there died here, at the age of 70 years, our beloved Father,
Mr. JAN IDEMA GREIDANUS, former Receiver of Import Duties, etc. at Amsterdam, widower of Mrs. Elisabeth Boomsma.
We fulfil the sad duty of informing you hereof.
On behalf of all,
P. J. Idema Greidanus."

followed by the advertisement below:

"For the many proofs of sympathy, received upon the death of our beloved Father, Mr.
JAN IDEMA GREIDANUS, we express our heartfelt thanks.
On behalf of all,
P. J. Idema Greidanus.

A portrait of Jan Idema Greidanus, after a photographic likeness, is to be found among the portraits.

MARRIED:

ELISABETH BOOMSMA, 17 October 1841 at Purmerend, as appears from the following family advertisement:

> " At P u r m e r e n d e there were married on 17 October 1841:
> J. IDEMA GREIDANUS.
> Receiver of Direct Taxes and > Excises at Krommenie, and > Eth. B O O M S M A."

Elisabeth Boomsma was born 23 April 1818 at Purmerend, as daughter of Pier Jelles Boomsma and Welmoed Versteveren.

Pier Jelles Boomsma was "Apothecary and Druggist" at Purmerend. In 1816 he bought there the soap-works "de Zwaan" on the Weerwal, of which soap-works he kept the front part as shop and dwelling, and demolished the rear part, the soap-works proper, laying out the ground thus freed as a garden. This is taken from G. van Sandwijk, "Kronijkmatige en Geschiedkundige Beschrijving van Purmerende en omliggende Dorpen, Meren enz., Purmerende, bij D. Broedelet & C^{o}", in which one finds:

On page 107:

> "In this year the soap-works de Zwaan 1816 > was bought by Mr. P. BOOMSMA, who kept > the front part as his dwelling-house, > and demolished the rear part, constituting > the soap-works proper, and turned > the ground into a garden."

and on page 205:

> "THE SOAP-WORKS. In 1643 the soap-works de Zwaan was built > on the Weerwal, which was still standing > at the beginning of the 19th century, > but was later pulled down; after which > the dwelling-house was bought in 1816 by Mr. P. BOOMSMA."

According to the birth certificate of the Civil Registry of "Purmerende", Elisabeth Boomsma was likewise born in the house, "on the Weerwal, Ward D", while, if I am not mistaken, the pharmacy of Pier Jelles Boomsma bore the name of "de Zwaan".

Elisabeth Boomsma died at Harlingen 12 March 1869 at the age of 50, as appears from the following family advertisement:

" ⁂ My wife Elisabeth Boomsma died yesterday evening. She was permitted to reach the age of just over 50 years. Seven children and a very aged mother[1] mourn her death with me.
Harlingen, J. Idema Greidanus.
13 March 1869.
Sole and general notification."

A portrait of Elisabeth Boomsma, after a photograph, is to be found among the portraits.

Here have been added:

a draft: fragment-genealogy of the family "Boomsma", to which Elisabeth Boomsma belonged, and which appears to have died out, as far as the fragment is concerned;

a depiction of the arms of the Frisian family "Boomsma", of which the heraldic description reads:

per pale: 1. silver, with a green tree on a grassy ground.

2. the Frisian eagle.

Crest: the tree of the shield, between a silver pair of wings.

Torse and Mantling: silver and green.

186 TJARDUS (TJAARDUS) HOUTSMA

Line of descent: 102 ← 57 ← 18 ← $5^{II}$ ← 2 ← $1^{I}$

b. Harlingen, 13 February 1789 · d. Harlingen, 25 November 1853 · son of Jan Willems Houtsma and Petronella Greidanus (N° 102) · m. Doedtje Laas Spannenburg, 1812

He was born at Harlingen on 13 February 1789 and baptized there on 10 March following, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) at Harlingen (1772—1808).

"(1789)
(March) Tjaardus, born on 13 Febr. 1789, the
(10) parents being Jan Willems and Petronella Greidanus, married couple."

He was his father's successor in the latter's timber business at Harlingen, as appears from the advertisement already included on page 444, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 15 January 1818, N° 4.

Tjardus Houtsma died at Harlingen, as a "sea trader", on 25 November 1853, at the age of 64 years.

Married:

Doedtje Laasdochter Spannenburg, 21 May 1812 at Harlingen.

Doedtje Laasdochter Spannenburg was born at Harlingen on 29 December 1788 and baptized there on 25 January 1789, as daughter of Laas Tjebbes Spannenburg and Geertje Sijbrands Osinga, as follows from the entry below in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen (1772—1808):

[1] Welmoed Versteveren, then 81 years old, died at Edam 6 December 1871, at the age of 84 years.

> "(1789)
> (January) Doedtje, born the 29th of December 1788, > (25) the parents being Laas Tjebbes Spannenburg > and Geertje Sijbrands Osinga."

In 1794 Laas T. Spannenburg, together with his brother-in-law Jan L. van der Veen, took over from Jacob Tjallingii the tile and earthenware factory outside the Kerkpoort to the South of and near Harlingen; on 3 September 1794 they advertised in the "Leeuwarder Courant": "that everyone will again be able to be supplied with different sorts of bowls, dishes and tiles", since under Jacob Tjallingii the business had come to a standstill (see page 12 of Nanne Ottema "Friesche Majolica", published in 1920 by the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde).

Doedtje Laasdochter Spannenburg died at Harlingen on 28 July 1865, aged 76 years.

The couple Houtsma × Spannenburg had several children, who appear in the draft: fragment-genealogy of the Houtsma family belonging with page 436.

Line of descent: Petronella 102 ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5[II] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Harlingen, 30 September 1790 · d. Harlingen, 10 November 1875 · daughter of Jan Willems Houtsma and Petronella Greidanus (N° 102) · m. Bouwe Rodenhuis, 1811

She was born at Harlingen on 30 September 1790 and baptized there on 19 October following, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) at Harlingen (1772—1808):

> "(1790)
> (October) Ymkje, born the 30th of September 1790, the > 19 parents being Jan Houtsma and Petronella Greidanus, married couple."

Ymkje Houtsma died at Harlingen on 10 November 1875, aged 85 years.

MARRIED:

BOUWE RODENHUIS (RODENHUIJS), 30 May 1811 at Harlingen.

Bouwe Rodenhuijs was born at Harlingen on 29 January 1790, as son of Ype J/etzes/ Rodenhuijs, Burgomaster of Harlingen, and Hendrikje (Pieters) Scheltema, and was baptized in the Westerkerk at Harlingen on 28 March following, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Dutch Reformed Congregation (Westerkerk) of Harlingen (1775—1811):

> "(1790)
> (March) baptized on the 28th Bouwe, born the > 29th of January 1790, the parents being > Ype Rodenhuijs and Hendrikje Scheltema."

In 1823 he took over the roof-tile and paving-tile works at Harlingen from the late Jan Galama; on 2 February he was elected "Commissioner of supervision of the Netherlands Greenland and Davis Strait Fishery Society" there, while, according to the Civil Registry, he died in the said town on 4 April 1834 at the age of 44 years as "sea trader" in the house, district A N° 21.

That he was a "roof-tile and paving-tile manufacturer" at Harlingen may appear from the advertisement below, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 19th of March 1830, N° 23:

> "The joint ROOF-TILE and PAVING-TILE MANUFACTURERS at Harlingen have the honour to announce that, owing to the extraordinary high price of peat, they have been compelled provisionally to raise the prices of their factory goods above those of 1829, by two guilders for the smooth and red floor tiles, and one guilder for the smooth and red roof tiles, while with this announcement they take the liberty of recommending themselves most kindly, jointly and severally, to the continued favour of all who have honoured them with their orders, or may still be pleased to honour them.
> Harlingen, Bouwe Rodenhuis. J. C. P. le Maire.
> the 17th of March 1830. F. F. van Esta. G. P. de Boer."
> Braams and Schaafsma.

Of the couple Rodenhuis × Houtsma there are known to me a son Ypeus, who married Albertina van Altena, a son Jan and a daughter Hendrika.

Below follows also the heraldic description of the arms "Rodenhuis" (Leeuwarden), of which however an illustration has been omitted, because it is not known whether Bouwe Rodenhuis belonged to the family that bore the said arms:

gold, with an eight-pointed silver star, charged in the heart with a small red cross with broad arms.

188 JOHANNES GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 107 ← Jan 60 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5[II] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

He was born at Harlingen on 22 August 1795 and baptized there in the Groote Kerk on 8 September following, as appears from the following entry in the Baptismal Register of the Reformed Congregation (Groote Kerk) at Harlingen:

"(1795)
(September)
8. Johannes. born on 22 August 1795, the parents being Petrus Greidanus. and Catharina Vellinga married couple."

Johannes Greijdanus was appointed in the year 1818 Secretary of the Grietenij (district) Lemsterland at De Lemmer.

From the "Leeuwarder Courant" I have collected some 40 advertisements of his in that capacity, a few of which follow below:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 18 May 1819, N° 40:

"The GRIETMAN (district magistrate) and ASSESSOREN (assessors) of LEMSTERLAND hereby call upon all those who may be inclined, and who possess the required qualifications and admission, for the filling of a Maritime School of the first or second rank established at de Lemmer, to report themselves in writing before 1 June next at the Secretariat of the Grietenij Lemsterland, and to send in their required certificates to the School Inspector of the eighth School District in Friesland at Ysbrechtum. Besides the usual knowledge required for primary education, applicants are expected to have a thorough knowledge of the Dutch, French and English languages, Geography, History, Mathematics and the principles of Navigation. The fixed salary from the State for this School is f 400—:—: with the enjoyment of a free Dwelling and considerable School fees and Emoluments, which all together may be reckoned at at least f 1000—:—:. The time and place of the comparative Examination will be made known later.
The Secretary of the Grietenij Lemsterland
J. GREYDANUS."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 24 November 1820, N° 94:

"The GRIETMAN of LEMSTERLAND hereby convokes. 1. The floreen-liable Inhabitants of de Lemmer, Eesterga and Vollega, Oosterzee and Echten, to appear, each in their respective Churches or Village Schools, on Tuesday 12 December 1820, at 11 o'clock in the morning, in order to elect two VOLMAGTEN (proxies) for the Contribution Sea Dikes. 2. The floreen-liable Inhabitants of Lemmer, Eesterga and Vollega, at the aforesaid time and places, in order to appoint from each village a GECOMMITTEERDE (delegate), for the audit of the Annual Account of the Lemsterzijl. 3. The floreen-liable Inhabitants of the village of Oosterzee, at the aforesaid time and place, in order to elect a new FLOREEN RECEIVER.
The aforesaid Grietman,
A. A. VAN ANDRINGA DE KEMPENAER,
By order of the same,
The Secretary of Lemsterland,
J. GREYDANUS."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 18 March 1825, N° 22:

"The Grietenij Board of Lemsterland feels compelled by sincere gratitude to make publicly known that on 6 March last there was again received by them, from the Commission for providing for the needs of those suffering from the flood, at Leeuwarden, a very ample supply of provisions; on 10 March, from the hands of Messrs P. Koumans Smeding and M. S. de Wal, on behalf of the same Commission, a very considerable quantity of garments of all kinds. — And on 12 March, from Messrs A. Feickens and J. Schaap, on behalf of the Commission at Sneek, a very large lot of various articles of clothing and bedding, for which the Grietenij Board hereby expresses its most heartfelt thanks to the said Commissions and the generous givers, also in the name of the persons clothed and provided for therewith.
Lemmer, 15 March 1825.
The Grietenij Board of Lemsterland in the absence of the Grietman,
S. B. STELLINGWERF, Assessor,
By order of the same,
J. GREYDANUS, Secretary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 27 March 1827, N° 25:

"The GRIETMAN and ASSESSOREN of LEMSTERLAND hereby convoke: 1. The floreen-liable residents of the villages of Lemmer, Eesterga and Follega, as owners of the Lemsterzijl, to appear in the Village Church at Lemmer, on Thursday 12 April 1827, at eleven o'clock in the morning, in order to deliberate on such means as might be employed for the improvement of the communication of the Heereweg from Lemmer to Doniawerstal. And
2. The Floreen-liable residents of the Reformed religion in the village of Lemmer, at the same time and place, in order to elect a new Kerkvoogd (church warden), in place of the late Mr. H. T. Ages.
3. Those of the village of Oosterzee, at the said time in the Church there, for the election of a new Kerkvoogd, in place of the late Mr. L. H. Tjalma.
Lemmer — Grietman (district magistrate) and Assessors of Lemsterland,
22 March 1827. — O. R. VAN ANDRINGA DE KEMPENAER,

> By order of the same,
> J. GREYDANUS, Secretary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 15 January 1828, N° 5:

> "GRIETMAN and ASSESSORS of LEMSTERLAND make known that, on account of a repair to the Lemsterzijl bridge at Lemmer, the passage with carriages over the same is blocked until further notice.
> Lemmer, 11 January 1828. — Grietman and Assessors aforesaid,
> By order of the same, J. GREYDANUS, Secretary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 1 April 1828, N° 27:

> "The GRIETENIJ COUNCIL of LEMSTERLAND will, subject to the further approval of the Gentlemen Deputy States of the province of Vriesland, publicly present for lease to the highest bidders, for one year, beginning 1 May 1828: 1°. The FISHERIES of the village of Lemmer. 2°. The riding and sailing TOLLS over and through the Ruitjezijl bridge there. 3°. The sailing TOLL over the Lange Brug there. 4°. The WEIGHING and SCALE FEES in the Weigh-house there. Whoever is interested, let them come on Thursday 10 April 1828, at three o'clock in the afternoon, at the house of the innkeeper Klaas Ages Dijkstra, in the Wapen van Vriesland at Lemmer. The conditions may meanwhile be learned at the Secretariat of Lemsterland.
> Lemmer — The Grietenij Council aforesaid, O. R. VAN ANDRINGA DE KEMPENAER.
> 25 March 1828. — By order of the Council, J. GREYDANUS, Secretary.
> At the aforesaid time and place there will be leased, for the term of two years, beginning 1 May 1828: The riding and sailing TOLL over and through the great Lemsterzijl."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 11 September 1835, N° 73:

> "GRIETMAN and ASSESSORS of LEMSTERLAND hereby convene the Floreen-liable persons of the Reformed religion of the villages of Lemmer, Eesterga and Follega, to appear in the Church at Lemmer, on Monday 28 September 1835, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon; those of the village of Oosterzee in the Church there on Tuesday 29 September 1835, at twelve o'clock noon; and those of the village of Echten, in the Church there, on that same date, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, in order to receive the respective Church accounts for the year 1834 and, if found in order, to close them, and to approve the budget statements for 1836.
> Lemmer — The Grietman and Assessors aforesaid,
> 7 September 1835. — W. C. G. VAN WELDEREN RENGERS.
> By order of the same,
> J. GREIDANUS, Secretary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 15 July 1836, N° 57 (Supplement):

> "The GRIETENIJ ADMINISTRATION of LEMSTERLAND hereby brings to the knowledge of those concerned that, on account of a renewal of the great BEACON standing on the harbour head at Lemmer, from 15 July next, until further notice, a change in the harbour light will have to take place, and that during that time the light will burn in a smaller lantern, but at the same height.
> Lemmer, — On behalf of the Grietenij Administration aforesaid,
> 7 July 1836. — The Secretary of the Grietenij,
> J. GREYDANUS."

According to S. Koopmans "Het Notariaat in Friesland vóór 1811", Leeuwarden 1883 (see there page 193), he was appointed Notary in the Canton of Franeker on 11 August 1818. He does not, however, appear to have actually acted as a notary, so that he does not occur in the "Register der Protocollen van Notarissen in Nederland", published in 1916 by the Brotherhood of Notaries in the Netherlands; yet various advertisements are found in the "Leeuwarder Courant", some of which follow below, which seem to indicate that he did nevertheless perform more or less notarial work; presumably the office of public notary was also not compatible with the secretaryship of the Grietenij Administration.

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 5 September 1826, N° 71:

> ")o( )o(Everyone who owes anything to, or has any claim upon, the estate left by the late
>)o(Pier Wiepkes de Vries and Fimke Itzes Jongman, in their lifetime husband and wife residing at Eesterga, > is requested to give notice thereof before 12 September 1826 to Mr. J. GREYDANUS, Secretary > of the Grietenij of Lemsterland, residing at Lemmer."

> Lemmer, the 10 November 1827.
> J. GREYDANUS."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 4 April 1828, N° 28:

> "FOR SALE PRIVATELY: A very well patronised business HOUSE and INN, called het Wapen van Vriesland, with the spacious STABLING belonging to it, standing on the Markt at Lemmer, and there numbered district 4, no. 374, in which for a series of years the trade of publican, innkeeper and club-house keeper has been carried on with success; the House having been considerably improved and renewed only five years ago, all just as and in the manner in which it is now inhabited and used by the co-owner Klaas Ages Dijkstra; to be taken possession of freely on 12 November 1828 or earlier, at the choice of the purchaser. The conditions may meanwhile be learned from the owners and from Mr. J. GREYDANUS, Secretaris of the Grietenij (district) Lemsterland, in de Lemmer."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 19 September 1828, N° 76:

> "All those who have any claim upon, or owe anything to, KLAAS AGES DIJKSTRA, innkeeper in de Lemmer, are requested to give notice thereof, or of payment, by postage-free letters, to Mr. J.GREYDANUS, Secretaris of the Grietenij Lemsterland in de Lemmer, before or on 7 October 1828."

"Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Friday the 19 December 1828, N° 102:

> "Notaris WAUBERT DE PUISEAU, residing in de Lemmer, will, at the request of Mr. J. GREYDANUS, of that place, on Wednesday the 31 December 1828, in the afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the house of the widow of Hesselius Brandenburg, in het Posthuis in de Lemmer, publicly offer for sale, with verhooggeld (advance-bidding premium):
> A most excellent FARM and LANDS, comprising 53 bunders 23 square roeden 26 square ellen of Greidland (pasture land), with the remaining part of the BUILDINGS standing on it, marked numbers 1 and 3, all standing and situated under the village of Oosterzee, Grietenij Lemsterland, at present in use by various persons; to be taken possession of freely at Petri and May 1829.
> More fully and parcel by parcel described in the posters. The conditions will be obtainable from the said Notaris eight days before the sale."

"Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Friday the 10 December 1830, N° 99:

> "Notaris WAUBERT de PUISEAU, in de Lemmer, will, on Saturday the 18 December 1830, at the final award, in the afternoon at three o'clock precisely, at the house of H. le Heux, in den Wildeman there, publicly sell, with verhooggeld, to those offering enough:
> An excellent FARM and LANDS, with HORNLEGER (homestead site), HOUSE, BARN, and further appurtenances, besides about 62 bunders of mostly very best KLIJNLANDEN (peat lands), standing and situated under Echten in the grietenij Lemsterland, at present in use by the widow of Popke Fritskes Hepkema; the House marked no. 19; to be taken possession of freely at Sint Petri and the 12 May 1831; and this in 19 parcels, more fully specified in the posters, with the right of combination.
> The conditions of sale may be learned from Mr. J. GREYDANUS, Secretaris, and at the office of the said Notaris, both in de Lemmer."

Johannes Greijdanus was appointed on 26 April 1833 as 2nd lieutenant-quartermaster with the Landstorm, which is taken from the following report, included in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 30 April 1833, N° 35:

> "Leeuwarden, the 29 April. By decision of the 26th of this month the Councillor of State, Governor of this Province, has, subject to the King's further approval, made the following appointments of staff and other officers with the Landstorm:
> . . . . . .
> In Lemsterland — As 2nd lieutenant-quartermaster J. Greijdanus."

He died at De Lemmer, unmarried, at the age of 41, on 10 January 1837, as appears from the family announcement below:

> "⁂ After a short illness there died, at de Lemmer, at the age of fully 41 years, my beloved son, JOHANNES GREIJDANUS, in life
>
> Secretary of Lemsterland; deeply mourned by his > Mother and further Relatives and Friends.
> Harlingen, CATHARINA VELLINGA,
> the 10th of January 1837. Widw Petrus Greijdanus.
> Sole notification."

189 DIRK GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Petrus 107 ← Jan 60 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5II ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

According to the deed of notoriety produced at his marriage, he was born at Harlingen on 12 November 1797.

Like his mother Catharina Vellinga, he was Mennonite. He was admitted as a member of the Mennonite Congregation at Harlingen on 27 September 1822.

He attended the Latin School at Harlingen, of which his father Petrus Greijdanus was rector, and completed it with good results, as appears from the report already included on page 449 in the "Journal du Departement de la Frise — Dagblad van het Departement Friesland" of Friday the 16 July 1813.

Dirk Greijdanus was appointed by Royal Decree dated 18 July 1824, N° 133, public Notary in the Canton of Bolsward, residing at Makkum, and by Royal Decree dated 17 March 1826, N° 133, in the Canton of Harlingen, residing at Harlingen. This is taken from the following advertisements:

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 17 August 1824, N° 66:
> "The undersigned hereby brings to the notice of those concerned, that he has by Royal Decree dated 18 July 1824, no. 133, been appointed public Notary, in the Canton of Bolsward, residence Makkum, and that he will take up this Post on the 18 August next.
> Harlingen, the 15 August 1824. D. GREYDANUS."
> "Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Friday the 21 April 1826, N° 32:
> "The undersigned, hitherto Public Notary at Makkum, canton Bolsward, hereby makes known, that he has by Royal Decree of the 17 March last, no. 133, been appointed as such in the canton of Harlingen, with orders to reside at Harlingen.
> Harlingen, the 19 April 1826. D. GREYDANUS."

In S. Koopmans "Het Notariaat in Friesland vóór 1811", Leeuwarden, 1883, one finds on page 194 concerning him:

> "1824.
> . . . . .
> 12 Aug. Dirk Greydanus residing at Makkum," while in the "Register der Protocollen van Notarissen in Nederland", published in 1916 by the Broederschap der Notarissen in Nederland, the following is stated about him: on page 93.

Notaries			Keeper, Place of deposit or Archive and on page 420 under "Harlingen" and 464 under "Makkum" the same.

Dirk Greijdanus remained a notary until his death on 9 November 1828, first at Makkum and afterwards at Harlingen. He seems to have had a good practice; at any rate I have been able to collect from the "Leeuwarder Courant" some twenty advertisements concerning sales of houses, land, ships, household effects, shop goods, timber, Brabant lace to be held by him, and summonses of debtors or creditors made by him. Some of those advertisements follow below:

> "Leeuwarder Courant", Supplement of Friday the 4 February 1825, N° 10:
> "The Notary D. GREYDANUS, at Makkum, will on Monday the 7 February 1825, in the afternoon at 2 o'clock precisely, at the description, and in the evening at 5 o'clock precisely, at the final knock-down, in the Logement de Prins, at Makkum, publicly offer for sale:
> A shell-fisher's KOFSCHIP, named de Goede Verwagting, length over the stem 15 Ells and 6 Palms, breadth and depth in proportion, with its Snik, Sails and Tackle, standing and running Rigging, Anchors and further appurtenances, lying at Makkum, last sailed by the Skipper Paulus Jarigs de Boer; to be taken over immediately."
>
> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 28 June 1825, N° 51:
> ")o( )o(All those who have any claim upon, or owe anything to the Estate of the late
>)o(AALTJE SIEZES, widow of Cornelis Jans Bakker, in her life Shopkeeper at Makkum, who died there on 10 June 1825, are requested to declare the same before 1 August 1825, at the office of the Notary D. Greydanus there."

[1] The entire notarial archive up to and including the beginning of 1842 is now in the Rijksarchief at Leeuwarden.

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 20th of January 1826, N° 6:

> "The Notary D. Greydanus, at Makkum, appointed thereto by Judgment of the Court of First Instance, sitting at Sneek, will, at the request of Mr. J. D. van der Plaats, Notary at Leeuwarden, as agent of his Principals, on Monday the 23rd of January 1826, in the afternoon at 3 o'clock precisely, at the final palmslag (closing stroke of the sale), in the Logement de Zwaan, at Makkum, in the presence of the Vredegeregt (justice of the peace court) of the Canton Bolsward, offer for sale publicly with verhooggelden (bidding premiums):
> 1. A HUIZINGE (dwelling house), STALLINGE (stabling) and further appurtenances, standing in the Kerkebuurt at Makkum, letter C, no. 185, occupied by Jouke Sybrens de Vries.
> 2. A DITTO there in letter C, no. 177, occupied by Sjoerd Pieters Bierma and others.
> 3. A DITTO there in letter C, no. 178, occupied by the widow of Pieter Sytses.
> 4. 1 Bunder 28 sq. Roeden 60 sq. Ellen 27 sq. Palmen GREIDLAND (pasture land), at the Engwiersterlaan under Makkum, held in use by Jouke Sybrens de Vries.

> 8. 1 Bunder 10 sq. Roeden 23 sq. Ellen 9 sq. Palmen GREIDLAND, called Pollige drie, likewise there, held in use by the same tenant.
> The Houses to be entered upon free of lease on 12 May 1826 and the Lands at St. Petri and May 1826.
> All described more fully in Bills, which may be obtained from the first-named Notary."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 3rd of March 1826, N° 18:

> "The Notary D. Greydanus, at Makkum, will on Monday the 6th of March 1826, in the forenoon at 10 o'clock, sell by boelgoed (public auction of movables):
> Some sawn TIMBER WARES, of various kinds; as also a HAY WAGON and FARM GEAR, then lying numbered before the Warehouse of the Heirs of Mr. M. H. Kingma, there."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 8th of September 1826, N° 72:

> "The Notary D. Greydanus, at Harlingen, will, at the house of mourning of the late Mistress the widow Stinstra, on the Noorderhaven there, on Monday the 18th of September 1826, in the forenoon at 9 and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock and the following days, publicly offer for sale by boelgoed:
> A considerable HOUSEHOLD EFFECTS, consisting of a mahogany Cabinet, ditto Tables, Chairs, Linen, Beds with their appurtenances, Porcelain, English Glass and Earthenware, further Copper, Pewter and Ironwork and whatever more shall be brought forward."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 12th of January 1827, N° 4:

> "PUBLIC SALE OF A CONSIDERABLE PARCEL OF BRABANT LACE:
> Will take place in the presence of the Notary D. Greydanus, at Harlingen, at the house of mourning of the widow Homberg, on the Voorstraat there, on Monday the 22nd of January 1827, in the morning at 9 o'clock and the following days."

Dirk Greijdanus died at Harlingen 9 November 1828 at the age of 31 years. His death was announced by the family notice below:

> " This afternoon about 4 o'clock there died, from the consequences of a mucous apoplexy, my tenderly beloved Husband, DIRK GREYDANUS, in life Notary at Harlingen, at the age of about 31 years, after a marriage of nearly two years. Giving notice herewith of this loss, so keenly felt by me, to Family and Acquaintances, I request meanwhile to be spared letters of condolence.
> H a r l i n g e n, CORNELIA GREYDANUS, > the 9th of November 1828. b. MOLLEMA."

Concerning the division of his estate one finds in the archive of Notary M^r^ Jacob Hanekuyk at Harlingen the deed N° 101 d.d. 13 December 1828, the opening of which reads as follows[1]:

> "Petrus Greijdanus, Rector of the Latin Schools at Harlingen, and Catharina Vellinga, he as authorized agent of his son Johannes Greijdanus, Secretary of the Grietenij (district) Lemsterland, living in de Lemmer; Ida Greijdanus, wife of and in this matter specially authorized by her husband Frans van Esta Tjallingii, Manufacturer of Roof Tiles, Estrikken (floor tiles) and Brick; Joanna Greijdanus, without occupation, and Anna Greijdanus, without trade, all the appearers living within the town of Harlingen; Petrus Greijdanus and Catharina Vellinga being both parents and heirs of their late son Dirk Greijdanus, in life Notary, having resided and lived at Harlingen and died there 9 November 1828; for 2/4 parts; — Joannes Greijdanus, Ida Greijdanus, Joanna Greijdanus and Anna Greijdanus, Heirs of their late brother Dirk Greijdanus aforesaid, for the remaining 2/4 parts, and thus all together Heirs of the whole of the estate of the aforesaid Dirk Greijdanus, Petitioners of the one part
> and
> Cornelia Mollema, Widow of the said Dirk Greijdanus, living at Harlingen and there married to him on 30 November 1826 in community of property without any marriage contract, Respondent of the other part.
> The Petitioners hereby renounce, in favour of the Respondent, the whole estate of the said testator and of the common property which had been owned by him and his present widow.
> That in return the Respondent undertakes, upon the signing of this present deed, to pay the Petitioners at one time 1300 gls in sound, good gold or silver coin current here, without bonds, government securities or other papers passing for money.
> That the Respondent undertakes to pay for her own account all debts chargeable to the said estate and common property, whether already known or discovered hereafter."

[1] The titles of address in this notarial deed have been omitted by me here.

Furthermore, the following advertisement appeared in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 26 December 1828, N° 104:

> "The Notary J. HANEKUYK, at Harlingen, will, on Monday 5 January 1829 and the following days, in the afternoon at 2 o'clock precisely, in the house on the Voorstraat there, in district C, no. 42, formerly occupied by the cabinetmaker Smit, by public sale of goods, for cash payment, publicly sell: A very neat and modern HOUSEHOLD EFFECTS, consisting of linen, beds, blankets, very handsome mahogany furniture, such as: secretaire, tables, chairs, mirrors, an extensive English table service, a fine complete lacquered service, as well as copper, tin and tinware, kitchen utensils, and whatever else will be brought forward on the day; belonging to the estate of the late Mr. D. GREIJDANUS and to his surviving widow.
> Anyone who has any claim upon, or is indebted to, the estate and inheritance of the late Mr. DIRK GREYDANUS, in his lifetime Notary at Harlingen, and lately deceased there, is requested to give notice thereof or to make payment to Mr. J. C. MOLLEMA, in the said town, before or at the latest on 31 January 1829."

MARRIED:

CORNELIA MOLLEMA, 30 November 1826 at Harlingen, as appears from the following family announcement:

> "⁂ Married:
> Harlingen, DIRK GREYDANUS
> the 30th of November and > 1826. CORNELIA MOLLEMA."

Cornelia Mollema was born (according to the akte van bekendheid (deed of notoriety) produced at her marriage) 17 December 1791 at Harlingen, as daughter of Cornelis H. Mollema and Holkje Jarigs van der Ley.

Like her husband Dirk Greijdanus she was Mennonite. She was baptized at Harlingen in the Mennonite Congregation 20 March 1812.

Cornelis Mollema, born at Harlingen 10 Nov. 1764, was at Harlingen at first a merchant together with W. Harmens, in linseed cakes and grain, as appears to follow from the advertisements below:

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 7th October 1797, N° 2358, The Third Year of Batavian Liberty:
> "At C. Mollema and W. Harmens at Harlingen, Baltic linseed cakes are for sale at 5 Gl. 10 strs. the hundred, to be paid on delivery."
> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 10th November A° 1798, N° 2415, The Fourth Year of Batavian Liberty:
> "The Ontvanger der Boelgoederen (receiver of public sales of goods) at Harlingen intends, on next Wednesday the 14th of this month at 12 o'clock noon, in the Heeren Logement de Gouden Leeuw, to sell publicly; about 10 lasts of damaged rye and wheat, further particulars to be had from C. Mollema and W. Harmens."

In 1808 he was on the board of a "Compact van onderlinge Zee Assurantie voor Buitenschippers en Rheeders" (mutual marine insurance association for foreign-going skippers and shipowners) founded at Harlingen, which is taken from the advertisement below, occurring in the "Vriesche Courant" of Saturday 7 May 1808, N° 55:

> "Notice is given that at Harlingen there has been established, under the direction of Johannes Leenderts, Jacob P. Kerkhoven, Fredrik Dublinga, P. Rodenhuis, D. C. Zylstra and C. Mollema, a COMPACT of mutual SEA INSURANCE for foreign-going skippers and shipowners — Anyone wishing to take part should apply to the appointed bookkeeper W. J. VETTEVOGEL, Royal Notary there."

At the beginning of 1812 he bought from the widow P. Tetrode her salt refinery, on which at a sale a bid of f 4525 had been made. After his death in 1823 this salt refinery was continued by his widow and his son J. C. Mollema under the firm name C. Mollema, and from 1 January 1837 onwards for the account and in the name of the said son. All this comes to light through the following advertisements:

"Feuille d'Affiches, Annonces et Avis divers de Leuwarde. Blad van Aankondigingen, bekendmakingen en onderscheidene berigten van Leeuwarden" of Monday the 6 January 1812, N° 3:

(French) "NB. NB. The final adjudication of the Saltworks of	NB. NB. The final Palmslag (concluding stroke of sale) of the SALTWORKS

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 7 October 1823, N° 80:

> "+ This morning my dear husband, C. MOLLEMA, passed away at the age of nearly 59 years, of which I was permitted to live with him for more than 32 in the most agreeable marriage. A chest complaint put an end to his useful life, so precious to me and my children. The consolation of religion, the remembrance of the deceased and the sympathy of my friends will, I trust, soothe our sorrows.
> Harlingen HOLKJE J. VAN DER LEY,
> the 8 October 1823. Widow of C. Mollema.
> The business will be continued by my son, under the same firm name."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 2 December 1836:

> "The undersigned hereby makes known to those concerned that the Firm of C. MOLLEMA, under which she has carried on trade until now, will cease to exist on the 31 December of this year.
> Harlingen HOLKJE VAN DER LEY,
> the 1 December 1836. Widow of C. Mollema."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 27 December 1836, N° 104:

> "The undersigned hereby gives notice that he will continue the SALTWORKS, carried on until now under the firm name of C. MOLLEMA, from 1 January 1837 for his own account and in his own name.
> Harlingen, the 24 December 1836. J. C. MOLLEMA."

Cornelis Mollema also seems to have had an anchor smithy and an iron trade at Harlingen, as might appear from the advertisement below, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Wednesday the 28 February 1816, N° 26:

> “)o( )o( )o(The undersigned has at present his ANCHOR SMITHY here in full operation, and has made a considerable quantity of new ANCHORS of different weights; he recommends himself both for the sale of the same at moderate prices and for the making of such weight and shape as the buyer may choose, as well as for the repairing of defects in Anchors or heavy Mill work.
> Also to be obtained from him at very reasonable prices, various sorts of newly arrived SWEDISH BAR IRON; letters concerning this postage paid.
> Harlingen, the 24th February 1816. C. MOLLEMA.”

Cornelia Mollema remarried 24 November 1836 at Harlingen to Dirk Beth, widower of her sister Grietje Mollema, born at Harlingen 27 March 1798, died at Amsterdam 21 September 1835. Dirk Beth was a broker in real estate and died at Kortenhoef 25 October 1881; he was born at Amsterdam 3 February 1796, as son of Willem Jacobus Beth Hendrikszoon and Johanna Doeff.

Cornelia Mollema died at Kortenhoef 28 March 1854 and was buried at 's-Graveland.

The marriage of Dirk Greydanus to Cornelia Mollema remained CHILDLESS.

Herewith is also an illustration of the coat of arms of the family “Mollema”, the heraldic description of which is as follows:

Per pale: 1. the Frisian eagle.

2. silver, with three green clover leaves, 1 and 2.

Crest: a crown of leaves.

Wreath and Mantling: silver and green.

b. Harlingen, 22 October 1799 · d. Groningen, 22 January 1883 · daughter of Petrus Greidanus (N° 107) and Catharina Vellinga · m. Gerhardus Pettinga, 1836

She was born 22 October 1799 at Harlingen and baptized there on 5 November following in the Groote Kerk, according to the following entry in the Reformed baptismal register (Groote Kerk) of Harlingen:

> “(1799)
> (November)
> 5 — Joanna born on 22 October 1799, the parents being Petrus Greidanus and Catharina Vellinga, married couple.”

She was Mennonite and was admitted as a member of the Mennonite Congregation at Harlingen on 27 September 1822.

Joanna Greijdanus died 22 January 1883, at the age of 83 years, at Groningen, where she had settled on 1 May 1876 with her daughter Doetje Pettinga, widow of Jacob Oosterbaan, Mennonite minister at Midwolda; on 26 September 1867 Joanna Greijdanus had left Harlingen for Midwolda.

MARRIED:

GERHARDUS (GERARDUS) PETTINGA, 28 January 1836 at Harlingen, according to the following family announcement, published in the “Leeuwarder Courant” of Friday 5 February 1836, N° 11:

> “⁎ Married:
> Harlingen, — G. PETTINGA, Jr. and > 28 January 1836. — J. GREYDANUS.”

Gerhardus Pettinga was the widower of Jeannetta (Jeannette) Westra, born at Harlingen, daughter of Henricus Westra and Eva Fontein, and died at Harlingen 11 July 1834, aged 38 years. The marriage of Gerhardus Pettinga to Jeannetta Westra was solemnized at Harlingen on 29 August 1822; Henricus Westra was at that time Director of the Import and Export Duties and Excises in the Department of Groningen.

Gerhardus Pettinga was born 17 November 1794 at Harlingen, as the son of Gerbrandus Pettinga and Doetje Oedses Spoelstra.

Concerning this, the following is recorded in the birth register 1741—1812 (alphabetically arranged 1779) of the Mennonite Congregation at Harlingen, kept in the State Archives at Leeuwarden:

> “Gerbrandus Pettinga and Doetje Spoelstra
> The wife a member of the Congregation
> July 1794.
> From this marriage
> Gerardus Gerbrandusz. Pettinga, b. 17 November 1794
> Maaike Gerbrandusz. Pettinga, b. 2 September 1797.”

Gerbrandus Pettinga (G. Pettinga Sr.) was a native of Leeuwarden and became a burgher of Harlingen on 7 February 1787, according to the following extract from the “Burgerboek der Stede Harlingen, aengelecht den 1 April 1683”:

> "Wednesday 7 February 1787
> Gerbrandus Pettinga, a native of Leeuwarden, has been admitted as a burgher of this > town and has taken the oath of faithful residence > in the hands of the presiding Burgomaster Tamboeser, and has paid the fees > due therefor . . . . . 10 — 10 — "."

Gerbrandus Pettinga was at first a gortmaker (groats miller) at Harlingen, as may follow from the advertisements below:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 10th February Aº 1798, Nº 2376, The Fourth Year of Batavian Freedom:

> "A GORTMAKER'S ASSISTANT (groats miller's assistant), possessing the required skills, can obtain work next May with G. Pettinga at Harlingen."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 7th September Aº 1805, Nº 2771:

> "Still for Sale, of the GORTMAKER'S EQUIPMENT formerly belonging to the widow of P. T. Hogstra at Harlingen, the following items, namely: a buckwheat flour sifting chest, a ditto wheat flour sifting chest, a sifting machine, a clearing sifter, two double winnowing fans, two groats bins, a counter etc.; those interested may apply to G. Pettinga, at Harlingen.

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 19 January 1816, Nº 9.

> "A GORTMAKER'S ASSISTANT, possessing the required skills, can obtain a POSITION on 12 May next, at a reasonable WAGE, with G. PETTINGA, at Harlingen."

In September 1817 Gerbrandus Pettinga took over the long-established wine trade at Harlingen from Mr. P. Huidekooper. This is taken from the following advertisement, placed in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 12 September 1817, Nº 73:

> ")o( )o( )o(The undersigned, having taken over on the first of this month from Mr. P. HUIDEKOPER the long-established WINE TRADE, has thought it proper hereby to inform the honoured Public in general, and the former patrons of the said gentleman in particular. — On entering upon this business he recommends himself to all who may be pleased to favour him with their orders; while his special connections enable him to supply extraordinary qualities at very moderate prices.
> Harlingen, the 2nd September 1817. GERBRAND PETTINGA."

In 1822 Gerhardus Pettinga was taken into his father's wine and vinegar business, as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 26 March 1822, Nº 25:

> ")o( )o( )o(The undersigned takes the liberty hereby of informing his honoured Patrons that his Business in WINES and VINEGAR will henceforth be continued under the firm of G. PETTINGA and SON.
> Harlingen, 14 March 1822. G. PETTINGA."

Besides being a wine merchant (firm G. Pettinga & Zoon), Gerhardus Pettinga (G. Pettinga Jr.) was at Harlingen: Secretary of the Dijksbestuur (dike board) of the Vijf Deelen Zeedijken, Binnen- en Buitendijks, in which capacity one finds various announcements by him of tenders for pile timber in the "Leeuwarder Courant". One of those announcements follows below:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 15 July 1836, Nº 57:

> "The DIJKSBESTUUR of the Vijf Deelen Zeedijken, Binnen- en Buitendijks, offers to put out to tender by sealed notes to the lowest bidders, the delivery of:
> 800 PILES of 71 palm (decimetres)
> 1200 62
> 200 53
> 600 41
> 400 35½
> Which Delivery must take place before the 1 November next and the payment for which will take place in the month of January 1837.
> Those interested are invited to send in their Tender Forms, postage paid, at the Secretariat of the Vijf Deelen, to the undersigned (where the Specification and Conditions are also to be obtained), before the 1 August.
> Harlingen, 14 July 1836.
> On behalf of the Dijksbestuur,
> G. PETTINGA Jr. Secretary."

Gerhardus Pettinga was by Royal Decree of 26 December 1831 appointed and installed as 2nd lieutenant of the volunteer civic guard at Harlingen, while in the year 1833 he was captain there in the Landstorm in Vriesland.

He died at Utrecht, domiciled at Harlingen, according to the following family announcement, on 25 February 1845 at the age of 50:

> " On the 25th February 1845 there died, after a long illness, at the age of just over fifty years, my beloved Husband and the caring Father of the Children, GERHARDUS PETTINGA, in life Wine merchant at Harlingen and Secretary of the Dijksbestuur (dike board) of the Vijf Deelen Zeedijken there.
> J. G R E I J D A N U S, > Widow of G. Pettinga.
> General and particular notice.
> The wine trade will provisionally be continued under the same firm of > G. Pettinga en Zoon."

On one of the armorial cloths of the Officers of the Schutterij (civic militia) in one of the corridors of the Town Hall at Harlingen appears the coat of arms of Gerardus Pettinga as sub-adjutant and captain (1815—1822) /see the communications "Wapenoogst" in columns 380/381 and 421/422 of volume XXXVII for 1919 of the Monthly of the Genealogical-Heraldic Society "De Nederlandsche Leeuw", where in column 381 "Pottinga" will be intended as "Pettinga"/. An illustration of this coat of arms "Pettinga", of which the heraldic description follows below, is included herewith:

party per pale: 1. the Frisian eagle

2. divided per fess: a. red, with a black house-mark

b. blue, with a silver unicorn, lying on a green ground.

Crest: a silver unicorn's head and neck.

Wreath and mantling: silver and blue.

"Pettinga"

From the marriage of Gerardus Pettinga and Joanna Greijdanus a son was born at Harlingen on 26 November 1836, who was named Petrus Greijdanus Pettinga; he died there, however, already on 14 December following.

Ida Greijdanus

Frans van Esta Tjallingii

She was born 23 December 1801 at Harlingen, according to the population register of Arnhem, where she was later settled.

Ida Greijdanus was Mennonite and was baptized on 27 September 1822, together with her brother Dirk Greijdanus, in the Mennonite Congregation at Harlingen.

She died at Arnhem on 31 December 1889 at the age of 88 years.

Of her portrait there is in the Friesch Museum at Leeuwarden a gouache drawing, made in 1848 by Louis Chantal. A copy of this drawing is in my possession, while a reproduction of it is included herewith.

A miniature of her painted on ivory, made in 1828 by S. B. Benavente, is in the possession of Mr. F. van Esta Tjallingii at Beekbergen, house "'t Vossehol". A reproduction of this miniature is likewise included herewith (see at page 556).

MARRIED:

FRANS VAN ESTA TJALLINGII, 7 August 1828 at Harlingen, widower of Catharina Aleida van Enschut.

Frans van Esta Tjallingii married Catharina Aleida van Enschut at Harlingen on 21 January 1820; she was then 16 years old, born at Arnhem and daughter of Willem Jan van Enschut, at the time of the marriage Commis Visiteur (inspecting customs officer) for outward and inward clearance stationed at the Abt, living at Harlingen, and of Henrietta Alpherts. Catharina Aleida van Enschut died at Harlingen 6 December 1826 according to the following advertisement, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 12 December 1826, N° 99, to which I have here given a place partly for its curiosity:

> "  Three days ago I could rejoice over a happy delivery, now I am plunged into the deepest mourning, since it pleased the Almighty to take unto Himself my dear wife CATHARINA ALEIDA van ENSCHUT.
> The generally prevailing illness, from which she had twice happily recovered, took hold for the third time with a terrible fury, and cut her > thread of life. — She died at the youthful age of not yet 24 years, leaving me five darlings, of whom even the eldest is too young to feel the loss of a caring mother.
> Harlingen, F. van ESTA TJALLINGII."
> 6 December 1826.

The marriage of Frans van Esta Tjallingii to Ida Greijdanus was announced in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 12 August 1828, N° 65, as follows:

> "⁂ Married:
> Harlingen, F. van ESTA TJALLINGII
> 7 August 1828. IDA GREIJDANUS."

Frans van Esta Tjallingii was born 21 January 1797 at Leeuwarden, as son of Jacobus Tjallingii and Philippina Spannenburg, and was baptized there in the Westerkerk on 10 February following by D[s] M. A. de Jongh S.S.M. Cand., which is taken from the following documents:

Advertisement "Friesche Courant" of Tuesday 24 January 1797, N° 10:

> "This morning my beloved wife gave birth, very prosperously, to a well-formed SON.
> Leeuwarden, 21 January 1797. J. TJALLINGII."

Baptismal register of the Dutch Reformed Church at Leeuwarden, of 1796—1802, p. 32:

"On 10 February 1797 there was baptized in the Westerkerk by D[s] M. A. de Jongh S. S. M. Cand.
Frans. — Born on 21 January 1797
Of whom the father is Jacobus Tjallinge
And mother Philippina Spannenburg."

Jacobus Tjallingii was at first a timber merchant at Harlingen, as may appear from the two advertisements below:

"Leeuwarder Saturdagsche Courant" of 18 November 1786, N[o] 1790:
"Dr. J. VAN ALEMA, W. J. HANEKUYK, and S. GRATAMA, will on Thursday 23 November 1786 at the provisional Palmslag (closing handshake of the sale), in the evening at five o'clock in the inn de Gouden Leeuw in Harlingen, offer for sale by Strykgeld (bidder's premium):
I[mo] A solid HOUSE, lately rebuilt almost entirely new, with two large adjoining TIMBER SHEDS cum annexis, standing on the north side of the Noorderhaven in Harlingen, just as it is inhabited on lease by the merchant Jacob Tjallingi cum uxore, and successfully used for a TIMBER BUSINESS, free to be entered upon on 12 May 1787. On which a bid has been made of 2810 goudguldens 21 stuivers.
II[do] . . . . .
III[tio] . . . . .
IV[to] . . . . .
V[do] . . . . ."

"Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" of 27 August 1788, N[o] 1033:
"The advocates HANEKUYK and WESTRA together with the attorney RIENSTRA at Harlingen, will there in the inn Roma, on Wednesdays 10, 17 and 24 September 1788, at the 1st, 2nd and 3rd session days, each time at five o'clock in the evening, sell by Strykgeld:
I. . . . . .
. . . . . .
XV. A large TIMBER SHED, at present empty, standing in the Droogstraat in Harlingen, last used by Jacob Tjallingii as tenant."

In 1789 Jacob Tjallingii took over the business of the Dubbele Gleybakkerij — tile and pottery works — outside the Kerkpoort to the south of and near Harlingen, from his father-in-law, Johannes Spannenburg, former Hopman (militia captain), after the public sale of it had first been announced, and while he was already living in a "large house to be inhabited in connection with the said factory" on the Noordys at Harlingen. This is taken from the following advertisements:

"Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" of 16 May 1789, N[o] 1920:
"Whereas the GLEYBAKKERIJ formerly run by Johannes Spannenburg at Harlingen is henceforth to be run by his son-in-law JACOB TJALLINGII there, and whereas besides that a similar business is run at Harlingen by the merchant Frans Tjallingii, the aforesaid merchant Jacob Tjallingii hereby advertises that he, in order to prevent the confusion which may be caused by the similarity of name, will henceforth sign his firm as Tjallingii Spannenburgz., requesting everyone who has dealings with him to address him under the firm of Tjallingii Spannenburgz., with the promise of prompt treatment, and with a request for favour and recommendation."

"Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" of 11 March 1789, N[o] 1661:
"o o On Tuesday 17 March 1789, at five o'clock precisely in the evening, at the house of o the coffee-house keeper Klaas Ysenbeek, at Harlingen, at the first session, there will be presented for public sale by strike-money:
I[mo]. The excellent and most renowned DOUBLE GLEYBAKKERIJ (tile and faience works), one of which was built entirely new about 8 years ago, with wind and horse mills, ovens, timber shed, clay bins, sand and stone sheds, as well as a neatly panelled summer and winter dwelling, together with garden, servants' dwelling, and stabling, all lying together just outside the Kerkpoort at Harlingen, such as is operated and possessed by the former Hopman Joh. Spannenburg, encumbered with 19 Carolus guilders annual ground rent, to be taken over immediately after the final strike. — The great advantage of this business being that the double Gleybakkerij can be operated with far fewer hands than if each of the two works stood in separate places; anyone meanwhile inclined to buy the aforesaid factory privately may apply to the former Hopman J. Spannenburg at Harlingen, who offers to communicate and teach to the buyer the secret by which the stoneware of these works excels that of others in many respects.
II[do]. The capital HOUSE, with LOFTS, and further conveniences to be inhabited along with the said factory, standing and situated on 't Noordys at Harlingen, at present inhabited by the merchant Jac. Tjallingii, free to be taken over on 12 May 1789. — Being meanwhile also for private sale together with the Gleybakkerij. More fully according to the bills and conditions of sale, which may in the meantime be learned from Dr. Altena at Leeuwarden, and the Notary Visser at Harlingen."

Concerning particulars of this tile and faience works at Harlingen, which already existed in the 17th century and came from the family Sijbeda, see pages 10, 11 and 12 of the little book by Nanne Ottema, "Friesche Majolica," published in 1920 by the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde.

Already in 1793, however, Jacobus Tjallingii settled at Leeuwarden, where on the 26th of April of that year he was admitted as a citizen, as innkeeper of the inn "het Zwart Kruis" near the Lange Pyp[1], and the "double Gleybakkery" at Harlingen was offered for private sale. In 1794 the said Gleybakkerij was sold publicly, and, as has already been reported on page 539, its owners became: Laas T. Spannenburg and Jan L. van der Veen.

All this appears from the following advertisements:

> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" of 4 May 1793, N° 2127:
> "Jacob Tjallingii from Harlingen advertises that on 12 May 1793 he will come to live in the inn het Zwart Kruis, near the Lange Pyp at Leeuwarden, and intends to continue carrying on there the same business as is at present conducted in it, for which he will have considerably more room, his house being enlarged with the upper dwelling of the adjoining house, consisting of various modern rooms, two of them one above the other, having a very fine view over the Lange Pyp. He recommends himself to the favour of the gentlemen travellers and others, as also of the gentlemen secretaries, advocates, notaries and attorneys, for the holding of sales and other meetings, with the promise of prompt and civil service."
> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" of 28 September 1793, N° 2148:
> "For private sale: a capital, strong and very renowned double GLEYBAKKERY, with 2 ovens and a capital windmill for the grinding of the paint materials, further a large timber shed, dwellings and garden, together with spacious yard, all standing and situated just outside the Kerkpoort at Harlingen; information from the former Hopman J. Spannenburg there."
> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" of 12 March 1794, N° 1922:
> "Dr. Altena will, on Thursday 27 March 1794, at 2 o'clock precisely in the afternoon, at the first session, at the house of the coffee-house keeper Klaas Yzenbeek at Harlingen, present for public sale by strike-money:
> The double GLEYBAKKERY of the former Hopman J. Spannenburgh, with the dwellings there, previously already advertised, one of which is inhabited by Mr. Captain Spree and his wife as tenants, standing on the Noordys, which on 12 May 1794 can be taken over free of tenancy."
> "Leeuwarder Woensdagse Courant" of 3 September 1794, N° 1947:
> "It is advertised that the long-known Gleybakkery of Joh. Spannenburg at Harlingen, and afterwards operated by Jacob Tjallingii, but having now stood idle for some time, will be started and operated again under the name of Spannenburg en van der Veen; so that everyone will again be able to be served with different kinds of bowls, dishes and tiles, to satisfaction; for which the above-mentioned recommend themselves."

Jacobus Tjallingii remained innkeeper or "coffee-house keeper", as it was mostly called at that time, of the inn, wine and coffee house "het Zwart Kruis" opposite the Waag near the Lange Pyp at Leeuwarden, of which he was at the same time the owner, until the middle of 1806, when H. van den Berg, Castelein (innkeeper) at Berlicum, became his successor and he established himself as "coffy-schenker" (coffee-house keeper) on the Eewal at Leeuwarden.

[1] Pyp = stone arch bridge.

As early as the end of 1794 he had offered his Logement for private sale, but this had remained without result. Apparently for that reason it was sold publicly in July/August 1805, but this sale did not go through. All this is taken from the following advertisements:

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 12th of July A° 1806, N° 2815:
> "N.B. H. v. d. Berg, formerly Castelein at Berlicum, came on the 12 May 1806 to live in the Coffee-house which belonged to J. Tjallingii, by the Lange Pyp at Leeuwarden, and offers himself for the keeping of BILLIARDS and a COFFEE-HOUSE, as also for the holding of SALES and MEETINGS, and downstairs for TAPPING as formerly took place with A. L. de Ryk, recommending himself kindly to all his Patrons, with the promise of prompt attendance."
> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Wednesday the 15th of October A° 1806, N° 2579:
> "The Secretary E. Cats, will (by Continuation) on Monday the 20 October 1806, in the evening at 5 o'clock, at the house of J. Tjallingii, Coffee-house keeper on the Eewal within Leeuwarden, at the Final Palmslag (knock-down), publicly offer for Sale:
> I. A fine and well finished HOUSE, in the Korfmakerstraat at Leeuwarden, inhabited by the Lady, Widow of the late Mr. van Peisen, as tenant. Upon which has been bid 4038 Car. Gls. II. A sound HOUSE and BAKERY, standing on the Weert there, inhabited and used by P. D. Tulleners cum uxore as tenants. Upon which has been bid 3025 Car. Gls. III. A sound HOUSE on the Eewal there, inhabited by the Master Silversmith A. Feenstra cum uxore as tenants. Upon which has been bid 2000 Car. Gls. IV. A HOUSE and BLEACHING-FIELD, in the Agterom by the Arsenal, inhabited by Sybren Broers as tenant. All being free of tenancy on 12 May 1807. Upon which has been bid 276 Car. Gls."
> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" of the 18 October 1794, N° 2203:
> "Anyone inclined to purchase privately the Logement 't Zwart Kruis, between the Lange Pyp and the Town Weigh-house at Leeuwarden, may apply to the Owner J. Tjallingii, who is willing to deal on very acceptable Conditions as regards the time and manner of payment."
> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 22nd of June A° 1805, N° 2760:
> "The Actuarien (legal clerks) van der Let, Harinxma, Godschalk and van der Plaats, will, as attorneys of Jac. Tjallingii, on Tuesdays the 23 and 30 July, and 6 August 1805, each time in the evening at 6 o'clock, at the Schryving (entry of bids), Verhoging (raising) and Final Palmslag, publicly offer for Sale with Stryk- and Verhooggeld (bidding premiums):
> A large House and Yard, standing and situated opposite the Weigh-house by the Lange Pyp in the best part of the Town of Leeuwarden, of old known under the name of HET ZWART KRUIS, a few Years ago entirely rebuilt, and by its many various Apartments excellently suited for a principal Logement, in which for some Years already, as still at present, a Wine and Coffee-house is kept with much success, to be entered upon free on 12 May 1806; all more fully according to the Bills.
> Whoever has a mind to it, let him come at the aforesaid Time, to the house of Jac. Tjallingii, by whom the same is inhabited and used as Owner, and buy on Conditions to be read out then, which may meanwhile be learned from the aforenamed Actuarien at Leeuwarden. PASS IT ON."
>
> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Wednesday the 3rd of July A° 1805, N° 2512:
> "The announced Sale of the House of Jacobus Tjallingii, by the Weigh-house at Leeuwarden will not proceed."

In the "Leeuwarder Courant" there occur some advertisements concerning sales etc. to be held in the coffee-house of J. Tjallingii. In an advertisement of 1798 the coffee-house was called "het Nationaal Coffyhuis" and later the "Coffyhuis or the Wynhuis by the Waag"; this appears from the advertisements below (which have also been included for their curiosity) and the following newspaper report:

> "Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 11th of August A° 1798, N° 2402, The Fourth Year of Batavian Freedom:
> "A capable FRENCH-HORN PLAYER, of good conduct of life, is invited at the earliest opportunity to engage himself at a fixed Salary, in the service of the Musicians with the Batavian Armed Citizen Force within Leeuwarden; further information at the house of the Citizen J. Tjallingii, in the National Coffee-House opposite the Weigh-house; L e t t e r s P o s t P a i d."
> "Bataafsche Leeuwarder Courant" of Thursday the 13 February 1800, N° 19:
> "ABRAHAM GERRITS of Haarlem makes known to all Lovers, that he has arrived here; having with him all colours of double Hyacinths for the cold ground, ditto early and late Tulips, Ranunculus in all colours, ditto Anemones in colours, double cluster Narcissi in all colours, and also Tuberose bulbs, American Flower bulbs in colours, Tulips, Duk van Tol, etc. — The merchant promises and assures all Lovers to give much satisfaction; further address with the Coffee-house keeper J. J. Tjallingii, by the Weigh-house at Leeuwarden."
> "Bataafsche Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 2 February 1802, N° 14:
> "NB. NB. It is advertised by J. Tjallingii in the Wynhuis by the Weigh-house at Leeuwarden, > N.B. that there is to be had from him, the very best PUNCH SYRUP > with Arrack, at f 2—4—: the Bottle, as also SYRUP OF CAPILLAIRE, and several other SYRUPS, and assures everyone of the best goods and prompt service, thus recommending himself."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 6th of April A° 1805, N° 2749:

> NOTIFICATION.
> DROST and COURT of LEEUWARDEN, to all those who shall see this, or hear it read, Greetings! make known:
>
> Whereas We, by resolution of the Departmental Administration of Friesland dated 28 March 1805, N° 2, have been ordered, in consequence of a resolution of the State Government taken on the 25th preceding under Litt. A, to take the necessary care that the voting on the Draft of the Constitution be established in conformity with the Proclamation published concerning it by the said State Government, and that the provisions contained in the aforesaid Proclamation be strictly followed in all parts.
>
> Therefore it is, that We, in fulfilment thereof, hereby give notice to our Inhabitants:
>
> Firstly: That from this moment a copy of the aforementioned Proclamation lies open for inspection in the old Secretary's office at the Town Hall here; as also at the house of Jan Ysenbeek in the Hooghuis, N. Lourens in the Coffeehouse by the Town Hall, J. Tjallingii in the Coffeehouse by the Weigh-house, Frans de Vries on the corner of the Wirdumerdyk, C. Scholte in the Keizers Kroon, J. de Buhr in the Wildeman, Widow F. van der Feen in the Valk, P. Goënga in the Lands Welvaren, H. Westra in the Star, Widow Timmermans in the Zon, H. van der Woude in the Wagentje and Riemersma in the Posthoorn.
> Secondly: That from 9 April to the 16th of the same month next, in the mornings from nine to twelve and in the afternoons from two to six o'clock, public Voting Registers will be laid open at the Town Hall within this City, and that all Inhabitants of this City and its Jurisdiction, male persons, twenty years of age, and not excluded from the voting according to Art. 25 of the present Constitution, will be given the opportunity to cast their vote with Yes or No on the offered Draft of the Constitution, — the appointment of Rutger Jan Schimmelpenninck as first Raadpensionaris — and the qualification upon him for the introduction of the Constitution.
>
> And so that no one may plead any ignorance in this matter, this shall be published and posted as is customary.
>
> Thus done and resolved in the Meeting of DROST and COURT at the Town Hall within Leeuwarden, the 3rd of April 1805.
> P. ZEPER Vt.
> By Order of Drost and Court
> D. A. HAMERSTER."

At the end of 1808 and again at the end of 1810 the coffeehouse on the Eewal, belonging to Jacobus Tjallingii as owner, was put up for public sale, apparently without being knocked down. In 1811 its inventory and 2 years later the coffeehouse itself were sold by execution. All this is taken from the following advertisements:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 26th of November A° 1808, N° 2939:

> "Dr. E. Cats and the Notary VAN DER PLAATS at Leeuwarden, present for public sale:
>
> An excellent Gentleman's HOUSE, standing on the Eëwal at Leeuwarden, Lett. I. N° 66, inhabited by J. Tjallingii as owner, consisting of eleven Rooms, and a Hall, six of which are royally papered, plastered and provided with ceilings; it is regularly built, and the front with two wings, inside laid with alabaster floors, conveniences, three Cellars, one of them vaulted, entered from the water and from inside, and further conveniences, free to take possession of on 12 May 1809.
>
> Whoever is interested herein, let him come on Mondays the 5th, 12th and 19th of December 1808, at the Entry, Raising and Final Knock-down, in the evening at five o'clock, at the house of the Widow van der Veen, in the Valk at Leeuwarden.
>
> Should anyone in the meantime be inclined to buy that House privately, or to know the Conditions of Sale, let him address himself to one of the Actuaries, or to the Owner."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 4th of September A° 1810, N° 2782:

> "The Advocates Cats and van der Plaats, at Leeuwarden, present for public sale by Entry- and Raising-money: An excellent, extra fine and strongly built HOUSE, standing on the Eewal at Leeuwarden. Letter I N° 66, inhabited by Jacob Tjallingii, as owner, free to take possession of on the 12th of Bloeimaand 1811; — The house building with two royal wings is provided with a number of Rooms and Halls, described in detail in the Bills.

PASS IT ON."

"Vriesche Courant" of Wednesday the 10th of July 1811, N° 82:

> "JELLE ANNES NYSLOOT, provisional Bailiff of the Court of First Instance residing at Leeuwarden, living there, shall by virtue of his executorial Commission, lying in favour of Tæke Plantinga, living at Harlingen, and to the disadvantage of Jacobus Tjallingii and Philippina Spannenburg, married persons living at Leeuwarden, at the house of the last-mentioned, on Friday the 12th of July 1811, in the morning at ten o'clock, against cash payment, in case of execution Sell: FURNITURE and HOUSEHOLD GOODS, such as a Billiard Table with its accessories, a Mahogany Cabinet, 2 Oak ditto, some Bedsteads, Chairs, Tables and whatever else shall be offered for sale."

[1] From a subsequent advertisement it appears that the bid on the house was: "6925 Car.Glds 15 Strs."

"Blad van Aankondigingen, Bekendmakingen en Onderscheiden Berigten van Leeuwarden" of Monday 10 May 1813, N° 56:

> "Executory sale, before the court of first instance, residing at Leeuwarden:
> Of a HOUSE, standing and situated on the Eewal at Leeuwarden, marked letter I, n° 66, municipality of Leeuwarden, arrondissement of Leeuwarden.
> Seized at the requisition of Mr. JENTJE CATS, resident at Leeuwarden, having cession from JOHANNES SCHAAP and MARTEN HUIZINGA, there, who has appointed as his avoué (attorney), to act for him in this seizure, mr. NICOLAAS FOCKEMA, provisional avoué at the aforementioned court, at Leeuwarden, and against JACOB TJALLINGII, without profession, resident at Leeuwarden.
> By official record, of the twenty-first April eighteen-hundred-and-thirteen, transcribed at the mortgage office at Leeuwarden, the twenty-second April eighteen-hundred-and-thirteen, and at the registry of the court of first instance at Leeuwarden, the first May eighteen-hundred-and-thirteen, of which a copy has been left with Jr. JULIUS VAN BURMANIA, maire (mayor) of the city of Leeuwarden, and with Mr. DOMINICUS AGÆUS HAMERSTER, clerk at the justice-of-the-peace court of the canton Leeuwarden, N° 1, resident at Leeuwarden.
> The first announcement will take place on TUESDAY the fifteenth JUNY eighteen-hundred-and-thirteen, in the morning at ten o'clock on the cause list of the court of first instance, residing at Leeuwarden."[1]

Philippina Spannenburg died at Leeuwarden 21 July 1831 at the age of 71 years and Jacobus Tjallingii there 13 December of the same year at the age of 74; he was then apparently living in a rented "intrek" (upper-floor dwelling) in the Muntjemuurstraat, as might be inferred from the advertisement below:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 9 December 1831, N° 98:

> "The Notary J. C. KUTSCH, at Leeuwarden, will, the first 6 lots at the request of Mr. J. ALBARDA, Hz., there, on Monday 19 December 1831 finally, in the afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the house of L. Beugelaar, in the Nieuwe Doelen at Leeuwarden, sell:
> 1. A recently renovated MERCHANT'S HOUSE and YARD, standing and situated in the Muntjemuurstraat, letter K, no. 88, the lower part inhabited by Mr. F. Roukes as owner, and the Intrek let to Mr. Tjallingii, for f 140 a year; until 12 May 1832, on which has been bid f 2776.
> etc.
> All lots standing and situated at Leeuwarden."

The father of Frans van Esta Tjallingii was thus called Jacobus Tjallingii. A sister of this Jacobus Tjallingii (see the accompanying draft: fragment genealogy of the family "Tjallingii"): Geertruida Tjallingii was married to Frans Fokkes van Esta, "manufacturer of roof tiles and floor tiles", under the firm name "F. F. van Esta" at Harlingen. When this Frans Fokkes van Esta died at Harlingen 12 July 1825 without children, his nephew Frans van Esta Tjallingii, who was one of his executors under the will, became the owner of his roof-tile and floor-tile works. Apparently Frans van Esta Tjallingii after this death added the family name "van Esta" of his uncle Frans Fokkes van Esta to his family name "Tjallingii". He was already a brick manufacturer at Harlingen and from 1 January 1826 onwards used the firm name "F. F. van Esta" both for his brickworks and for the roof-tile and floor-tile works he had acquired. All this can be illustrated by the following advertisements:

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 15 July 1825, N° 56:

> "* * * This morning about 9 o'clock, after a slow decline of strength, to the deep sorrow of his Family, died Mr. FRANS FOKKES van ESTA, in life manufacturer of roof tiles and floor tiles here, at the age of 74 years and 6 months. — Dear to his Family and Friends and useful in the social circle, his memory will always remain a blessing with all who knew the deceased.
> Harlingen F. van ESTA TJALLINGII,
> 12 July 1825. Also in the name of the co-Executors.

[1] At the preparatory valuation the house came, over and above the costs, to three-thousand five-hundred guilders.

> The Pan and Estrik Factories will be continued on the same footing > and under the same Firm name of Fr. F. van Esta."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 23 December 1825, N^{o} 102:

> "The Undersigned, Manufacturer in Brick at Harlingen, having become owner of the Pan and Floor-tile works, carried on there during his lifetime by Mr. Fr. F. VAN ESTA, informs his esteemed patrons that as of the first of January 1826 he will begin to use the Firm name of F. F. VAN ESTA, both for his Brick Factory and for the above-mentioned Pan and Floor-tile works, commending himself to their continued favour.
> F. VAN ESTA TJALLINGII."

With the advertisement, dated 12 July 1825, Frans, the son of Jacobus Tjallingii, would thus have called himself for the first time by the surname "van Esta Tjallingii".

As "manufacturer" of Pantiles and Floor tiles, firm F. F. van Esta, two advertisements concerning Frans van Esta Tjallingii appear in the "Leeuwarder Courant", namely: the advertisement following below and the one already included on page 539 dated 19 March 1830.

Supplement of Tuesday the 21 April 1829, N^{o} 32:

> "For the information of his esteemed patrons, the undersigned reports that the prices of the Pantiles and Floor tiles will be quoted for this year the same as he did in the past year; he therefore requests that no note be taken of the Price-Lists of those articles sent out by him earlier.
> Harlingen, the 15 April 1829. F. F. van Esta."

Frans van Esta Tjallingii died at Harlingen 10 December 1874 at the age of 77 in the house standing in Ward H N^{o} 17. His death was announced by the following family advertisement:

> " Today, after a long illness, to the grief of myself, my children and children-in-law, my husband, Mr. FRANS van ESTA TJALLINGII, died at the age of a good 77 years.
> Widow of F. van ESTA TJALLINGII, > GREIJDANUS.
> H a r l i n g e n, 10 Dec. 1874.
> This is the only notice."

In the Archive of Notary Mr. Jacob Hanekuijk at Harlingen one finds under N^{o} 73: 1 November 1831. Will of Frans van Esta Tjallingii, Manufacturer in Estriks, Pantiles and Brick, at Harlingen, in which he:

> 1^{o} appoints as his sole and universal heirs all his children begotten in lawful wedlock, together with his present wife Ida Greijdanus in equal shares of his estate;
>
> 2^{o} appoints as guardian over his minor children begotten in his marriage with his first wife the late Catharina Aleida van Enschut, Mr. Gosewijn Loucq Jr., Brewer and Municipal Receiver at Harlingen;
>
> 3^{o} appoints as Adviser Mr. Gouke Hingst, Alderman of the Town of Harlingen, to assist his wife Ida Greydanus after his death in her affairs in such a manner as shall best accord with the circumstances and shall not conflict with the laws of the Realm;
>
> 4^{o} desires that his Wife Ida Greydanus together with the Guardian (sub. 2) shall immediately after his decease take the required measures to sell his Pan and Estrik Factories standing within Harlingen, to the greatest advantage of his Estate, in such manner as the law then in force shall permit, and this because it does not befit his wife to administer such Pan and Estrik Factories. In the meantime he wished that his present Wife and the aforesaid guardian should operate the brickworks belonging to him and his children of the first marriage, situated under the village of Midlum, called Groot Ongeboer, for the benefit of his aforesaid Wife Ida Greydanus and of all his children, if there be no circumstances to halt this operation, because he considered that, if the operation thereof can yield advantageous results, this operation can easily be carried on by his Wife with the help of her Adviser and a capable head foreman;
> 5^{o} wishes that, if this is at all feasible, no division of his estate take place as long as there are no children of age among his children, because in his view this will best accord with the interests of his estate; he trusts that none of his children of the first marriage will oppose this his wish, so as to comply properly with these his dispositions and to maintain them, since it would cause him anguish of soul if on his deathbed he could not be at ease that they will never do a wrong to a stepmother who has taken upon herself and fulfilled that difficult task so exemplarily; a stepmother, he says, who may lay every claim to the love and gratitude of her stepchildren;
> 6^{o} appoints his present Wife Ida Greydanus as Executrix of his estate, not only to settle the affairs of his house of mourning, but moreover to liquidate his estate in such manner as she shall in the widest sense understand to be proper, with this express charge, to accept and carry out these her functions without any judicial sealing, while he excuses the competent Judge from any judicial sealing of whatever name, because he places complete confidence in his appointed Executrix.

A miniature of him painted on ivory, made in 1828 by S. B. Benavente, is in the possession of Mr. F. van Esta Tjallingii at Beekbergen, house "'t Vossehol". A reproduction of this miniature is included herewith.

At the same time a depiction of the coat of arms of the Tjallingii family has been added here, of which the heraldic description is as follows:

red with two silver six-pointed stars in the chief and a silver fleur-de-lis in the base. Crest: the fleur-de-lis of the shield. Wreath and mantling: silver and red.

MARRIED:

MICHIEL GOSLINGS, 22 January 1835 at Harlingen, to which marriage the following family announcement relates:

"* * * Married:
H a r l i n g e n, M. G O S L I N G S, the 22nd of January Notary, and 1835. A. G R E Y D A N U S.
This serves as general and particular notification to Family, Friends and Acquaintances."

Michiel Goslings was born 16 July 1799 at Dokkum and baptized there 11 August following, as son of Jan Goslings and Pietje Michiels Damsma. His baptismal entry in the Reformed baptismal register of Dokkum reads as follows:

"(1799)
the 11th of August. Michiel son of Jan Goslings, and Pietje Michiels Damsma spouses and witnesses;
born the 16th of July."

Jan Goslings[1], who after the death at Dokkum on 11 December 1802 of Pietje Michiels Damsma remarried Kanke Fransens Klaver, was master silversmith in the Kleine Breedstraat at Dokkum. This death and this occupation are derived from the following announcements.

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Wednesday the 15th of December in the year 1802, N° 2379:

> " * * * This morning at 7 o'clock, I and > my 4 children were struck a very grievous blow! The pass-

[1] / He was a son of Gosling Jans, who from 1751 onwards was organist and carillonneur at Dokkum; the father's name Goslings (that is, Gosling's son) was thus only brought into being as a surname with the children of Jan Goslings. This Gosling Jans was married to Saapke Oeges, who died after him at Dokkum on 18 December 1813. Besides the Dokkum master silversmith Jan Goslings, other children of the couple Gosling Jans × Saapke Oeges were: Oege Goslings, President-Burgomaster at Dokkum, Saapke Goslings, married to Tjeerd Posthumus, and yet another daughter, married to Fogteloo.

> 11 December 1802.

"Bijvoegsel op de Leeuwarder Courant" of Saturday the 20th October 1798, N° 2412. The Fourth Year of Batavian Liberty.

> "There is offered for private sale: an exceptionally well-built Rye and Wheat Mill, newly built in the year 1773, standing in the 3 Pypster Dwinger at Dockum; whoever is interested may apply to the widow of Michiel Damsma or to Jan Goslings Mr. Silversmith at Dockum, who are willing to deal reasonably."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Monday the 24 October 1814, N° 140:

> "The notary JAN KLAASESZ. at Dockum, as appointed thereto by the court of first instance, residing at Leeuwarden, will, on TUESDAY the 8th NOVEMBER 1814, in the evening at 6 o'clock, at the house of the Widow JAN KONING, innkeeper, in the inn Benthem, at Dockum, at the provisional award, offer for sale:
> A HOUSE and GARDEN with appurtenances, standing and situated in the lange Oosterstraat, in ward B, within Dockum, and there numbered n° 19, at present inhabited and used by J. Rosier cum uxore, until the 12th May 1815, and then to be freely occupied.
> Belonging in ownership to the gentlemen Oege Goslings, president-burgomaster, Jan Goslings, master silversmith, and Saapke Goslings, widow of Tjeerd Posthumus, each for three twelfth parts; Jan Fogteloo, merchant, and Saapke Fogteloo, without occupation, each for one twelfth part, all residing at Dockum, and the gentleman Reinder van Kleffens, rentier, likewise at Dockum, in the capacity of guardian over Gosling Fogteloo, baker's assistant, at Leeuwarden, for the remaining one twelfth part, at the request of the first-mentioned."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 18 April 1820, N° 31:

> "The Notaries G. W. POSTHUMA and Mr. A. VAN SLOOTEN, at Dockum, as appointed thereto by the Court, offer on Monday the 24 April next, in the evening at 6 o'clock, at the house of the innkeeper Pieter Keuning at Dockum, in the presence of the Justice of the Peace of the Canton Dockum, at the final award, for sale:
> A solid, strong and neatly panelled HOUSE, provided with three lower and two upper rooms, yard, bleaching ground, kitchen, well and rainwater cisterns; and behind it a building, standing and situated on the Kleine Breedstraat, in ward lett. B, n° 95, in which the silversmith's business has been carried on with success for many years, at present used by the merchant Jan Goslings as owner, and to be occupied immediately on the 12 May next. Whereon has been bid the sum of f 2950—00."

The Mr. Silversmith at Dokkum Jan Goslings is further mentioned on page 252 under N° 386 of "Merken van Friesche Goud- en Zilversmeden" by Elias Voet Jr., preceded by "De Leeuwarder Goud- en Zilversmeden uit de XVIe, XVIIe en XVIIIe eeuw" by R. Visscher. 's-Gravenhage, Martinus Nijhoff. 1932.

He is mentioned there as gold- and silversmith with the master's mark:

in 1807, when he was 43 years old, according to the Register of the Keurkamer (assay office) at Dokkum 1807—1812.

Michiel Goslings was at first Commies-Griffier (deputy clerk of the court) at the Court of first instance at Leeuwarden, which appears from the following advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 21 October 1831, N° 84:

> "By judgment of the Court of first instance, sitting at Leeuwarden, as charged with the commercial administration of justice there, of the twentieth October 1831, the person of JACOB BLOK, Merchant, residing at Camstraburen near Leeuwarden, has been declared to be in a state of bankruptcy, arisen on and since the fourteenth July 1831, there being appointed in this bankruptcy as Commissioner the High Well-Born Gentleman EDZERT REINT van WELDEREN baron RENGERS, Member of this Court, and as Agent the gentleman Michiel Goslings, Commies Griffier at the above-named Court, and further disposition has been made in this matter in accordance with the Law.
> For a true Extract, J. VAN LEEUWEN, Clerk."

According to the advertisement below, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday the 26 April 1833, N° 34, he was appointed at the end of April 1833 as Notary at Harlingen:

> "The undersigned, appointed by H. M. the King as Notary at Harlingen, has the honour hereby to announce that he will establish himself there from the second of May next, and will reside at the house of Mr. B. L. Tuininga, on the Voorstraat, letter E, no. 30; — further recommending himself in his aforementioned capacity.
> Leeuwarden, the 25th of April 1833. M. GOSLINGS."

Until his death in the year 1870 he remained Notary at Harlingen; he is mentioned on pages 90 and 420 of the Register of the Protocols of Notaries in the Netherlands, published in 1916 by the Brotherhood of Notaries in the Netherlands. His protocol from before 16 October 1842 is kept in the State Archives at Leeuwarden and that from after that date in the Notarial repository.

Concerning the first years of his activity as Notary at Harlingen I have collected from the "Leeuwarder Courant" the advertisements regarding sales to be held by him etc., of which advertisements a few follow below:

Supplement of Friday the 11th of April 1834, N° 29:

> "Everyone who has any claim upon, or is indebted to the Estate of the late GERRIT JOUKES KUPERUS, in life Merchant, residing under Almenum, is requested to render a statement and payment thereof before the 18th of April 1834, to the Notary M. GOSLINGS, at Harlingen."

N° 29 of Friday the 10th of April 1835:

> "The Notary GOSLINGS, at Harlingen, will, on Wednesday the 15th of April next, in the forenoon precisely at 10 o'clock, at the former Tile and Floor-tile Factory, standing on the Rozegracht at Harlingen, sell publicly against cash payment:

Michiel Goslings died in the house, ward E N° 63 at Harlingen, on 20 March 1870 at the age of 70 years, which is illustrated by the following family announcement:

"+ On 20 March 1870, after a lengthy illness, at the age of just over 70 years, died Mr. MICHIEL GOSLINGS, Notary at Harlingen, beloved Husband of
A. GOSLINGS-Greydanus.
Harlingen, 6 April 1870.
Owing to Foreign Connections only placed today."

From the marriage Goslings × Greijdanus a son was born, among others, on 25 December 1836 at Harlingen, who was registered as Petrus Greijdanus Goslings. This is the person who signed the announcement dated 10 August 1877 included on page 556 and who has already been mentioned on page 21.

Herewith an illustration of the arms of the family "Goslings", of which the heraldic description is as follows:

General notice to Family and Friends."

MARRIED:

ALBERT NICOLAASZOON JONGSCHAAP, 2 December 1841 in Weststellingwerf (at Wolvega), to which marriage the announcement below refers:

"FORTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY
of
A. N. JONGSCHAAP
and
T. H. GREIJDANUS.
Wolvega, 2 December 1881."

Albert Nicolaaszoon Jongschaap was born 10 October 1814 at Heerenveen, son of Nicolaas Jongschaap and Grietje Kreuiter, which couple died respectively at Holwerd on 26 March 1830 and at Wolvega on 27 July 1841.

He was a house painter at Wolvega, where he died 22 March 1898 at the age of 83 years.

From the marriage Jongschaap × Greijdanus a son was born, among others, on 2 February 1863 at Wolvega, who was registered as Harmen Greijdanus Jongschaap and died there 27 December 1890.

195 CATHARINA HARMENSDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Harmen 114 ← Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Wolvega, 21 June 1817 · daughter of Harmen Petrus' Greidanus (N° 114) and Sjoukjen Gerrits Jongschaap

She was born at Wolvega 21 June 1817.

According to the circular letter dated 29 December 1865, included on page 458, she was living at Wolvega on that date, and was then apparently unmarried.

196 JACOBA HARMENSDOCHTER GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Harmen 114 ← Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Wolvega, 11 January 1821 · d. Sneek, 20 July 1852 · daughter of Harmen Petrus' Greidanus (N° 114) and Sjoukjen Gerrits Jongschaap · m. Douwe de Jager Az, 1844

She was born 11 January 1821 at Wolvega and died 20 July 1852, at the age of thirty-one, presumably at Sneek.

MARRIED:

Douwe de Jager Az., 3 March 1844 in Weststellingwerf (at Wolvega), according to the following family announcement:

> " Married:
> Wolvega, — D. de JAGER, Az., of Sneek, and > the 3rd of March 1844. — J. H. GREIJDANUS, of Wolvega.
> Sole notice to Family, Friends and Acquaintances."

Douwe de Jager Az. was born 13 January 1822 at Sneek, as son of Anne Douwes de Jager and Trijntje Ykes Ykema.

Anne Douwes de Jager was a merchant at Sneek. Of him one finds the following advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday the 15th of October 1822, N° 83:

> "At A. de Jager's at Sneek there are for sale various kinds of WINE BOTTLES, wholesale and retail, at factory prices; he recommends himself to all good patrons, with the promise of prompt dispatch and good treatment. Likewise CORKS at factory prices."

This Anne de Jager was in turn a son of Douwe Annes de Jager, who was Master Potter at Sneek and was appointed there on 9 May 1788 as Member of the Vroedschap (town council). That he was Master Potter at Sneek may appear from the advertisement below, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Saturdagsche Courant" of the 18th of November 1786, N° 1790:

> "For sale privately: A BAKERY with a good trade and a HOUSE, both with a YARD, standing and situated near the Noorder Poort at Sneek, to be taken over at May. Whoever has an interest in this may come to Douwe de Jager, Master Potter at Sneek."

Douwe de Jager Az., the husband of Jacoba Harmensdochter Greijdanus, was, according to the Civil Registry of Sneek, a merchant there.

197 ANNA ELISABETH GREIJDANUS

Line of descent: Harmen 114 ← Petrus 64[I] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

b. Wolvega, 11 May 1822 · d. Meppel, 29 April 1887 · daughter of Harmen Petrus' Greidanus (N° 114) and Sjoukjen Gerrits Jongschaap · m. Gerrit Hoffschlag, 1858

She was born 11 May 1822 at Wolvega and died 29 April 1887 at Meppel at the age of 64 years.

MARRIED:

Gerrit Hoffschlag, 8 March 1858 in Weststellingwerf (at Wolvega).

Gerrit Hoffschlag was born 24 February 1821 at Steenwijk, as son of Karel Willem Hoffschlag and Antien Compaan.

He was a saddler at Meppel, where he remarried 2 February 1889 with Trijntje de Jong, and died on 8 April 1893 at the age of 72 years.

b. Burgwerd, 24 June 1822 · son of Jentje Sybes Greijdanus (N° 129) and Beitske Johannes Althusius · m. HARMINA WOPKES DE JONG, 1853

He was born 24 June 1822 at Burgwerd.

Johannes Jentjeszoon Greijdanus was a schoolteacher at Ferwerd until about 1881, when he was dismissed on account of drunkenness. After that he carried out administrative work at the municipal secretariat of Ferwerderadeel. At the beginning of 1894 he moved to Breda, while he died at Utrecht on 1 April 1900 at the age of 77.

MARRIED:

HARMINA WOPKESDOCHTER DE JONG, 29 December 1853 in Het Bildt (at St. Anna Parochie), to which marriage the following advertisement relates:

"On 29 December 1888 our beloved parents
J. GREIJDANUS Jz.,
and
H. DE JONG hope to commemorate their 35-YEAR MARRIAGE.
Ferwerd.
Their grateful Children."

Harmina Wopkesdochter de Jong was born 11 July 1830 at St. Jacobi Parochie, as daughter of Wopke de Jong Jacobsz. and Jannetje Jobs Posthuma; she died 8 January 1893 at Ferwerd at the age of 62.

Wopke de Jong was a schoolteacher at St. Jacobi Parochie; he was also a writer and poet. On pages 165 and 166 of the 22nd Part of the Journal of the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde at Leeuwarden, "De Vrije Fries", one finds in a contribution by (Dr.) G. A. Wumkes, "Worp van Peyma en zijn Vrienden", the following sentences:

> "Indeed, most Bildt farmers > were cut from that same wood[1]. When master Wopke de Jong[1] at St. Jacobi Parochie published a volume of religious poetry, it was not to their taste and they said of the heavenly life, which he sang of in the funeral song for his child: (Frisian) "he knows nothing about it."

On page 852 and following of the Christmas number 1927 of the weekly “Sljucht en Rjucht”, published at Leeuwarden, there appears a fairly extensive article by Dr. G. A. Wumkes, “Horatius-forfryskingen fen Wopke de Jong”. In it it is stated, among other things, that master Wopke de Jong, author of the satire: “De domenys hifke, mar follen to ligt achte” (1840), was a man of classical education and a more than average poet. Besides a rendering into Dutch of an ode “De Heerschappij des doods” by Horatius in the Friesche Volksalmanak of 1839 (publisher L. Schierbeek at Leeuwarden), there appeared from his hand renderings into Frisian of poems by Horatius in: the “Bijekoer” 1846 (pages 23-24); the “Frysk Almenak” of 1845 (pages 104—105) and in the Friesche Volksalmanak of 1846 (published by: Druten en Bleeker at Sneek).

The poem from the “Frysk Almenak” reproduced in Dr. Wumkes' article follows here:

> (Frisian) “TO SIBBEL > on old ice it freezes hard.

Sikke	Sibbel.
When I embraced your white neck,	When your love still burned for me
my Sibbel, I, your power and your wish,	and I did not stand behind Tet,
however many suitors swarmed about you,	I would not have traded with anyone of great name,
I would not have traded my state even with a prince!	not even with our Grietman's Sytske!

[1] That is to say, were freethinkers.

(Frisian)
Sikke.
Yes, now I feel myself ruled by Tet;
She sings just as a thrush does;
And I would, if need compelled me, die for her,
If then death might spare her!
Sibbel.
It is all over and gone wrong with us,
It is Pier who does the courting for you;
And I would even die twice for him,
If then death might spare him!

Sikke.
But how, if Tet were once to get the sack,
And it froze again with us on old ice?
If it looked like marrying, say, declare:
Would you then still be Pier's sweetheart?
Sibbel.
Even though he were not one so handsome,
Not one so pious and generous as he;
You, hot-tempered and quick to flare up,
Still I would rather live and die with you.

He was born at Burgwerd 7 May 1826.

Petrus Jentjeszoon Greijdanus was a farmer, first at Oosthem and afterwards at Abbega. According to the Provincial Almanacs, he was from 1870 to 1881 a member of the municipal council of Wijmbritseradeel. According to the Provincial Report for 1869, he was appointed a member of the council on the occasion of an election held on 8 June of that year; at the periodical election held in the same year he was at first not re-elected, but because one of those chosen did not accept his appointment, Petrus Jentjeszoon Greijdanus took his place. The advertisement below relates to this last election:

"FEAR GOD, HONOUR THE KING!
Some VOTERS in the municipality of WYM-BRITSERADEEL, adhering to the above motto, intend also to vote as Member of the Council of the municipality of Wijmbritseradeel for:
PETRUS JENTJES GREIJDANUS
at Oosthem.
Give then, Fellow-Voters, to this man your former confidence, and vote with us on the 21st of this month for the above-named person.
J. de Jager. K. SIJSLING.
S. JOUSTRA. A. de Jager."

In October 1873 he was Administering Kerkvoogd (church warden) of the Reformed Congregation at Oosthem, Abbega and Folsgare, which is taken from the advertisement below:

"The KERKVOOGDEN (church wardens) of the Reformed Congregation at Oosthem, Abbega and Folsgare summon, each board for itself, the Reformed persons liable for floreen of their villages, to hold a meeting, namely that of Oosthem on Monday 17 November, that of Abbega on Friday 21 November and that of Folsgare on Saturday 22 November next, each time at ten o'clock in the morning, at the usual meeting places; all in order to draw up the Estimate of their Administration for the following year and by voting to fill the usual vacancy of a Kerkvoogd (church warden);
further, that of Oosthem in order to make an amendment to the Estimate for the current year.
Oosthem, Abbega and Folsgare.
29 October 1873
The aforesaid Kerkvoogden,
P. J. GREIJDANUS, Adm."

He died at Oosthem, at the age of 88 years, on 11 October 1914, as appears from the following announcements:

"This evening at about 8 o'clock there died gently and peacefully, quite unexpectedly, in the hope of eternal life, our beloved father, father-in-law, grandfather and great-grandfather
PETRUS J. GREIJDANUS, last widower of Setske J. Damstra, at the blessed age of a good 88 years.
Oosthem, 11 October 1914.

"MANTGUM, 2 July 1870. Today there died, after a long but very patient suffering, our only remaining Brother and the caring Father of his three Children, SIJTZE PE-
TRUS GREIJDANUS, Widower of Eelkje Pieters Stilma, at the age of rather more than forty-one years.
May God strengthen us in this renewed trial and be near to the three Orphans.
JACOB H. KALMA.
WIKJEN P. GREIJDANUS."

MARRIED:

EELKJE/N/ PIETERSDOCHTER STILMA, 10 May 1855 in Rauwerderhem (at Rauwerd).

Eelkje/n/ Pietersdochter Stilma was born 6 February 1833 at Oosterwierum, as daughter of Pieter Martens Stilma, farmer, and Sijtske Jacobs Postma. She died, as appears from the following family announcement, at Mantgum on 17 December 1864 in childbed, aged 31 years:

> "* * * Having 7 days before given birth to a well-> formed but dead Son, there died this morning at > 8 o'clock, after a painful suffering, my beloved Wife

[1] Is collaterally connected to Sipkjen Tjalles Fopma of Harlingen (see the draft: fragment-genealogy "Fopma" belonging to page 264).

> EELKJE PIETERS STILMA, at the age of nearly 32 years, leaving me, out of a happy marriage of more than 9½ years, 3 young children who do not fully realize the loss of such a good mother. May God support and strengthen me in this heavy trial.
> Jorwerd, 17 December 1864. S. P. GREIJDANUS."

Apart from the dead son born on 10 December 1864, this couple had the following:

CHILDREN:

1. Ruurdtje Sytzesdochter Greijdanus, who follows under number: 396.
2. Petrus Sytzeszoon Greijdanus, who follows under number: 397.
3. Sijtske Sijtzesdochter Greijdanus, who follows under number: 398.

Line of descent: Petrus 135 ← Ymte 67II ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

b. Mantgum, 1 March 1835 · son of Petrus Ymtes Greijdanus (N° 135) and Ruurdje Sytzes Wiersma

Ymte Petrus' Greijdanus

He was born at Mantgum 1 March 1835.

Ymte Petruszoon Greijdanus was a music teacher, pianist and organist of the Mennonite Church at Leeuwarden. He was a pupil of the Leeuwarden organist Frank and of L. Kufferath, whom he had followed to Gent, as appears from the advertisement below:

> "FIFTH CONCERT, in the manner of STRAUSS, > on MONDAY the 19th of March 1855, > in the Great Hall of W. v. d. W i e l e n; at which Mr. IJ. GREIDANUS of Mantgum, pupil of Mr. L. Kufferath, at Gent, will perform. Entrance for a gentleman f 1, for a lady 50 Cts, including the coffee money."

In a report of a charity music evening at Leeuwarden on Saturday 23 Febr. 1861, in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of the 26th of the same month, the following occurs concerning him:

> "Especially gratifying must this result also have been for our able music master Mr. Greijdanus, who among the 8 performers could count four of his pupils."

There exists a portrait of him drawn by W. Troost, which was lithographed by E. Spanier. Of this portrait, of which a copy is in my possession, a copy is also to be found in the Municipal Art Collection of Leeuwarden. In the Catalogue of that collection, printed at the Stads-Drukkerij in 1875 and compiled by W. Eekhoff, that portrait is described on page 58 as follows:

> "YNTE PETRUS GREYDANUS, son of the schoolmaster at Mantgum, pianist and organist, d. here in 1861, 26 years old.
> a. Bust to the r. by W. Troost, lithographed at E. Spanier's; imperial folio. 396."

The portrait is also mentioned under N° 2108* on page 294 of the second volume of the "Beschrijvende Catalogus van gegraveerde Portretten van Nederlanders", compiled by J. F. van Someren. In this catalogue the description of the portrait reads as follows:

> "GREYDANUS (Y. P.), Pianist and organist at Leeuw. (b. about 1835, † 1861 at Leeuw.).
> 2108* Bust to the right. Lith. by W. Troost at E. Spanier's fol."

A reproduction of the portrait, on which the signature of Ymte Petruszoon Greijdanus appears, is added here.

According to the family announcement below, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of 23 April 1861, Ymte Petruszoon Greijdanus died at Leeuwarden on 20 April 1861, at the age of 26 years:

> "* * * While still mourning the death of our beloved Parents, our heart was again wounded today by the death of our much beloved Brother IJMTE PETRUS GREIJDANUS, Music master here, at the age of 26 years. She too, who hoped soon to be united with him in marriage, deeply and painfully laments his loss.
> Leeuwarden, S. P. GREIJDANUS.
> 20 April 1861 In the name of all.
> The many Friends and Acquaintances are requested to regard this as a special notice".

He was born 20 July 1817 at Boornbergum and was a merchant at Oldeboorn, where he died on 8 June 1888 at the age of 70 years. After his death — his wife had died before him and his marriage remained childless — the following summonses appeared in the newspaper:

"SUMMONS.
Anyone who has any claim against, owes anything to, or has in his keeping anything belonging to the estate of KARST JACOBS GREIDANUS, in his lifetime shopkeeper at Oldeboorn and there deceased on 8 June 1888, is requested to give notice, make payment and deliver the same before or on 27 November 1888 at the office of the Notary THEMMEN de LANG."
"SUMMONS."
The known and unknown creditors in the unadministered estate of KARST JACOBS GREIDANUS, in his lifetime merchant at Oldeboorn and there deceased on 8 June 1888, are summoned to appear on Monday 1 July 1889, at eleven o'clock in the morning, at the office of the Notary Themmen de Lang at Oldeboorn, in order to receive the account and statement of the administration conducted in the said estate and, should no objection be raised, payment of their claims, in so far as the assets of the estate suffice.
On behalf of the Curator,
THEMMEN de LANG, Notary."

Taco Greidanus

Cornelia Petronella Leensma

He was born 24 March 1817 at Leeuwarden.

Taco Greidanus was at first a grocer and wholesaler in grocery goods on the Tweebaksmarkt at Leeuwarden. The following advertisement is from him:

"DEPÔT
of
NEW WHITE GENOA OR TABLE OIL.
The undersigned takes the liberty of informing his fellow townsmen and further patrons hereby that the genuine white extra fine
GENOA OIL, of which the depôt for Leeuwarden is established with him, — has been made obtainable in sealed French bottles at the price of 60 Cents.
Leeuwarden, T. GREIDANUS.
May 1851. Tweebaksmarkt."

At the age of 50 he moved to Amsterdam, where together with his son Edzerdt Greidanus he founded a wholesale business in bakers' and grocers' goods. Office and warehouse were first established on "de Binnenkant", later on "de Oude Schans" and finally at Prinsengracht 197, where they still existed until recently.

As appears from the following advertisement, by deed dated 30 December 1878 a partnership was entered into between Taco Greidanus and his son Edzerdt Greidanus, under the firm T. Greidanus en Zoon, having as its object the carrying on of trade in colonial wares, raw sugars, honey etc., which partnership was dissolved on 30 April 1897, with the stipulation that Edzerdt Greidanus should have the right to continue the said business under the said firm "T. Greidanus en Zoon":

"DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.
As appears from a DEED, executed on the 18th of May 1897 before the undersigned Notary at Amsterdam, the Partnership existing between Messrs. TAKO GREIDANUS and EDZERDT GREIDANUS, entered into by them by deed executed on the 30th of December 1878 before Notary DIRK STORK at Amsterdam, under the firm T. Cornelia Petronella Leensma was born 24 June 1812 at Leeuwarden, as daughter of Edzerdt Leensma and Bernardina (Berendina) D. Smeding.

Edzerdt Leensma, who had first (Leeuwarden 28 June 1795) been married to Tjitske Gerbenzon, who died at Leeuwarden 25 November 1800, established himself in May 1795 as Mr. Koperslager (master coppersmith) in the Sacramentstraat at Leeuwarden, in which town he later had his business "by the Dubbelde Pyp". All this may be illustrated by the following advertisements:

> "Leeuwarder Saturdagse Courant" N° 2238 of 20 June 1795, The First Year of Batavian Liberty.
>
> "From EDSERT LEENSMA, Mr. Koperslager in the Sacramentstraat at Leeuwarden, having begun the business last May, may be obtained: all sorts of manufactured copperware such as distillers', bakers' and cooks' implements, drums, fluitbossen (pump barrels), newly fashioned pouring kettles and chafing dishes etc.; he most kindly asks for everyone's favour."
>
> "Bataafsche Leeuwarder Courant" of Thursday 27 November 1800, N° 142:
>
> " This morning at ten o'clock it pleased the God of Life and Death to take from my side my beloved wife TJITSKE GERBENZON, at the age of only twenty-three years, and after a marriage of five and a half years; her complete trust in the Saviour of sinners, (even in her bitterest distress) gives me well-founded hope that her end was blessed; this hope is the only balm in the torn wound, which I wish may not be enlarged by letters of condolence.
> Leeuwarden, 25 November 1800. E. LEENSMA."

"Feuille d'Affiches, annonces et avis divers de Leeuwarde.
Sheet of announcements, notices and various reports of Leeuwarden" of Friday 20 March 1812, N° 35, Supplement.

Further thanking them for the confidence hitherto shown me, while anyone who might desire advice in matters of importance may confidently dispose of me.

Anyone having claims for monies from me is requested to submit notice thereof at the Zaailand, letter E, no. 247, where payment of my dues may likewise be made.
Leeuwarden, 29 December 1820. E. LEENSMA."

"LEEUWARDER COURANT" OF TUESDAY 10 JULY 1821, N° 55:

"Whereas the friendly repeated invitations of the Undersigned to his personal Debtors have, with many of them, had no desired result in the payment of the lawful Book- and Shop-Debts still owing by them, it is therefore that he once more takes the liberty hereby to invite such negligent persons, who have indeed received the accounts but have not paid them to this day, to settle their debts to him at the latest before the end of the coming month of August.
While he, the Undersigned, has firmly resolved to hand over those who are then still in default into the hands of a public official, in order to be summoned and prosecuted at law.

Anna Maria Maurer

He was born 26 June 1819 at Leeuwarden.

JAN GREIDANUS was a house and carriage painter at Leeuwarden, where he lived on the Nieuweburen letter K, first N° 186 and later N° 207, as appears from the announcements below:

"CHANGE OF RESIDENCE.

The Undersigned makes known to his esteemed patrons and further fellow townsmen, that he has moved to the Nieuweburen, letter K, no. 186.
Leeuwarden, 5 April 1849. J. GREIDANUS.

"The Undersigned informs his esteemed Patrons, that he has MOVED on the Nieuweburen, from the House K, no. 186 to K, no. 207, again most kindly recommending himself, promising prompt and reasonable treatment. J. GREIDANUS, House and Carriage Painter."

JAN GREIDANUS died at Amsterdam at the age of 77 years on 28 June 1896.

MARRIED:

ANNA MARIA MAURER, 26 May 1847 at Leeuwarden, to which marriage the following announcements relate:

[1] Should be: nearly 86 years.

"† Married:
Leeuwarden, J. GREIDANUS, Carriage painter, and 26 May 1847. A. MOURER."

"TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF MARRIED

outside the Town."

From the last advertisement it appears that Jan Greidanus was living on the Tweebaksmarkt on 26 May 1872.

Anna Maria Maurer was born 5 February 1823 at Leeuwarden, as daughter of Johan Wilhelm Maurer (Mourer), barber at Leeuwarden, and Fokje Weisma (Wijsma); she was a sister of Anna Maurer, whom Jan Greidanus' brother Johannes Numan Greidanus married. According to the family advertisement below, she died at the age of nearly 89 years at Amsterdam on 26 January 1912:

"Today, to our deep sorrow, there died
our beloved Mother, Mother-in-law, Grandmother and Great-grandmother
ANNA MARIA MAURER,

263 JOHANNES, NUMAN, GREIDANUS

Line of descent: Sijtse 167 ← Taeke 88 ← Cornelis 44II ← Tiaard 10 ← Benedictus 3 ← Tjaerd 1II

He was born 6 December 1821 at Leeuwarden.

As has already been mentioned on page 503, the name "Numan", which in this case must be understood as a given name, is probably derived from Johannes Numan, who was married to his father's sister Johanna Greydanus (N° 164 of this genealogy), which couple Numan × Greijdanus remained childless. These names: Johannes Numan have been preserved as given names in this branch of the family down to the present day.

His birth was announced by the following family advertisement:

"† This evening A. de RAAD, wife of
S. GREIDANUS, was delivered of a well-formed
L e e u w a r d e n, Son."
6 December 1821.

Johannes Numan Greidanus came, as has already been mentioned on page 506, into possession in 1858 of his father's house, the well-known house with the gable stone "Aed Levwerd" in the Groote Kerkstraat at Leeuwarden, now numbered 43. According to the advertisement below dated 23 December 1868, he continued his father's trade in distilled spirits in this house:

"PRIZE-WINNING JENEVER
at the Exhibitions of London, Amsterdam and Paris and further LIQUEURS etc. are obtainable from J. N.
GREIDANUS, Groote Kerkstraat, Leeuwarden."

He was also a merchant in grocery and bakery wares.

Johannes Numan Greidanus died, as appears from the following family announcement, at the age of 74 years at Leeuwarden on 15 June 1896:

" Today there died, at the age of a little over 74 years, our beloved Husband,
Father and Father-in-law JOHANNES NUMAN
GREIDANUS.
Leeuwarden, 15 June 1896.
Wid. A. GREIDANUS—Maurer
CHILDREN and CHILDREN-IN-LAW.", which announcement was followed in September 1896 by the one below:

"Heartfelt thanks for the many tokens of sympathy received on the death of our beloved Husband, Father and Father-in-law JOHANNES NUMAN GREI-DANUS.
Wid. A. GREIDANUS—Maurer
CHILDREN and CHILDREN-IN-LAW."

Of him a photographic portrait has been included among the portraits.

MARRIED:

ANNA MAURER, 27 November 1856 at Leeuwarden, as appears from the following family announcements:

" Betrothed:
Leeuwarden, J. N. GREIDANUS to
13 November 1856. A. MAURER,
Sole notification to my Friends and Patrons within and outside the town."
" Married:
Leeuwarden, J. N. GREIDANUS to the 27 November 1856. A. MAURER."

Anna Maurer was a sister of Anna Maria Maurer, whom Johannes Numan Greidanus' brother Jan married; she was born 25 July 1825 at Leeuwarden, as daughter of Johan Wilhelm Maurer (Mourer), barber there, and Fokje Weisma (Wijsma).

Anna Maurer died on 27 February 1920 at Leeuwarden at the age of 94 years, as appears from the family announcement below:

"Today there died our beloved mother,

Auzonius

Wompje Ploeger

According to the following family announcement, he was born 21 June 1824 at Koedijk:

> “ * * This evening, a little after 10 o'clock, MARIA > DORETHEA BERG, beloved wife of > K o e d ij k, N. PLUIM GREIDANUS, > 21 June 1824. Minister, > was delivered, by God's goodness, of a well-formed SON.“*

Auzonius Pluim Greidanus, who is recorded now as “Pluim Greidanus”, then again as “Greidanus”, was at first a shopkeeper and tobacco cutter at Avenhorn. As appears from the following advertisement, his business went bankrupt in 1848:

> “ * * The undersigned, Curator in the bankrupt estate of A. GREIDANUS Nsz., Shopkeeper and Tobacco cutter, at Avenhorn, informs those concerned therein that the ranking of the said estate, with the supporting documents, has been deposited for inspection by anyone at the Registry of the District Court at Hoorn.
> H o o r n, 6 J u l y 1848. Mr. H. REIJERS.”*

After that he was a municipal road worker at Avenhorn, while later he ran a business in tobacco articles on the Nieuwendijk at Amsterdam, where, according to the following family announcement, he died on 4 March 1902 at the age of 77 years and was buried on 8 March following in the cemetery “Vredenhof” on the Haarlemmerweg.

MARRIED:

Rienk Sleeswijk, 15 August 1867 at Heerenveen, as appears from the following family announcement:

" Married:
H e e r e n v e e n, R. SLEESWIJK
15 Aug. 1867. of de Lemmer, and
J. J. GREIDANUS."*

Rienk Sleeswijk was born 8 January 1828 at De Lemmer, as son of Cornelis Rienks Sleeswijk and Fettje Frederiks Wegener. Concerning his birth the following advertisement is found in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 11 January 1828, N° 4:

" My beloved wife, FETTJE WEGENER, was this morning safely delivered of a well-formed son Lemmer C. SLEESWIJK."
8 January 1828.*

Cornelis Rienks Sleeswijk was owner of a ropewalk and of a sawmill at De Lemmer. It is possible that the advertisement below, appearing in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 6 September 1833, N° 72, relates to him, and that he would thus also have been master sailmaker at De Lemmer.

> "Mr. W. F. KEUCHENIUS, Griffier (clerk of the court) at the Court of First Instance at Sneek, intends, as authorized agent of his principals, on Thursday 26 September 1833, at 12 o'clock noon for the provisional, and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon for the final award, in the inn de Wildeman, at de Lemmer, to sell publicly to the highest bidders, with strijkgeld and verhooggeld (auction premiums):
> An extraordinarily well-sailing Dutch KOFSCHIP, named Nepthunus, having been commanded by Captain M. D. Jeltes, measuring according to the measurement certificate 89 tons, 21 el (ell) 10 duim (inch) long, 4 el 17 duim wide, and 2 el 28 duim in the hold; newly built at de Joure in the year 1826; lying in the Zijlroede at Lemmer. Further information to be obtained from Mr. C. SLEESWIJK, master sailmaker at Lemmer, and from Mr. W. F. KEUCHENIUS aforesaid.

Rienk Sleeswijk was Gemeente-Ontvanger (municipal receiver) of Lemsterland at De Lemmer, where he also continued his father's ropewalk and sailmaking business. He died on 19 September 1898 at the age of 70 years at Amsterdam, as appears from the following family advertisement:

A photographic portrait of her has been included among the portraits.

"Today there died, at the age of 70 years,

MARRIED:

Mr. Halbe Binnerts, 1 December 1870 at Heerenveen, to which marriage the following family announcements relate:

" SOLE NOTIFICATION.
Engaged:
Mr. H. BINNERTS and
M. H. GREIDANUS.
Heerenveen, 14 November 1870."
" Married:
Heerenveen Mr. H. BINNERTS
1 December 1870. and

Sole notification."
" For the many expressions of interest received on the occasion of their marriage, the undersigned, also on behalf of their families on both sides, express their heartfelt thanks.
Mr. H. BINNERTS.
M. H. BINNERTS-GREIDANUS."

Mr. Halbe Binnerts was born at Heerenveen 26 October 1842, son of Arjen Binnerts and Froukje de Vrieze.

Arjen Binnerts was a Notary, namely from 1830 to 1839 at Akkrum and from 1839 to 1875 at Heerenveen. He was appointed Notary by Royal Decree of 21 August 1830, N^{o} 104, as appears from the following advertisement, occurring in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Tuesday 19 October 1830, N^{o} 84:

"The undersigned ARJEN BINNERTS, having been appointed by His Majesty the King, by decree of 21 August last, N^{o} 104, as Notary in the canton of Akkrum, with residence at Akkrum, and having already taken up this office, has the honour hereby to inform the esteemed Public thereof, and to recommend himself as such to the favour of the inhabitants of the Canton, and of all those who may be pleased to honour him with their confidence.
Akkrum, 8 October 1830. A. BINNERTS, Notary."

By Royal Decree of 26 December 1830 he was appointed 2nd Lieutenant and in May following 1st Lieutenant in the mobile Militia in the province of Friesland, concerning which one finds the following reports in the "Leeuwarder Courant":

Of 4 January 1831, N^{o} 1:

"'s-GRAVENHAGE, 31 December. By decree of His Majesty of the 26th of this month, the following have been appointed and installed as Officers in the Militias hereafter to be mentioned:
In the mobile militias in the province of Friesland:
As 2nd lieutenants, ... Arjen Binnerts. . . . . "

Of Tuesday 10 May 1831, N^{o} 37:

"By His Majesty the King the following appointments have been made these days.
In the mobile militia of the province of Friesland:
2nd battalion.
As 1st Lieutenants:. . . . . and Arjen Binnerts."

As 1st Lieutenant in the said militia one finds concerning him the following advertisement in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 27 May 1831, No 42:

"The undersigned, lieutenants serving in the fourth company of the 2nd bat. of the 2nd div. 1st levy of Frisians, having, in the absence of captain J. de Sitter, received a parcel sent to him for the benefit of the Militiamen from the village of Oosterend containing exceptionally fine Towels and Handkerchiefs, make it their pleasant duty hereby to express to the generous and kindly senders from Oosterend their sincere thanks for this so ample and appropriate consignment of articles of prime necessity and of which there is great want; the aforesaid items being of double value to the militiamen, since because of the high price of foodstuffs here it is impossible for them to procure anything for themselves, however small in value, out of their pay, so that everything that has been sent from Friesland, or may yet be sent by well-meaning countrymen, acquires an increased value.
's-Gravenhage, 18 May 1831.
A. BINNERTS, 1st Lt.
ROMKES, 2nd Lt.
M. P. D. Baron van HARINXMA THOE SLOTEN, 2nd Lt."

As may already be gathered from this advertisement, Arjen Binnerts, through his appointment as Lieutenant in the Mobile Schutterij (civic militia), had been unable to continue to carry out his position as Notary at Akkrum, which appears still more clearly from the following advertisement, placed by him in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 12 April 1833, No 30:

"The undersigned, having been honourably discharged as 1st Lieutenant in the mobile Schutterij by decree of His Majesty of 7 March last, no. 4, upon his own request made to that end, has the honour to bring to the knowledge of the Public that he has again taken up his position as Notary, and as such recommends himself to everyone's favour.
Akkrum, 10 April 1833. A. BINNERTS, Notary."

He is mentioned on pages 23, 301 and 423 of the "Register der Protocollen van Notarissen in Nederland", published in 1916 by the Broederschap der Notarissen in Nederland. His protocol is preserved: as to the part dating from before 16 October 1842 in the Rijksarchief at Leeuwarden, and the part after that in the Notarial Repository at Heerenveen. For the years 1833 up to and including 1836 I have collected from the "Leeuwarder Courant" some ten advertisements concerning sales to be held by him, etc. A few of those advertisements may be given below:

"Leeuwarder Courant" Supplement of Friday 18 October 1833, No 84:

"TO LEASE BY SEALED TENDERS.
An excellent and very fertile Zathe (farmstead) of LAND, with HOUSE and BARN, HIEMING (yard), HORNLEGER (farmyard) and WATER MILL with appurtenances, numbered no. 156, with the PASTURE and HAY LANDS belonging to it, about 27 bunder in size, standing and lying at Warniahuizen under Oldeboorn; inhabited and used by the co-owner Sybren Willems Nijdam. For five years. To be taken over at St. Petri and May 1834.
The tenders must be delivered before or on 27 October 1833, to the Notary A. BINNERTS, at Akkrum, from whom and from the occupant the Conditions may be learned."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 5 December 1834, No 97:

"The Notary A. BINNERTS at Akkrum will, on Wednesdays 10 and 24 December 1834, each time at 5 o'clock in the evening, at the house named hereafter, at the provisional and final award, offer for sale:
A solid and exceedingly strongly timbered MERCHANT'S HOUSE, at present being used as an Inn, called het Vliegende Paard, with appurtenances, standing and lying at Oldeboorn, and there numbered no. 174, having Below four very neatly finished rooms, a small Ditto etc., and Above a spacious Loft and Garret, with further conveniences, — in use by the owner G. P. Vollema with his wife and others, but to be taken over on 12 May 1835."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 10 April 1835, No 29:

"The Notary A. BINNERTS, residing at Akkrum, will publicly, on six weeks' credit, offer for sale:
An excellent FARM STOCK, CATTLE and LIVESTOCK, FARM IMPLEMENTS and TOOLS, consisting of 29 milking and calving Cows, 7 heifers, 8 yearlings, 1 Bull, 1 brown Mare, 6 Sheep with Lambs, 1 Sow with eleven Piglets, three Hay Wagons, two drag troughs, a fine Churn with accessories, two Cheese Presses, a Cheese Kettle, 22 Copper milk tubs and 20 wooden Ditto, 14 Copper Buckets and 12 wooden Ditto, a mash trough and a butter trough, eight Milk Vats, some Gates and planks, and further Rakes, Grapples, Forks, scythes and whatever else belongs to a complete large Farm. Furthermore FURNITURE and HOUSEHOLD GOODS, including two beds with accessories, two copper Kettles, a Hand Kettle, as well as more Copper, Tin and Earthenware. And finally also a BOAT with accessories, a SLEIGH with bell harness, HORSE HARNESS and everything else that shall be brought forward.
Those who are interested should come on Wednesday 15 April 1835, in the morning precisely at 8 o'clock, to the house Douma State, inhabited by Christina Mook, formerly Widow of Harmanus Feddes Posthumusz., but now remarried to P. Doorenbos, near Oldeboorn."

"Leeuwarder Courant" of Friday 2 December 1836, No 97 (Supplement):

"The Notary C. W. SEMLER, at Grouw, will, also at the request of the Notary A. BINNERTS, at Akkrum qq., on Monday 5 December 1836, in the evening at 7 o'clock, at the house of the innkeeper S. van Stralen, at Grouw, provisionally, and 14 days thereafter, finally, with strike- and raise-money, offer for sale:

1. A solid and very suitable SHOP or MERCHANT'S HOUSE, with YARD and BLEACHING-GREEN, cum annexis, standing and situated by the Kerkhofspoort in and on the best part of the village of Grouw, numbered no. 187, last inhabited by the late merchant Sjoerd Gerbens Binnerts and vacated by his death.

2. A similar HOUSE, next to it, in use by Johs. S. Binnerts as co-owner.
3. The LAWFUL HALF in a CLOCKMAKER'S SHOP, with a very good large Cellar and Storage place for peat etc., called the Poort, likewise next to the first lot and in use by Johs. S. Binnerts.
4. A STABLE and COACH HOUSE built new a few years ago, at present used as a cheese warehouse by the co-owner Jan S. Binnerts, standing in the Wijde Steeg at Grouw.
5. A SHED or WAREHOUSE, at the waterway at Grouw, in use by Mr. B. Halbertsma. — The first lot to be taken possession of 4 weeks after the final award and the remaining lots on 12 May 1837."

Halbe Binnerts was enrolled as a student of law at the University of Leiden on 16 September 1862. His entry, which reads as follows, is found in column 1390 of the "Album Studiosorum Academiae Lugduno Batavae 1575—1875", printed in 1875:

"RECTORE PETRO LEONARDA RIJKE. 1862.
. . . . . .
Sept.
16. Halbo Binnerts (Latin) from the village of Heerenveen. 19, J."

He took his doctorate at Leiden in jurisprudence on 19 November 1867 with the dissertation: "De Exceptie van gewijsde", after which he established himself as advocate and attorney at Heerenveen. In 1899 he was appointed vice-president of the Court of Justice at Leeuwarden, which judicial office he held until 1911, when he again took up the practice of advocate at Heerenveen until 1920, in which year he settled at Voorburg near 's-Gravenhage.

He was: deputy cantonal judge at Heerenveen 1872—1877; member of the Municipal Council of Schoterland 1875—1893; member of the Provincial States of Friesland 1877—1916; Chairman of the Militia Council of the 2nd District of Friesland 1886—1920; Chairman of the Board of Appeal for the Property Tax at Heerenveen 1893—1899; acting State Advocate in Friesland 1894—1899; Curator of the University of Groningen 1901 — his death; Member of the 1st Chamber of the States-General 1916 — his death; while his merits were recognized by his appointment as Knight in the Order of the Netherlands Lion.

Mr. Halbe Binnerts died, as appears from the following family announcement, at the age of 79 years at Voorburg near 's-Gravenhage, House "Sunny Home", on 5 January 1922 and was buried on 9 January following in the General Cemetery at Voorburg.

In the morning edition of Tuesday 10 January 1922 of "De Nieuwe Courant" the following appeared concerning his funeral:

"FUNERAL OF H. BINNERTS.

With great sympathy the mortal remains of the member of the First Chamber mr. H. Binnerts, who died at the age of 79, were laid to rest on Monday afternoon in the General Cemetery at Voorburg.

> Among those present were noticed, among others, the members of the First Chamber, the gentlemen Kraus, former minister of Public Works, and E. Bergsma; the clerk of that Chamber, mr. Zillesen; the burgomaster of Voorburg, jhr. Stern; the rector-magnificus of the Groningen University, of which the deceased had been a curator, prof. Jaeger; the secretary of the Senate of this University prof. Cohen, and further, on behalf of the liberal members of the Frisian Provincial States, Mr. Th. van Welderen baron Rengers, on behalf of the general board of the Order of Freemasons, Mr. Van Nieuwenburg, and the gentlemen mr. Simons and Drion, respectively secretary and assistant secretary of the State Commission for the Church Denominations, of which commission mr. Binnerts was a member. The chairman of this commission, prof. Anema, was prevented by illness from being present.
>
> Three ushers of the First Chamber acted as pall-bearers in carrying the coffin, covered with many wreaths and floral tributes, to the grave.
>
> At the open grave the first to speak was ds. Binnerts, minister at Haarlem, on behalf of the General Mennonite Society, of which society the now departed had been one of the worthiest members. His legal advice, too, was always highly valued. The members of this society will not easily forget the deceased, and the speaker finally commended his soul with reverent confidence to Almighty God.
>
> On behalf of the general board of the Order of Freemasons, Mr. v. Nieuwenburg pointed out how Mr. Binnerts had always given his great gifts of mind and also of heart to the Order.
>
> Brother Binnerts will live on in our memory as a calm, level-headed and upright man.
>
> On behalf of the Lodge "De Friesche Trouw" ds. M. L. Deenik brought a last greeting to the deceased.
>
> Also on behalf of the Frisian Mennonite Society the speaker gave the assurance that the name of mr. Binnerts will never be forgotten in the history of this Society, which he served for many years as bookkeeper. As a word of comfort to the children of mr. Binnerts, the speaker observed that God always draws near to the sorrowing.
>
> Mr. Th. van Welderen baron Rengers, representative of the Club of Frisian Liberal Members of the Provincial States, pointed out that the deceased had fulfilled his membership of the States for 39 years with great devotion. His place can therefore not easily be taken by others.
>
> He will not be forgotten, not in the Frisian States, but also not outside them, since Friesland has always valued his work.
>
> Finally prof. Jaeger, from Groningen, described the affection which the members of the Academy and of the Senate always had for the deceased, who had a large share, not only as curator but also as a man, in the development of the Groningen University.
>
> His memory will therefore live on in our grateful remembrance.
>
> A son of the deceased thanked those present in a few words for the sympathy shown."

Below follows the Report of the Evening Session of Tuesday 10 January 1922, opened at 8.40, of the First Chamber of the States-General, Chairman: J. J. G. baron van Voorst tot Voorst:

> MR H. BINNERTS COMMEMORATED.
>
> The Clerk read out the notice of the death of Mr. H. Binnerts, in life a member of the Chamber, which was answered on behalf of the Chamber with a letter of condolence.
>
> The Chairman says that this unexpected death has deeply affected us all. When on 29 December last we left this assembly hall with the best wishes for the coming year, it was not suspected that we should not find him here again. With him a most deserving member has departed. Elected in 1916 by the States of Friesland as a member of this Chamber, he soon distinguished himself by his independent conduct. He did every honour to his Frisian origin. He remained a personality until his death. He was successively advocate and procurator, Rijksadvocaat (State advocate) and Vice-President of the Court at Leeuwarden. His advice in juridical matters was highly valued.
>
> He was a logical thinker, a fluent speaker; it was a pleasure to work with him. His conduct was marked by a practical sense, founded on ripe experience of life. By his modesty he gained the friendship of all. We shall therefore gladly continue to remember him as the sturdy Frisian who loved his country and laboured for it to the last days of his life."

A photographic portrait of him, in the gala costume of a Vice-President of a Court of Justice, has been included among the portraits.

Line of descent: Tjardus 181 ← Ausonius 101^{II} ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5^{II} ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1^{I}

He was born at Goor 11 March 1847.

Tjardus Greidanus was Teacher of Mathematics at the Training College for male and female teachers at Amsterdam, from the founding of this school in 1876 until 1912.

He wrote the following mathematical textbooks:

1°. "Rekenvoorstellen voor theorie en practijk, ten dienste van Middelbare Scholen en van Kweekscholen voor Onderwijzers, verzameld en methodisch geordend". This book was published in 1877 by J. B. Wolters at Groningen, with whom a 3rd edition appeared in 1881, a 4th in 1888 and a 5th in 1900.

The Preface and the Contents of the 5th enlarged and improved edition, of which a copy is in my possession, follow below:

> "PREFACE.
>
> The present collection of arithmetical exercises contains, in a methodical order, a regular set of exercises, both on the theory of arithmetic and for so-called practical calculation.
>
> As regards the order of the paragraphs, I have brought this fifth edition into agreement with the third edition of my "Theorie der Rekenkunde", published by the same firm. In consequence a few series of problems have been moved.
>
> Here and there some theoretical exercises have been deleted, and on the other hand I have inserted some more practical problems. Nevertheless these latter too are for the most part applications of properties from the Theory, and for the rest have been chosen as far as possible with a view to calculation in practical life.

I hope that by the alterations and improvements made the little work may have gained in usefulness. I shall be glad to receive kind observations.

In this edition the answers have been added at the end of the work.
Amsterdam, September 1899. T. GREIDANUS."

2°. “Theorie der Rekenkunde, ten behoeve van Inrichtingen van Middelbaar Onderwijs en van Kweekscholen voor Onderwijzers”. This book was published in 1878 by J. B. Wolters at Groningen, with whom a 2nd edition appeared in 1886 and a 3rd in 1900.

The Preface and the Contents of the 3rd enlarged and improved edition, of which a copy is in my possession, follow below:

“PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

> In this third edition of my Theorie der Rekenkunde various properties of numbers have been formulated and proved more explicitly than was the case in the previous one. The stricter requirements which have lately been set at the examination in arithmetic for the teacher's certificate made this necessary. Yet I have observed the greatest possible conciseness in this, in order not to give the work too large a size, and to comprise the whole Theory of Arithmetic in one volume, which can only be desirable for the teacher.
>
> Further, some additions and improvements have been made which have seemed to me desirable in the teaching of arithmetic. Thus I point to a more extensive treatment of Compound Interest, an eminently practical part of Arithmetic, and one in which the pupil can already very well be made attentive to the abbreviated operations. This has the advantage that he thereby learns to see the usefulness and the great importance of those abbreviated operations.
>
> Further, the proportionality of magnitudes has been treated in a separate chapter, and in it I have restored the rule of three to honour. For it is clear that this, applying to problems concerning proportional magnitudes, gives a much easier and quicker solution than the solution without proportions.
>
> The chapter on the (abbreviated) operations with inexact numbers has undergone some expansion, in that a consideration of the finding of the error in the operation has been added to it. However, I have avoided giving a fixed rule for the finding of the error, since, without adhering to this rule, the operation can yield a more exact result.
>
> In the appendix the general criteria for divisibility by any number have likewise undergone some expansion.
>
> Although theoretically less correct, I have, in imitation of the prevailing fashion, placed the multiplier first in multiplication.
>
> I hope that the changes made will have increased the usefulness of the work.

3°. “Leerboek der Algebra voor theorie en practijk, ten dienste van Middelbare Scholen en van Inrichtingen tot opleiding van Onderwijzers”, of which the first part appeared with J. B.

Wolters in Groningen appeared in 1881, and the second part with the same publisher in 1882. The Preface in the first part reads as follows:

> “PREFACE.
>
> The accompanying Leerboek der Algebra contains, besides a complete exposition of the Theory, founded upon a similar treatment of the Theory of Arithmetic, a large collection of problems for solution and application. It has been my aim to present matters as simply as possible, and especially at the beginning I have not shrunk from letting possible demands of a strictly scientific method give way to a simpler and more elementary treatment and explanation. In this way Algebra can be begun at the same time as the Theory of Arithmetic, and the latter is, as it were, nothing other than a more general conception of the principles developed in the former. Following the same idea I have given a series of problems and exercises as soon as possible, convinced that it is desirable to give the pupils, instead of more or less profound considerations, the opportunity as soon as possible to apply the concepts, however few and simple, which they have acquired.
>
> As soon as a section, or sometimes only a subsection, has been treated, a number of problems for application are set, and I have taken care to provide some variety in them. No one, I hope, will hold it against me that their number is too great. The large number has after all the advantage that, in a second year in which the textbook is used, one can here and there make a different selection.
>
> A word more about the arrangement of the textbook.
>
> I have derived the negative numbers from subtractions in which the subtrahend is greater than the minuend, and thus regarded them as numbers indicating how much the minuend lacks in order to be equal to the subtrahend, in contrast with the positive numbers, which indicate how much the subtrahend lacks in order to be equal to the minuend. This seemed to me the most natural treatment.
>
> After the four fundamental rules I have placed the so-called remarkable products, the remarkable quotients, and thereafter the resolution into factors. For the sake of completeness the proofs of the general formulas have been included with the remarkable quotients. For more advanced pupils these proofs have their good side, even though they can later be given much more simply. — In the Second Chapter the fractional numbers are treated, and only thereafter, in the Third Chapter, the equations of the first degree. In this way one has a wider choice for the latter. Otherwise one must limit oneself very much in the choice of the equations, and one can even give no equation with letters at all for solution, any more than the solution of the general equations. Finally the Fourth Chapter contains the theory of radical forms and improper powers.
>
> In the course of this year I hope to have the second part appear, as well as the answers to the problems.
>
> In a work such as this it is very difficult to avoid all errors. I ask indulgence for them: a few which struck me after the printing follow hereafter. I suggest to the kind user that he correct these at once when he takes the book in hand.
>
> Convinced of the many further shortcomings attaching to the work, the author commends himself for kindly remarks.
>
> The Author.”

This entire first volume, produced in small octavo format, comprises 240 pages, exclusive of the contents.

Below follow the Preface and the Contents of the second volume:

> "PREFACE.
>
> In compiling this second volume of the Textbook of Algebra for Theory and Practice, I have also had in view the needs of prospective teachers and the requirements set for the examination as head teacher.
>
> By means of a wide choice of exercises, this volume too offers the opportunity, each time after some part has been dealt with, to apply and extend what has been learnt in all sorts of ways.
> About the contents I can be brief. After the treatment of the ordinary quadratic equations, the second chapter deals with the impossible expressions, and thereafter a separate chapter is devoted to the solution of that manifold kind of equations which can be reduced to a quadratic equation; in this way this part has been treated somewhat more systematically than is usually the case. In the fourth chapter, dealing with the equations of the 2nd degree with 2 and more unknowns, something has been included about "greatest and least values." It seemed to me that a few pages might well be devoted to this subject with its many applications, while, if time is short, it can be omitted without harm for what follows. In the two following chapters the indeterminate equations of the 1st degree and those of the 2nd degree have been treated with some fullness; in most textbooks of algebra too little is made of these in my view, and one contents oneself with working out a few problems from indeterminate analysis. Finally, the two following chapters contain the theory of logarithms and their applications to exponential equations and to calculations with compound interest.

I close with the wish that a place may here and there be found for this Textbook of Algebra for Theory and Practice. Kind remarks and suggestions will be gladly received.

Amsterdam, July 1882. The Author."

This second part is produced in the same format as the first and comprises, excluding the contents, 171 pages.

Besides these textbooks, Tjardus Greidanus wrote on 2 July 1902 an "Open brief aan de Directie der Algemeene Maatschappij van Levensverzekering en Lijfrente te Amsterdam", printed at W. Versluys in Amsterdam, occasioned by an attack made by that Company in N° 1053 of its "Wekelijksche Mededeelingen aan hare Agenten" upon his contributions in the Algemeen Handelsblad of 14 November 1901 and 12 June 1902.

The first part and the conclusion of this open letter, a copy of which is in my possession, follow below, from which it appears that Tjardus Greidanus was at the same time Director of the Amsterdam branch office of the Onderlinge Levensverzekering van Eigen Hulp, in connection with which he took an interest in life insurance matters, and that he was an advocate of mutual life insurance companies, as opposed to life insurance companies with shares:

> "To the Board of Directors > of the Algemeene Maatschappij van > Levensverzekering en Lijfrente > at Amsterdam.
> GENTLEMEN!
>
> You have been so kind as to send me a copy of n° 1053 of your "Wekelijksche Mededeelingen aan uwe Agenten", in which you do me the honour of occupying yourselves with me, even though this is not exactly in a manner very agreeable to me.
>
> For a considerable time I had not had such a little paper, as your weekly communications are commonly called, in my hands. Formerly I did receive them from time to time through the agency of a friendly hand, and then — let me tell you — the reading of them afforded me many a pleasant moment. I was always so "edified" by those little papers. There was in your observations something so good-natured, something friendly, something unctuous, indeed often something fatherly — even when you found it necessary to condemn a person or an institution outright. There are indeed people who found in them rather much self-glorification, and who even went so far as to speak of pharisaism, of a "We thank Thee, O Lord, that we are not as those other companies which engage in life insurance," — and who then spoke of the pamphlets of the Algemeene; — but this is of course nothing but slander, and may be regarded as prompted by (French) professional jealousy.
>
> No, I acknowledge that I have fully deserved your chastisement, for surely I ought to have considered that in matters of life insurance the first and the last word belong to the Board of the Algemeene, and that it is not fitting for the first comer to meddle in them as well.
>
> My sin is indeed very great, for even the kindly and fatherly tone is entirely lacking in your correction, such as does still occur in the little lesson which you administer in the same number to Mr. Stigter.
>
> However conscious of guilt, I should still like to put forward something by way of excuse.
>
> Let it be said first that you reproach me for having concealed, in my contribution in the Handelsblad of 12 June last, that I am Director of the Amsterdam branch office of the Onderlinge Levensverzekering van Eigen Hulp, and likewise that by the life insurance company referred to (not named) in that piece I had your company in view.

> Is this reproach really justified?
> As regards the first point, it was of no relevance. I did not write in that capacity, but merely as someone interested in life insurance matters, and I had no intention whatsoever of advertising for any company.
> And as to the second point, I did not know that it was your company which, in November of last year, on the occasion of the case of the Hamburg Company, delivered that sideswipe at mutual life insurance companies in general and at that of Eigen Hulp in particular — although I did indeed suspect it. As an advocate of mutual life insurance, I did nothing other than return the ball that had then been struck at us. And considering your annoyance with me, one would say that this has succeeded rather well.
> And now I come naturally to the first of the points you raised.
>
> . . . . . .
> . . . . . .
> I wrote in the Handelsblad of 14 November 1901:
> "With the various domestic and foreign life insurance companies such a large amount of the savings of the Dutch people has been invested, that truly some supervision on the part of the State over the "faits et gestes" of the various companies may well be exercised.
> You will forgive me that, despite your arguments dealt with above, I still remain of that opinion. And there would probably be a good many more arguments to be adduced which most certainly plead for a well-organised State supervision.
> But I too take my leave of you, with thanks for your kind advice to rely henceforth on "Own Strength, Own Activity, Own Help."
> I readily acknowledge you as my superior in the art of conducting polemics; you have twenty years' experience in it and your little papers bear witness to it. I therefore grant you the pleasure of occupying yourself with me once more in one of your next little papers, and I shall then calmly endure your further chastisement, unless.....
> I have the honour, Gentlemen, to be respectfully
> Your obedient servant,
> Amsterdam, 2 July 1902." T. GREIDANUS.

The whole letter, produced in octavo format, comprises 16 pages.

Tjardus Greidanus, whose photographic portrait is included among the portraits, died, as appears from the family announcement below, on 3 March 1919 at Baarn at the age of nearly 72 years, and was buried on 6 March following in the "Zorgvlied" cemetery at Amsterdam:

"Today there died our dear Father, Father-in-law and Grandfather TJARDUS GREIDANUS Widower of Mrs. M. J. U. PRUIM,	Dr. H. v. STRAATEN. Eindhoven. TJ. DORRESTEIN—GREIDANUS. G. H. DORRESTEIN and Grandchildren.

Groningen, 8 January 1877.
Sole notification.
Mr. and Mrs. Greidanus express their heartfelt thanks for the many tokens of interest received on the occasion of their marriage.”

Maria Joanna Ursina Pruim was born at Dokkum 24 November 1840, as appears from the family announcement below:

“+ Today was safely delivered of a DAUGHTER,
J. U. KRUYS, beloved wife of Dockum, M. PRUIM.
the 24th of November 1840.”

She was a daughter of Martinus Pruim and Jacoba Ursinusdochter Kruys. Martinus Pruim was first attached to the Latin and Secondary School at Almelo. In 1837 he was appointed Instituteur (head of a boarding school) at Dokkum, which post he held until the beginning of the year 1865, when he became Editor of the Provinciale Friesche Courant and settled at Leeuwarden, where he died in 1871. From April 1852 onwards he was also School Inspector in the 3rd District of Friesland.

Maria Joanna Ursina Pruim wrote various stories, for instance “Trouw tot in den Dood” in Nos 24 to 29 of the year 1877 of the weekly “Eigen Haard”. She died, aged 73 years, on 26 February 1914 at Amsterdam, as appears from the following family announcement:

“Today died our beloved

Gerhardus Jacobus Johannes Greidanus

Anna Elisabeth Meijjes

Judith Maria Magdalena Dunnewold

He was born at Dalfsen 12 August 1848.

For the profession of direct taxation he prepared himself from 5 November 1866 onwards at Onderdendam, from 1 November 1867 to 1 May 1868 at Groningen, and from 1 October 1869 onwards at Hellevoetsluis. From 8 May 1868 to 30 September 1869 he served as geagréeerde (probationary assistant) at the Heerenveen office, by virtue of an appointment by the Director at Groningen dated 6 May 1868 N° 1000. In March 1870 he took the examination for surnumerair (supernumerary) at Utrecht and was appointed as such by Royal Decree of 13 April 1870 N° 11. He worked in the Provinces of Groningen and Gelderland and was appointed by Royal Decree of 13 April 1870 N° 11 as Commies (clerk) at the Provincial Inspectorate Eindhoven. On 30 November 1872 he obtained in the Province of Noord-Brabant the diploma of Candidaat-Notaris (candidate notary).

By Royal Decree of 25 April 1873 N° 10 he was transferred as Commies at the Inspectorate to Rotterdam with effect from 1 May following. His appointment as Controleur (controller) (now changed to Inspecteur) of Direct Taxes, Import Duties and Excises at Groenlo, taking effect 15 October 1879, was made by Royal Decree of 17 September 1879 N° 18. He was transferred to Zalt-Bommel by Royal Decree of 17 March 1891 N° 15, taking effect 1 April following, to Leiden by Royal Decree of 15 August 1892 N° 22, taking effect 1 September following, and to Amsterdam Direct Taxes 3rd office by Royal Decree of 15 December 1893 N° 7, taking effect 1 January 1894. On account of the pressure of work which the Amsterdam controllership brought with it, and in view of his state of health, he requested and obtained by Royal Decree of 22 November 1897 N° 36 the appointment, taking effect 1 January 1898, as Ontvanger (receiver) of Import Duties and Excises at Zwolle. In 1908 followed his appointment as Ontvanger at Leiden, where he was honourably discharged at his own request for reasons of health with effect from 15 October of that year. About July 1911 he moved to Haarlem and in May 1914 to Heemstede.

During his time at Groenlo he founded, together with some colleagues, a new professional journal called “De Fiscus”, the first number of which appeared on 5 January 1889. At the end of 1911 the journal was merged with the old “Weekblad voor de Administratie der Directe Belastingen, In- en Uitgaande Rechten en Accijnzen” under the name “Weekblad voor de Administratie der Directe Belastingen, Invoerrechten en Accijnzen”, the first number of which appeared on 6 January 1912. Of this merged weekly there appeared on 7 January 1922, in commemoration of its fifty years of existence, a jubilee number, in which the following occurs:

> On page 4 in an article “Looking back”:
> “Meanwhile, the dissatisfaction (namely with the “Weekblad voor de Administratie der Directe Belastingen, In- en Uitgaande Rechten en Accijnzen”) grew, and in October 1888 it led to a deed; at that time we received a circular signed by Messrs. J. H. Blankert, receiver at Hasselt, G. J. J. Greidanus, controller at Groenlo, J. D. A. Hollweg, receiver at Winterswijk, Jhr. J. Hora Siccama, receiver at Driebergen, H. van Manen, controller at Venlo, R. U. Mesdag, controller at Winschoten, and J. Neiszen, receiver at Princenhage, who, “in the conviction that the existing Weekblad, as it is at present edited, no longer meets the requirements which one may set for a professional journal”, had decided to publish a new organ.
> At the beginning of January 1889 the first number of “de Fiscus” appeared, in a handier format and with more attractive printing than the old Weekblad.
> Especially in the first years the Fiscus was a fine journal. Week after week the seven editors, under the leadership of Mr. Greidanus, vied with one another in supplying interesting articles and reflections, while the other sections, such as “Press news”, Administrative case law, from the Provincial reports, Commodity knowledge, etc., received the necessary attention. Besides this, Flanor (Jhr. J. H. S.) wrote with his well-sharpened pen, for variety, his witty causeries.
> In October 1892 “the second helmsman” came aboard, Mr. G. W. Martens, receiver at Rijssen, who took over a great part of Mr. Greidanus's task, but announced “that an earnest effort would be made to leave the course unchanged.”
> Meanwhile the publication of the journal had passed, with effect from January 1892, from the publishers Cremer & Co. at 's-Gravenhage to the firm C. N. Teulings at 's-Bosch.
> Until January 1897 Mr. Martens conducted the editorship of the Fiscus with a firm hand together with Mr. Greidanus, and although they could no longer count on the regular collaboration of the other founders, they nevertheless managed to keep the journal at a high level.
> The right of publication of the journal passed on the above-mentioned date to the firm C. N. Teulings, who intended to continue publishing the journal on the existing footing with new forces.
>
> Who had the editorship the paper did not state, but that so experienced and firm a hand as had hitherto been at the helm was lacking, many a number in the following years could prove.”

On pages 7 and 8 in a contribution “Formerly and Now” by R. v. d. Feen:

> “Meanwhile the general spirit of discontent, at the time mentioned by Bismarck, had also awakened. It had seized our profession too and led to the founding of a new paper in 1889 by some dissatisfied younger men.
>
> What it was, and in what respect it would distinguish itself from the old one, was not said in so many words in the preface, and the opening “Taxes ought to be claer and certain” also gave no sufficient light. What must have been in the minds of the founders of “De Fiscus”, and chiefly of their leader, Mr. Greidanus, was the delivery of scholarly work, in contrast with the more or less everyday, but nevertheless indispensable subjects such as: reports of meetings, surveys of the press, recommendations of charitable works, appointments, transfers, etc. Perhaps he, himself a candidate-notary, already felt then the lack of the necessary legal knowledge in our profession. It began at once with an essay on: “Minors in relation to the tax laws”. He held to the providing of such treatises, especially the explanation of our tax laws in the manner and in the style of works like “the civil code explained”, until the very last.
>
> The new paper made a good start; the founders evidently felt the need to express what was going on in them. The first volume contained, for instance, a survey of the earlier and existing pension arrangements, a treatise on the foundations of the sugar excise, indeed even what one would nowadays call: instruction by letter, namely in gauging and sounding. This is not the place to describe the fortunes of “De Fiscus” in detail; let it suffice to mention that Flanor's word to the Editorial Board (in the 2nd number) “All life turns to ashes” was fulfilled, perhaps sooner than he had expected. Like a too weakly rooted tree the paper was blown over by the wind of thrift and merger which some years ago blew through the receivers' camp. The younger little sister had disappeared again.”

And on page 8 in an article “Coming and going” by J. H. Blankert:

> “A fleeting recollection of the long bygone days in which De Fiscus was born, and of the persons who helped to bring this about.
>
> Before me lie the minutes of the first meeting of the founders, and while I immerse myself in them, the times and the persons gradually loom up out of the mists of the past.
>
> On Saturday 27 September 1888 that first gathering took place at Arnhem in Café Central. Of the 8 summoned, 7 were present; they were the Gentlemen: G. J. J. Greidanus, Controller at Groenlo; J. D. A. Hollweg, Receiver at Winterswijk; Jhr. J. Hora Siccama, Receiver at Driebergen, H. v. Manen, Controller at Venlo; R. U. Mesdag, Controller at Winschoten; J. Neiszen, ex-Controller at Prinsenhage and myself, Receiver at Hasselt.
>
> I was by far the youngest of the company and felt it thoroughly. Mr. Neiszen had been my highly esteemed teacher; names like Greidanus and van Manen had a very imposing ring for young officials in those days.
>
> Highly comical therefore was for me the sight of that impressive gentleman v. Manen, sitting good-naturedly behind the tea tray and kindly inquiring whether the gentlemen took sugar and milk, whereupon the “formidable one” put the lumps in the cups and carefully prepared everyone's tea.
>
> Meanwhile the discussions were conducted. We proved to be dissatisfied with the Weekblad, we found its contents stale and inadequate, although we acknowledged the Editor's great qualities, which however in the then past last years no longer, or only to a slight degree, seemed to benefit the paper.
>
> The result of the meeting was the decision to found a new organ, and with this the birth of De Fiscus was resolved upon.
>
> This is now almost 34 years ago. For us older ones the names of the founders awaken a host of memories, ... for how many in the profession do those names say nothing or little any more! Only two of them are still alive; for the other five the closing hour has already struck.
>
> I think of them with silent reverence.”

Besides many articles in “De Fiscus”, Gerhardus Jacobus Johannes Greidanus also wrote:

“Outline of the act for the levying of a tax on Business and other Incomes”, 's-Hertogenbosch 1893;

“Outline of the act of 16 April 1896, Official Gazette N^{o} 72, regulating the Personal tax, with index”, Den Helder 1896, 2nd edition 1897.

He died 26 January 1915 at Heemstede at the age of 66 years, as appears from the following family announcement:

His passing was commemorated in the issue of 6 February 1915 of the “Weekblad voor de Administratie der Directe Belastingen, Invoerrechten en Accijnzen” in the following piece by G. W. M./artens/:

> “† G. J. J. GREIDANUS.
>
> On Friday 29 January, a bleak winter's day, together with the members of the family some of his friends and former colleagues in the profession gathered round the grave of Mr. G. J. J. Greidanus, in the cemetery so pleasantly situated near Heemstede's pleasure grounds Groenendaal.
>
> In his last years he suffered from an ailment which often almost prevented him from expressing, in writing or in speech, what was going on within him, what he would have liked to do or say. What this means for a man accustomed to rendering his thoughts so precisely and accurately, who proclaimed no ornamental phrases but spoke when he had something to say, whose company was so much valued for his character, his great knowledge and wide reading, his interest and faithful friendship — outsiders can only partly realise this. Those who shared his life in the later years have been able to see that Greidanus bore the fluctuations of his fate with resignation; for himself he did not complain, though he was too anxious lest he should be a burden to others. Yet he succumbed quite unexpectedly to the consequences of a chill.
>
> Although in the last years of his official career he was a receiver, to many he nevertheless remained the inspector, in which capacity he had best shown his talents.
>
> Greidanus was very conscientious; people knew it and counted on it; if the carriage was not in front of the office on the stroke of 9 o'clock, the receiver knew well that no office verification would take place that day. Punctuality in matters of accounting was proportionate to this. Though he set himself high demands, he always saw and sought the good in others.

The work that left his hand was finished, everyone knew that; there was nothing to improve. His advices had been viewed from every side, weighed and considered.

He continued to set himself these demands in his official work, which was to increase with the years. Greidanus always produced quality work, and the quantity which gradually, but ever more pressingly, presented itself to his hand made him the victim of his natural disposition. His way of working prevented him from getting through the quantities which had to bear his signature, his stamp. His constitution suffered from it; he was no longer equal to his sphere of work as it had grown and changed through the business tax, even though the elevation of the nature of the work was not unpleasant to him. That sphere of work would give ever more quantities to be dealt with.

Only three terms of service of the business tax broke the constitution and with it the career of a man of so many gifts, who already as a surnumerair had seen the use of enriching himself with legal knowledge, which at that time was a virtually closed book to nearly all of our people, namely by taking the examination for candidate notary.

Greidanus took an interest in more in our profession than in the service alone. The interests of the officials entrusted to his leadership were close to his heart, and so were the interests of their families. Many a young official, of whom he had so many in his first inspectorate, has been indebted to him for good advice. He attached great value to good forms; service matters had to be treated as service matters. When an (other) controller was attacked in the then professional journal by one of his subordinates about a service matter, Greidanus with some others entered a protest against such an act.

This also became one of the causes which gave the impetus to the founding of "De Fiscus", of which the first number appeared on 5 January 1889, with Mr. Greidanus as editor-in-chief. Personal strife was kept out of it. New life was to be brought into professional journalism; the journal was not to be exploited for profit, but in accordance with the saying that the labourer is worth his wages, everyone who "wiping his feet, crosses the threshold of "De Fiscus"" would do so not only without cost to himself, but according to the nature of his work he would be remunerated for it; if what he communicated was designated for publication, then that piece had become an asset of the journal, which wished to share the life of the officials, to render what was going on within them, and which always valued the evidence thereof, in a twofold respect. This line was carried through until, owing to a changed sphere of work and mindful of "new blood — new life", eight years later the journal changed editors and owner, and with that the founders entrusted their creation to other leadership.

Much was written by Greidanus in those years and much did he strive for the interests of the officials, which were at the same time the interests of the service; he was the oracle for many; his intention to complete the history of the Netherlands taxes and to publish it in book form was not carried out.

In 1894 he was able to agree to providing the Vereeniging van Kommiezen with a modest lodging in the house of "De Fiscus", by allotting a section at its own disposal outside the editorship, an act which has gradually shown itself to have been a good journalistic insight into a large field that had to be brought into cultivation.

With Greidanus a first-class senior official left our profession; with Greidanus a noble man has departed, a faithful friend has been lost to many."

A photographic portrait of him has been included among the portraits.

MARRIED:

1⁰ ANNA ELISABETH MEIJJES, 4 May 1881 at Groenlo, at the same time as a brother of hers, as appears from the family announcement below:

" Married:
G. J. J. GREIDANUS
to
A. E. MEIJJES
and
J. F. MEIJJES
to
J. M. BRUINIER of Schönau (Rheinpfalz).
Groenlo, 4 May 1881."

Anna Elisabeth Meijjes was born 6 December 1851 at Leersum and was a daughter of Ds. Frans Meijjes, Dutch Reformed Minister at Winterswijk, and Johanna Lucretia Geertruida Everwijn.

She died, as appears from the following family announcement, at the age of 31 on 13 April 1883 at Groenlo:

" After a short illness there died today, at the age of just over 31 years, my dearly beloved wife Anna Elisabeth Meijjes, leaving me two children from a happy marriage of nearly two years.
G. J. J. GREIDANUS.
Groenloo, 13 April 1883."

which announcement was followed by the one below:

"For the many expressions of sympathy and interest shown to him on the death of his dearly beloved wife A. E. Greidanus, née Meijjes, the undersigned expresses his sincere thanks.
G. J. J. GREIDANUS.
G r o e n l o, 29 April 1883."

A photographic portrait of her has been included among the portraits.

Mr. F. E. Posthumus Meijjes has published, compiled for the family, a "Geschiedenis en Genealogie van het geslacht Meijjes (Posthumus Meijjes, Van Oostrom Meijjes), met de daaraan in de vrouwelijke lijn ontsproten takken". This work was printed at Amsterdam by J. H. de Bussy on the Rokin in 100 numbered copies in 1899, with a continuation of it in 1909.

Here follows an illustration of the family coat of arms "Meijjes", the heraldic description of which reads as follows:

per fess: 1. gold, with three May branches in natural colour side by side.

2. blue, with a silver posthorn.

Crest: a May branch from the shield, between a pair of wings, on the right gold, on the left blue.

Torse and mantling: On the right: gold and green. On the left: silver and blue.

A photographic portrait of her is included among the portraits.

According to information obtained from Mr. Ch. L. H. Th. Dunnewold, broker of the firm Valkenburg & Dunnewold at Amsterdam, the cradle of the family "Dunnewold", to which Judith Maria Magdalena Dunnewold belonged, must be sought in the neighbourhood of Didam and Doesburg. Later the said family was established at Winterswijk. At Didam it was the owner of the place "Nevelhorst" and at Winterswijk of the place "Balkenschot", which still exist there today as farms. Below follow an illustration and a heraldic description of the arms, as they are borne at present, of the said family "Dunnewold".

silver, with three black fesses, charged with six six-pointed golden stars, 3 on the first, 2 on the second and 1 on the third fess. Crest: three green trees with a triple crown, the lowest crown of each tree charged with a six-pointed golden star.

b. Krommenie, 17 December 1842 · son of Jan, Idema Greidanus (N^{O} 185) and Elisabeth Boomsma · m. Anna Maria Bax, 1873

Pieter Jelle

Anna Maria Bax

He was born at Krommenie 17 December 1842, as appears from the following family announcement:

> “ K r o m m e n i e, the 17th of December 1842. Today ELISABETH IDEMA GREIDANUS, née BOOMSMA, gave birth to a SON.”

Pieter Jelle Idema Greidanus was to be trained for the Royal Navy, and to that end went at an already youthful age to the Institute of “Monsieur” L. Blankenbijl at Geertruidenberg. On Friday 24 July 1857 he was summoned by the Minister to The Hague to take the examination for the Navy. Before the examination a medical examination took place in the morning at 7 o'clock, which had as its result that he was declared unfit because of poor eyesight.

Now he was to be trained as a Notary, for which purpose he worked from May 1858 until April 1862 with Notary Abraham Louis van Slogteren at Enkhuizen, where, according to a certificate issued to him, he “always distinguished himself by accurate performance of the tasks entrusted to him and by zeal and eagerness in the practice of the notarial profession.”

Since, however, the prospects in the notarial profession did not seem very fine, his father thought it expedient to have him qualify for the Registration service; he was trained for this by Mr. Van Meurs at Zwolle, to which place he departed 31 January 1862. On 28 November 1864 he travelled to Utrecht, to take there the examination — it lasted 4 days — for Supernumerary of the Registration. He passed this examination and was, by Royal Decree of 13 December 1864, N⁰ 69, appointed Supernumerary of the Registration and Domains. By resolution of the Minister of Finance of 17 December 1864, Registration and Domains Section, N⁰ 26, the appointed Supernumerary of the Registration and Domains: P. J. Idema Greidanus at Zwolle, was, with effect from 1 January 1865, assigned to duty in the Middelburg Directorate, where the Director was first Mr. Collard and and afterwards Mathon, at Middelburg. During his detachment at Middelburg he was charged with the administration of the Receivers' offices at: Kortgene, Middelburg-Civil Acts and Sluis.

[1] In the Registers of the Civil Registry wrongly entered as "Jelles", that is to say the son of Jelle, which he was not. He was named after his grandfather Pier Jelles Boomsma, who was rightly called Jelles, for the latter was a son of Jelle, namely of Jelle Jetzes Boomsma.

In his opinion things did not go very prosperously for him in the Registration service. This seems to have contributed to his taking the examination for candidate-Notary, for which he was summoned to Middelburg on 30 May 1866, and which he passed, as appears from a declaration issued by the examination committee: "that this examination has furnished the Commission with sufficient grounds to hold that the said Mr. Pieter Jelles Idema Greidanus possesses all the knowledge which is required in a Notary."

By resolution of the Minister of Finance dated 11 May 1866, Registration and Domains Department, N⁰ 68, he was transferred, with effect from 11 June 1866, to the Amsterdam Directorate. In the letter by which this resolution was brought to his notice by the Director in Zeeland, Mathon, there occurs as a conclusion: "This transfer was desired by you in your own interest (he wished to be somewhat nearer his family), and I therefore offer you my congratulations, though I see you leave my Directorate with regret, since I have learned to value you as a very diligent, particularly capable and able official."

During his posting as surnumerary in the Amsterdam Directorate he replaced the officials at various Registration offices at: Amsterdam, Druten, Den Helder, Medemblik, Purmerend, Rotterdam, Schiedam, Texel, Weesp and Zaandam.

By Royal Decree of 6 April 1870, N⁰ 15, he was appointed, with effect from 22 April 1870, Receiver of Registration and Domains at Goor, by Royal Decree of 12 February 1871, N⁰ 5, with effect from 1 March 1871, at Tholen, and by Royal Decree of 14 September 1872, N⁰ 8, with effect from 4 November 1872, at Heerlen, where he was also deputy Cantonal Judge from 30 January 1873 to 18 August 1874.

During his Receivership at Tholen he made the acquaintance of his later wife Anna Maria Bax at Bergen op Zoom.

With effect from 29 August 1874 he was appointed, by Royal Decree of 5 June 1874, N⁰ 20, Receiver of Registration and Domains at Woerden, at a salary of f 1590.— a year. As this amount, especially when his third offspring arrived on 31 May 1880, was insufficient for his needs of life, he took several young men into training for the registration service and for the notarial profession, and applied — though in vain — for the post of Notary at Dordrecht, Utrecht and Amersfoort.

By Royal Decree of 7 December 1880, N⁰ 19, he was appointed, with effect from 1 January 1881, Inspector of Registration and Domains of the third class in the inspection division Middelburg at a salary of f 2600.— a year. Subsequently he was appointed by Royal Decree of 6 November 1881, N⁰ 22, with effect from 1 December 1881, Inspector of Registration of the third class in the inspection division Zutphen, and by Royal Decree of 19 June 1883, N⁰ 49, with effect from 1 July 1883, Inspector of Registration and Domains of the second class in the inspection division Leiden.

At Leiden he was employed as inspector during a great part of his official career. There he was appointed, with effect from 1 September 1892, by Royal Decree of 5 August 1892, N⁰ 16, Inspector of Registration and Domains of the first class, temporarily in the inspection division Leiden, and by Royal Decree of 30 January 1893, N⁰ 4, with effect from 1 February 1893, in the 9th division (Leiden); while at Leiden he was also appointed Officer in the Order of Oranje-Nassau by Royal Decree of 29 August 1899, N⁰ 7.

By Royal Decree of 17 July 1902, N⁰ 83, he was appointed, with effect from 1 September 1902, Director of Registration and Domains for the Province of Zuid-Holland at 's-Gravenhage, where on 13 December 1904 he celebrated his 40th anniversary in office and where, among other things, a telegraphic congratulation came in from the then Minister of Finance Harte van Tecklenburg. For reasons of health he was granted honourable discharge from this position, with entitlement to pension, with effect from 1 May 1906, by Royal Decree of 27 April 1906, N⁰ 37.

In the meeting of the Association of Officials of Registration and Domains on 22 September 1907 he was, together with Messrs. G. A. Loeff and A. L. Kulenkamp Lemmers, appointed by acclamation, on the proposal of the Board, extraordinary member of the Association.

Below follow a few official advertisements of his which are in my possession:

In various newspapers appearing in his Inspection district:

With this goes a reproduction of a photographic portrait of him in the official costume of Director of Registration and Domains, while a sketch drawing, made of him about 1897 by his son Jan Ausonius, is added at the following page.

A portrait of Pieter Jelle Idema Greidanus with a short caption was included in the Weekly "Wereldkroniek"/"De Week" N° 48 of 29 February 1908, while in various daily papers the following notice about him appeared:

> "'s-Gravenhage, 21 February (1908). Here has died at the age of 65 years Mr. P. J. Idema Greidanus, former director of registration and domains for Zuid-Holland.
> After he had become supernumerary in 1864, the now deceased was for many years inspector of registration and domains at Leiden. In 1902 he was appointed director at 's-Gravenhage, from which post he was honourably discharged at his own request in 1907.
> He was officer in the order of Oranje-Nassau.
> The burial will take place Monday at Nieuw Eijk-en-Duinen, at 11 o'clock from the house of mourning."

MARRIED:

Anna Maria Bax, 18 June 1873 at Bergen op Zoom, to which marriage the two advertisements below and the following printed private marriage announcement relate:

"_ Married:
PIETER JELLES IDEMA GREIDANUS
and
ANNA MARIA BAX
Bergen op Zoom, 18 June 1873."
"_ Mr. and Mrs. IDEMA GREIDANUS—BAX express, also on behalf of their parents, their sincere thanks to all who on the occasion of their marriage gave tokens of interest.
Bergen op Zoom, 18 June 1873."
"PIETER JELLES IDEMA GREIDANUS
Receiver of Registration and Domains
and
ANNA MARIA BAX
have the honour of informing you of their forthcoming marriage, of which the first banns will be published on Sunday 1 June.
Bergen op Zoom, 28 May 1873.
Reception 15 June."

As appears from the family advertisement following below, Anna Maria Bax was born 9 July 1841 at Bergen op Zoom:

> "_ Today was very prosperously delivered of a well-formed DAUGHTER, A. H. SCHOT, beloved Wife of the Notary M. BAX.
> B e r g e n o p Z o o m, the 9th July 1841.
> Sole notification."

Anna Maria Bax was a daughter of Maarten Bax, Notary at Bergen op Zoom, and Anna Henrietta Schot.

Maarten Bax was Notary at Bergen op Zoom from 1837 to 1879; afterwards he lived at 's-Gravenhage, where he died on 3 December 1883 at the age of 75 years. He is mentioned on pages 7 and 339 of the Register of the Protocols of Notaries in the Netherlands, published in 1916 at Rotterdam by the Brotherhood of Notaries in the Netherlands.

Anna Maria Bax died, as appears from the family announcement below, at the age of 88 years, on 1 December 1929 at 's-Gravenhage:

"Today there died, to our deep sorrow, at the age of 88 years, our dear Mother, Mother-in-law and Grandmother,
ANNA MARIA BAX,
Widow of P. J. IDEMA
GREIDANUS.
's-Gravenhage,
J. A. IDEMA GREIDANUS
Ir. M. R. IDEMA
GREIDANUS.
A. J. IDEMA GREIDANUS-
Laan
and grandchildren.
's-Gravenhage, 1 Dec. 1929.
Juliana van Stolbergplein 16.
This is the only announcement."

She was buried on 4 December following in the family grave, first class N° 683, in the "Nieuw Eykenduynen" cemetery at 's-Gravenhage.
The above announcement was followed by the following private expression of thanks:

" For your sympathy shown to us on the death of our dear Mother, Mother-in-law and Grandmother,
ANNA MARIA BAX,
Widow of P. J. IDEMA GREIDANUS, we express our heartfelt thanks.
J. A. IDEMA GREIDANUS
Ir. M. R. IDEMA GREIDANUS
A. J. IDEMA GREIDANUS—Laan.
's-Gravenhage, January 1930."

A photographic portrait of her is included among the portraits, while a sketch, made of her about 1897 by her son Jan Ausonius, is shown opposite.
There is further added a draft: fragment-genealogy of the family "Bax", to which Anna Maria Bax belonged (see page 623), as well as a depiction of the arms "Bax", which that family bears rightly or wrongly, and of which the heraldic description is as follows:

"Bax"

Lieuwe Sijbes Greidanus

Cornelia Sytzes Oosterhaven

He was born 21 April 1851 at Tzum.

Lieuwe Sijbeszoon Greidanus was owner of and farmer on the farm "Groot Tjallum" at Tzum until 1922, when the farm was taken over by his son Tjerk (N° 517 of this genealogy); he continued, however, to live at Tzum.

As appears from the following entry in the book containing the Acts of the Kerkeraad (church council) 1645—1886 and the Lidmaten (register of communicant members) 1645—1772 of the Dutch Reformed Congregation at Tzum, he was elected on 10 September 1882 as a member of the Kies-College (electoral college) of that Congregation:

"Sunday 10 Sept. 1882. This afternoon the voting for three members for the Kies College took place here in the Church building.
One hundred and eighteen members had come forward, of whom 67 voted for D. v. Dyk
67 for L. Greidanus
66 for E. Westra while 51 votes had been cast for T. Viersen
51 — U. W. Cuperus
51 — A. Th. van Slooten
while one name was declared invalid.
The aforementioned polling committee
(signed) H. Nieweg
H. Cancrinus
G. H. Hilverda."

From the very beginning (1893) he was an elder of the Reformed Church at Tzum, where he was also a member of the Board of the Christian School.

He died at Tzum 20 June 1935 at the age of 84, as appears from the following family announcement:

"Today there fell asleep in Jesus, our beloved Husband, Father, Father-in-law, Grandfather and Great-grandfather,
Lieuwe Siebes Greidanus

Concerning his death, the following piece by Jelle Hoytema of Tzum appeared in the "Friesch Dagblad" of Tuesday 25 June 1935:

"IN MEMORIAM.
Today there fell asleep in Jesus
Lieuwe Siebes Greidanus
at the blessed age of 84 years.

Such was the notice which struck us by its simplicity. Simplicity, the characteristic of him of whom this was testified.

Lieuwe Siebes is no more. We first had to realize it.

Our Reformed church life at Tzum without him — we could hardly imagine it.

It was a little handful, poor as to the world, whom God called in 1893, and these formed the Reformed Church in this place.

And he joined them ... and gave himself in complete surrender. From the very beginning he served as an elder. For an unbroken period of many years he held the office. Who can estimate the number of times a sermon was read by him? We younger ones knew no otherwise.

He gave himself completely. To serve God, that was his life. God, who had crowned him with rich gifts of His Spirit. And God let him see blessing. The little handful grew into a number that dared to proceed to calling its own Pastor and Teacher.

How he rejoiced in the growth of that Reformed church life, without falling thereby into "churchism".

And now ... he is here no longer.

In the quiet churchyard he has been laid to rest. A great throng followed him who had always sought God's honour.

Even in his death he was a preacher. At the open grave, in the midst of a great throng, Dr. v. d. Linden could testify of the salvation in Christ and of the firm faith of the deceased....

How blessed is the people that hearkens to Thy sounds....

May God comfort the family. And may He "who preserves His Church" grant His blessing also further on.

We younger ones, we gaze after the departed, and something of what the prophet felt lives in us: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel and its horsemen.

Tz. J. H."

As I have now already received a letter from you twice, I cannot understand it. Would you be so good as to make it a little clearer, so that I may understand you better; I am still living in Paterson with my daughter and son-in-law, so means signed Wopke J. Greijdanus
My address is now: 287 Railway Avenue
Paterson."

A letter dated 16 April 1924 sent to him at the address given above came back with the note: "not found".

MARRIED:

1° MARTJE GERRITSDOCHTER FERWERDA, 20 May 1886 in Dantumadeel (at Murmerwoude).

Martje Gerritsdochter Ferwerda was born 8 March 1864 at Akkerwoude, as daughter of Gerrit Sakes Ferwerda, labourer at Rinsumageest, and Saapke Oedzes Witteveen.

She died at Rinsumageest at the age of 25 years, on 27 February 1890.

2° ....., in the United States of North America, presumably at Paterson N. J., after November 1890.

Line of descent: Jentje 230 ← Cornelis 132[I] ← Ymte 67[II] ← Jacob 35 ← Petrus 8 ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

He was born 3 March 1852 at Jorwerd.

Jan Jentjeszoon Greijdanus is the owner of the farm "Op de Fennen" (also called "Op de Finnen", see Friesche Naamlijst by Joh. Winkler under "Finne") at Jorwerd. To the farm, however, only 5 pondematen of land belong, so that much more land, which is sometimes situated relatively far from the farm, has to be rented in addition for the business.

Herewith goes a reproduction of a photograph taken in 1925 of the farm, which reproduction I have included in this work, in order to give something of the large branch of Frisian country people belonging to the family. I had asked that the farm be photographed not in "its Sunday best", but as much as possible in its working state. On sending the photograph they wrote that it had been too difficult to include the cows, because these were grazing in the land some distance from the house. The photograph gives a picture of how one goes out to the land to milk. The wagon, on which the empty milk cans stand, is ready for that purpose, with the horse in front of it. Beside the horse stands the son Durk and beside the wagon the son Ale (respectively N° 541 and N° 540 of this genealogy). Jan Jentjeszoon Greijdanus and his wife Jitske Alesdochter Bijlsma are seen by the house. The son Cornelis (N° 542 of this genealogy) and his wife are not among them, as they happened to be out for the day when the photographer came.

The farm "Op de Fennen", which means "on the pastures which are not used as hayfields", is already mentioned in a diary[1] from the Patriot period by L. A. A. Sluijterman, published in the XXI[st] Volume of "De Vrije Fries", the Journal of the Friesch Genootschap van Geschied-, Oudheid- en Taalkunde at Leeuwarden. On page 189 of that Volume one finds the following diary entry:

[1] See also page 388.

> "(1781)
> Saturday 17 March. I was in town and held the first sitting day for two farms under Jorwert, on which I too have bid, the one situated on the Hem and measuring 88 pondemaat, burdened with 26 floreen (land-tax units), used by Claas Wijbes for a yearly rent above all ordinary and extraordinary charges, thus net money f 722—1, on which f 140 g.gls. per pondemaat has been bid, and the strijkgeld (auction premium) to the sum of 70 gls. was taken by the corset-maker Cahais. The second farm on de Fennen, measuring after deduction of 12 pondemaat, 36 pondemaat, burdened with 16 floreen, used by Doeke Gooijtsens, yielding yearly in net money as rent, above everything f ?, on which f 111 g.gls. per pondemaat has been offered, and the 10 ducats strijkgeld was taken by the bijsitter (assessor) Idsardy."

The newspaper report below relates to Jan Jentjeszoon Greijdanus:

> "Mantgum, 16 September (1933). The Baarderadeel branch of the Friesche Maatschappij van Landbouw held today a judging of breeding cattle on the sports ground here, which had been kindly made available for this purpose by the Kerkvoogden (church wardens) of the Dutch Reformed

Kornelis Haayes Greijdanus

Aafke Douwes Bijlsma

Baukje Tjerks Postuma

He was born 5 May 1851 at Huins.

Kornelis Haayeszoon Greijdanus was a shopkeeper in grocery wares, a merchant in drapery, and "oproeper" (caller at auctions) at Wirdum. An "oproeper" is the person who, at the auctioning of immovable property and the letting of lands, calls out the parcels to be auctioned and let, that is to say, brings them down to the final bid. To him is left the decision as to which bidder is deemed to have been the first. Furthermore he often assists the notary with the preparatory work for the sale of immovable property. Also, at the sale of movable goods (in Friesland called "boelgoed") he is charged with the calling out of the objects which are sold by upward bidding or by declining bid. In most cases he is also an appraiser of immovable and movable property, and in the capacity of all these functions he is the notary's help and assistant.

Kornelis Haayeszoon Greijdanus died, according to the family announcement below, 11 February 1909 at Wirdum, at the age of 57 years:

"Today there died, after a brief illness,
our beloved husband and caring father
KORNELIS H. GREIJDANUS, at the age of a little over 57 years.
Wirdum, 11 February 1909.
Widow B. GREIJDANUS-Postuma
and CHILDREN."

After his death the following notices appeared in the newspapers:

"NOTICE.
Everyone who owes anything to, or has any claim upon, the late KORNELIS H. GREIDANUS, in life shopkeeper and oproeper at Wirdum and there deceased 11 February 1909, is requested to make payment or declaration thereof at the office of notary A. Andringa at Leeuwarden before or on 22 February 1909.
A. Andringa, notary."
"NOTICE.
All known and unknown creditors of the estate of Kornelis Hayes Greydanus, in life shopkeeper at Wirdum and there deceased 11 February 1909, which has been accepted under benefit of inventory, are hereby summoned on behalf of the beneficiary heirs to appear on Thursday 29 July 1909, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the office of the undersigned at Leeuwarden, to hear the account and rendering of the administration conducted over the said estate and to receive their claims, in so far as the amount of the estate shall suffice.
A. Andringa, notary."

A photographic portrait of him appears among the portraits included at the back.

Dr. Sytze Greidanus

Ietske (Itia) Kuipers

He was born 7 August 1843 at Leeuwarden, to which birth the following family announcement relates:

> " Today C. P. LEENSMA, wife of T. GREIDANUS, was delivered of a well-formed Son.
> Leeuwarden, 7 August 1843.
> The only notice."

On 19 September 1861 he was enrolled as a medical student at the University of Leiden In the "Album Studiosorum Academiae Lugduno Batavae", published in 1875, one finds his enrolment in column 1387, which reads as follows:

> (Latin) "Under the rectorate of ABRAHAMO KUENEN. 1861. . . . . Sept.
> 19. Sijtze Greidanus of Leeuwarden. 18, M."

A description of his time as a student is found in the book written by him, "De dagen van olim; herinneringen van een geneesheer," which description follows hereafter in full.

On 20 June 1866 he took his doctorate at Leiden, cum laude, as doctor of medicine, under very particular circumstances, as may be read in the description mentioned above.

His dissertation has as its subject "Chirurgische waarnemingen" and was published in 1866 by S. C. van Doesburgh at Leiden.

On the first pages of the dissertation one finds:

"To
My dear parents.
Dedicated out of love
and gratitude.
Having come to the end of my academic career and being ready to leave the University, I wish first to address a word of thanks to those who have been my guides on the path of science. First of all, then, my thanks are offered to you, Prof. Krieger, highly esteemed Promotor, for all the marks of kindness and affection which I have been permitted to receive from you, both in the scientific and in the social sphere; believe me that I shall never forget what I owe you for this. You too, most learned Evers, I thank for the agreeable and the useful hours which I was allowed to spend in your presence, and the memory of that which you have of late done for me will remain engraved in my memory in indelible letters. Further I also offer my thanks to you, most learned Gentlemen Suringar, Simon Thomas, Boogaard and Zaaijer, for the instruction and the training which I was permitted to receive from you. To you, very learned Gentlemen Junius and Jac. van Kaathoven, I give thanks for the kindness with which you offered me every opportunity to extend my practical knowledge. And you, my Friends, farewell!"

There then follows the following:

> "INTRODUCTION.
>
> In searching for a subject for my academic dissertation I readily found occasion to choose that with which I was most familiar and that which I had had the best opportunity to observe. For through the particular kindness of Professor Krieger I was enabled during the past year to observe the patients of the Surgical Clinic more especially, and from the notes made daily I thought I could find material enough for the construction of my dissertation. I had therefore intended to give a complete report of the Surgical Clinic and Out-patients' Clinic, but on further consideration it appeared that the material available was less suited to this form of treatment, and I therefore decided to select and communicate only the most remarkable cases. In drawing up those (Latin) case histories I have aimed less at giving the course of the illness and the treatment from day to day than at providing a general survey of each case and at setting out, in the Epicrisis, the grounds on which the Diagnosis rested and the reasons for the treatment."

The dissertation, of which a copy is in my possession, further contains 62 pages of text, together with XVII theses.

Sytze Greidanus took his doctorate at Leiden on 23 October 1866 "magna cum laude" as doctor of obstetrics, presumably on "Theses".

In 1867 he established himself as a physician in Friesland at Buitenpost, situated near the Groningen border. Of his experiences in this village he tells in a fascinating manner in his memoirs mentioned above.

On 15 November of that year he had himself enrolled once more as a medical student, this time at the University of Groningen, as appears from the following entry in column 332 of the "Album Studiosorum Academiae Groninganae" published in 1915:

(Latin) "Under the Rector GUILIELMO MUURLING.
. . . . . .
15 Nov. Sijtze Greidanus*, Doctor of Medicine and of Obstetrics, born at Leeuwarden, Med."[1]

At this University he must in 1867 or 1868 have taken a further doctorate in surgery, probably on "Theses", which doctorate, however, does not appear in the list of doctorates at the back of the "Album Studiosorum Academiae Groninganae" just quoted and, according to information obtained from the University, is not known there (at the other Universities the doctorate has likewise not been found)[2]. At the publication of his marriage banns on 13 May 1868 he was, according to his own family announcement (see page 683), "Med. Chir. et Art. Obst. Doct."

On 1 May 1877 he moved from Buitenpost to Soest, where he became court physician to Prince Hendrik, a brother of King Willem the Third, at Soestdijk; was appointed municipal physician and acquired an extensive practice among the occupants of the many country estates in the neighbourhood. Through the intrigues of a new parish priest he was unexpectedly dismissed as municipal physician and in his place a Catholic doctor from Noord-Brabant was appointed at double the salary. In August 1881 he settled at Baarn, where he retained his busy practice among the occupants of the country estates, became municipal physician and, after the departure of Princess Marie, the widow of Prince Hendrik, remained court physician to King Willem the Third, and afterwards to the Queen Mother. On 19 November 1902 he was elected a member of the Municipal Council and on 5 November 1909 Wethouder (alderman) of Baarn, which office he held until his death.

His merits were acknowledged by the Government by his appointment as Officer in the Order of Oranje Nassau.

He died at Baarn at the age of 71 years on 25 October 1914 and was buried there on the 29th of that month, as appears from the following family announcements:

"Today there died, to our deep sorrow, at the age of 71 years, our beloved

[2] It is, however, known in the family that his fiancée — his later wife — attended the conferral of the doctorate at Groningen.

Dr. Sytze Greidanus wrote the following books, of each of which I possess a copy:

"De leer van Malthus een leugen!", Baarn, Hollandia-Drukkerij, 1904, 8°;

"Geneeskundig Onderzoek vóór het Huwelijk een zedelijke Verplichting", Baarn, Hollandia-Drukkerij, 1904, 8°;

"De dagen van olim; herinneringen van een geneesheer", Amsterdam, Scheltema en Holkema's Boekhandel, without year (1904), small 8°.

The first-mentioned booklet numbers 32, the next 29 and the last-mentioned, including the introduction, 190 pages.

Below follow the "Introduction" and the first Chapter, entitled "Student days" of "De dagen van olim; herinneringen van een geneesheer".

"INTRODUCTION.

I do not know whether anyone will think it worth the trouble to take note of what I have written down as honestly as possible from my recollections, but should you, reader, be inclined to leaf through the simple remarks and stories that follow, then I ask you to bear in mind that no hunting after effect nor any urge to exaggerate has guided my hand in setting down what I have lived through.

I have not the least desire to idealize the persons with whom I came into contact, and just as little is it my intention to place them in a less favourable light; on the contrary, I shall try to render what I observed as objectively as possible. In general it has seemed to me that people are neither so good nor so bad as one likes to make out, and perhaps this is the result of the physician's constantly criticizing and discriminating eye, yet it still seems to me that the outward things of rank and station, of form of religion and church doctrine, are rather a covering which a man hangs about himself for the sake of society, which he wears however in the complete conviction that it is his true personality, while nevertheless the inner man has much the same qualities and characteristics of soul in rich and poor, in high and low.

The form may in the one case be somewhat more attractive than in the other; as for genuine piety and sincerity, honesty, goodness and faithfulness, I have found these under all outward circumstances, and just as much does la bête humaine slumber in the bosom of the most educated and most cultivated as in the breast of the coarsest customer.

The poet has said: Zwei Seelen wohnen in meiner Brust, and if anyone is in a position to endorse and confirm that saying, it is the physician, who treats not diseases but the sick, and who has an eye also for the inner life of those who have entrusted themselves to his care. How much love and devotion, but also how much selfishness and coarseness he sees in the daily performance of his duties; how many a man goes with head held high along the Lord's ways, while the doctor knows how small and worthless he is and what a coward and at the same time tyrant he is in his own circle; and also how many a man, but above all how many a woman, treads her modest little path, unregarded from the world's point of view, while the physician alone can know and appreciate what a heroine she is and with what love and devotion she sacrifices herself daily for those who sometimes reward her with surliness and ingratitude.

It is not my intention to move and carry you along by fantastic, gripping and shocking tales; I only try faithfully to relate my earlier experiences, and in doing so I have thought of Goethe's

Greift nur hinein in 's volle Menschenleben
Und wo ihr 's packt da ist 's interessant.

It is for you to judge whether I have succeeded in this.

STUDENT DAYS.

Times change and we with them, is an old saying which certainly contains nothing much that is new or important for anyone who pauses for a moment on life's road to let his thoughts travel back along the path he has covered.

Yet that saying presses itself as of its own accord upon our attention when we wander back in memory to the days of former times.

> This may be so in every respect, but certainly not least in the medical field, and when I consider how much has changed and improved in that direction in the last 40 years, it does not seem to me unimportant to call up those old recollections, in order to see how matters stood then in the social-medical field in our dear fatherland.
>
> I do not yet belong to the very oldest of the brethren, but still, what I can bring back to mind from the days of my student time and the first years of my practice is so entirely different from what we are now used to, that it is perhaps not altogether uninteresting for the younger generation to hear how things were then, about the middle of the last century.
>
> What we now accept as a perfectly ordinary matter was then entirely unknown; what we are now daily familiar with, what is necessary, indeed indispensable, even for the simplest practitioner, did not exist and no one even suspected it.
>
> It is not my intention to run down those older conditions or to pillory them with disparaging words.
>
> On the contrary, we must be astonished that with the scanty means which then stood at one's disposal, sometimes so much was nevertheless achieved.
>
> Among the older fellow practitioners I have come to know many who, with great diligence and perseverance, notwithstanding the often discouraging results, strove honestly and earnestly towards the goal set before them, the cure of their patients and the relief of their suffering.

I strongly suspect that, if we, and especially the younger among us, could be set back into the sad circumstances which then accompanied the nursing of the sick, or could be placed in the grievous necessity of operating under conditions such as prevailed at that time, we should despondently fold our hands in our lap.

Nowadays we know so much more about the conditions, I would almost say the laws, which determine a favourable outcome, especially in the field of surgery, but I ask you to remember that in those days people were still in deep darkness about all this and were entirely unaware of it.

True, it was known, or at least people thought they had observed, that for instance an operation at the patient's own home was more often followed by recovery than when it took place in the hospital, whereas now the opposite is the case; true, people thought of possible malignant influences caused by the crowding together of the sick, but they had no clear notion of the how and the why, and they were in the position of a man who has to find his way through a wood at night.

On every side one knocked one's head against unforeseen obstacles and difficulties, and for the earnestly thinking physician — and such there were then as well as now — it was a disheartening search for the right path.

Only through Pasteur and Lister has light come and have the ways been found and made plain.

What I now wish to relate are ordinary matters, at which in those days only few took offence, and which now make us clasp our hands in amazement.

The generation of the older physicians is gradually dying out, and so far as I know no one has yet got round to writing down those recollections, and yet the change in the last half century has been as great as in no other period of medical history.

Let me be well understood; I do not pretend to wish to write that history, I lay no claim to scientific completeness, I do not consider myself capable of that and gladly leave it to those more competent.

Only my personal recollections do I wish, with your permission, to set before you.

As you know, there is now unity of profession.

That was not formerly the case, and the different qualifications and titles of practising medical men were numerous.

The Napoleonic wars, which at the beginning of the last century had torn a great number of young men away from society, were also the cause that the number of physicians had greatly diminished, since the army had needed many young doctors, of whom many had succumbed under the continual hardships.

Especially the unhappy retreat from Russia in 1812 had claimed many victims; whereas in ordinary campaigns the doctors still had a more or less privileged position, on that disastrous march they perished by the hundreds.

The consequence was that in 1815, for instance, there was only one doctor in the whole of Drente, and especially in the countryside there was great need of medical help. In order to meet the existing need as quickly as possible, it was decided to appoint medical men with limited qualifications, and thus arose the class of rural physicians.

These were young men who, after having been apprenticed for a couple of years to a doctor or surgeon, could sit an examination before a provincial commission and were then let loose upon the peasantry.

Now those commissions were very unequal in composition and quality, and the requirements they set unequally high. Hence it could happen that in one province the rural practitioner satisfied better the demands which one might make as to proper education than in another, and with some of them things were in a sad state. It had originally indeed been the intention that they should only be allowed to treat light cases and that higher help had to be called in if any difficulty arose or if the illness lasted somewhat longer than a few days, but one can imagine what came of this in practice.

Those who set somewhat higher demands upon their own education, or who wished to be better prepared, attended the clinical school at Rotterdam or at Amsterdam, and from their ranks indeed some very excellent men have come forth, who raised themselves far above the ordinary level.

So one had the Med. Chir. and Art. Obst. doctors in various varieties and combinations, further the town surgeons and obstetricians, and the rural physicians, surgeons and obstetricians, who were allowed to practise only in the countryside.

Yet another category was that of the ships' doctors; usually these were men who for one reason or another had not succeeded in ordinary practice. Come from the lesser middle class, they had often married young. If then the practice did not yield enough for the family, the man was urgently obliged to look out for a better livelihood, and he then found a meagre reward in the salary of a ship's doctor, while his wife kept a little shop or ran a sewing school.

Now and then there were also less honourable reasons, for instance habitual drunkenness or in a few cases the consequences of some bohemian love affair. That was then the cause that the rural physician, often also a man of little education, exchanged his role for that of ship's doctor.

All old ties were broken, and on board the vessel one escaped difficulties of every kind.

The ships in the long-distance trade, especially those fitted out for carrying passengers, all had, if possible, a doctor on board, and in large letters it was brought to the notice of the public that on board vessel such and such, departing on such and such a date, there sailed a milk-giving cow and a doctor.

Furthermore there were the itinerant so-called Hungarians or juniper-oil sellers, who, covered by a large broad-brimmed hat and wrapped in an almaviva cloak, offered their remedies for sale from house to house and had a particular reputation for expelling tapeworms and for curing epilepsy, and besides all kinds of freebooters in the medical field.

Thus certain persons, mostly old women, who were known as, let us say, masseuses, who often supplied what the surgeons and doctors of that time, with a certain lofty disdain, left undone.

At any rate, I owe the free use of my left arm to such an old woman, who by her massage put the elbow joint right again, after it had been well on the way to becoming stiff following a fall, and the surgeon who had been called in did nothing but prescribe a strongly sour-smelling, probably rancid, ointment.

Nowadays all that is better regulated; that there is no poaching at all in the medical hunting grounds I should truly not dare to maintain — of the contrary we may convince ourselves daily.

Now we must not judge those old surgeons too harshly. Their chief occupation consisted in the daily dressing of fontanelles in old ladies, who thought they owed it to their health to maintain a continuous suppuration.

Such a fontanelle was made by first drawing a blister with a Spanish-fly plaster and then keeping the wound open by dressing it with Garou ointment; often this aim was also achieved by simply laying a green pea in the wound. Furthermore, at the proper times, just as one now has one's hair cut, the ladies had to undergo a bleeding. And then now and again it happened that a strangulated hernia or a broken leg came under treatment.

Of major operations there was no question; one was not equipped for them and one did not dare to attempt them either. A lithotomy or an amputation was about the non plus ultra of surgical skill.

I am speaking here of the ordinary surgeons, not of the professors, who had better means at their disposal, though even a Polano, discouraged by the disappointments he had experienced, exclaimed in vexation: "The government ought to forbid us to operate!!".

That old woman of whom I just spoke was a remarkable type. She had for a long time been a servant with an old unmarried surgeon, whose father had held the honourable office of executioner. Now this surgeon had a famous name as a masseur, an art which he had learned from his father, and in which she had always assisted him. Many of those former executioners were more or less surgeons and masseurs, because they also tried to heal again the wounds they inflicted.

A great name in dislocations and sprains was enjoyed by the executioner's ointment, a green ointment consisting chiefly of an infusion of Hyoscyamus leaves in lard. That Hyoscyamus, or henbane, is a very ancient remedy, which was already famous in the earliest heathen periods and is still, though in another form, held in honour.

To the apothecaries was entrusted the application of leeches and the administering of enemas, both on the doctor's prescription, and His Honour duly appeared, put on his little apron and performed the prescribed task. If I add to this that at many barbers' there was opportunity for bleeding and the pulling of teeth, which latter trade was also practised by travelling tooth-masters who went out into the country with their more or less rusty tooth-key, then I need not say that variety was provided for, not to speak of the men who on market days relieved the farmers, townsmen and country folk of their diseased teeth with sabre or poker.

I still remember more than once having seen in front of the, as they were then called, shaving shops, now salons pour la coupe des cheveux, the signboards on which a muscular arm was depicted, from which the blood spurted upwards in a strong jet like a fountain, much as is pictured in the descriptions of polar voyages where spouting whales are represented.

Last not least there was at Utrecht the military medical school, which lies outside my scope and on which I cannot judge.

As I said, the knowledge and training of those country practitioners was often in a sad state, and yet the most adroit and cunning elements among them managed to secure a good position for themselves.

One of them, who had failed his examination three times and who was scientifically indeed a pauvre sire, but in daily life a shrewd fellow, bamboozled the farmers in the place where he settled by assuring them that it was an extraordinarily great piece of luck for them that he had established himself there. For whereas for anyone else a single questioning was sufficient, the professors had made him come back three times before they had asked him all that he knew.

In 1861 I was enrolled as a student of medicine. For that enrolment it was necessary that one had received grammar-school education (?), that one had, as it was called, been "promoted", i.e. had given proof that one had gone successfully through the Latin School.

If one had not taken a final examination at a gymnasium, if one had not been promoted, then an examination had to be taken in Latin and Greek before one could be enrolled as a student, or at least could later sit for examinations.

Those five years at the gymnasium I have always regretted. Except in the first form, where the teaching was good, we learned literally nothing — a little Latin and Greek, not even enough for us to be able to read a book in the Latin language properly, of Greek there was no question at all, and that one soon forgot again. In the modern languages the teaching was deplorably bad and one had to try to make it up with private lessons; further a little mathematics, physics not at all.

But at any rate I was a student.

The time of hazing for freshmen then still existed in all its extent and force, and we had anything but an easy time of it. But tout passe — that time too passed by, and we young students compensated ourselves for the oppression we had suffered by numerous sprees, at which alas! wanton excess often reigned supreme.

A few, I must declare it with regret, never got over that period, and came to a miserable end.

They could not bear the unlimited freedom and, I am sorry to have to say, the more or less loutish licentiousness of those first student weeks.

Now there is clemency to be pleaded.

Young men of 18, sometimes 17 years, then the age at which one had normally finished the gymnasium and became a student, often transferred just so from a small provincial town into the almost unlimited freedom of student life, were preyed upon [?] from all sides by all sorts of flatterers and spongers.

Addressed for the first time as "Sir", at home still always the Young Master, sometimes called by his first name by the maid, if she was an old and faithful one, one acquired, in connection with that age which, oddly peculiarly enough, seems already predisposed to the development of a certain measure of pedantry and self-overestimation, an excessive sense of one's own importance, to which the hazing did do some damage, but which soon flared up again after the initiation was over.

An unlimited credit, often pressed upon one, increased the danger for boys of that age, who frequently had not the faintest notion of the purchasing value of a certain sum of money.

Accustomed at home to a couple of quarters or a gulden of pocket money a week, one now received sums of several hundred guldens in hand, and that seemed an inexhaustible treasure, and so it could happen that many a weak little soul drowned before it had seen the water.

By far the most, however, soon drew in the reins and began regular work.

For me the programme for the next examination contained, besides the physical sciences, Latin, Greek and Logic. In my naive conception of the work of a Professor of Philosophy, with history of philosophy and metaphysics on the Seriës Lectionum, I had expected much of those lessons, even though it was more a longing than a knowing.

I hoped to hear something certain about the supersensible things, about those things that go beyond the understanding of the ordinary man, and a Professor! someone who must be conversant with all those matters, who in those days of innocent admiration still seemed to me a tower of learning and science — if anyone, then he would surely give light.

Do not be surprised that reflections on the invisible and the imperceptible sometimes tormented and exhausted my young brain.

In that Sturm und Drang period of the age of 18, when the mind frees itself from the swaddling bands of boyhood, when gradually a self-conscious thinking about the supersensible arises, the young man has need of a hand to support him on the difficult road.

Though outwardly it may seem so, though one may suppose that only exuberant youthful frolicking and merriment set the direction of thought at that age, yet this is not so .... Endless conversations far into the night, begun and spun out in full and honest earnest, proved that there were many who deep in their hearts cherished other and serious feelings than one would superficially think.

I too looked out for one hand that would lead me to, and would open for me the access to, the sacred temple where I should be initiated into the holy mysteries of metaphysics, the science that would give me the key to the knowledge of the world where spirits think wondrously.

Alas! I had not yet read Goethe's Faust and had not yet taken note of his cry of despair:

(German)
"I have now, alas! philosophy,
Jurisprudence and medicine,
And, unfortunately, theology too,
Thoroughly studied, with ardent effort...
And here I stand now, poor fool that I am!
And am just as wise as before;
. . . . . .
And see that we can know nothing!"

I thought then that I should hear what the most excellent men knew and thought about a life after this life, about immortality, about the purpose of this our life, which sometimes seemed so inexplicable.

Brought up religiously, I now heard, in intercourse with other young people, so many strange and curious opinions, which shocked and tormented me and brought me to doubt.

Do not forget that many a young man at that age feels a strong inclination to mysticism, perhaps unconsciously under the influence of puberty developing with Sturm und Drang, which throws the mind into confusion and now lifts it up in high rapture and then dashes it down again into depths of despair.

Ah! I longed to grasp that hand which would lead me; with ardent desire I looked forward to the days when I should be allowed to sit down at the feet of the Master, who would bring me into the fellowship of the highest and best thinkers, who would explain to me the riddles of life.

How greatly I was disappointed. My ideal, he whom I imagined as the strong spirit who would raise me up and lead me, was a good-natured little old man who gave his lessons wrapped in a dressing gown — for he did give his lectures in his own house — and who, poor fellow! was somewhat mocked by the students who were present there of necessity. For those lessons were compulsory for the young men of all the Faculties, on account of the lecture fees, and thus for the most prosaic of reasons.

The man was very short-sighted, and there were, I admit, all sorts of schoolboyish pranks played that confused and angered him. Moreover, instead of the revelations I had so greatly hoped for, we were treated to interminable dry disquisitions on premises and syllogisms and I do not know what else.

Interest was soon followed by discouragement and boredom; I was disillusioned, and the expectation of still hearing something important vanished.

I know well, it was unfair. Those expectations had been pitched too high; the fault lay with me, not with the man, who could not give more than he had. I had been like the child that wants to grasp the moon from the sky and must draw back its hand empty after the foolish desire, but still it gave my youthful enthusiasm a tremendous shock and I really suffered under it.

It had gone with me as with thousands of others before me.

(German)
By the sea, by the desolate nocturnal sea
Stands a youth,
His breast full of sorrow, his head full of doubt,
And with gloomy lips he asks the waves:
"Oh, solve for me the riddle of life,
The agonizing, age-old riddle,
Over which many heads have already brooded,
Poor, sweating human heads —

(German) Tell me, what does man mean?
Whence has he come? Where is he going?
Who dwells up there on the golden stars?
The waves murmur their eternal murmuring,
The wind blows, the clouds flee,
The stars twinkle indifferent and cold,
And a fool waits for an answer.

Of the other subjects, the teaching in Physics and Botany was excellent, in Chemistry meagre.

What the Professor of Chemistry lacked in his instruction he made up for in his own way by giving splendid little suppers to his pupils. Himself a lover of good cheer, he received us in an open-handed manner, and those gatherings often lasted so long that the host had to give the signal to break up with his: "Gentlemen, one more little cigar for the evening air?" We then knew that those words meant our dismissal.

On the whole we were quite fond of our good Professor, even though he did not impart much chemical learning to us, and we were therefore indignant when a mocker placed the following mixed-pickle in the Studenten-Almanak, a couple of lines from the Jobsiade:

Great in knowledge and great of stomach, he often and gladly ate and drank.

With the other Professors of the so-called Philosophical Faculty we came into less contact, except of course at the lectures.

Outside the lessons the only opportunity for closer acquaintance was the few times that, for the sake of decorum, we went to "have tea" at the Professor's, as the expression went. That visit was made in tailcoat and top hat and was quite a chore for the young men, and probably no less so for the Professor.

At the house of one of them long Gouda pipes were still offered in those days; as a special favour one was allowed to smoke a cigar.

The same good man had had much domestic sorrow and had lost more than one of his children to tuberculosis.

Whether, however, it was sensible and understanding of human nature on his part to regale young people of 18 and 19 years again and again with the description of his domestic calamities, coupled with all sorts of intimate particulars from his married life, I venture to doubt.

(French) That age is without pity, and often those, at bottom, tragic tales gave occasion for less delicately felt and sometimes indelicate glosses and remarks as soon as, after the visit, the house had been left.

Nevertheless the teas at the Professor's were fairly well attended; whether this was caused by interest in his genial and dignified conversation, or rather in the fact that the Professor happened for the time being to keep a couple of most charming maids, I leave undecided.

The man who guided our first steps in the hortus botanicus was not tall of stature and youthful in appearance, for which reason the young men had given him the by no means maliciously intended nickname of the Young Gentleman.

To cover the deficiency in outward dignity, he was in the habit of wearing a top hat, and when we were then on an excursion in the neighbourhood of the Academy town, the students adorned with caps, as was then the custom, and the little Professor covered with his top hat, the company looked rather odd.

On one of those outings our guide discovered on the other side of a ditch a couple of rare plants and was eager to get some specimens into his possession for our instruction and edification. Now among the students there was one from the Philosophical Faculty, a giant of a fellow with a large blond beard, who jumped over the ditch and picked a couple of the little flowers. The woman who lived on the premises noticed the theft and came rushing up in a fury, overwhelming us with less than flattering remarks. To calm her, the Professor said very genially: "My good woman, my good woman, don't get so angry, we mean no harm and it is only a weed." Thereupon there immediately followed from her side, after she had sized up the speaker with a contemptuous look: "Snotty boy, what business is it of yours, you are not even dry behind the ears yet!"

Tableau! with the moral that it is not good when a Most Learned Professor looks far too young and the students too old.

In 1864 I took my candidate's examination and could then begin the actual practical study.

The chief field of our activities was the Academic Hospital, an old mansion in which all the departments had been housed pell-mell. Internal and surgical department, obstetric clinic, operating room, pharmacy, little mortuary, everything was lodged in that one house.

There was a room, in the middle of the building, which was said to be intended only for sufferers from smallpox, but in which nevertheless other patients were also admitted, without any further disinfection than a fresh whitewashing of the walls.

I do not hesitate to declare that I look back with aversion and horror on what was then called a Hospital.

We knew no better than that it was good as it was, and neither our teachers nor we had any notion that such an institution was rather a breeding place for diseases than a home where poor sufferers were to find relief and healing.

As I said, all the departments were scattered about the building, up stairs and down stairs, of isolation not a trace; contagious diseases lay among the others, a typhus sufferer lay fraternally beside a patient in the last stage of tuberculosis; venereal patients beside and among amputees.

Of disinfection only the first traces were present; now and then chlorine water was used, and I should say we washed our hands with soap-spirit almost instinctively.

I say instinctively, for it was a sort of luxury to be allowed to use that washing agent perfumed with lavender oil when the hands had become all too soiled, after an examination or after dressing an all too foul-smelling wound, but it was for our own comfort and not with the aim of disinfecting. That it is such a good disinfectant, as appeared from investigations that took place later, of that, to be honest, we had no knowledge.

In the first year after my candidate's examination I had the distinction (?) of being appointed praetor with the Professor of Materia Medica.

That praetorship was a peculiar little job. The ordinary lecture fee was f 30.— for each course, and this was compulsory. Whether one attended the lectures or not did not matter; if one had paid, one could with some goodwill obtain a certificate from the Professor, and if not, taking the examination was impossible.

Well then, the praetor was requested, or rather was charged, to invite the young men to sign the subscription list, on which occasion one was sometimes assailed with less than flattering epithets, such as: "toady, stallion" etc., but the worst of it was that every subscriber also had to hand over two quarter-guldens, to be paid to the praetor; this was supposed to be a compensation for keeping the lecture room clean, but the wicked world claimed that the wages of the Professor's servants were paid out of it.

However that may be, it was a miserable task to collect those two quarter-guldens, and it mostly came down to the praetor making up the difference, for Heaven's sake, out of his own purse.

Unfortunately my Professor had no command of a captivating lecture, and since Materia Medica was by its nature, at least at that time, not an entertaining subject, the course, which was given in the afternoon between one and two o'clock in one of the rooms of the Hospital, was usually very poorly attended.

Mostly I was alone with the Most Learned gentleman, and when half past one struck the proposal came: Sir, shall we not just light a cigar? the gentlemen seem not to be coming again; and towards a quarter to two the Professor would gather up his books and I would be released from further service.

As this course was held twice a week, it meant two lost hours every week. Just once in a while a stray sheep would turn up, and then we were treated to an extraordinarily dry description of a few herbs and roots.

It was a dull and tedious hour for the praetor, but when I put myself in the state of mind of the teacher, a man of years and of a certain position in Society, it must have been hurtful and distressing to have to experience, twice a week, that no one cared for his lessons.

Our Materia Medica, especially the doctrine of the Simplicia, almost all of us therefore picked up from the Town Apothecary. He was a small, lively little man, rather pleased with himself, who had the knack of arousing our interest and keeping it warm, and who for the modest price of half the lecture fee also gave us the opportunity to make our first attempts at preparing medicines.

Making a proper electuary with extract-cornu cervi and preparing pills with nitras argenti and bolus albus was the very summit of craftsmanship, and if one had mastered that properly, one could face the examination with composure.

After the masquerade of '65 was behind us, and then the holidays, I became praetor on the Surgical department. What that praetorship signified I have already said, but now I really got work along with it.

That post is roughly comparable to that of an assistant nowadays, with this difference, that at that time there was no question of any remuneration in any form, but that the responsibility was also less great.

He had to supervise the two Surgical wards, had to take over the outpatient clinic in the Professor's absence, see to good order in the ward, among other things to see that there was no smoking, which was rather difficult because the hospital father also rather liked to smoke a pipe now and then, and to prevent foodstuffs or delicacies being smuggled in, but he actually had no title or authority whatsoever.

That smuggling in of delicacies was a troublesome business and was by no means always to be prevented.

Thus it turned out that for a farmer who lay ill in the ward, his wife had brought along a little cheese with the intention of giving it to the praetor as a token of gratitude. When she later asked me how the little cheese had tasted, perhaps she was somewhat displeased that I had not thanked her, it came to light that her husband, surely also out of a feeling of gratitude, had eaten it himself. Now, in so far it was a good thing, because we of course were not allowed to accept anything from the patients, but it was against the rules of the house.

In my task I was assisted by the hospital father, who, besides his board, earned three gulden a week, for which he had to be present in the house day and night; only on Sunday afternoons was he free, and then a convalescent patient saw to order until Father came back at 10 o'clock.

He was a family man and had a household. One understands with what cheerfulness the man must have performed his task; yet I had no serious cause to complain of his devotion, but he was a person of very slight education. The Women's ward was under the supervision of the hospital mother, a former cook, who had two gulden plus board and lodging.

That was all the help there was for nursing. No trained nurses, no assistance from other Medical helpers or students, literally nothing.

In the morning I had to be there at 8 o'clock, go round the patients, renew a dressing here and there, take temperatures, and then, after having attended other lectures and clinics, report at about 11 o'clock when the Professor came.

Only the dressing of sufferers from chronic leg wounds and decubitus was done by the father, and for this, out of thrift, use was made of lint wicks of flax smeared with Elemi ointment.

I speak there of lint wicks. Degreased and sterile cotton wool or gauze bandages or anything of that kind were unknown; only the so-called English lint, a sort of unsheared cotton.

The wounds of all those operated upon were dressed with lint, which was made from old linen, unravelled for that purpose.

In the Hospitals this was a pastime for sufferers from lingering diseases, and you can imagine what a fresh and practical dressing material this was, when I tell you that coughing tubercular patients or people afflicted with chronic leg wounds were set to work at it, by way of amusement.

Nowadays we know that those dressings must have been teeming with bacteria of all kinds, and that a person must indeed have had an iron constitution and have been in possession of a particularly good Phagocyte factory to survive an operation in those days.

That it was not much better later on may appear from the fact that in the Franco-German war wounds were still dressed with lint, which was sent in from far and near.

That fresh stuff was not always available in sufficient supply, and then flax was used for the purpose, which in the more or less soiled hands of the ziekenvader (male ward attendant) was shaped into a tent.

Furthermore the praetor had of course to assist at the operations.

He had to lay out the instruments, which were taken like that, without any further cleaning, from the instrument cabinet, to see to a couple of buckets of pump water, a reasonable number of sponges, dishes and dressings, and the bandages, which were made in the hospital itself from unbleached cotton.

Then the operation could begin, after operator, assistant and bystanders had put on their oldest jacket, because of the spattering of the blood, you see?

That jacket had usually already done duty at several operations and was therefore properly, or rather improperly, covered with pus and bloodstains.

That any special cleaning took place before the operation, if only the washing of the hands, I do not remember. Of disinfection of hands, instruments or dressings there was no question; nobody knew anything about it and nobody thought about it. When the operation was finished, table and floor were washed off with sponges and the jacket was hung up in a cupboard in the operating room to do duty again later.

If a serious operation had been performed, for instance an amputation or a resection of the jaw, the patient was put to bed in the operating room and often stayed there with the sometimes horribly stinking wounds until a new operation of any importance came up.

The praetor's task then was to keep watch by the patient during the first nights, to keep the wound as clean as possible by injections with diluted chlorine water and whatever else was judged necessary.

He had, as goes without saying, to keep an eye on possible secondary haemorrhage, which happened fairly often, and then the Professor, who lived at a considerable distance, was knocked out of his bed. For that reason the tourniquet, an instrument now entirely obsolete, was always kept at hand.

To fortify the praetor during the night watch, which began at 10 o'clock in the evening and lasted until 8 o'clock in the morning, he got two slices of bread and butter with cheese, two eggs and half a bottle of wine — teetotallers were not yet reckoned with — while the coffee pot stood cosily simmering.

For smaller operations one was not so particular, and those were performed while the first patient was still in the operating room.

When then after three days — that is how long, for instance after an amputation, the first dressing was left in place, in the hope of healing per primam, which in a very rare case did still succeed — when then, I say, after three days the dressing came loose and the wound was laid bare, the stench was so horrible that a cabinet d'aisance of the old style was a bouquet of flowers in comparison.

What the consequences were can be imagined; fever after operations was the rule and a fever-free course a rare exception, and often so-called wound fever and diphtheria in the wound put an end to the suffering within a very short time.

One can understand how in the wars occurring at that time, and also later, thousands of wounded succumbed to what was then called hospital fever.

So even now I think with sadness of the outcome of my first big operation under the Professor's supervision.

It concerned a boy of 13 who had got his hand caught in a washing machine. The hand was severely mutilated and had to be amputated. Nowadays one would probably proceed conservatively in order to preserve what could be saved, but at that time that was out of the question.

Well, I carried out the amputation successfully, everything went excellently, but 3 days later diphtheria appeared in the wound and the poor boy soon died.

That under such highly unfavourable circumstances relatively many still found healing must really be called a miracle.

Now it is true that most operations were of little dangerous or radical character, and that is not surprising, since in the pre-aseptic period every wound in the deeper tissues or in the intestines was almost inevitably fatal, especially in a hospital, and one was therefore afraid to intervene deeply.

It is remarkable that in the year of my assistantship I find not a single case of appendicitis mentioned, now the fashionable disease. Those complaints, however, did not come under surgical treatment and either healed spontaneously or the patient died under the diagnosis of a twist in the bowel or something of the sort.

On very rare occasions operations were performed on the eye, but mostly the eye patients were referred to Utrecht, where with Donders they were of course in good hands.

Still, it is strange that at the first University of our country there was then no question of any ophthalmological instruction. Thinking back on the out-patient clinic for ambulant eye patients, I would rather keep silent about it; I would not have the courage to tell how slovenly and roughly things were done there, if we compare it with the demands that are made nowadays.

And yet, mirabile dictu, the people recovered after a shorter or longer time.

The streptococci and other cocci were certainly not then as siegesbewusst as they are now, when they enjoy from all sides the honour of special mention and opposition.

At the feast of St. Nicholas it was the custom that the praetor treated the patients in his wards, together with the ziekenvader and ziekenmoeder (female ward attendant), to spiced gingerbread and chocolate. Apart from the fact that this made quite a breach in the already none too ample purse of the praetor-student, I cannot refrain from remarking that I consider it rather heavy fare and a strange treat for hospital patients.

The instruction in Obstetrics was in good hands and for that time certainly the best that could be had, but still, what a difference from nowadays.

Of asepsis and antisepsis one had no idea. In the, then familiarly named, lying-in room, where once again an untrained old woman wielded the sceptre as kraammoeder (lying-in matron), a certain cleanliness was indeed observed, but no special measures of cleanliness were taken.

It was indeed advised, when making examinations or intervening actively, to wash the hands and rinse them with diluted chlorine water, but whether this was always done I would not dare to assert; and this was not omitted out of recklessness or carelessness, but alas! one did not think about the chances of possible infection and contamination.

Attention was only paid to this when more or less extensive epidemics of puerperal fever occurred in the town or elsewhere.

When the delivery was over, the woman was taken from the childbed intended for that purpose to another room and the genitals were cleaned with sponges and water.

Only in special circumstances, when symptoms deviated from the norm, was chlorine water used for washing, but it was never neglected to prescribe a draught with nitre, and one then believed that all evil had been averted as well as possible.

In order to be able to take the doctoral examination, the candidates had to have attended 10 ordinary and 2 instrumental deliveries, and since there was not opportunity for all to perform these in the hospital, an arrangement had been made whereby we had the opportunity to carry out deliveries among the poor of the parish.

Naturally this took place under the supervision of the Professor, who was indeed not present at every case, but who — and let this be gratefully acknowledged — always stood by us with his experience where our knowledge fell short.

Since the gentlemen and ladies of the back streets set store by a certain decorum and also had less confidence in a young man with a student's cap on his more or less learned pate, we youthful little candidates were accustomed during our last year of study to wear a top hat.

This fact perhaps also enhanced our own self-awareness and sense of responsibility and formed a transition to the later dignified doctor.

Dignity was indeed at that time a much sought-after article, and many an older physician made his visits in tailcoat and white cravat, and no doctor would have dared to appear in the street without a top hat.

The so-called Garibaldi hats and later the bowlers were only then coming into fashion, but were worn only by young people, and even the country doctor had to be very much rusticated before he came to visit his patients with a cap or bonnet on his head, unless bad weather or great distance provided an excuse for the less correct costume.

Moustaches were an abomination and were worn only by soldiers, painters and musicians.

I will not deny that it seems to me that a great part of the medical success of that time was often more a consequence of the suggestion emanating from the dignified and correct appearance of the physician in the sickroom, and it is a question whether we have not lost something of the former prestige by giving up that outward appearance.

I readily admit that science has advanced, that its practitioners in general stand scientifically much higher than the mass of doctors in the middle of the last century.

That we have, however, lost in influence and social standing in the last few decades, I would not dare to deny, and it is a question to what extent that is perhaps a consequence of throwing overboard all distinction in dress and manners, and putting oneself on a par with every Tom, Dick and Harry.

I would not wish to defend or wish back the former conditions in this field, when the gold knob of the doctor's cane was a mighty assistant in the medical treatment and the prescription written in cabbalistic signs and highly compounded impressed the patients and their surroundings, but it cannot be denied that a great part of the success of the marauders in the medical field is a consequence of, and owing to, a certain mysterious aura with which they know how to surround themselves.

Still today, and I suspect in the future too, faith in the doctor will have just as great an influence on the outcome of the treatment as the learning and knowledge of the physician.

Before I go further, I should like, with your permission, to relate a small episode from my last year of study, which is more or less connected with the times and the manners of those days.

I do not know how it is now and whether the young people are still pugnacious, but in those days duels occurred quite often, fortunately mostly without too serious consequences.

Of one of those duels I was a witness, and it pleases me, if you permit it, to give you a glimpse of it.

One evening in the spring I was passing along one of the canals of our good town and was accosted by a couple of members of the corps who were fairly unknown to me.

They politely asked to be allowed to speak to me for a moment and then began very mysteriously to ask whether I would swear never to tell anything of what they were about to confide to me.

When I would not bind myself to that and said that they had better keep it to themselves, the question followed whether I would then promise not to speak about it for the first two days.

I assured them of my discretion and was then informed that two young men, whom I knew superficially, wished to fight a duel.

The occasion was as usual too absurd to attach such serious consequences to, but be that as it may, it had been resolved upon and no retreat was possible.

As a further inducement I was told, in deep confidence, that if no medical assistance could be obtained, they would very bloodthirstily use the pistol as a weapon, but that otherwise it would be fought out with the sabre.

On my asking why they did not rather request a physician to help, instead of me, who after all had not yet full authority, it appeared that they had already knocked at the door of one of the surgeons, but that he had referred them to me, adding that I could provide the first dressing just as well as he.

Later it did occur to me that for the sly rogue it was an excuse to rid himself of the matter and thus not run the risk of compromising himself, and also that I acted rather imprudently in promising my help, but my vanity was flattered, I rather liked the idea of such a little adventure, and then one must consider that I was only 21 years old.

Moreover, the fear also weighed with me that with the pistol there was still greater danger than in a fight with the sabre.

It was arranged that I should be called for at 3 o'clock at night, since the duel would take place early in the morning in the dunes near Waalsdorp.

In the evening I went to the hospital and provided myself with tourniquet, knives, scissors, plasters, sponges, bandages, in short everything I might need in case of serious injury.

Not without a beating heart I awaited the moment when I should have to act entirely alone and without any help, and who knows for what heavy responsibility I should be called to answer.

If the parties were in earnest, an unlucky sabre stroke could have all sorts of troublesome consequences, from loss of blood or serious skull wounds, which might perhaps give rise to operations that were beyond my powers.

One will understand that I awaited the moment of the summons in suspense and that sleeping was out of the question.

At 3 o'clock there was a very mysterious whistle under my window, and when I pushed up the sash I saw in the grey twilight the two seconds who had spoken to me the previous evening.

I was soon dressed and on the street and went with them to the room of one of the interested friends, where the one party, with a fair company of comforters and encouragers, was awaiting the weighty moment.

Several empty bottles and grog glasses proved that the party and the witnesses had armed themselves against the raw morning wind and perhaps also a little to drink themselves courage, which the English, little flatteringly for us, call Dutch courage.

I thought we should soon be off, but that did not happen; we had to wait for the fencing master from The Hague, who was to act as umpire, while we were also still waiting for the sabres, which had to be sharpened.

Patience, then!

I too received a restorative, but remained very moderate in view of the important and weighty services which I might perhaps have to render; for that reason I wished to keep my head cool and my hand, on whose steadiness the life of one of my fellow men might shortly depend, under control.

After half an hour a carriage rolled up to the door and in the pale morning light three persons stepped out, while an oblong parcel, wrapped in a piece of carpet, was smuggled in in a mysterious manner.

They were again a couple of friends who had done the youthful combatants the kind service of having the sabres sharpened and of persuading the famous Mr. R., the umpire from The Hague, to lend his services.

A few more carriages appeared, and then we set off for the place of the fight.

The procession left the town just as the first rays of the sun began to shine.

It was a beautiful spring morning at the end of April; the rising sun shone upon the fields, which still slumbered in their veil of dew, the larks poured out their jubilant joy, everything laughed, everything glowed with young zest for life, and there in the foremost carriage sat a young man who, for nothing at all, for a hasty word, might shortly be lying maimed or dying, whose young, fresh strength would be swept away in an inglorious death, while perhaps a pair of heart-broken parents would weep bitter tears over the wasted life that was so dear to them.

We approached the place of the fight.

At a short distance behind us we saw, in the reddish morning light, two more coaches coming up, of course belonging to the opposing party.

At the end of a lane we halted, the carriages with the troublesome witnesses, the coachmen, were sent away, and preparations were made for the combat.

I was in suspense; not without concern whether I should be sufficiently capable of fulfilling my difficult task, I began to spread out a couple of napkins at the edge of the ditch, on which the instruments were arranged in order, with the bandages, plasters, sponges, etc.

At that sight one of the parties seemed to lose heart; at least he turned pale, came a little closer and said softly, in a trembling voice:

"Oh God, Gr., all my hope is set on you!"

I encouraged him and promised to do all in my power so that, if he should be wounded, the consequences would be as little serious as possible.

The duellists now had to undress down to their shirts, the sabres were measured to see whether they were of equal length, and the umpire asked for the last time whether then there was absolutely no means of reconciling the parties, and whether the thirst for revenge was so intense that it could be quenched only in blood?

When both remained silent, perhaps because neither wished to say yes before the other, it was laid down that the combat should end au premier sang (French: at first blood), that is to say, at the first blood that flowed, whether the wound were serious or not. The fight would then be stopped and it would be asked whether the parties were satisfied; if not, the fight would be continued.

The one duellist, the man who had said that all his hope was set on me, was standing with his back turned towards me, and at those words I saw such a violent movement in the man's trousers at the place where the back leaves off, that I did not form too high an idea of his intrepidity and fighting spirit.

The signal for the attack was given and — already at the first attack I was set at ease.

The fear of a serious wound vanished at once and I could not suppress a smile, for it was more than clear that both furious parties preferred not to be hit, but also, if you please, did not wish to hurt each other.

If the one lunged, the other flew off so far that he could not possibly be reached with the sword, and conversely, at a lunge by no. two, no. one did the same.

Besides, the sabres were handled so hesitatingly and with so little fire that I rather feared such a skirmish might last until midday before a drop of blood flowed.

Much clashing of the one iron on the other, but it got no further. At last one of the sabres slipped by accident and grazed the arm of the, shall I say, quivering party. Immediately came the umpire's halt! The doctor was summoned and, yes, there was a little scratch, and with some pressing and kneading a drop of blood appeared as well.

Honour was satisfied?!

To the question whether the parties now had sufficient satisfaction there came from both sides a hearty yes! they shook hands, glad and relieved that they had come off so well.

With a satisfied feeling I too packed up my bits and pieces, after having stuck a little plaster on the little wound, and the whole company, umpire and doctor included, got into the carriages to go to the house ten Deyl, where an impromptu luncheon was eaten. A fair amount of cognac was consumed against the morning air, and parties and friends returned more or less fuddled to the key city.

I do not wish to reveal that the umpire, the great authority, was very drunk.

That afterwards a reconciliation dinner was arranged, at which the doctor also sat, and to whom on that occasion an inkwell was presented; that glowing speeches were delivered and toasts drunk to eternal friendship, goes without saying.

Of this matter you can be certain, namely, that in the whole affair more wine than blood was shed.

In that period, the spring of 1866, dark clouds were meanwhile gathering over the sky of Europe.

Although here too there was anxious tension because of the threatening political situation in Germany, which later in the year gave rise to the war between Prussia and Austria, another still more alarming enemy was approaching with rapid steps.

Cholera had at that time lost nothing of its terrifying name and many a person saw that scourge approaching threateningly with great fear and anxiety.

Everywhere committees were set up for the possible combating of that enemy, and should that not avail, for the alleviation of the wounds it would inflict. We, some eight candidates in medicine, had been asked to serve as well should the disease appear in Leiden. We had consented, and although two of us, and coincidentally precisely those who were the first of our eight to die, withdrew out of fear of infection before the struggle came, the remaining six were still able to be of considerable service.

I will honestly confess that the promise I had given weighed rather heavily.

During the whole year that I spent in the hospital I had been ailing. Anaemia and intestinal disorders, which improved at once if I was only a week outside the town, but always grew worse upon my return, made me less strong.

Whether this was caused by the foul atmosphere in the hospital or by the bad drinking water I leave undecided, but I was continually more or less ailing and therefore rather firmly convinced that I should be one of the first victims.

My sense of duty made me remain at my post, but I had made a sort of will in which I had distributed my meagre possessions among my friends as souvenirs.

Ever nearer came the enemy.

From Egypt by way of Italy, Spain, France, Belgium it moved towards our territory like a black and threatening spectre.

Cases occurred in Vlissingen, Rotterdam, The Hague, and finally on a fine spring evening — I was in café Zomerzorg after dinner — I received a note from the Director of the hospital that had been provisionally made ready.

"My friend, we have our first cholera patient, come at once!"

Boom! there was the first shot.

We had divided the tours of duty by lot, and my turn came first.

I hurried to the Lakenhal, our hospital, and found there the first patient, who was to be followed by hundreds, blue-black in the face, writhing with pain.

A young man, almost still a boy, but with the appearance of a worn-out person, the face sunken, the nose narrowed, the features contorted. I had never yet seen a cholera patient, and the sight of that poor lad, now deeply apathetic, now rolling in pain, was so impressive and alarming that this image has never disappeared from my memory, however much suffering I have seen since.

The Lakenhal, which was designated to receive the patients, now arranged as the municipal museum, is an old-fashioned, rather lugubrious building with small windows and heavy doors, more a prison than a hospital.

At that time, at any rate, we had little eye for its architectural value and complained rather about the depressing and cheerless character of the rooms fitted out as wards. Of hygienic precautions or measures there was not a trace. When I arrived, the Director was busily occupied with a temporarily appointed hospital father and mother, with hot water bottles, rubbings with camphor spirit and the administration of opium and stimulants, doing what there was to be done.

I was to take the first night duty. In the course of the evening a couple of doctors and one or two of the candidate volunteers came to have a look; on behalf of the head of the Municipality a chicken with a bottle of wine was brought for the young candidate in medicine to comfort and strengthen him in his night watch, but when at 10 o'clock the heavy door fell shut with a bang behind the last visitor and I remained alone with Father and Mother and the patient wrestling with death, I did rather have something of the feeling of a soldier going to the battlefield.

At one o'clock in the night the poor boy already died — alas! many, many were to follow him.

At 6 o'clock in the morning the second patient, also a young man, was brought in; at 8 o'clock I was relieved, but by then the last arrival was also already near his end.

It was remarkable that the young men who did duty had, during the first days, all the symptoms of intestinal complaints; whether this was the result of a slight infection or rather of suggestion and emotional agitation I leave undecided. We had great trouble with inadequate help. When the number of patients increased, more help had to be found and men were engaged (women did not offer themselves and nursing by women was not then customary) at rather high remuneration for their services.

Naturally it was not the best material, but one had to take what one could get. Now the people had seen that cognac was also administered against cholera, and the logical consequence was that if cognac was good, much cognac was better still.

When they had to run an errand, for instance were sent to the municipal pharmacy for medicines, they often came back dead drunk.

The first patients who were admitted to the Hospital all died. They were, as goes without saying, those who were most susceptible to the cholera poison and had the least power of resistance.

This had the consequence that a certain fear of the Hospital arose among the population and it became difficult to persuade people to let themselves be admitted.

This got even worse when the rumour spread, as often happens in such cases, that all kinds of experiments were being carried out on the sick, and it reached its peak when the hospital father had been so stupid as to hang a piece of intestine, which had been taken from a corpse for microscopic examination, on a rack to drain in a place where it could be seen. Then the story went round among the common people that strings were being made from the intestines of those who had died in the hospital. After much patience and persuasion on the part of the authorities, also with the help of the Catholic clergy, (a large part of Leiden's factory population is Catholic) who throughout the whole epidemic assisted the sick and the dying with great zeal and devotion, the prejudice was overcome and the patients returned, especially when, with the increase in the great number of sufferers, hands were short on all sides.

Although the number of those attacked was small in the first days, after Whitsun it rose enormously. That feast was then celebrated among the lower classes in Leiden with the so-called dew-treading. Boys and girls went out of the town before daybreak, and then a good many improprieties were committed in the hygienic and the moral field.

The result was a rapid spread of the epidemic; the number of sick and dying kept rising, and there were days when in the morning 40 to 45 corpses lay side by side in the cellars of the hospital on the long tables supported by trestles.

The cases of illness and death occurred most among people of the lower class; only a few of the better-off were attacked and died. This was partly the consequence of the less favourable social and housing conditions in which the factory population lived, but also of the, at that time, great use and abuse of spirits. The whole day long, from early morning until late evening, one met funeral processions in the streets. Since there were nowhere near enough hearses to meet the suddenly arisen need, an ordinary cab often had to serve. The doors were then simply left open and the coffin was pushed in crosswise, so that parts of it stuck out on both sides.

As in all circumstances, even the most lugubrious, the comical element was not lacking. With the great number of funerals the regular undertaker's men could not possibly perform the service; a new troop formed of, let us say, wild undertaker's men, sometimes very strange figures, often also people who were out of work because of the standstill of many trades, and they all had to have at least a tail-coat in order to fulfil their task properly. As a result the market price of old tail-coats rose enormously; there was a definite boom in that article, otherwise without value.

Stokke-Mozes, the man who bought up the old clothes of the students in exchange for walking sticks, eau de cologne, prints, etc., did good business, and I suspect that he sometimes mused quietly to himself: "what a blessed disease."

The therapy was totally powerless in serious cases, and I believe that in that respect we have not progressed much further today.

Opium and stimulants were still of the most use. When the epidemic decreased in severity, the mortality became less and thus the number of those who recovered greater, all kinds of remedies appeared which were said to work particularly favourably, but I am of the opinion that in the violent and serious cases they would have helped just as much or just as little as the rest.

The number of disinfectants available at that time was small. Crude carbolic acid, chloride of lime, chlorine water and especially sulfas ferri (iron vitriol) were used to disinfect the excreta, the dwellings of the sufferers were whitewashed and aired, but that was all that could be done.

I still remember being called to a cholera patient in a small houseboat. In the stuffy cabin lay the sick man, fouling everything around him. Wife and children stayed in the same small space. The man died while I was still present; then the corpse could be removed and the place cleared, but I ask you, what could be done, with the means available at that time, for a sufficiently thorough disinfection, especially in a boat with its many corners and holes?

The appearance of those who recovered was peculiar. When the first attack was past and the patient was still alive after one or two days, one could cherish well-founded hope that he would escape. Because of the enormous loss of fluid during the attack and the resulting thickening of the blood, stagnation occurred in the fine vessels, and those recovering had, in contrast with the pale and blue appearance of the first couple of days, a bright red colour, as if they had been burnt by the sun. Many were soon on their feet again, some remained ill for a long time through additional affections of the lungs or kidneys.

As is known, patients with cholera sometimes die within 2 hours; occasionally death is sudden, one then speaks of cholera apoplectica.

In such a sudden death the life in the muscles has not yet been extinguished, even though the person has really died, and it can happen that the corpse lies gaping or blinking its eyes, or the muscles of the arms contract, so that the dead man assumes various fighting postures, while the spirit has nevertheless already departed. That was a gruesome sight.

Strong, robust persons suffered most from the violent cramps in the calves. Children, weak women and old people, for the disease spared neither age nor sex, quickly became indolent. "Just let me lie" and "I don't care" could be read on their faces and in their eyes, and they turned away with aversion from the efforts that were made to help them.

It was an oppressive time; there were days with 100 to 110 dead, which means quite something for a population of 34000 inhabitants at that time.

Nearly all students and professors, except those of the medical faculty, had left the town, the doctors were overworked and could not possibly meet all the requests for help.

In order to have at least some rest now and then, it had been devised that part of the practising physicians would take turns doing night duty.

This committee had its seat in one of the ground-floor rooms of the town hall, and if help was needed at night, which happened countless times, the request had to be made there.

As a volunteer I took part in that service a couple of times, and I still remember how I was called into one of the back alleys and that on entering the house I was struck by the horrible and penetrating stench which prevailed in the room.

Now the excreta of a cholera patient are totally odourless, so it could not be that disease. On examination > it turned out that one of the children was suffering from a throat complaint and that around the neck of the poor little thing a small bag had been wrapped, filled with dead earthworms which were in a state of putrefaction and gave off that dreadful smell. According to the parents this was the most effective remedy for throat disease.

> In those oppressive days I was on the point of taking my doctorate, but because of all the bustle and cares I could not get much done, when my promotor, the professor of surgery, came to tell me that his wife and children were becoming frightened and that he was going to leave the town within a few days; if I still wished to take my doctorate, I would have to be ready within a week.
> Now everything had to be done in great haste, the dissertation printed, the proofs corrected, while at the same time the hospital duty had to be performed and patients in the back streets visited. I was busy day and night, and I took my degree.
> It was a sad promotion. All my friends had fled or had been fetched home by their parents; I myself did not feel well. Two men who were almost strangers to me, a man from the Cape and a young man from Java, who had to remain in the town since they had no family they could go to, served as paranymphs.
> During the congratulations in the Plaats-royaal after the promotion, one of my best friends, precisely the only student who succumbed, lay dying in one of the upper rooms of that house, without friend or kinsman to support him in his last struggle.
> Through all that labour and emotional strain of various, but always depressing, kinds, I became overworked.
> I was tormented by dreadful headaches and dull, oppressive pains in the region of the loins, and a few days after the promotion I had to give up the work.
> I could do no more, it was impossible for me to perform any labour and I had to leave my post.
> I went home and contracted typhus."

MARRIED:

JOHANNES BLOOKER, 14 August 1879 at Amsterdam, widower of Johanna Frederica Catharina Elisabeth van der Heide.

Johannes Blooker was born 25 February 1850 at Amsterdam, as son of Cornelis Frans Jacobus Blooker, Partner in the Firm J. en C. Blooker, chocolate manufacturers at Amsterdam, and Geertje Schuit.

He went through the Handelsschool (commercial school) at Amsterdam and in 1866 entered as an apprentice with his father and his uncle, Partners in the Firm J. en C. Blooker, chocolate manufacturers at Amsterdam, both as regards the chocolate trade and general commerce and technical training.

After the business had expanded, chiefly abroad, he changed the Firm into "de Naamlooze Vennootschap Internationale Cacaofabrieken" and founded a much larger factory at den Omval at Amsterdam.

When he had taken his brother Ir. Dirk Blooker, mechanical engineer, into the business, he withdrew from it and settled in 1899 at Zeist on the country estate "Zandbergen" and afterwards at Huis ter Heide (U.), Huize "Nieuw Zandbergen".

He was Alderman of the Municipality of Zeist, Chairman of the Nederlandsche Protestantenbond, Branch of Zeist, Driebergen and Surroundings, and Chairman of the Board of Commissioners of the Utrechtsche Bankvereeniging.

He died at Huis ter Heide on 23 January 1934 at the age of 83 years, as may appear from the family announcement below:

> The funeral will take place at Zeist at the Nieuwe Algemeene Begraafplaats on Friday 26 January next at 12.30 p.m.
> Departure from the house of mourning at 12 noon.
> Sole and general notice."

Concerning his passing the following report was published in the newspapers:

> "J. BLOOKER DECEASED.
> At "Nieuw-Zandbergen" at Huis ter Heide Mr. J. Blooker died yesterday evening at the age of nearly 84 years.
> Mr. Blooker, former director and chairman of the board of commissioners of Blookers Cacaofabrieken at Amsterdam, was from Sept. 1899 to Sept. 1919 a member of the municipal council of Zeist, of which the last 18 years as alderman. For many years he was chairman, at present honorary chairman of the Zeist-Driebergen branch of the Protestanten-Bond, and furthermore chairman of the board of commissioners of the Utrechtsche Bankvereeniging.
> The interment will take place next Friday at 12.30 at the new general cemetery at Zeist."

His photographic portrait is included among the portraits.

On his death the following pieces appeared in the "Leeuwarder Courant":

> "C. H. VAN DUYSEN. †
>
> Yesterday there died in this town in "Sonnenborgh", where he had lived in recent years, Mr. C. H. van Duysen, former secretary of the Vereeniging voor Vreemdelingenverkeer here.
>
> Mr. van Duysen was for some 25 years a most meritorious member of the board of this association, of which for the last 15 years, until 1927, he was secretary. After his retirement he was appointed honorary member.
>
> For the Belgian refugees too the deceased rendered great services, for which work the Belgian King honoured him with the Order of Leopold.
>
> Furthermore Mr. Van Duysen was director of the Spaarkas, secretary of the Friesland branch of the Union of Dealers in Building Materials, member of the Court of Arbitration for employers and employees, and chairman of the former Home for the Homeless on the Groningerstraatweg.
>
> Mr. Van Duysen also had a seat on the board of the International Electricity Exhibition, which was held here in 1921 on the grounds of the Royal Association "De IJsclub" in the Bleekerstraat, namely as 1st secretary.
>
> Mr. Van Duysen was born on 12 January 1858 and thus almost reached the age of 76 years.
>
> The funeral will take place next Monday at the Noorderbegraafplaats. Departure from the house of mourning at 11 o'clock."

> "FUNERAL OF C. H. VAN DUIJSEN.
>
> This morning the remains of Mr. C. H. van Duijsen were committed to the earth at the Noorderbegraafplaats, in the presence of family and representatives of various bodies of which the deceased had been a member, among others the board of the Vereeniging voor Vreemdelingenverkeer and the management of the B.H.V.
>
> When the coffin had been lowered into the grave and some six floral tributes had been laid down, Mr. R. Buisman, chairman of the Vereeniging voor Vreemdelingenverkeer, spoke approximately as follows:
>
> As chairman of the Vereeniging voor Vreemdelingenverkeer it is my sad duty at the grave to point out, on behalf of that association, the great services rendered by the deceased as secretary of this association, of which he was as it were the motor, the driving force, during the many years that he held this office.
>
> I also recall the triumvirate which did so much for the association, baron Van Welderen Rengers, P. A. Bruinsma beside Mr. v. Duijsen, all of whom have now been taken from the association by death.
>
> Further I think back to the first period of the great war, when the Belgian refugees were helped by a committee called into being for that purpose, in which Mr. Van Duijsen took a very large share upon himself. If they knew at Dendermonde and surroundings that we were burying that man today, then many a prayer would rise to heaven there for the repose of the soul of Mr. Van Duijsen.
>
> That his work was appreciated by the Belgian government may appear from the Royal distinction conferred upon him, which he was permitted to wear with honour.
>
> That in his own circle too his work, which benefited townsman and stranger alike, was appreciated, appeared when on laying down his office the honorary membership of the V.v.V. was offered to him. Now that we must take leave of him, we declare, with the expression of thanks for his work, that we shall keep his memory in honour.
>
> A son of the deceased expressed thanks for the honour and the great interest shown to the deceased."

A photographic portrait of him appears among the portraits.

b. Oosterend, 26 September 1851 · son of Harmen Baukes Greidanus (N° 266) and Jantje Pieters Robijn · m. Yke Lefferts Oosterhout, 1880

He was born 26 September 1851 at Oosterend, where he was a farm labourer.

At the time I asked him in writing for some information, but the answer was given by the Registrar of the Civil Registry in Hennaarderadeel, with whom I had corresponded on several occasions, with the explanation:

"He came to me today to ask whether I would help him to answer your questions."

He himself knew nothing, could not even tell me the date of birth of his wife; he declared: I am a farm labourer and my understanding lies in the soil."

MARRIED:

YKE LEFFERTSDOCHTER OOSTERHOUT, 15 May 1880 in Hennaarderadeel (at Wommels).

Yke Leffertsdochter Oosterhout was born 5 June 1854 at Oosterend, daughter of Leffert Oosterhout, cooper, and Jetske Ypma.

Line of descent: Ausonius 273I ← Tjardus 181 ← Ausonius 101II ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5II ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1I

He was born 8 May 1871 at Harderwijk, as appears from the following family announcement:

> " Delivered of a Son J. GREIDANUS—> PRINS.
> Harderwijk, 8 May 1871.
> Sole notification."

[1] In the Civil Registry of Avenhorn erroneously recorded as "Jaannes"; presumably "Joannes" had been given, out of which the Civil Registry made "Jaannes".

Tjardus Greidanus joined the former Instructiebataljon (instruction battalion) in 1888 and afterwards the former Hoofdcursus (principal course) for non-commissioned officers of the Infantry and of the Military Administration at Kampen, where, just after he had passed the Officers' examination, he died on 28 September 1895 at the age of 24, as appears from the following communication:

> "Today there died at Kampen to our deep sorrow our dearly beloved son > at the age of just over 24 years.
> TJARDUS
> A. GREIDANUS
> E. G. GREIDANUS—
> Breunissen Troost.
> Harderwijk, 28 September 1895."

In the Jaarboekje of the Hoofdcursus at Kampen for 1896, Kampen, Laurens van Hulst, his portrait is included and his death is commemorated with the contribution given below:

> IN MEMORIAM
> TJARDUS GREIDANUS
> What creature lives that shall not one day sleep the sleep of death!
> When the tidings of death came....
> We carried Levert to the grave.
> And before Levert....
> And after Levert, Greidanus!
> And after Greidanus?
> Are we not becoming, as it were, accustomed to closing every course with the death of a faithful friend and fellow student?
> Cruel is reality! It writes such a bitter parody of life's fairest ideals. The flower that gave off so lovely a fragrance is snapped by the storm wind; the ship, anchored in the roadstead, breaks loose and sinks into the fathomless deep; the house of cards, built by human thinking and hoping, collapses, and .... gone are the expectations, destroyed the dreams of the future, all that .... gone. Indeed, not even a future any more!

You knew our Tjardus.
I do not wish to portray him in all the qualities in which he was attractive to you; in all the virtues by which he would have done honour to the rank acquired with so much effort; such a display of virtues is not necessary for those who knew him. But, in order that his parents, to whom he had attached himself so closely, deeply grieved by so painful a loss, may know in what esteem their much-beloved son and kinsman stood with teachers and comrades, let this be recorded here: He was our friend, and it was our honour and privilege to be his friend. He was sincere. Such men our army needs. How we lament his death.
He was cheerful, compassionate of heart, sharing in the lot of his comrades. Do I say too much in calling his death a loss for us, a loss for our army?
He shared in the joys and sorrows of his friends; would he not have done the same in the lot of those subordinate to him in the service? Is the repetition not justified: "Our army has suffered a loss!" A loss that is indeed not felt by the army as a whole, but that is fully realized by us, who knew him in his work and his conduct. We have become the poorer by a force and — let us above all not rate this low — a moral force.
A mocker from of old, a communist is death. It is as though we hear the ghastly grin of that bony majesty, with which the utterances of youthful hope were answered. How often did He, whose ashes rest in peace, say: When we are ready, when we may pluck the golden fruits of our persistent labour, we shall try to be an ornament to our army. How longingly did his deeply shaken Father look forward to the moment when his son, his pride, would be an independent person, an "I".
And now that that time has come, now that the examination with all its fears and woes has been happily and with favourable result gone through, now .... death mocks all that striving, all that toiling, all that happiness, and stiffens what was warm of heart and proud of spirit, and what beat within him for the Netherlands' greatness.
Deeply grieved Parents! Your son did not indeed fall in the midst of the tumult of battle, but at the end of the not-to-be-despised intellectual struggle, with the palm of victory in his hand.
Comrades, we have remained; we have been sworn in, let us carry out his intentions.
We have been able to persevere where He, on the last afternoon of the examination, was compelled to lay down his work. On 21 September, a week afterwards, we left him, at first recovered — thanks to the more than excellent care and treatment of his physician — with the glad prospect of meeting again soon.
Sudden reversal! Death crept through his limbs; and 28 September: He is no more!
When the tidings of death came,
Behold, my fingers are stiff
To repeat to You the dreadful news.
But it will still have been a comfort
To his dying spirit,
That at the end he might win the Crown.
Shall we too at our end win the crown, the reward of faithful performance of duty? If we follow the faithful ones who went before and left us so good an example, then: Yes.

Thus we honour the dead, thus we honour the dead most. Their virtues are made manifest in us.
J. K.
Kampen, October 1895."

Maria Joanna Ursina Greidanus

Dr. Hendrik van Straaten

She was born at Amsterdam 21 October 1880, as appears from the following family announcement:

> "Delivered of a GIRL
> Mevrouw M. J. U. GREIDANUS—PRUIM.
> Amsterdam, 21 October 1880."

Maria Joanna Ursina Greidanus studied at the Municipal University of Amsterdam 1900—1905 Nat. Phil. Pharm. and was promoted to "Apothecary" on 21 December 1905. Concerning her, the following entry appears on page 145 of the printed Album Academicum van het Athenaeum Illustre en van de Universiteit van Amsterdam:

> "1900/05. GREIDANUS (Marie Johanna Ursina), Nat. Phil. pharm., > b. at Amsterdam on 21 October 1880. Promoted to > apothecary on 21 December 1905. K 31."[1]

She is at present an apothecary at 's-Gravenhage, pharmacy "Rijneveld", Stuyvesantplein 32.

Her photographic portrait is included with the portraits.

MARRIED:

DR. HENDRIK VAN STRAATEN, 7 March 1912 at Rotterdam, as appears from the following family announcement:

"Married:
Dr. H. VAN STRAATEN
and
M. J. U. GREIDANUS,
who, also on behalf of the families on both sides, express their heartfelt thanks for the many signs of interest shown at their marriage.
Rotterdam, 7.3.'12.

Dr. Hendrik van Straaten was born 15 August 1882 at Meppel, as son of Gerhardus van Straaten, baker there, and Lamberdina Geerligs.

He studied at the then Rijksveeartsenijschool (State Veterinary College) at Utrecht, from which he obtained the diploma in 1906. In that year he was appointed assistant at the Rijksserum-inrichting (State Serum Institute) at Rotterdam and in 1908 bacteriologist; in 1919 followed his promotion to bacteriologist 1st class, in which capacity he is still employed at present, while he lives at Voorburg, Schellinglaan 33. In 1911 he took his doctorate at the University of Bern with the dissertation "Die Spezifität der Drusestreptokokken".

Dr. Hendrik van Straaten descends from a family of traders, presumably in grain, at Zwolle. His photographic portrait is to be found with the portraits.

Tjarda Greidanus

Gijsbert Hendrik Dorrestein

She was born 17 September 1883 at Amsterdam.

Tjarda Greidanus studied Law from 1904 to 1908 at the Municipal University of Amsterdam, where she took her Candidate's examination. Concerning her the following entry appears on page 145 of the printed Album Academicum van het Athenaeum Illustre en van de Universiteit van Amsterdam:

> "1904/06. *GREIDANUS (Tjarda), Med., born at Amsterdam on > 17 September 1883. O 86[2]."

According to the following entry in column 211 of the printed Album Studiosorum Academiae Lugduno Batavae MDCCCLXXV—MCMXXV she was still in 1910 enrolled as a student of law at the University of Leiden:

"Rector Magn. Dr. J. C. KLUYVER.

Her photographic portrait is found with the portraits.

MARRIED:

GIJSBERT HENDRIK DORRESTEIN, 19 February 1913 at Amsterdam, as appears from the following family announcement:

"Married:
G. H. DORRESTEIN,
Receiver of registration and domains
at Enkhuizen
and
TJARDA GREIDANUS.
Amsterdam, 19 February 1913."

[1] This is the number under which the student appears in the official album.

[2] The * placed before the name means: member of the Amsterdam Students' Corps; O 86 is the number under which the student appears in the official album.

Gijsbert Hendrik Dorrestein was born at Woudenberg 15 January 1887, son of Rijk Dorrestein, Municipal Receiver and Secretary there, and Willemijntje van Altena.

He was first Receiver of Registration and Domains, successively at Enkhuizen, Sommelsdijk, Harlingen and Eindhoven, then in this branch of the service Inspector at Winschoten and at Hoorn, and subsequently, at his own request, again Receiver, namely successively at Arnhem, Leeuwarden and Utrecht, where he now lives at Buys Ballotstraat 35.

A photographic portrait of him is included among the portraits.

Prof. Dr. Karl Hermann Scheumann was born 25 February 1881 at Metz, as the son of August Hermann Scheumann, "Zoll-Secretär" (customs secretary), and Magdalena Schantz.

He studied mineralogy at the University of Leipzig and obtained his doctorate in philosophy there in 1913 with a dissertation entitled "Petrographische Untersuchungen an Gesteinen des Polzengebietes in Nord-Böhmen." This dissertation was published as N° VII of Band XXXII of the "Abhandlungen der Mathematisch-Physischen Klasse der Königl. Sächsischen Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften". After taking his doctorate he was for a time attached to a "Büro für praktische Gesteinskunde" in Leipzig and was assistant and later "Oberassistent" in Mineralogy at the University there. In the World War he was, among other things, "Kriegsgeologe-Oberbeamter im Hauptmannsrange" (war geologist and senior official with the rank of captain) and was awarded both "Eisernen Kreuze" (Iron Crosses). He was appointed Professor in April 1925 at the University of Giessen; in October 1926 at the Technische Hochschule at Berlin-Charlottenburg; and in October 1928 at the University of Leipzig, where he is also "Director des Instituts für Mineralogie und Petrographie" and lives at Talstrasze 38.

Besides various articles in the political field, he wrote among other things:

"Die Frage nach der Hydratnatur der Zeolithe" (Naturwissenschaften, 8. Jg., 1920, S. 259—260); "Über den Wassergehalt des Heulandits"/ Ber. üb. d. Verh. d. Sächs. Ak. d. Wiss. Leipzig, Math. Phys. Kl. 73, 1921/; "Zur Genese alkalisch-lamprophyrischer Ganggesteine" (Centralbl. f. Vlissingen.

Gerardina Maria Cornelia Motké was born 19 November 1893 at Heusden, as daughter of Thomas Antonius Motké, State Receiver, and Anna Catharina Odilia Bergmans.

It is said that the family "Motké", to which Gerardina Maria Cornelia Motké belongs, originally came from Poland, where the name is said still to exist as the first name "Motke". The established cradle of this Roman Catholic family is Thorn in Limburg, where in front of the Church there one finds a memorial column with the bust of a brother of Thomas Antonius Motké.

Gerardina Maria Cornelia Motké also professes the Roman Catholic religion; and her children, among them 3 sons, are being brought up in that religion, so that herewith the foundation has been laid for a Roman Catholic branch of the Protestant family "Greydanus".

A photographic portrait of her appears among the portraits included at the back.

> Groenloo, 14 Oct. 1887.

On 16 June 1906 she passed the final examination of the gymnasium at Zwolle; thereafter she went to study Law at Utrecht, where she became Jur. Cand. on 22 January 1908. At the beginning of the course 1908/1909 she continued her studies at Leiden; here, at the start of the following course, she transferred to the faculty of Letters. In Dutch Letters she took the candidate's examination on 4 June 1911 and the doctoral examination on 12 December 1913. In the printed Album Studiosorum Academiæ Lugduno-Batavæ MDCCCLXXV—MCMXXV her entry in column 199 reads as follows:

"Rector Magn. Dr. J. VERDAM.

She was appointed: with effect from September 1914 temporary Teacher of History at the 5-year H.B.S. (secondary school) for boys at Haarlem, where in the following school year she also taught Dutch; with effect from September 1917 Teacher at the H.B.S. for girls at Groningen; and with effect from September 1920 Teacher at the Lyceum at Baarn.

On 15 January 1926 she took the degree of doctor of letters and philosophy at the State University of Utrecht on a dissertation: “Beginselen en ontwikkeling van de interpunctie, in 't biezonder in de Nederlanden” (and some 14 theses), 8°, Vonk & C°, Zeist, 1926.
The thesis numbers 254 pages and has the following contents:

> “Introduction . . . . . p. 1
> Chapter I . . . . . “ 14
> Considerations on Punctuation in Classical Antiquity and the early Middle Ages.
> Chapter II . . . . . “ 58
> Influence of the Medieval Liturgy on Punctuation.

> Punctuation in Middle Dutch Manuscripts.
> Chapter IV . . . . . “ 189
> Influence of the Art of Printing and of Humanism on Punctuation.
> Conclusion . . . . . “ 245”

The thesis begins as follows:

> “TO MY MOTHER AND TO THE > MEMORY OF MY FATHER.
>
> On completing my thesis I offer my cordial thanks to you, most learned De Vooys, for the readiness with which you took upon yourself the direction of this work, and for the kindness and support which I have always received from you.
>
> With gratitude I recall the pleasant and thorough teaching of the late Professor Verdam, and the friendship he showed me.
>
> Your lectures and the conversations with you, most learned Uhlenbeck, in which you give your pupils such a deep insight into scholarship, I have valued highly.
>
> Your teaching too, most learned Blok and Martin, and that of the late Professors Bussemaker, Kalff, Speijer and Bolland, has contributed much to my formation.”

Then follows the “Introduction” given below:

> “Punctuation is of great importance, and therefore deserves to be studied, not only for practical purposes, in order to make the meaning of what is written clear, but the study of it is also useful for clarifying our insight into the structure of language.
>
> That this subject has been so neglected in linguistics is due to the fact that it has been too little understood in its real essence, and has been conceived too purely mechanically and doctrinairely. For the old-fashioned grammar, which started from the written language, this is not surprising. There it was merely a question of orthography, for which one had only to dictate a few rules. It had no deeper meaning there. Punctuation marks were accepted as something that simply belongs to writing, without reflecting upon their origin or their deeper significance. Where a few writers of monographs have indeed attempted to do so, their method is not very effective and the result unsatisfactory.
>
> To begin with, one must keep in view the distinction between the content (value, function) and the form of the punctuation marks.
>
> The marks are only a written indication of something else, just as the letters are no more than a written indication of the sounds. Modern grammar, which starts from the spoken language, treats the sounds and, in connection with them, the letters. Likewise, in a treatment of punctuation one must not start from the written marks, but from that of which they are the indication.
>
> Of what are the punctuation marks the indication?
>
> When we examine the practice in the Dutch of our own time, we notice, in all the variations of sparing and lavish punctuation, that there are two tendencies in punctuating: the one which places marks in order to separate main clauses and subordinate clauses, the other which places marks to indicate a pause. The latter therefore aims at the convenience of /reading aloud or silently, the former has as its purpose to divide the sentences visibly and at once, for the eye, into their grammatical members. The first principle leads to rhetorical, oratorical, rhythmical-melodical or phonetic punctuation, the second to syntactic, grammatical or logical. Example:
>
> I hope, that you can come tomorrow (rhet. punct.).
> I hope that you can come tomorrow (synt. punct.).
>
> French and English use the rhetorical punctuation in sentences such as these, German the syntactic; in Dutch both principles are applied.
>
> Most writers on punctuation have, more vaguely or more clearly, felt this ambiguity. Before going into this more closely I therefore first mention some little works on punctuation. In the Netherlands little of importance has been published about it. Apart from what has been written about it in the grammars, only the following monographs from the 19th and 20th centuries are known to me:
>
> N. Anslijn: Aanleiding tot het plaatsen der Schei- en Zinteekens.
> Dr. H. A. Corvey: Anweisung zum möglichst richtigen Gebrauche zur Zeichensetzung oder Interpunction für Niederländische Lehranstalten.
> Wilhelm Broes: Voorlezing over de Interpunctie, in De Jager's Archief voor Ned. Taalkunde part II, 1849, pp. 39—52.
> Herman Frijlink: Over de Interpunctie, 1857.
> And from more recent times:
> J. H. van den Bosch: Over interpunksie; grondtrekken voor het taalonderwijs, in de Nieuwe Taalgids I 1907, pp. 61—68, an unfinished article.
> D. Stracke further published a study on punctuation in a Middle Dutch manuscript, which I shall discuss in chapter III.
> As a transition to the foreign literature on punctuation I mention:
> J. J. Perk: Verhandeling over de interpunctie, from the French of the most learned Mr. E. A. Lequien, Line of descent: Literatuur.

[printer's signature 50 at the foot of the page]

2nd edition 1819. It is an adaptation; on some points Perk deviates from his model, where he finds that in the Netherlands a different usage is followed than in French.

Abroad there is more literature on interpunction, but I have not been able to find much of importance among it. The best is still Bieling's little book. I mention a few of those foreign writings here.

John Wilson: Treatise on English Punctuation, 1844, an expansion of a little work that appeared in 1826, which went through more than thirty editions.

Constance M. Rourke: The rationale of Punktuation, in Educational Review vol. 50, Oct. 1915, p. 246 ff.

George Summey Jr.: Modern Punctuation, its Utilities and Conventions, — New York 1919. He names a large number of English and American writers on interpunction and criticizes their system.

Fr. Schmitthenner: Die Lehre von der Satzzeichung oder Interpunktion in der teutschen Sprache, nebst einer kurzen, vorbereitenden Darstellung der Satzlehre, 1824.

Weiske: Theorie der Interpunktion, aus der Idee des Satzes entwickelt, 1838.

Duden: Versuch einer deutschen Interpunktionslehre, in Progr. des Gymn. zu Schleiz, 1876.

Dr. Alex. Bieling: Das Prinzip der deutschen Interpunktion nebst einer übersichtlichen Darstellung ihrer Geschichte, Berlin 1880.

Dr. O. Glöde: Die deutsche Interpunktionslehre, a thin little book, which gives only: die wichtigste Regeln über die Satz- oder Lesezeichen und die Redestriche, as the subtitle reads. Connected with this is an article by the same author:

Die historische Entwicklung der deutschen Satzzeichen und Redestriche. [1]

Dr. O. Glöde: Die englische Interpunktionslehre [2] (with a brief historical exposition).

Dr. O. Glöde: Die französische Interpunktionslehre (with a brief historical exposition), Marburg 1897.

Line of descent: Auteurs.

As authors of little works on interpunction we quite often see appearing, especially in earlier times, printers or schoolmasters (or at any rate writers of school books). To the latter kind belong Corvey and Glöde. To the former Wilson and Frijlink.

Line of descent: Metode.

Their method was legislative, not descriptive. For the school books this goes without saying: the pupils are given a few rules of orthography. But it is also understandable that the printer should act as a regulator in this. Carelessness in interpunction is troublesome for him. Uniformity in interpunction is in his interest. In spelling too, uniformity has been reached in the last century and a half, a binding spelling system. These printers therefore also treat interpunction as part of orthography.

> Since alphabetic writing has as its purpose to represent what is printed or spoken as vividly (?) as possible, there is, in our view, no doubt that interpunction belongs to o r t h o g r a p h y, that is, the art of writing what is printed or spoken as accurately (correctly) as possible [3].

Frijlink therefore goes on to treat all sorts of orthographic and especially typographic questions: the abbreviation sign, the dot above the i, italicization, the writing of words together, etc.

Somewhat comparable with this is the publication by the University of Chicago Press of a Manuel of Style (5th edition 1917), which regulates all sorts of typographic questions, and interpunction as well. With a few exceptions these prescriptions are applied by the University of Chicago Press [4].

But not only the printer, the reader too can suffer from bad interpunction. Thus Broes says that he came to his investigation because he had read a German book whose reading was made difficult by an excess of punctuation marks. With both kinds of authors it is thus exclusively a practical matter. The only somewhat scholarly little work is that of Bieling: he follows the historical method; but his factual material is so limited that he often draws wrong conclusions, and moreover, instead of proceeding deductively, he again proceeds too much inductively in his search for das Princip der deutschen Interpunktion. Glöde's historical material is even more limited and rests largely on communications from others.

Line of descent: Uitgangspunt.

The starting point was usually the written language, thus the sign. One listed which signs existed and in which cases they were used. Broes already has some idea of another, modern, conception. Although the distinction between "spoken" and "written" language and the notion "word" are not yet clear in his mind, he nevertheless starts more from the spoken language; writing is secondary: "words" (meaning: written words) and "interpunction" serve > to make someone's thoughts, communicated by his voice, known at a distance of time and place: the words, for their part, display (?) the s p e e c h of the speaker, the interpunction, for its part, displays the r e s t, longer or shorter, with which he interrupts his speaking.

Here, then, the emphasis is placed not so much on the outward thing, the sign, but on its content, on the pause in speaking, which in writing is indicated by the sign.

After Broes, Frijlink, although he knew Broes' article, shows a regression. For him writing is not an indication of the spoken language, but a thing in itself, as the prevailing conception had been throughout the century before him. In that world of thought belongs the view, likewise held before him, that the conjunction can have "the value of a comma", and that the comma can replace a word [5]. In Bieling too these two: content (i.e. value, function) and form are not always properly distinguished. In his historical treatment he in my opinion starts too much from the sign: he states that at a certain period such and such signs existed and adds to this the functions they then performed. It is also wrongly presented when on p. 40 he speaks of "das zuerst Periodus genannte Semicolon". He should have expressed it thus: the periodus (end of sentence) was [often] indicated by a sign that has the same form as the present-day semicolon (;). It is a reversal of the same kind as when one speaks of: the pronunciation of a letter, instead of: the written indication of a sound. A particular error is the result of this wrong starting point in Glöde when he writes: [6]

Interessant aber ist es zu verfolgen, wie zu verschiedenen zeiten und bei verschiedenen schriftstellern die satzzeichen verwerthet werden. Es gibt eine zeit, wo das kolon allmächtig ist, das semikolon dagegen sich sein gebiet mit vielen schwierigkeiten erobern muss. Heute wieder ist das kolon durch punkt, semikolon und komma sehr zurückgedrängt.

Want het oude kolon, al heeft het dan ook dezelfde vorm, is in wezen niet hetzelfde teken als onze tegenwoordige dubbelpunt. Met de hele grammatiese ontwikkeling hangt het samen dat men inplaats van het ene kolon meer tekens, voor verschillende gevallen, gaat gebruiken. Of dat teken nu een punt of een streepje of iets anders is, is een paleografiese of typografiese kwestie, maar heeft uit taalkundig oogpunt geen belang. Maar waarvoor het teken diende, wat zijn waarde was dus, daarom gaat het.

Naarmate men als uitgangspunt de geschreven of de gesproken taal neemt, zal men ook meer geneigd zijn het syntaktiese of het rhetoriese beginsel voor de interpunctie aan te nemen. Bij de meeste auteurs zijn beide min of meer dooreengemengd in de definitie. Frijlink b.v. begint: Beginsel.

Door interpunctie verstaan wij het door teekens scheiden van het geschrevene, met het hoofddoel om denkbeelden of begrippen voor den lezer te verduidelijken.

Maar even verder, op voorbeeld van Corvey, zegt hij:

evenals, tot regt verstand en juiste voordragt van een muziekstuk, de noten alleen niet kunnen volstaan, maar ook andere teekens noodig zijn, om met kracht, gevoel en uitdrukking de gedachten van den componist te kunnen wedergeven, evenzoo hebben wij ook, tot regt en verstand en juiste voordragt van het geschrevene, de teekens noodig, die men interpunctie noemt.

Het verschil tussen vraag- en uitroeptekens enerzijds, die ook de toonhoogte aanduiden, en de andere leestekens anderzijds was ook de meesten wel opgevallen. Wilson noemt de laatste grammatiese, de eerste grammatiesrhetoriese tekens.

Als beginsel dan vinden we genoemd bij de verschillende auteurs: duidelikheid /Frijlink/, gelijkvormigheid /bij verschillende drukkers/, nadruk /emphasis, bij Rourke/, rust /Broes/, pauze /Bieling/, pauze en toonhoogte /Duden/, verschillende beginselen tegelijk /Summey/.

Geen overeenstemming dus. Dit komt doordat men een logiese norm heeft willen aanleggen aan dat wat niet tezelfder tijd in zijn geheel als een logies stelsel gemaakt is, maar wat langzamerhand histories ontstaan is. De meeste schrijvers hebben alleen de interpunctie van hun tijd, de moderne interpunctie dus, behandeld. Ofschoon Bieling wel een beknopte historiese uiteenzetting geeft, is hij in zijn willen vinden van één beginsel voor de interpunctie veel te doctrinair en te teoreties.

Verschillende tijdperken hebben iets bijgedragen tot de vorming van ons interpunctiestelsel. Gewoonlik was het de voordracht, die behoefte voelde aan een nieuwe aanduiding van pauze of toonhoogte. Maar dan weer maakte de grammatica zich meester van deze tekens en gebruikte ze als aanduiding van haar syntaktiese onderscheidingen. In een periode waarin de grammatica van de geschreven taal oppermachtig is, zal de interpunctie dus ook meer syntakties worden. De Duitse interpunctie, die toch evenzeer als de Franse en Engelse teruggaat op de middeleeuws-Latijnsche, heeft zich anders, meer syntakties, ontwikkeld dan de beide andere genoemde. De ontwikkeling der interpunctie immers staat in nauw verband met die van de stijl. Het Franse proza dat zich altijd toegelegd heeft op een klare duidelike stijl, heeft minder behoefte aan interpunctietekens dan de zware Duitse zinnen, die meer voor het oog dan voor het oor geschreven schijnen. Hier helpen de interpunctietekens het oog bij de ontleding van de zin.

Men moet niet één beginsel aan de interpunctie willen opdringen, maar, zonder vooropgezet principe, de jesten uit de praktijk waarnemen, en hier niet blijven staan bij de hedendaagse praktijk, maar terugzien waaruit deze zich ontwikkeld heeft. Daarnaast dienen dan de oude interpunctieteorieën bestudeerd te worden. De historiese metode dus. De evolutie van de interpunctieteorie levert een interessante bijdrage tot de ontwikkelingsgang van de leer van de zin. Het zou de moeite lonen op deze wijze ook de ontwikkeling van andere onderwerpen uit de grammatica na te gaan. De meer ritmiese interpunctie van de praktijk oudtijds geeft daarnaast een ander inzicht in de taalbouw, meer overeenkomstig de gesproken taal.

In de volgende hoofdstukken nu zal de historiese ontwikkeling van de Nederlandse interpunctie beschreven worden, van de praktijk en van de teorie. Met de ontzaglike uitgebreidheid van materiaal kunnen we hieruit, altans wat de praktijk betreft, niet meer dan enkele grepen doen. Grepen uit Middelnederlandse handschriften, uit oude drukken, en enkele mededelingen van de ontwikkelingsgang vanaf de 17e eeuw.

Voorstudie is er nagenoeg niet op dit terrein. Voor het Middelnederlands is het enige mij bekende artiekel dat van Stracke /zie bl. 2 en bl. 177/. De boekjes van Bieling en Glöde bevatten enkele gegevens over Duitse, Franse en Engelse handschriften. Beschrijvers en uitgevers van handschriften geven dikwels /helaas: niet altijd, en nog erger: niet altijd juist/ een beschrijving van de interpunctie van het handschrift; hier is dus materiaal te vinden voor de verzamelaar en vergelijker [1]/. Maar met de ontzaglike uitgebreidheid van het materiaal is er geen denken aan een volledige beschrijving van de interpunctie in het Middelnederlands, zo verschillend in de verschillende handschriften, te geven, zelfs al zou men de juridiese stukken buitensluiten en zich tot de letterkundige, in ruime zin, bepalen. Ik had mij tot taak kunnen stellen alleen de Mnl. interpunctie, en dan met meer volledigheid dan nu het geval geweest is, te beschrijven, maar ik heb er de voorkeur aan gegeven enige grepen te doen uit de verschillende tijdperken, en te trachten uit dit materiaal de samenhang en de ontwikkeling op te sporen. Deze metode heeft ongetwijfeld een nadeel: zulk een eerste samenvattende studie, pionierswerk, zal bij latere uitwerking van onderdelen onvermijdelik fouten blijken te bevatten. Maar m.i. is het voordeel toch groter: uit de weinige bestaande detailstudies bleek me soms door gemis aan overzicht van het geheel een gebrek aan inzicht en ook wel een verkeerd begrijpen van sommige termen, die in verschillende tijdvakken verschillende betekenis hebben. Het artiekel van Stracke, hoe uitmuntend overigens, bewijst dit. Stracke behandelt de interpunctie in een handschrift van het leven van Sinte Lutgart. Dit handschrift heeft nu juist een interpunctie die men in andere Mnl. gedichten zelden aantreft, maar elders wel. De betekenis van this special punctuation could therefore not be judged by him, which was in any case not the aim of this, virtually first, contribution to the knowledge of Middle Dutch punctuation.

But sketching Middle and Modern Dutch punctuation was not enough for me. The study of Middle Dutch manuscripts led of itself to the question: where does their punctuation come from? Here I found various systems, insofar as, given the great arbitrariness in spelling too, one can speak of systems in the Middle Ages. On what tradition do these rest? Thus the investigation of Middle Dutch manuscripts led of itself to that of contemporary and other Latin ones. The period of Charlemagne with his famous writing school at Tours under Alcuin proved also to supply data about punctuation. And the practice of that time led me back further to the Latin grammarians, whose theories, in the main agreeing with one another, go back again to the Alexandrian scholars. It thus appeared that the origin of our punctuation, however greatly altered, is to be sought in the theory of the Alexandrians.

I have therefore had to preface my investigation of Middle Dutch punctuation with a description of this theory of the Greeks and Romans. I am aware that in doing so I have entered upon ticklish ground for a non-classicist. For merely quoting what a handbook on the history of classical grammar records about punctuation was not enough for my investigation. I had to trace and point out which things of the Greek-Latin theory continued to exist in the later Middle Ages and what changes (sometimes through misunderstanding of words) came about. I mention already now in particular the change of meaning which the words comma and colon have undergone and which is of very great importance for my subject. As a method for the treatment of the Latin period I have therefore preferred to look up and arrange myself the relevant parts of those Latin grammarians who also treat of punctuation, and to discuss those things in the quotations I give which are of importance for my real aim, Dutch punctuation. I therefore wish to draw attention to the fact that what is intended here is by no means a treatment of Roman punctuation theory in and for itself, but only as the forerunner of the later medieval and humanistic theory and practice.

In discussing the Alexandrian theory I have followed the two handbooks of Schmidt[1] and Steinthal[2], which, although both already fairly old, have as far as I know not yet been replaced by a more recent summary. Steinthal's chapter on punctuation numbers only 7 pages. I could not embark on an investigation of my own as to whether there are more statements by Greek writers about punctuation. Here a subject of study remains for a classicist. For this I rely on Schmidt and Steinthal; the reports mentioned by them I have taken over and checked. With their explanation, however, I cannot always agree. When they speak of the essence ("Begriff") of punctuation, they have in my opinion not been able to free themselves entirely from the specifically German conception of punctuation, which in a critical consideration of the classical punctuation system one may not simply take as a standard. But on the other hand I could also not confine myself to merely taking over the factual communications and quotations in these two works, but had to point out and elucidate those points which mattered for my real subject, those features which I could follow in the further historical development and which have already been mentioned above: the rhythmic and the syntactic element in punctuation.

On the practice of punctuation in classical manuscripts there exists no complete comprehensive study. For this there is still an enormous amount of material to be worked through. This must be divided according to period and type of script. For Greek a contribution has been made by Flock, who has investigated the punctuation of a number of Egyptian papyri. For Latin, besides capital and uncial script, the various kinds of national script (Irish, Anglo-Saxon etc.) must also be distinguished. On the Beneventan script from the 9th to the 13th century a book was written not long ago by Loew, who gives a detailed description of the punctuation[3], which in that script is precisely very interesting.

The well-known handbooks on palaeography (Thompson, Prou, Reusens) devote only a few pages to punctuation. Material is still to be found in the Album Palaeographicum of De Vries, where in the description of the manuscripts the punctuation is described as well. Also, though not regularly, this has been done in the publications of the Palaeographical Society and the New Palaeographical Society.

Further there is still an article in the 18th-century Nouveau Traité[4], a number of short notes in Wattenbach's Anleitung and here and there something in his Schriftwesen im Mittelalter. The French dissertation of Henri Omont mentioned by Prou has not appeared in print.

I could not embark on an investigation of the sources of punctuation in classical manuscripts. Here I could do no more than make use of the results of others' research, mentioned above, which I could only in part check. But for my subject it is also not in the first place the practice in the classical manuscripts that is of importance, as will appear in chapters I and II. It is the Greek-Roman theory which, with far-reaching changes, is the foundation of our present-day punctuation. Only now and then have I mentioned a single datum from practice, in order to show already here that theory and practice did not coincide, a phenomenon to which I shall also repeatedly have to point in the later medieval punctuation. Still less than the practice of Latin manuscripts was the manner of punctuating in Greek manuscripts of importance in itself for my subject. The question, therefore, whether the Greek punctuation practice goes back again to a Phoenician usage, I could leave untouched. But not the question of the cause, the need which must have given rise to the origin of punctuation, and just as little the problem how this lack of agreement between theory and practice is to be explained.

And as a final question there still remained for me: out of what or how, then, did that Alexandrian punctuation theory arise which is the ancestress of our present system?

If once a classicist has found more data about the theory and if ever the gigantic material of practice, insofar as it has been preserved, has been collected and sifted, perhaps these questions will later be able to be answered with somewhat more certainty. But in every historical account one gropes in the dark in the earliest period, and historians have more than once had to form for themselves from a few data a picture of a

After obtaining her doctorate, Dr. Johanna Greidanus became a teacher of Dutch at the Western-classical department of the Algemeene Middelbare School at Bandoeng, where she died on 16 December 1930 at the age of 43 years.

Her death was made known by the following report in the newspapers and by the announcements set out below:

"EDUCATION.
DR. J. GREIDANUS †
On 16 December[1], after a sickbed of about two months, Miss Dr. J. Greidanus, teacher of Dutch at the Western-classical department of the Algemeene Middelbare School there, died at Bandoeng[2]. In Miss Greidanus, who reached the age of only 43 years, secondary education in the Indies lost a capable, conscientious and devoted collaborator. Four years ago she had gone to the Indies, having previously been attached to the Lyceum at Baarn. In 1926 she had taken her doctorate with the dissertation: Principles and development of punctuation, particularly in the Netherlands."

He was born at Groenlo 14 August 1890, as appears from the following family announcement:

" Delivered of a SON
J. M. M. GREIDANUS—DUNNEWOLD."
Groenlo, 14 August 1890.

Tjardus Greidanus obtained in 1908 the Diploma of the H.B.S. 5-year course. Thereafter he completed the highest class of the Openbare Handelschool at Amsterdam, where he passed the final examination in 1909. On 16 August of the same year he joined the Firm Mirandolle, Voûte & C^{o} at Amsterdam. On 23 May 1911 he left for the Indies for that Firm, where he served at Semarang and Soerabaja. Since the Indies did not suit him, he left the said Firm and returned to the mother country on 17 April 1912, where on 3 June of the same year he entered the service of the Firm Adolf Boissevain & C^{o}, Bankers at Amsterdam, now Pierson & C^{o}. Since 1 May 1921 he has been authorized signatory with Pierson & C^{o} at Amsterdam. He first lived in the former municipality of Sloten near Amsterdam and is now established at Amsterdam, Oranje Nassaulaan 42.

In the August 1918 issue of the journal "De Economist" he wrote an article "Oppenheimer's Theory of Interest" and a booklet: "The value of the Media of Exchange", 's-Gravenhage. De Nederlandsche Boek- en Steendrukkerij formerly H. L. Smits. 1918.

On 15 May 1920 he was among the signatories of a declaration on Dutch Monetary Policy made public by 14 persons, the so-called manifesto of the "Fourteen". The the issuing of this declaration, which follows below, had been set in motion by Ant. van Gijn, who invited Tjardus Greidanus to co-sign the declaration, in connection with the booklet mentioned above which the latter had written: "De waarde der Ruilmiddelen":

> "Among the complicated social-economic questions which at this moment demand a solution in this country, that of monetary policy, as part of the problem of the high cost of living, takes first place.
>
> Imbued with a sense of the great national interests which, especially now, are involved in an orderly and stable medium of exchange, the undersigned consider it their duty to utter a word of serious warning against the tendency in many circles to see salvation in a continued expansion of the medium of exchange, with its direct consequence of ease on the money market.
>
> This policy has in recent days been recommended by one of the largest banking institutions in the Netherlands, as though it were in the general interest, while the monetary policy which has been followed hitherto, in particular since the armistice, also gives evidence of the same line of thought. In the first days of the war the pure gold standard was abandoned. Whether this was done rightly, and in particular whether during the war the soundness of our medium of exchange had to yield to higher interests, we wish to leave undecided. It cannot be denied, however, that by that abandonment of the gold standard the possibility was opened for an expansion of the stock of media of exchange (both in the form of paper money and of current-account balances) beyond the normal limits. In particular a very extensive expansion of the credits of the Nederlandsche Bank, of the State and of the Municipalities has thereby become possible.
> In the opinion of the undersigned the volume of our circulation, once there was no longer any question of an emergency, ought no longer to be predominantly governed by the above factors. Only the real need for a medium of exchange among the public may now serve the bank of issue as a guide in determining the stock of media of exchange.

The doctrine of the inflationists of the 17th and 18th centuries, that economic life would benefit from the debasement of the medium of exchange, that is, from high prices, has been refuted too conclusively for it to need any further combating here.

It is necessary that the Netherlands should take a large part in the reconstruction of Europe. An enlargement of the quantity of circulating medium of exchange, however, is by no means necessarily connected with this rendering of assistance. The amounts required for it can be found along another and better road.

The medium of exchange must be expanded in times in which more medium of exchange is indeed needed, in order afterwards to be able to be contracted again. But a permanent increase in a time in which production has not increased, while at the same time the natural road to contraction is closed off, is in conflict with the requirements of a proper elasticity.

To return from the wrong road on which we find ourselves to the right road cannot be done without difficulties. They must be no reason for postponing that return, which must take place one day. The difficulties would only be increased by it.

Our medium of exchange has been depreciated against gold, which was its legal standard of value, whereby at the same time an unnecessary element of uncertainty has entered into the rates of exchange on those countries where the gold standard has been maintained.

Two means, in mutual connection, are needed for the remedying of this evil. The one means is the issue of gold (or gold balances) by the Nederlandsche Bank.

In what manner this must be done is a question of execution which presents no difficulties. Initially, in the price to be fixed, account can be taken of the existing depreciation.

No less necessary is the bringing of the abnormally low rate of interest on money in this country into agreement with the real rate of interest. This requirement does not lapse because of the fact that various demands for credit now made upon the Bank, in the first place those of State and Municipalities, may perhaps prove to be insensitive to a raising of the discount rate. If necessary let the granting of credit be at the same time contracted along another road. The main thing is that the elasticity in the credit position of the Nederlandsche Bank be restored. Raising of the discount rate and the issue of gold must, at any rate under the prevailing monetary system, in mutual co-operation once again form the brake against too strong an expansion of the stock of circulating medium of exchange.

Sooner or later one must return to a practice resting on correct principles, and it is of the greatest importance that this should happen soon. Since in doing so the Nederlandsche Bank will probably have to defy public opinion, which wrongly sees a danger in the issue of gold, the undersigned have thought it their duty to make their opinion known, in order that the Board of the Bank may then know itself supported. International co-operation in this matter would be to be applauded, but is not a requirement. If other countries, in so far as they are at all able to do so, do not follow the good example to be given in this country, then the beneficial consequence of stable rates of exchange with regard to those countries will not be forthcoming. This, however, must be no reason for withholding any longer from the inhabitants what is their right: an orderly and as stable as possible medium of exchange. A dislocated medium of exchange is a social danger of the first rank.

The present disposition, with an appeal to the extraordinary circumstances, to set aside the work of Mees and Pierson and to put in its place once more the errors of the 17th and 18th centuries, is to a high degree to blame for the present difficulties. A good monetary policy can rest only on correct principles.

The setting aside of these principles has at all times promoted confusion in monetary matters.

This declaration was followed on 22 May 1920 by the communiqué printed below in the newspapers:

"The undersigned feel compelled to express a word of earnest protest against the "Declaration" of a number of economic theorists concerning Dutch monetary policy.

Not that they would applaud a debasement of the means of exchange through a continuing expansion of the circulation, with its direct consequence of ease on the money market, and artificial price increases. They rather consider these, just as the signatories of the "Declaration" do, to be evil. They believe, however, that there is no occasion in this country for uttering such a warning in a public manifesto. For, in the conviction of the undersigned, there is no question of such a policy being followed, or even recommended, in authoritative circles in the Netherlands.

The undersigned too are convinced that the value of money should be impaired as little as possible by any monetary policy. And it is precisely on the ground of this conviction that they consider it an entirely mistaken policy to exert pressure at present upon the Nederlandsche Bank for a forced contraction of the circulation. For such a contraction of the means of exchange at a time when the price level has adapted itself to the larger circulation means a new disturbance of the value of money, a deflation whose consequences would be at least as bad, if not worse, than those of inflation.

Contrary to the opinion expressed in the "Declaration", but in no way made plausible, the undersigned hold that there is no question of an ease of money in the Netherlands which would be a symptom of a still rampant process of inflation. The prolongation rate and the discount rate on the open market indicate a position that points rather to tension than to ease on the money market.

A contraction of the circulation not justified by the circumstances could at this moment be disastrous for economic life in the Netherlands.

The signatories of the "Declaration" further advocate the issue of gold, so that by that road the Netherlands may return to the gold standard.

The undersigned entirely agree with the authors of the "Declaration" that a return to the monetary situation which existed almost everywhere before the war is in the highest degree desirable. But precisely because they would greatly applaud that return, they would regret it if the issue of gold on a large scale were already undertaken at this moment. That issue of gold, if it took place under present circumstances, would be able to contribute little or nothing to the restoration of the exchange rates. On the other hand it might greatly weaken the monetary position of our country by the time when the maintenance of exchange parities can really again be considered. The undersigned believe that the moment has not yet come to resume the gold policy as it was introduced before the war for the benefit of the international parities, so long as the economic relations between the nations make the maintenance of those parities, even by the issue of gold, impossible.
A good monetary policy, say the writers of the "Declaration", can only rest on correct principles. The undersigned fully support that proposition, but they dispute that a monetary policy such as is advocated in the said "Declaration" would be in accordance with these principles. They therefore reject the appeal to Mees and Pierson, convinced as they are that these economists, whose work gave such evidence of a sense of reality, would have been averse to theories which take no account whatever of that reality, and from the application of which serious dangers to economic life would have to be feared.

At the invitation of the Editorial Board of the journal "De Economist" Tjardus Greidanus gave an exposition of the whole polemic in the June number of 1920. He became a regular contributor to the said journal for the section "Internationale Geldmarkt" from October 1920 until October 1921, interrupted by pressure of work until February 1924 and then resumed until March 1928. After that he had to give up this work for good for the same reason.

In the year 1927 there appeared from him, likewise in "De Economist", an article "Koopkracht en Credietinflatie", against which Mr. W. C. Posthumus Meijjes wrote a piece in the January 1928 issue, entitled: "Is vrije Credietcreatie door banken mogelijk?". This piece he answered in April of the same year with a treatise under the same name.

Furthermore he wrote now and then in the Economisch-Statistische Bladen, among others in the numbers of 24 November 1920, 2 March 1921 and 12 April 1922, and an article "Verschillende geldvormen" in "Economische Opstellen, aangeboden aan Prof. Dr. C. A. Verrijn Stuart", Haarlem, de Erven F. Bohn N.V. 1931.

Finally there appeared from him in February 1932: "The Value of Money, a Discussion of various Monetary Theories, and an Exposition of the Yield Theory of the Value of Money", London P. S. King & Son, LTD., Orchard House, Westminster, 1932, which book was reviewed in the "Economic Journal" of May 1932, by Prof. Ant. van Gijn in the "Weltwirtschaftliches Archiv" of July 1933 and by Prof. G. M. Verrijn Stuart in "De Economist" of January 1934.

INTRODUCTION

The Problem of the Value of Money

The owner of a sum of money can purchase goods (or services) with it. At any given moment the prices in money differ for the different goods among themselves, according as these different goods have a higher or a lower exchange value. In course of time the prices of goods inter se vary continually — some goods become comparatively dearer, others cheaper. But it may also occur that the prices of goods in general rise or fall. Although even then the variations of the prices for the different species are not the same, the modifications are such that on an average a rise or fall is observed. The level of prices is then said to have risen or fallen.

The modifications of the level of prices have, from early times, been the subject of the researches of economists. These researches are therefore directed to the variations of the level of prices, hence to the variations of the exchange value of the money. Until quite recently endeavours were made almost exclusively to find an explanation of the variations in the exchange value of money.

Not until the end of the last century — and even more so in this century — has the problem of the money value been clearly set forth in an entirely different form, though indications of this new way of formulation were already met with here and there in earlier writers.

This modified and infinitely more exact formulation is based on the thought that there would also be a problem of the value of money if no fluctuations of the price level occurred. For then, too, the fact would have to be accounted for that for a definite quantity of money a definite quantity of commodities can be purchased. In other words, how is it to be explained that at a given moment the level of prices is as it is, and not, for instance, twice as high or twice as low? This is the modern conception of the money problem, and thus it will be treated in this book.

In this general proposition of the problem the question is even disregarded — at least for the present — whether, after all, money has value in the same way as the goods we consume or which are serviceable to us in the production. For some authors deny this, and their considerations may also be taken as falling under the general formulation of the problem — viz. what is the reason that for a quantity of money a quantity of goods can be bought, and what factors — lying on the money side — determine this?

Money presents various problems. In this book the value problem will be exclusively treated, together with the other questions inseparably connected with it, as that of the functions of money and that of its utility.

In the first section the theories of a number of writers, who have brought the value problem either nearer to or further from its solution, will be successively treated. In view of the immense volume of the material in the literature on money, only a limited choice from such writers was possible. Instead of trying to come anywhere near completeness, I will only endeavour to place a number of theories side by side, and over against each other, each with the qualities characteristic of it. In doing so my purpose is, on the one hand, to define the problem as closely as possible; for from the critical discussion of the characteristic features of each theory follows — sometimes just where this theory falls short — a closer specification of that side of the problem that was not brought to a complete solution. On the other hand, this discussion of different theories can provide both a justification for and an elucidation of my attempt to give a solution of my own. This attempt at a solution of the problem is dealt with in the second section of the book.

This is not the first publication of the value-theory of money drawn up by me. In 1918 I gave the first very concise and schematical exposition of it in a treatise published in the Dutch language, entitled: De waarde der ruilmiddelen (The Value of Media of Exchange).

I gladly avail myself of this opportunity to express my indebtedness to Miss J. D. van der Waals, who with me provided the translation of my book.”

JOHANNA GREIDANUS née Van den Briel
we express our sincere thanks.
On behalf of all,
TJ. GREIDANUS.
Amsterdam, November 1934."

A photographic portrait of her is included among the portraits.

An illustration of the coat of arms of the family "Van den Briel" is also added here; its heraldic description is as follows:

blue, with three turned silver crescents, 2 and 1.

Crest: a crescent from the shield.

Torse and Mantling: blue and silver.

Motto: "Rather Turkish than Popish."

Anna Elisabeth Greidanus

Mr. Jelle Henri Aleva

She was born 27 November 1892 at Leiden, as appears from the family announcement below:

> ". Delivered of a GIRL
> J. M. M. GREIDANUS—DUNNEWOLD
> Leiden, 27 Nov. 1892."

In 1913 she obtained the diploma for piano of the Ned. Toonkunstenaars-Vereeniging, continued this study at Brussels under Arthur de Greef, and in 1914 established herself as a piano teacher at Haarlem, while continuing her studies under Willem Andriessen.

A photographic portrait of her is included among the portraits.

MARRIED:

Mr. JELLE HENRI ALEVA, 22 December 1916 at Heemstede, as appears from the following family announcement:

> "Married:
> Mr. J. H. ALEVA
> and
> A. E. GREIDANUS
> Mr. and Mrs.
> ALEVA—GREIDANUS
> thank, also on behalf of the families on both sides, for the many marks of interest received at their marriage.
> Haarlem, 22 Dec. '16."

Mr. Jelle Henri Aleva was born 24 November 1890 at Lobith (municipality of Herwen en Aerdt), as son of Pier Aleva, later Inspector of Direct Taxes at 's-Gravenhage, and Jacoba Pietronella Voerman.

In 1908 he passed the final examination of the Gymnasium at Leiden, where he went on to study Law and on 20 December 1916 took his doctorate on "Theses" as Mr. in Law. In the printed Album Studiosorum Academiæ Lugduno Batavæ MDCCCLXXV—MCMXXV his entry in column 193 reads as follows:

> "Rector Magn. Dr. J. Verdam.
> (21 Sept. 1908—9 July 1909).
> 1908
> 22 Sept. . . . . .
> 5906. Jelle Henri Aleva, Lobith. 17, Law."

During this study he took a number of examinations in Bookkeeping, was mobilized in August 1914, was appointed by Royal Decree of 27 November 1914, N° 30, with effect from 7 November following, reserve 2nd Lieutenant, and with effect from 1 September 1916 was appointed temporary Assistant Inspector of Direct Taxes at Amsterdam.

From the last-named office he obtained discharge with effect from 7 September 1917, on which day he embarked for Ned. Oost-Indië, in order to accept a post held out to him with the N.V. "Handelsvereeniging Amsterdam". Having arrived at Soerabaja on 4 December 1917, he worked there for 5 years at the head office of the said Institution, latterly more particularly as adviser in tax matters. On 4 December 1922 he left for Europe on 6 months' leave, after the expiry of which he asked for discharge with effect from 4 June 1923, but again entered the service of the same company temporarily in November 1923. In order to carry out a special commission he once more left for Soerabaja — this time without his family — and returned to the mother country at the beginning of June 1924.

In the same month he came as a volunteer clerk to the N.V. Hollandsche Koopmansbank at Amsterdam, where he entered service on 1 October 1924, and on 1 November 1924 he settled there, Valeriusstraat 51, which house he has continued to occupy up to the present. He worked at the said Bank, latterly as general holder of power of attorney, until 1 February 1928, with effect from which date he had asked for discharge, on account of the changed character of the institution, which had become a part of the Kreuger [1]-Concern.

[1] The Swedish match magnate, who, when his swindles threatened to come to light, took his own life at Paris.

Afterwards he devoted himself to the development of the Nederlandsch Instituut voor Efficiency at Amsterdam, initially as its administrator and after 1 June 1930 as co-editor of that Institute's journal: "Korte Mededeelingen". In this journal a large number of articles — mostly unsigned — journal reviews and book reviews by his hand are to be found in the field of business and technical economics; likewise in the weekly "Vraag en Aanbod" for the year 1931.

With effect from 2 May 1932 he entered service under a labour contract with the Rijksdienst ter Uitvoering van de Zuiderzeesteunwet, established at Amsterdam, in which service he was appointed with effect from 1 January 1934 as Accountant and later acted as Secretary.

By Royal Decree of 10 July 1926, N° 166, he was granted honourable discharge at his own request as reserve 1st Lieutenant.

In 1923 and 1924 a few articles by him appeared in the field of the Indies taxes in the monthly "de Naamlooze Vennootschap".

A photographic portrait of him is included among the portraits.

The family to which Mr. Jelle Henri Aleva belongs is a Frisian family, originating from Joure, where various of its members practised the art of clockmaking[1].

457 DR. HERMAN THEODORUS GREIDANUS (VAN WIMERSMA GREIDANUS)

Line of descent: Gerhardus 277[II] ← Tjardus 181 ← Ausonius 101[II] ← Tzeerd 57 ← Ausonius 18 ← Tjardus 5[II] ← Johannes 2 ← Tjaerd 1[I]

He was born 16 June 1895 at Amsterdam, according to the following family announcement:

> " Delivered of a SON
> J. M. M. GREIDANUS—DUNNEWOLD.
> Amsterdam, 16 June 1895."

Herman Theodorus Greidanus obtained in 1914 at Leiden the certificate of the final examination of the Gymnasium. After that he studied Medicine at Leiden and at Amsterdam. In the printed Album Studiosorum Academiæ Lugduno Batavæ MDCCCLXXV—MCMXXV his enrolment in column 251 reads as follows:

(Latin) "Rector Magn. Dr. J. M. JANSE.
(21 Sept. 1914—9 July 1915).
1914 . . . . . .
24 Sept.
7681. Herman Theodorus Greidanus, Amsterdam.
19 Medicine."

In 1922 he was promoted to physician at Leiden, after which, as a fellow of the Rockefeller Foundation, he studied for another half year at "the School of Hygiene and Public Health" of the "Johns Hopkins University" at Baltimore. In the "Catalogue of the Trustees, Faculty, Holders of Honorary Degrees, and Students, Graduates and Nongraduates", compiled by W. Norman Brown, one finds concerning him on page 139 the following entry:

> "GREIDANUS, HERMAN THEODORUS [hyg 22–23] MD[2] / Univ. Leyden 22; Univ. Amsterdam 21. Phys. Catharijnesingel 25 Utrecht Netherlands."

Of this stay in America he gave, with Dr. C. van Dam, some impressions in the article: "De Rockefeller-Foundation te New-York en de School of Hygiene te Baltimore" in the Nederl. Tijdschrift voor Geneeskunde, 37th Year, 1923, First Half N° 26.

After his studies he settled as a physician at Utrecht, where he now lives, Catharijnesingel 54.

At the publisher's request he revised the 3rd edition (1926) of "Mijn Systeem" by J. P. Muller, former Lieutenant of the Danish Engineers, and prepared a Dutch edition of "Mijn systeem voor Baby's en kinderen tot zes jaar" by the same author, both of which booklets were published by Seyffardts Boek- en Muziekhandel at Amsterdam.

Furthermore he wrote:

in the Nederlandsch Tijdschrift voor Geneesk.: "De opleiding van Hygiënisten (69th Year 1925, Second Half N° 19); "Paidiatros, een Platonische dialoog" (72nd Year 1928, Second Half N° 48);

[1] See the article "De uurwerkmakerskunst in Friesland" by Nanne Ottema in the 27th volume of the journal "De Vrije Fries" of 1924.

in the "Geneeskundige Gids": "Impressions of the 10th International Congress for Psychology at Copenhagen 22—27 Aug." (10e Jaargang, Parts 39 and 40, 23 and 30 September 1932); and in the "Algemeen Nederlands Tijdschrift voor Wijsbegeerte en Psychologie": "The Energy-sources of intellectual action" (Part 2, 1935).

On 7 March 1933 he took his doctorate at the State University of Utrecht as Doctor of Medicine on the thesis: "Instinct and Character, an attempt at a characterology on an instinct-psychological basis" (and some 10 theses), printed at the Book- and Art-printing house of Vonk & C° at Zeist.

Of this dissertation, which numbers 136 pages, there follow here the foreword, one of the short chapters in full, a "conclusion" and a table of contents:

> "The kindness and helpfulness, Most Learned Bouman, Highly Esteemed Promotor, with which you have met me, a stranger at the University of Utrecht, moves me to great gratitude towards you. While at first I feared that the subject to which I wished to devote myself scarcely belonged to the field of the Psychiatrist and Neurologist, I was able to experience more and more how much Psychology in particular also had your interest and how great your reading was in this field too. My desire not to lose sight of clinical psychiatry too much you moreover met by the hospitality which you granted me at the patient-discussions in your clinic.
>
> The help of the late prof. Grünbaum, whom psychology lost at the beginning of the preparation of this thesis, I have sorely missed.
>
> That you too, Most Learned Roels, were willing to give your attention to this dissertation, has filled me with great joy. For your guidance and the numerous hints as to literature to be consulted I am very grateful to you.

> You also, Most Learned Rümke, who have made such a thorough study especially of characterology, I owe much thanks for the important indications you have given me."

"CHAPTER VI.

Instinct-psychological characterology: qualities of the instincts, "sentiments" within the instincts, the acquiredness of character, the characterogram.

If we attempt to build up a characterology on instinct-psychology as a basis, we must of necessity start from the instincts as the primal elements of the psyche. Now, apart from the cognitive, conative and affective differences of the instincts among themselves, one can attempt to recognize and describe certain characteristics in an instinct in general.

Mc Dougall already indicates three characteristics. An instinct can be strong or weak, its action can be brief or lasting, and in the third place constant or else easily influenced by accompanying circumstances. These two last distinctions are more or less akin to that between the primary and secondary function of Otto Gross (Heijmans). According to these characteristics one can compare instincts on quite different footings. One can compare them among themselves, by noting for instance that the nutritive instinct is stronger than the instinct of curiosity. One can compare the same instinct by the same standard in different animal species, noting that the one species has a considerably stronger fighting instinct than the other. For our subject, however, it is of the greatest importance that a particular instinct can differ in different individuals in strength, in durability and in constancy.

Mc Dougall thinks that the degree of these characteristics always concerns all instincts equally; that a person is therefore constant, no matter which impulse is in play. It seems to us, however, neither desirable nor permissible to assume this. The supposition even becomes very difficult when one considers that some impulses are to a certain extent opposed to one another: he who has a strong fighting instinct will in general have a weak instinct of flight, that is, in ordinary terms: someone with a militant nature is usually not afraid. However this may be, as long as it has not been shown that strength, durability and constancy concern all instincts equally, the only correct way is to recognize these characteristics in each instinct separately.

Meanwhile it is by no means certain that we have thereby exhausted the possibilities of qualifying the instincts. Thus one can imagine that in some persons an instinct is more easily set going than in others. This is something other than the strength of an instinct. For some people are brought to action with difficulty, but once the impulse has been aroused, it works powerfully, and possibly also lastingly and constantly.

These particular peculiarities of the instincts might be regarded as a new biological superposition upon the instincts — themselves also biological quantities. If one insists on maintaining the word temperament, one could perhaps best place it in this connection.

One thinks here also of metabolic and endocrine processes. Indeed, even the instincts as such offer numerous endocrinological points of contact. We deliberately pass these by, not because they are of subordinate importance, on the contrary surprising vistas open up here. But in this field there are as yet more question-marks than signposts. A discussion in fitting proportion to the importance of the matter is not well possible within this framework[1].

Finally an instinct can, besides by the four peculiarities mentioned above, in a particular person also be characterized by the objects on which it is chiefly directed in that person. We have already seen in chapter V that every instinct is directed to a particular kind of objects, but that within an instinct "sentiments" can arise, lasting, conative-cognitive-affective dispositions with regard to particular objects.

To give an example: when someone is a lover of animals, that means nothing else than that his protective instinct, his "tender impulse", is directed in particular towards animals, that within his protective instinct a "sentiment" for animals has been formed.

In this last case we have before us a clearly acquired quality, and thus we come imperceptibly to the question whether character and the character traits are innate or acquired. We have already seen that Ewald declares character to be innate with just as much conviction as that with which Adler holds it to be acquired. One could devote a psychological study in itself to the question how it is possible that on this point serious difference of opinion can still exist. In part this difference of opinion undoubtedly rests on a terminological misunderstanding. If one regards character, as Ewald does, mainly as the sum (or the integration) of a number of fundamental individual-psychological qualities, then one comes more easily to declaring this primal character, as one might call it, to be innate, and to distinguishing from it the character as it presents itself to us as the acquired character, which has formed itself out of the primal character under the influence of the experiences of life. If, however, one uses the word character, as we do here, for the totality of a person's psychic qualities, then it is incomprehensible how one can, with Adler, wish to declare all of this to be acquired.

It has indeed been said that the child is a blank sheet of paper, but that the paper may differ; yet in that case one takes back with the one hand part of what one had given with the other.

Where in the somatic sphere we see how all sorts of qualities and functions are innate, yet can be strengthened by exercise, harmed by disuse and by numerous other detrimental influences, it is obvious to imagine the relations in the psychic field correspondingly. One might dispute whether a person's constitution is entirely innate; a person's somatic status praesens is without doubt the function of innate qualities and of the influences which have acted upon them. So it is with the psychic status praesens, for by the innate we understand precisely that which has determined how the individual, in view of the influences that have acted upon him, has become what he is.

That the instincts themselves are innate will hardly meet with contradiction, but this by no means excludes their being susceptible to influence. The possibility of strengthening by exercise seems to be confirmed by experience. Even the very young child cries when something does not please it. This crying should not so much be understood as the expression of an unpleasant state, but rather as an attempt to alter that state, as the expression of an impulse: the instinct of calling for help. Now it is well known how easily one can "spoil" a child, which means nothing other than: how easily the instinct of calling for help is strengthened by exercise.

We have remarked that character, the personality as it presents itself, is the function of the innate qualities and the experiences of life; and since the personality is always known to us only in part, and the circumstances of life can be influenced by us only to a slight degree and are moreover known to us only very fragmentarily, we shall for the time being have to entertain no great illusions about the possibility of tracing what is innate.

When one reads the writings of the advocates of the theory which teaches that the whole of character is acquired, one gets the impression that they have partly been driven to this doctrine by their good hearts. For they cannot bear that, for instance, the criminal or the psychopath should irrevocably have been born with such a character disposition; a certain characterological fatalism is intolerable to them.

Since in recent years these abnormal characters everywhere claim attention, and since characterology will undoubtedly have to find a useful field of application precisely in this direction, it is important to note that, even if one does not adopt the one-sided standpoint of the total acquiredness of character, such a characterological fatalism is by no means necessary. For we may not only assume that the instincts are susceptible to influence, but in addition the "sentiments" are wholly acquired, and how exceedingly important a role precisely these play for character will appear again and again. The assumption, therefore, of certain innate character elements need by no means discourage us in this respect.

If we once knew a particular person completely, we could draw up a characterogram in such a way that we placed all the instincts one beneath the other and after each instinct filled in figures, from 0, say, to 10, in the columns of strength, durability, constancy and of the ease with which the instinct is set going. In a fifth column one could then fill in, after each instinct, the objects towards which it is mainly directed.

Such a characterogram would still not be complete, yet it would nevertheless already teach us much about the person in question. However, it would probably say little to us. We should feel the need to infer from these dry and dead figures living character traits, which tell us more. Moreover: in order to fill in the scheme we should have no other data at our disposal than precisely the character traits, for it is their names that we are accustomed to use for describing persons.

Therefore the instinct-psychological interpretation of the character traits must be a principal component of our instinct-psychological characterology.

The above-mentioned characterogram would also have this disadvantage, that it would be as it were only a snapshot of the development and continual change of character.

About the genesis of the characteristics of the instincts, the circumstances as a result of which, for instance, a particular instinct has developed strongly, it would teach us nothing."

"CONCLUSION.

With the analysing and interpreting of character traits in the spirit of the examples given above one can of course go on almost ad infinitum. The one quality will be reducible to instinct-operations to a greater, the other to a lesser degree. Least of all, often not at all, will this be possible with those qualities which Klages sums up under the stuff, the material of character, the "Begabungen" and "Talenten", which qualities, however, tend to "characterize" the person but little. If one adopts the method followed above, the reduction of other, untreated character traits more or less follows of itself.

The instinct-psychological typology and the instinct-psychological interpretation of the character traits together undoubtedly form the core of hormic characterology. It is, however, far from the case that we > have been able to subject even this core to a discussion that even remotely approaches completeness. The field is very extensive; everywhere there is still opportunity to go more deeply into matters, and we have had to limit ourselves again and again. In addition, the two fields treated by no means exclusively attract the light which hormic psychology can shed upon characterology. In chapter I we listed a few directions of characterological research in general. We mentioned pedagogical and hereditary problems, the characterology of the two sexes and of various ages, influences of nationality and race, of environment, of profession, and conversely we also think of the problems of the choice of a profession; then we further mention characteropathology, the working out of which will in turn be able to be fruitful for normal characterology as well. For judging the possibility of influencing certain character traits, also in adults, the instinct-psychological way of viewing things is likewise of importance; if, for example, an existing trait shows itself to be a sentiment-trait, then as such it is susceptible of being influenced. Now all these fields lend themselves to consideration from the instinct-psychological point of view, but all this lies far beyond our scope. Only when this consideration too has taken place will one be able with more right to say what hormic psychology is worth for characterology."

By Royal Decree of 5 March 1929, N° 47, consent was given that Herman Theodorus Greidanus and his lawful descendants should change the family name “Greidanus” into that of “Van Wimersma Greidanus”, whereby, alongside the family names “Pluim Greidanus” and “Idema Greidanus”[1], a third family name “Van Wimersma Greidanus” was brought into being. The said consent was requested in order to rescue from oblivion the long since extinct family name “(Van) Wimersma”, which was used by Yttie Pieters (van) Wimersma, the wife of the first “Greydanus”, Prof. Dr. Johannes Greydanus at Franeker, and which she, as we have seen on page 110, derived from the “Wymersma-sate” at Marssum, of which she had obtained in ownership a seventh part of the half from her grandmother on her mother's side, Tyeets Jansdr.

Catharina Elisabeth Constance Alida Esther Jaeger was born 12 September 1902 at Leiden, as daughter of Dirk Jaeger, first Director of the N.V. Katoenvlechterij formerly Jaeger & Co, later Agent of “De Nederlandsche Bank” there, and Anna de Monchy.

A photographic portrait of her is included among the portraits.

A genealogy of the “Jaeger” family appears in the 8th volume, 1917, of “Nederland's Patriciaat”, with a small supplement to it in the 13th volume, 1923, and in the 35th Volume (1922) of the “Deutsches Geschlechterbuch” (Genealogisches Handbuch Bürgerlichen Familien), which last genealogy was compiled by Prof. Dr. F. M. Jaeger at Groningen.

An illustration of the arms of the “Jaeger” family is added here as well; the heraldic description of it is as follows:

“Jaeger”

per bend sinister of black and silver, with two hunting horns placed in the direction of the bend, counterchanged, the upper one reversed.

Crest: an issuing man clothed in black blowing a post horn.

Torse and Mantling: silver and black.

b. Bergen op Zoom, 4 May 1874 · son of Pieter Jelle, Idema Greidanus (N° 286) and Anna Maria Bax

He was born 4 May 1874 at Bergen op Zoom, at the home of his mother's parents, to which birth the following family announcements relate:

". On the 4th of May 1874 at Bergen op Zoom Mrs. A. M. IDEMA GREIDA-

". Mr. and Mrs. IDEMA GREIDANUS—the birth of their son.

Heerlen and Bergen op Zoom, 16 May 1874."

He attended the Gymnasium at Leiden from Sept. 1887 until July 1893 and in the latter year had himself enrolled at Leiden as a student of law, as appears from the following entry in column 94 of the printed Album Studiosorum Academiæ Lugduno-Batavæ MDCCCLXXV—MCMXXV:

"Rector Magn. Mr. S. J. FOCKEMA ANDREAE.
(19 Sept. 1893—18 Sept. 1894).
1893. . . . . .
25 Sept.
2863. Johan Ausonius Idema Greidanus, Bergen op Zoom.
19, Law." [1]

After a few years, however, he gave up the study of law, because he felt more drawn to art. He wrote several art reviews in the daily "De Telegraaf" and in the weekly "De (groene) Amsterdammer", while in the January 1906 issue of the monthly "De XX[e] Eeuw" (Editor-in-chief L. van Deyssel) an article by him is found about the English draughtsman William Nicholson. His neurasthenic state of health, however, soon condemned him to complete inactivity; he now lives at 's-Gravenhage, Juliana van Stolbergplein 16.

Here follows the above-mentioned article from "De XX[e] Eeuw" in full:

"WILLIAM NICHOLSON
by
J. A. IDEMA GREIDANUS.

William Nicholson occupies a very special place among the English draughtsmen of the present day. He is not only extraordinary as an artist, on account of the value of some of his drawings; the way in which he draws, his style, is also remarkable.

His manner of drawing differs entirely from that of other Englishmen. There is a connection between the manner, the style of drawing and the character of the draughtsman and the nature and qualities of the race to which he belongs. In the style of the English draughtsmen of recent times one finds again the style, the character of the present-day English people and especially of the cultivated Englishman of today. That style is remarkable for its straight line, for its lack of flourish, its refined and light slenderness and for its severe dignity. These are the most striking characteristics in the manner of drawing of the modern English draughtsmen and illustrators.

[1] The Album erroneously has: Antonius and Krommenie.

The style in which a drawing is made is something external, it is a manner of execution, a way of handling, and in general it bears no relation to the artistic value of a drawing. Only through artistry does a style, a certain manner of drawing, acquire value. But this style of the English, this style of straightness, is so good precisely because, apart from the feeling for art, it can lead to such good results. It is a very good style. There is a tradition of good draughtsmen in England. Charles Keene, Raven Hill, Armour, draughtsmen of Punch, are examples of good illustrative art. There is no paper with consistently such good drawings. There is more of life in them and more art than in all the English art papers together.

Nicholson, however, draws in an entirely different manner. His way of drawing shows none of the qualities of this style. It contains older elements. One might call it an old-English procedure. His manner of drawing is also one which in itself is of no value in art. This style of Nicholson's is not to be recommended. It contains no artistic components. It is heavy and difficult to handle in art and by itself leads to no result at all. Without a very high and individual feeling nothing good can be achieved in such a way of working.

But Nicholson has indeed achieved that. His drawing style has not remained a mere manner, is not something external; the work in this style has in its best expressions become high artistry.

His Almanac is a book full of beauty. This is an extraordinary and wonderful book. It deserves to be reprinted every year for a century. There is nothing that resembles this picture book. January, February, April, May, July and December are almost equally important. And his portrait of Mc Kinley is extraordinarily good. I do not believe that there exists anything in English painting that surpasses this drawing of Mc Kinley.[1]

Nicholson, that is the primeval style of the race, those are the oldest elements, that is the broad heaviness of the ancient inhabitants of the land.

The noblest beauty of the old country sometimes shows itself in this man.

Except in his best productions, Nicholson's work is not the very highest in art. Nicholson does not live at the level of the highest conception of painting. It is the labour of a sometimes highly brilliant talent, not really of a genius, but of more than a talent. The chief argument I can advance for this assertion is that the simplicity of this style is not a perfect one. Nicholson's manner of drawing belongs to impressionism, is one of the possibilities by which one can draw impressionistically. Within impressionism one might call it a single-line style. Now this is a form of the greatest conceivable simplification.

The manner of drawing of impressionism in general is one which is sometimes called, by way of explanation, synthesis, and is said to express life and movement, but in this sense it is no synthesis. The manner of drawing of impressionism is in no way a synthesis of the forms of nature. This is not a correct explanation. Impressionism is an entirely different form.

The modern painting of impressionism has broken with the classical form of nature. It has set it aside. In general it does not consider that form an artistic one. It does not consider that form the highest in art. It conceives the form of art as a different one. According to this painting the highest form is a form which, apart from having its ground in that of nature, is wholly independent of it. It is an entirely new and an arbitrary form. It is a form such as the artist may conceive it according to his feeling, and he conceives it more beautiful than nature. Nature is not the same as art. Nature has a fixed and unchangeable form. The form of nature is single-lined and closed. Nature has a form in which the highest artistic capacity cannot express itself. Regarded from that capacity, that form is too limited. It is not at the same level, it is below that capacity of feeling. Its outward appearance arouses conceptions of still greater beauty. The natural form does not modify itself according to changing sensitivity. It does not possess the vibrations and tremblings, it does not touch the actual essence of art. It does not possess the warmth of feeling, nor the most profound beauties. It is a rigid and lifeless dogma. It does not contain within itself the most beautiful lines of the highest feeling of painting. It does not possess the greatest beauties of which it arouses the imagination. Those imaginings and conceptions are endlessly variable and they require an endless material. Now this is impressionism. Infinite in its means is impressionism, an infinite material it is, and endless are the beauties of its lines. Endlessly changing in form is impressionism, it is an infinite number of forms. Impressionism, that is the command of all lines. Art wants to command all lines, not a portion of them. In unlimited freedom and in absolute arbitrariness impressionism rules over lines and colours. It is in fact very simple. Impressionism is the art of composing lines beautifully, it is the highest conception of colour and line, the capacity that makes nature into art. On the basis of nature the painter composes lines and colours with no other aim than the highest beauty. His only limitation is the subject to be represented. There must be a recognisable representation, that is his only limitation.

There is much in nature that the drawing and painting of impressionism cannot use. However it were modified, it would harm the beauty of the representation. Impressionism omits this and thus simplifies. But impressionism also modifies the form of nature. On the ground of nature it composes an entirely new form. Usually, in actual and pure linear art, it now substitutes several lines for one line of nature which it wishes to represent, for the single-lined form of nature. But there are also modes of representation possible within impressionism which modify the basic form into other single-lined forms, which always render a line of nature by one other line. Such is Nicholson's manner of drawing. This impressionism of one line is the greatest possible simplicity. The least is too much and weakens the greatness and power of this style. In "An Almanac" and in "London Types" I shall indicate more closely what I mean.

Almanac. London 1898. Ordinary edition.

Hunting January.

The man on the horse is very good. If I cover the rider and the horizon, what remains displays a sensitivity not so great. They are boldly drawn horses, but they are not drawn in the highest and warmest feeling; the small lines, chiefly in the horse's head below the eye, do not belong in the large and broad style of the whole, they are not of the same value in it. But even though I can imagine the horses as a whole still more alive and purer, this is nevertheless first-rate art, because so important a part, the rider and the background and the colour, are so good.

[1] Some years ago Nicholson made a few drawings of well-known Americans, which appeared in the American paper Harpers Weekly. These portraits too show a high conception of drawing and of painting.

Coursing. February.

The dogs in the foreground, which represent the chief thing in this beautifully coloured drawing, are for me not the most important and most beautiful part of it. The depiction of these dogs is very good, they have the value of a very good illustration, but for that very reason they are still too much nature and too little art. It is not the highest. For me the chief thing is the background, the man on the horse. The dogs, in their careful precision, with their natural and illustrative correctness, stand on a lower artistic plane than this. They are still somewhat of a picture in comparison with the horseman. And precisely for that reason the draughtsman has made this, probably without his intention, so particularly good, because in drawing this background he set his subject less strongly before his eyes, but had his attention more freely detached from nature.

Racing. March.

The execution in this print is smaller and shows no high and pure feeling. It is without great simplification and full of petty little lines. These bits of line and little dots weaken the force of expression. In this Nicholson does not show himself at the greatest height and simplicity in his style, and the representation is inferior to the dogs of the previous one. The background too is of no great treatment. And the colours, of a not so good harmony, are not beautifully applied. But the conception, which is recognizable behind the manner of this application, is a very good one. The line of the harness of the foremost horse is too symmetrical.

Boating. April,

leads to the same remarks as to manner of execution as January and February. The horse, the leg of the rider and the foreground are somewhat less good than the rest. This rest is very good. The little cloud line alone is already excellent line art.

Fishing. May.

This art too shows the highest beauty. It comes close to perfection. It could, yes, have been expressed somewhat more grandly, but it is extraordinary to have made this, as a whole indeed the best achievement of this book.

Cricket. June.

The blue colour outline of the ugly patches of sky is bad because it is not of equal strength to the black stronger outlines. This is a fault of artistic feeling.

If I did not already know it, I see from the lines which together form this drawing what Nicholson wants in painting. This depiction has in its lines the marks of a beauty attained with effort, of an artistic conception carried through laboriously.

Archery. July, is, like May, very good. Only the outline of the gown is too stiff.

Coaching, August,

is a very good second-rate plate, but it does not touch the feeling that lies above the illustrative.

Shooting, September.

This work contains no deeper artistic feeling. It stands at the level of German drawing and print art. The hard black and also the poorer green give a superficial and bad gloss. It is the least good in the book.

Usually the black in Nicholson's works has little gloss. It mostly does not shine annoyingly. Now the gloss, the tone of the black in a reproduction, in the printing of a drawing or illustration, is, like the nature and the gloss of the paper, one of the very most important questions that exist. This gloss is a very bad one. The tone, however, the quality of the colour gloss in general of a work of art belongs to the highest domain of painting and is of the most difficult and finest feeling. The smallest differences of tone have consequences in art.

Golf. October.

This is good art, but the simplification could still have been carried further. I can imagine something still more beautiful, of a more vibrant and more living looseness. The drawing of little lines and blades of grass in the shadows and the whole depiction is not the greatest and most sensitive and freest manner of expression.

If the beautifully hard blue of the sea were not closed off by a black horizon line, that would be less good.

Boxing. November.

The man on the right is much better than the other. The figure on the left is represented in a small and illustrative way. There is no high concern for the artistic form. The face of this man shows lines of little value; that of the cricket player in June was very good. Every little line of the composition of that face was very beautiful and strongly felt. But in this face and body there is no mastery over the form, no mastery of nature and of the subject. It has arisen entirely in lower illustrative concerns.

December, in a somewhat unusual line composition, is good.

This book does not suggest what precious content it holds. The drawing of the cover is of lower rank. The line from the nose to the eyebrow is primitive.

The title page too is of little significance.

London Types.

This print work is a second-rate collection with good work in it.

The Horse Guards is bad and the poorest of these types. The background and the helmet are less ugly.

Kensington is of serious power, but not simplified enough, nor composed in very beautiful lines.

The Tower is well done on a lower plane (a disfigurement is the little blue ball on the hat).

Trafalgar Square is, like Kensington, not of the highest order on account of the not most beautiful quality of the lines.

Hammersmith is a representation of lesser importance.

The principal figure of Rotten Row is very good. That there are two different shades of red in the face > diminishes the value insignificantly, but is an expression of a lower colour sense. The drawing of the glove, however, and of the two other figures is slight.

> Very good work is Newgate Street. The yellow in it is too strong.
> In Constitution Hill nature has been followed too elaborately in the precise head of the horse.
> Partly good is The City, and artful, a little too coloristic in colour.
> Wimbledon Common and Any Corner are two of the best productions. The figure of Wimbledon is fluently and excellently depicted, it is the highest expression of a lesser power, but not such good art as Any Corner. The latter print is of great weight, equal in rank to Newgate Street.
> Any Bar I rate less highly.
> The figure on the cover is not good as regards face and hands. They are full of small lines of a lesser mode of expression.
> These books were drawn by Nicholson as a xylographer. I do not believe that to any appreciable degree the reproduction is inferior to the work printed directly from the original wood blocks."

With page 625 have been included the sketch drawings of his parents which he made about 1897.

A photographic portrait of him has been included among the portraits.

He attended the Municipal H.B.S. with 5-year course at Leiden from Sept. 1890 to July 1895 and in September following enrolled as a student at the former Polytechnic School at Delft for the study of civil and of mechanical engineer, of which studies he soon abandoned the latter. After having been, during the holiday period of 1898, extraordinary overseer with the Rijkswaterstaat (state water management service) at the building of a barrier lock on the Dieze near 's-Hertogenbosch, he obtained in 1899 the Diploma for Civil Engineer. On 1 November of that same year he was appointed Engineer of the Rijkscommissie voor Graadmeting en Waterpassing (State Commission for Geodesy and Levelling), at Delft[1]. As engineer of that Commission he was engaged, under its Secretary Prof. Ir. Hk. J. Heuvelink at Delft, on the primary triangulation; with and under the Engineer Ir. N. Wildeboer he carried out calculations, made measurements of angles between principal and intermediate points at Urk and Enkhuizen and centring measurements at Hulst, Wijckel and De Lemmer, and did further smaller tasks at Blokzijl, Harderwijk, Kampen, Kuinre, Leeuwarden, Oldeboorn, Schoorl, Westerland, Westkapelle and Workum. As this post was too little technical for him, he asked for discharge, which was honourably granted him as of 1 September 1900. He did not succeed in finding a new post quickly, for only as of 10 March 1902 was he appointed overseer in temporary service with the Rotterdamsche Tramweg Maatschappij at Rotterdam, Director H. F. Guichart. On 1 November following he was promoted to Engineer in temporary service with the construction of the steam tram lines of that Company on the South Holland islands, from which post honourable discharge was granted him at his request as of 1 January 1906, in connection with his appointment as District Inspector of the Railway Services. At the Rotterdamsche Tramweg-Maatschappij he was, under the Chief of the Technical Service Ir. H. van 't Hoogerhuys, chiefly engaged on the construction of the lines: Middeldijk—Zwijndrecht, Blaaksche Dijk—Strijen, Rotterdam—Hoogvliet, Spijkenisse—Hellevoetsluis, Spijkenisse—Oostvoorne, and of the lines on Goeree and Overflakkee. The work consisted mainly in drawing up expropriation documents, plans, specifications and estimates, making surveys, levellings and layings-out, and supervising the execution. By Royal Decree of 27 November 1905, N° 56, and of 4 December 1905, N° 30, he was appointed District Inspector of the Railway Services as of 1 January 1906. As such he was charged with the daily supervision of the Railways: as of 1 January 1906 in the 1st District with station at Leeuwarden, as of 1 April 1907 in the 9th District with station at Maastricht, and as of 1 November 1910 in the 12th District with station at 's-Gravenhage. The 1st District comprised the railways: Harlingen—Groningen, Leeuwarden—Meppel, Leeuwarden—Stavoren (including the railway harbour at Stavoren) and the Noord-Friesche Locaalspoorwegen /Leeuwarden—Stiens—Tjummarum—Franeker/Harlingen, Stiens—Metslawier/; the 9th District the railways: Venlo—Maastricht, Venlo—Border (directions Straelen and Kaldenkirchen), Maastricht—Border (directions Hasselt and Aken), Maastricht—Border (direction Luik), Roermond—Border (directions Antwerpen and Gladbach), the local railway Sittard—Border direction Herzogenrath and the goods railway Heerlen—Schaesberg Mine Station, including the stations Venlo and Blerik and the Carriage Workshop at Blerik; and the 12th District the railways: Amsterdam C.S.—Rotterdam D.P., Haarlem—Zandvoort, Schiedam—Hoek van Holland, Leiden—Woerden, den Haag—Rotterdam Hofplein (Z.H.E.S.) with the connections to the section den Haag—Scheveningen Kurhaus and to the Ceintuurbaan at Rotterdam, the Steam Tramway den Haag—Scheveningen Strand (H.IJ.S.) and the goods railway Junction Delfshavensche Schie—Rotterdam-Right Bank of the Maas, including the station Haarlem and the Central Workshop at Haarlem. Since a somewhat poor understanding arose between him and some members of the Board of Supervision of the Railway Services, under which body the District Inspectors came, and since the proper performance of his post became too strenuous for him, he applied for discharge as of 1 April 1918, which was honourably granted him by Royal Decree of 28 February 1918, N° 24. During his period of service the Chairmen of the Board of Supervision of the Railway Services were successively: Mr. J. P. van Bosse, Ir. G. Rijperman, D. A. Kits van Heyningen and Ir. E. H. Stieltjes. After his discharge he remained settled as a private citizen without office at 's-Gravenhage, where he now lives at Juliana van Stolbergplein 17, while in the summer he stays at his villa "de Zeevonk" at Noordwijk aan Zee, Boerhaaveweg, an illustration of which is added hereafter.

[1] He then lived in the Municipality of Hof van Delft, later annexed by Delft.

A photographic portrait of him appears among the portraits included at the back.

Married:

Agatha Johanna Laan, 10 May 1906 at 's-Gravenhage, as appears from the family announcement below:

"Married:
M. R. IDEMA GREIDANUS C.-I.,
District Insp. of Railway Services
and
A. J. LAAN.
Den Haag, 10 May 1906.

Mr. and Mrs. IDEMA GREIDANUS-LAAN express, also on behalf of the families on both sides, their heartfelt thanks for the many tokens of interest received at their marriage."

Agatha Johanna Laan was born, as appears from the following family announcement, at Wormerveer 7 July 1881, as daughter of Cornelis Laan and Moertje Dekker:

" Delivered of a DAUGHTER M. LAAN—DEKKER.
Wormerveer, 7 July 1881."

Cornelis Laan was from 1868 to 1903 a member of the Firm Wessanen & Laan, operating rice husking mills, oil and flour mills at Wormerveer. The two following advertisements relating to this firm may be given a place here:

"By DEED executed on the 23rd of June 1868 before the Notary Mr. Meindert Donker, at Zaandijk, there has been entered into by the Gentlemen Remmert Laan, Jan Jacob Laan, Adriaan Laan, Cornelis Laan and Dirk Laan, all Merchants and Manufacturers at Wormerveer, a P A R T N E R S H I P, under the Firm W E S S A N E N AND L A A N, for the continuation of the trade of Manufacturers of Oil, Flour and husked grain products, with the trade both at home and abroad in Oil, Grain and Seeds and in related articles, both raw and manufactured, and the trade in Cheese, with all that pertains thereto, carried on under the same Firm by their late Father, Mr. Jan Laan.

This Partnership commenced on the 1st of June last, was entered into for an indefinite period and is established at Wormerveer.
The partner Remmert Laan alone has the right to sign for the Firm; for the taking or giving of money on deposit, the providing of sureties and the entering into of loans on security, however, the countersignature of at least two partners is required.
Mr. Donker, Notary."

"By Deed, executed on the 23rd of May 1884 before the undersigned Mr Meindert Donker, Notary at Zaandijk, by the gentlemen Remmert Laan, Adriaan Laan, Cornelis Laan and Dirk Laan, Merchants and Manufacturers, residing at Wormerveer, acting under the firm "W E S S A N E N & L A A N", it has been agreed by them, in amendment of the original provisions of their Partnership, that each of the partners shall have the right to > sign for the firm in all matters concerning the object of the Partnership.

> M. Donker, Notary."

A photographic portrait of her is included among the portraits.

A genealogy of the family "Laan", to which Cornelis Laan belongs, is included in the 12th volume /1921/22/ of "Nederland's Patriciaat". Furthermore, there appeared in the first part of a new series of the Zaanlandsch Jaarboek (for 1932), publisher P. Out at Koog aan de Zaan: "Zaansche Familiegeschiedenis (geslacht Laan)" by G. J. Honig.

Attached herewith is a representation of the family coat of arms of the said family "Laan", the heraldic description of which is as follows:

Bakels from Bouquetje Dogmatiek", and in the monthly "Nederland", in the November issue 1912 (65th Volume, issue XI) the contribution which follows hereafter in full:

"MEDITATION.

To Dr. C. H. S.[1]

ON BEAUTY, LOVE, WISDOM, GOODNESS AND FAITH.

BEAUTY.

As a child I was once laughed at, because I very carefully kissed the roses in our garden. I did not understand why I was mocked for it, for I found those roses so wondrously beautiful, and out of a natural impulse I knelt down and kissed them.

Later I worshipped the Beautiful in the whole of Creation. With joy I discovered the first daisy and I felt admiration for the whimsical refinement of a strange kind of orchid.

Everything that lived and was beautiful I loved dearly. —

I loved only, and most of all, Beauty in all her various expressions. I delighted in the Beauty of a beautiful face, and I delighted in the Beauty of a beautiful body. I worshipped more the simple blooming Beauty of a child of nature than the ethereal refinement of a big-city woman; I admired more the naked splendid forms of a Siamese Beauty than the grace of the arched lines of a slender European woman of the world.

I loved Beauty in all her various artistic expressions.

And I rejoiced because I saw so much Beauty, all around me in the whole of Creation, and all the while, and all the while I delighted in it .... until I saw that Beauty was not everything*, that Beauty alone was something without depth, that Beauty was so brittle, so perishable, and that Beauty could be soulless and bad.*

And I pondered — and I searched — and more than Beauty, I thought, is Love.

But still I always love Beauty dearly.

LOVE.

Everywhere it is grey and misty and everything is veiled as in a mystery. A thick veil hangs over trees and roads, a white vaporous haze spreads over the surface, as far as my eye reaches. Oh! how beautiful is that vagueness, that melting together of lines and fading of colours.

And I walk outside alone, wrapped in grey mists, and I delight in the beauty that caresses my eyes — and again that longing pervades me, that eternal longing, that undefined feeling, that hoping, always hoping, that now it will come! And I implore: "O God, that Love may be given to me. I feel so lonely, so very lonely. Always that intense longing tingles through me, that thirsting after love! Oh, might I love someone with my whole body and my whole soul."

False is emancipation! I do not wish to stand only on my own. I feel no urge to be independent of everyone! — Rather to be happy together with another, together with another to be independent, together with another to form one self-reliant whole. I hope, I long, ... I cannot imagine life otherwise than in one great love. Was I not born for love?

Everything lies in vagueness. Our future is a mystery and perhaps, perhaps I shall never be allowed to love .... never. There is weeping within me; it weeps there of sorrow. A slight tremor shakes through me. Slowly a salty tear glides down. It weeps there of the pain of sorrow, that that beautiful, that happy, that tender thing will not come, perhaps, never — will come.

It is May — oh glorious adored spring! Oh, divine nature, that makes everything live again. Oh! spring, you heal my wounds, you sweep away my melancholy! How you stir the blood, awaken new strength and emotions!

Now my eternal longing does not languish*, now it blossoms, now it glows and burns within me! Oh, that I may keep that zest for life, and oh, God, then give me that one thing besides .... Love:*

Oh, to love someone dearly, dearly, dearly with your whole body and your whole soul .... To kiss someone, to kiss .... A few tears flow. Is that from longing? I do not know. When I think of love, an emotion comes over me. My eyes close, and silently I pray: "O God, I beseech You, that Love may be given to me. Why may I not love? Why, why not I*? I am young and I am beautiful, and everything in me yearns for love, my soul and my body. I cannot imagine life without love. And I hope .... I long .... Oh! if only I could understand You, who guide my fate."*

It is a couple of years later.

My most ardent wish is fulfilled! An intense joy streams through me, and it rejoices exultantly in my soul, like a chirping bird's voice: I love, I love!

I walk on rose petals and bask in the radiance of the sun!

Oh! I did not know that Love was such a glorious thing; that love thrilled through your soul so deeply, that love so entirely governed your thoughts and deeds.

Nothing else exists for me. — I live — and I love .... That is everything*! I think of nothing else. If I think of anything else, it always relates to these two facts!*

Oh! how it rejoices within me. How it swells in me all day long with pent-up joy. How the thought of my Beloved warms me. I think of everything about him, of his whole being, of his beautiful eyes and of his soft voice, of his white hands and of his red mouth.

I see the glow of love brighten his face, I see happiness shine from his eyes, and I still hear his words sounding in my ears.

I always love him, when he is serious or silent, and I notice that something troubles him, or when he is cheerful and funny and overwhelms me with teasing. And I love him more and more every day. In the evening when I go to sleep, he is my last thought, and in the morning on waking his image is the first before my eyes.

I am happy, because I too make happy! Because I too see that he, my Beloved*, is happy through me. That makes me so self-satisfied and content. I am proud of his love, and want to be worthy of it. I grow, and flourish in his love for me, which I experience in everything about him. How it expresses itself in a thousand trifles, how it reveals itself again and again in various ways.*

Love is a feast. Love is a bliss. Love is that which never grows tiresome. Love is happiness.

I am so happy, I would not want to change places with anyone. When I am with him, I wish for nothing else. I love him with all my soul and all my body. Our souls merge in harmony and love, and there are moments of such supreme delight, of such complete blessedness, as I did not think possible on earth. Together we reach Nirvana, together we rise, and forget our own self through each other, together we climb ever higher and higher, and reach the sphere of the unconscious.

[1] Dr. C. H. Stratz, at the time a well-known gynaecologist at 's-Gravenhage (note of mine).

I grow, I blossom in his Love. My cheeks are tinted with a warm glow, and my eyes sparkle. I am more beautiful. How wonderful, to be beautiful for my Beloved! To be admired by him, to be adored, pampered and spoiled by him! For that is what I am! His cordiality and warmth overwhelm me. And I, who received love from no one, no one, I gulp it down, as a parched plant eagerly drinks in water. Then the emotion sometimes becomes too much for me, and softly a few salty tears flow; I nestle against his breast, for I feel so full, so happy .... and I weep.

He knows, he understands. He knows that it is his great love which overwhelms me, after having gone without love for so many years. He knows that happiness is sometimes too much for me; he knows that they are tears of gratitude and happiness.

Oh! I live physically and morally for that one love, and everything I do, I do out of love. Is it not the driving force of all that is beautiful and noble in me? Does it not spur me on to self-denial, sacrifice, indulgence and gentleness? Does it not awaken feelings that were hitherto unknown to me, and does it not kindle jealousy and envy in my soul?

What a glorious joy of life thrills through me, how I feel the blood streaming through my veins, and how glad I am to be alive and to love! How glad I am to be young and strong; for an unconscious strength has come to life in me, an unconscious strength born of love, able to defy everything, even the very very worst. And I am proud, I am undaunted, for I feel myself mighty and strong and I know: Love will conquer everything, everything.

Oh! those glorious summer evenings, when we flee the town! How we enjoy a magnificent sunset. How still and peaceful it is around us, only a rustling leaf or a startled rabbit breaks the solemn silence. The sun sinks to the horizon, its last rays die away — but with a brighter, more radiant glow happiness beams from his sparkling eyes. How fragrant is the underwood, how mild the air, how intoxicating the scent of the flowers, and how blissful it is now to love each other ....

Now wild and roaring like a rushing mountain stream, then again tender and soft as a smooth mirror of water, love reigns in our souls.

But always, always it is strong. Strong to fight, strong to conquer.

How we struggle to possess each other. How much I endure, how much I suffer, how much I withstand for the sake of my beloved. But I do not complain. What I undergo, I undergo out of love. That one feeling alone governs me, and all the rest, it grieves me, it torments me, but more mightily Love is enthroned within me.

How I forget everything again, if only I am with him! How I forget all sorrow and pain. I know only that one thing: I am with him — and I am happy —

It is half a year later.

Never, never shall we celebrate our feast, never shall we possess each other.

It was not to be.

I live, but I live as one living — dead.

I have but one wish, and that is to be dead.

I am so broken, so shattered, I can do nothing more. I will, I will nothing more. My strength is so exhausted by that long .... struggle, and — I cannot, I cannot go on! — I feel crushed as beneath a giant stone, and am powerless to raise myself. For hours I can stare vacantly, for hours I sit sunk in brooding, unreal and rigid. I feel petrified — and everything is indifferent to me, everything leaves me cold. Nothing touches me, nothing moves me. Is it day? Is it night? — I do not know. — I hear, I see nothing around me, everything passes me by. — I live, but I do not know that I live — I live as one living dead.

Then, all at once, the truth suddenly shocks through me, the sorrow thrills through me — and I weep, I weep violently and long. I weep many long nights.

And all the while the grief gnaws in me like a devouring worm, slowly consuming me — now I am powerless to fight. I let myself be consumed, I feel so weak and so tired. Why should I live? I am so weary of life ....

Is anything other than Love worth living for? ....

Many years pass. —

And I brooded and I searched very long, and very deeply, and better than Love, I thought, is Wisdom.

But yet always I feel the urge of Love.

WISDOM.

Then I adored Wisdom. Was Wisdom not the highest? Was Wisdom not deep and solid? Was Wisdom not the foundation of the good? Was Wisdom not happiness?

And I adored Wisdom in all her personalities: I esteemed the wisdom of the Greeks, and I esteemed the wisdom of present-day scholars, and the lights shining out in all ages.

I loved ingenuity in all its expressions: the wisdom of a little bird building its nest, and the wisdom of the most scientifically educated in our society. I esteemed the silent wisdom of the ancient peoples, and I esteemed the ingenuity of the ever newer inventions of our twentieth century.

Does Wisdom and science not enrich our mind? Does it not reveal to us ever new points of view? Does it not broaden our outlook, and make us averse to narrowness and convention?

Does It not steel our nerves?

And does It not give us a great, calm, blissful satisfaction? Is ignorance not the source of evil[1], and is science not the signpost to happiness? —

Oh! To know much, to understand much, to penetrate to the depths of life, to penetrate to the core of things, to penetrate to the wisdom of life of the old philosophers! Is that not a calm, ever-abiding happiness? —

And I loved Wisdom very sincerely and very firmly .... until I saw that Wisdom was not everything.

Socrates.

[1] Ignorance is the source of all evil.

> Was Wisdom alone not cool and cold? Could its pronouncement not be cruel and without mercy? Could science alone completely satisfy a woman's life? —
> And I pondered — and I sought — and more than Wisdom, I thought, is Goodness.
>
> But even now I love Wisdom dearly.
>
> GOODNESS.
> Then I worshipped Goodness, Goodness in all its various expressions, but most of all as the Christian religion depicts it, namely love of one's neighbour and self-denial.
> Was there anything more glorious? Did anything higher exist than to deny oneself out of love for one's neighbour, to sacrifice oneself out of love?
> Did this virtue not spring from the noblest part of a human soul?
> Did it not stir our innermost being? —
> Was Goodness not the core of Happiness?
>
> Oh! how I esteemed the Goodness of those who devoted themselves selflessly to the sorrows and needs of the poor. How I esteemed the goodness of a timid, forsaken woman's heart, daily adapting and bending itself, and always sacrificing itself for the people about her. How I esteemed the Goodness of those who know how to give gifts and words with joy and tact, who sacrificed time, health, sometimes even their lives for the furthering of a good cause.
> But above all, before everything, I worshipped the goodness of a good mother, setting aside her own interests and devoting herself entirely to the upbringing and spiritual development of her children.
> Very deeply I worshipped Goodness, for I felt goodness to be better and higher than Wisdom. Schopenhauer as a theorist placed the moral far above brilliant gifts of the mind. And was Goodness not closely akin to Love? Did Goodness not comprise love for everyone, love for the whole of Creation?
> And I felt my soul more perfect, because I so loved inner Goodness.
> But still — I was not yet satisfied.
> And I pondered — and I sought very long and very deeply .... and I found .... God.
>
>
> Now I worship God. Now I worship that Almighty Power with all my inner Love, with my whole being. And I rejoice and I exult that I love so much, for He is Beauty, Love. Wisdom and Goodness, all together.
>
> He is the Incarnation of those four in such great measure, that we human beings cannot comprehend His Beauty, Love, Wisdom and Goodness. For if we could do this, then we should ourselves also be Divine — and not human.
>
> And now I know that the true artist, who loves Beauty, the tender soul, who yearns for Love, the scholar, who thirsts for Wisdom, and the human being, who strives after Goodness, only gives heed to the Divine urge within him.
> Now I know, that when I worshipped Beauty, glorified Love, loved Wisdom, and so loved Goodness, I was then always worshipping God, but unconsciously. —
> Now I know, that if I love them all so much, then I worship God!
>
> And I kneel — and I give thanks, that I may love the Eternally — Beautiful, Loving, Wise and Good — God —.

Rijswijk, 15 April 1929."

[1] During his first marriage he lived at 's-Gravenhage and later at Rijswijk (Z.H.).

[2] In the Levensberichten of the Maatschappij der Nederl. Letterkunde at Leiden 1929—1930 there appears an extensive Biographical Notice of Mr. L. G. N. Bouricius by E. Wiersum, Municipal Archivist of Rotterdam. Furthermore there is an article "In memoriam. † Mr. L. G. N. Bouricius" in N° 50 of the 44th Volume for 1929 of the weekly "De Ingenieur", Organ of the Royal Institute of Engineers and of the Association of Delft Engineers, since Mr. Bouricius, on account of his great predilection for the economic questions arising from the peculiar position of the railways and tramways as a means of transport, was a member of the said Institute and of its sections for Railway Construction and Operation, and for Technical Economics.

A photographic portrait of him is included among the portraits.

A genealogy of the family "Bouricius", to which M^R. L. G. N. Bouricius belonged, is included in the 4th volume (A° 1913) of "Nederland's Patriciaat".

Attached thereto is, for the said family "Bouricius", an illustration of the family coat of arms, of which the heraldic description is as follows:

Quartered: 1—4 blue, with a silver bend, accompanied by two silver hunting horns.

2—3 red, with five thorn-shaped golden bends sinister.

2 helmets. Crest R.: a leaf crown with a silver reversed hunting horn between a blue flight. Crest L.: a silver swan with raised wings.

Torse L.: gold and red. Mantling R.: silver and blue. Mantling L.: gold and red.

Siebe Lieuwes Greidanus

Pietje Jelles Greijdanus

He was born 20 March 1877 at Tzum.

Siebe Lieuweszoon Greidanus was a farmer at Tzum; he was a Member of the Municipal Council of Franekeradeel from 28 June 1917 until his death. For about 20 years he was Secretary of the Anti-Revolutionary Electoral Association in Franekeradeel and Chairman of the Reformed Young Men's Association at Tzum; he was also Chairman of the Tzum branch of the Anti-Revolutionary Electoral Association and a member of the Board of the Christian School at Tzum. He was also for a time a member of the Commission of Supervision of Primary Education and of the College van Zetters (board of tax assessors) in the Municipality of Franekeradeel.

As appears from the following announcements in the "Friesch Dagblad", he died at the age of 54 at Tzum on 27 December 1931:

"Today the Lord took to Himself my dearly beloved Husband, and the children's caring Father, Father-in-law and Grandfather
SIEBE L. GREIDANUS
at the age of 54 years and nine months, after a marriage of more than 31 years.
His rock-firm faith that Christ was his Surety is a rich comfort to us on this deep path.
Your deeply grieved ones:
Widow S. L. GREIDANUS
and Children.
Tzum, 27 Dec. 1931.
The funeral will take place Wednesday 30 Dec. at 1 o'clock from the Old Chr. School at Tzum."

"This morning there fell asleep gently and peacefully in his Lord and Saviour our beloved Son, Brother and Brother-in-law beloved Husband of Pietje J. Greidanus at the age of more than 54 years.
SIEBE L. GREIDANUS
Also on behalf of Brothers and Sisters
L. S. GREIDANUS,
C. GREIDANUS-Oosterhaven.
Tzum, 27 Dec. 1931."

"Today, after a sad illness of some weeks, at the age of 54 years and 9 months, our beloved Brother-in-law and Uncle passed away
SIEBE L. GREIDANUS
beloved Husband of Pietje J. Greidanus.
We may trust that he went to the Lord his God, Whose honour it was the delight of his life to seek, and we pray that that faithful God may have mercy on his sorrowing widow and Children.
A. VISSER—Greijdanus and Children Deinum.
M. VISSER—Greijdanus
Wijtgaard.
D. GREIJDANUS.
W. GREIJDANUS—Visser. and Children. Rijperkerk.
Tzum, 27 December 1931."

"Today the Lord took from our midst, after a serious illness, our highly esteemed Chairman, Mr.
S. L. GREIDANUS.
He always gave his strength and gifts for the spread and application of the principles which had the love of his heart. Grateful for the much good that God gave us in him, we nevertheless gaze after him with deep melancholy. May the Lord comfort the sorely tried Family.
On behalf of the Tzum branch of the A. R. Electoral Association,
A. HOEKSTRA, act. chairman.
J. HOYTEMA, Secr.
Tzum, 27 Dec. '31."

"Today there passed away in his Lord and Saviour our diligent secretary, also A. R. Town Councillor, Mr.
S. L. GREIDANUS
at Tzum. For almost 20 years he served our Electoral Association uninterruptedly as secretary, giving all his strength and gifts for the spread of the principles that were sacred to him. Thanking God for what He gave us in him, we gaze after him with melancholy. His memory will remain a blessing.
On behalf of the A.R. Electoral Association in Franekeradeel.
S. H. BRUINSMA,
chairman, Midlum.
J. HOYTEMA
act. secr., Tzum."

"Today our esteemed fellow board member passed away, Mr.
S. L. GREIDANUS
For a considerable time he served our school most zealously with his best strength.
Tzum, 27 December 1931.
THE BOARD of the Christian School at Tzum."

"Today God took to Himself our unforgettable Chairman
SIEBE L. GREIDANUS,
at the age of 54 years.
For more than 20 years he devoted, besides many other occupations, his best strength to the interests of our Association.
May his example, through God's grace, urge us to a life in the Lord's service.
May the Lord comfort the sorely tried family in this way.
Rev. 14 : 13b.
On behalf of the Reformed Young Men's Association, the Secr. F. POSTMA.
Tzum, 27 Dec. '31."

Concerning his death on 27 and his burial at Tzum on 30 December 1931, the following was published in the Anti-Revolutionary newspaper of Friesland, the "Friesch Dagblad", in the issues of Tuesday 29 December 1931 N° 7641 and of Monday 4 January 1932 N° 7644:

> IN MEMORIAM.
>
> Compelled by the knowledge that in the heart of him who has gone our A.R. press, and our Friesch Dagblad in particular, occupied so large a place, I will not and cannot omit to devote a few words to the memory of our deceased friend and brother.

> On the morning of Sunday 27 Dec. 1931 there died, after a very serious illness, at the age of 54 years
> SIJBE LIEUWES GREIJDANUS.
> In him there passed away a man who did not bury the gifts and talents granted him by God, but used them and made them of profit in the building up of God's Kingdom, wherever he could. His labour was far-reaching. As secretary of the Reformed School Board he was an "advisory" member of the board of the School with the Bible here. He, who knew of what inestimable significance this Christian education was for the young, felt that after this education a place was given in the Youth Association where one could build further on the foundation laid. As chairman of the Reformed Young Men's Association he gave himself, year after year. And who would not be fired to the struggle when with fervour he tried to make the young share in the love for the principles that were sacred to him.
>
> But he also gave himself for the Press and the Party organization. In Tzum our Friesch Dagblad was well established, thanks to his untiring zeal. First as secretary, then as chairman of our branch, he showed evidence of great well-readness. For almost 20 years he was secretary of the Municipal A. R. Electoral Association. For almost 16 years he was a valued force in the municipal council of Franekeradeel for the A. R. Party. While besides all this the B. V. L. found in him a trusted man and leader, "who when it had to be" dared to be Anti-Revolutionary.
> And from all that work God has now taken him away.
> And we .... we stare at that empty place, full of deep melancholy.
> "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth. Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them." Rev. 14 : 13.
> May the Lord comfort the so deeply afflicted wife and children and his already aged parents, and may his example be a spur to us to give ourselves, as he did, to the continuation of his work, from which God has relieved him.
> J/ELLE/. H/OYTEMA/. Tz/um/."
>
> "Tzum. With very great interest the mortal remains of the late S. L. Greidanus were laid to rest. Borne by the members of the J. V., after the coffin had been lowered, the leader of the funeral, at the same time a former member of the J. V., Ds. G. Hoytema of Twijzelerheide, at the open grave described the deceased as a fighter, as a worker. But also as a man with a rock-firm faith, by which the contrast between Christmas and an open grave was resolved in the words of Simeon: "Lord, now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation." Having returned to the old Chr. School, several persons still spoke, among others Burgomaster Elgersma on behalf of the Daily Board of the municipality of Franekeradeel, Ds. Stelma on behalf of the School Board, Sj. Bruinsma of Midlum as friend and fellow A.R. council member, S. v. d. Schaaf of Midlum on behalf of the foundation of farm labourers. Furthermore J. Hoytema spoke on behalf of the A. R. Electoral Association, N. Greidanus on behalf of the J. V., and J. R. Hallema as friend and fellow council member."

Thereafter the following advertisement also appeared in the "Friesch Dagblad":

> "EXPRESSION OF THANKS.
> Touched by the many signs of sympathy and interest experienced during the illness and the death of our beloved Husband and Father
> SIEBE L. GREIDANUS
> we express to all our heartfelt thanks.
> Wid. S. L. GREIDANUS
> and Children.
> Tzum, Jan. 1932."

Concerning the membership of the municipal council of Franekeradeel of Siebe Lieuweszoon Greidanus, I give here his speech, printed in the "Leeuwarder Courant" in the fourth sheet of 2 July 1931, at the installation on 1 July 1931 of the new Burgomaster of Franekeradeel W. Elgersma. The new Burgomaster belonged to the Christian-Historical Party and his appointment had caused great displeasure with the liberal-democratic Alderman S. van der Schaaf — the municipal council consisted of 5 members of the Right and 6 members of the Left Party —, who as acting burgomaster, after Mr. Elgersma had been led in by the members M. Anema and S. L. Greidanus, "welcomed" the new head of the municipality with the words:

> "Mr. Elgersma! It would have been a great honour and a real pleasure to me if I had been permitted to install here, instead of you, someone else as burgomaster of our municipality. Someone of recognized ability, who by general opinion would have been the right man in the right place. But this was not to be. But, you will perhaps ask, is then the installation of Mr. Elgersma not an honour and a pleasure to you? And then I must answer that frankly: no, for I am of the opinion that your appointment, Mr. Elgersma, is a pure party appointment and, as I wrote to you in my letter of congratulation, not an appointment on the ground of your capacities. Which of us had heard anything of you beforehand that went beyond the mediocre? Some did not even know of your existence, what sort of man you were. And then I have always said that you were Christian-Historical and that this will most certainly have been the cause of your appointment. And for me it is therefore certain, and I wish to repeat this on this occasion, that this appointment is purely a party appointment. etc."

Speech of Siebe Lieuweszoon Greidanus:

> "It is also in the name of my fellow member Bruinsma that on behalf of the A. R. party I call out to you a hearty welcome in this place. It gives us joy that by the higher government authorities the task has been entrusted to you of governing our municipality as burgomaster and at the same time, as chairman of the municipal council, of endeavouring to give guidance and direction in all its discussions and decisions which have to be taken. That appointment answered to the expectation which lived among us, namely that preference would be given to someone of the principles of the Right in being designated for this vacancy. Considering the results of the elections in recent years, which gave the majority to the parties of the Right, it was that we trusted that with regard to this appointment too account would be taken of the political grouping in the municipality. And therefore it is that we, as one belonging to the Christian-Historical party and therewith at the same time congratulate the party itself in our municipality most heartily on this outcome. In our opinion it is entirely in accordance with the aims of the government policy of our time and also in the interest of the municipality itself. Now this is in the first place not the main reason why you would be the right man in this place. For you a new administrative function now begins, and the work awaiting you and the daily cares concerning the municipality with its inhabitants are for you a new field of labour. Now we know that in your past, which lies behind you, your administrative work developed in surroundings corresponding to the > character of our municipality. The interests of the rural population, also in the municipal sphere, are fully known to you, and therefore we may also trust that in your office of burgomaster you may show yourself a father of the community towards the municipality and its inhabitants. Our time is marked by many difficulties, and in the municipal sphere these too are beginning to make themselves felt more and more. From the side of the government ever more measures are being taken which impose all kinds of obligations on municipal administrations to comply with. Added to this is that, through the increasing depression in all kinds of fields, concern for the financial condition of the municipality becomes more worrying. Partly as a result of the depression we see that unemployment keeps increasing and sometimes places municipal administrations before insoluble problems. There is much in the municipal sphere that will occupy your attention and in which guidance and administration will be asked of you. It is not necessary to bring all this to your attention. You are fully acquainted with it. Now it is a reason for gladness to us that this task has been entrusted to someone who wishes to perform it according to the Christian principles. You profess to accept the full sovereignty of God over all that is created, and that all authority which is exercised here on earth descends from Him alone, and for which you too will one day bear full responsibility. And in the measure in which you take up your task the more faithfully in this respect and feel yourself dependent in all things while awaiting God's blessing, your administration of the municipality will be the more fruitful for the welfare of the inhabitants. And although we shall now and then differ in the political field and our thoughts on some questions in the municipal sphere diverge, in fundamental principle we feel ourselves one, and we hope to work together with you towards the one great goal, the working through of the Christian principles in every sphere of life and so also in the sphere of our municipal community. Only therein is a solution to be found for all the difficult questions which present themselves in every sphere of life. May it be granted you to govern the municipality under the guidance of God's Spirit, and that thereby the municipality may excel in prosperity and mutual peace, and that in every sphere the honour of God may come more and more into its own. Then we shall be able to rejoice together."

Sjoerd Kornelis' Greijdanus

Wietske Pieters Ringersma

He was born 19 April 1873 at Jorwerd.

Sjoerd Korneliszoon Greijdanus was the owner of a small farm at Jorwerd, which was destroyed by fire on Friday 15 August 1930. Concerning this fire one finds the following account in the "Leeuwarder Courant" of that day:

> "SEVERE FIRE AT JORWERD
> TWO LARGE AND ONE SMALL FARM BURNT OUT.
> This afternoon at a quarter to one the people at Jorwerd and in the surrounding area were suddenly startled by the tolling of the church bell. There proved to be a fire near the village. The farm of Sjoerd van der Hem, situated some 150 metres from the centre of the village, had suddenly caught fire. The flames shot high into the air. Moreover there was fear for the farm of Mr. D. Okkema, and owing to the great heat the small farm of Mr. E. J. de Groot also caught fire and was immediately ablaze.
> This little farm stands at the beginning of the neighbourhood on the north side, behind which the whole village lies.
> No one thought any longer about the fire in the farm of Mr. van der Hem; all attention was now directed to the neighbourhood. For the hay barn of Mr. Sj. Greidanus, situated next to the burning dwelling of Mr. de Groot, was already catching fire as well.
> A panic broke out in the village. Many inhabitants carried their household goods to safety.
> Meanwhile an enormous black column of smoke was seen rising, now from the farm of Mr. Okkema.
> The fire brigade from Mantgum was soon on the scene of the fire with its motor pump, but confined itself to keeping the dwelling of Mr. Greidanus wet. It will probably succeed in saving that building.
> The burgomaster of Baarderadeel, jhr. Hora Siccama, directed the extinguishing work and then called in, not in vain, the help of the fire brigades of Huizum, Leeuwarden and Rauwerderhem.
> Two pumps from Huizum and Leeuwarden with the necessary crews were present well before half past one, and the pump from Huizum was immediately put into action.
> Meanwhile a pump from Rauwerderhem also arrived, which however at the moment of the sending off of this report did not need to render service. In the farm of Mr. Sj. v. d. Hem 160 loads of hay were stored, in that of Okkema 130 loads.
> * * *
> FURTHER PARTICULARS.
> When we came into the little village towards half past two, calm had already returned. Here and there little groups of people stood discussing the fire. But that at first they feared that a part of the village would "go", was understandable. This danger was really not imaginary. The little village was in great danger, because a part of the inhabitants are small farmers, who live at various points and have their hay stored by their houses.
> All the inhabitants, for whom Mr. Oudshoorn, the head of the school, was the source of advice, and whose words had a calming effect, helped to bring the household goods of some 20 houses to safety. The household goods were even stored on ships.
> A number of young men also took part in the extinguishing work, when the pump from Mantgum had arrived and, with hoses on the water main, they joined the battle against the fire.

> The rescue work could safely be entrusted to them. Especially from the dwelling of Eerde Jans de Groot a great deal was still saved, and also the valuables from the buildings of Messrs. v. d. Hem, Greidanus and Okkema.
> How quickly the fire spread appears from the following:
> The wife of Mr. Greidanus had hurried to the farm of Mr. Okkema, who was staying at Leeuwarden, in order to assist the sister, the only other member of the household. Hardly had she walked a couple of hundred metres when her dwelling burst into flames.
> This caused the greatest confusion in the village, which was increased still further when the farm of Mr. Okkema, situated some 40 M. in front of that of Mr. v. d. Hem, burst into flames. Many inhabitants who were staying at Leeuwarden were called back by telephone. Many had been seized by the mood of panic. Thus there was a woman who gave her money box to someone she did not know. But that will be put right, Mr. Oudshoorn assured us.
> Especially when the fire engines from Huizum, Leeuwarden and Poppingawier had arrived, calm returned.
> As we already wrote above, the fire engine from Huizum gave assistance in the village. The motor pump from Leeuwarden was directed to the yard of Mr. Okkema's farm in order to reduce the danger of the fire spreading.
> The cause? It began in the loft, Mr. v. d. Hem told us, whose wife, who was seriously unwell, was transported to a nearby farm belonging to Mr. J. Postma. Mr. v. d. Hem suspected a short circuit as the cause.
> The farm, occupied by Mr. v. d. Hem, belongs to Mrs. ten Cate at Hilversum and is insured with the Onderlinge Brandassurantie-Societeit of Leeuwarderadeel; the one occupied by Mr. Okkema belongs to the Cornelia-Stichting at Beetsterzwaag. The contents of this farm are likewise insured with the above-mentioned company.
> The house and contents of Mr. de Groot, as well as those of Mr. Sj. C. Greidanus and Th. K. de Groot, which suffered water damage, are also insured with this Societeit.
> Many had come to Jorwerd by car, motorcycle and bicycle to watch the fire-fighting. At first many did not see any flames, because the smoke was so dense that one had to approach the burning premises from close by. And that was not possible, because a scorching heat prevented it.
> When we returned home, many young men set out armed with hay forks to deal with the hay at the burnt-down premises of de Jong, and numerous household goods were brought back to their proper places."

His small farm was rebuilt; it now consists of a house and stable, with 3 P.M. of pasture land. Among the portraits a "snapshot" of him and his wife has been included.

[1] As proof of this an arrow (pylk) has been placed on the chimney of the farm. Apparently we are dealing here with a historic spot; at any rate it is already mentioned in the Proclamatieboek (register of property sales) of Leeuwarderadeel of 22/29 Nov./24 Dec. 1628, where it is stated: "In den Pylckwier" under the klokslag (bell-ringing jurisdiction) of Huysum. The present occupant thought that a legend was attached to the zathe (farmstead), namely that in olden times someone had shot an arrow that far from the Oldehove at Leeuwarden. This agrees with the following, which Waling Dijkstra says about "Pylkwier" in his "Frieslands Volksleven", 1st part, page 119. "A pylk is in Frisian a pen, the flight feather of a bird, and at the same time an arrow. Near the village of Huizum stands a farmhouse which is called Pylkwier. In very ancient times two giants once fell into a quarrel, and they were to settle it by a duel. There were no firearms then; they were to shoot at each other with bow and arrow, and whoever was shot dead would have lost. According to the agreement made, the one took his place on the Oldehoof at Leeuwarden and the other on the Domtoren at Utrecht. They shot — but owing to the strong wind both arrows landed at the spot where the house now stands, which from this story received the name of Pylkwier. When there was still a barn beside it, this had a couple of arrows as weather vanes."

[2] The name — frogs' land — of a neighbouring farm, formerly a well-known inn.

Prof. Dr. Seakle Greijdanus

Maartje Kruithof

He was born 1 May 1871 at Arum.

Seakle Greijdanus attended the Christelijk Gymnasium at Zetten from September 1891 to July 1895, and on 18 September following was enrolled as a student at the Vrije Universiteit at Amsterdam. At the said University he took his doctorate in Theology on 20 November 1903 with a dissertation entitled: "Menschwording en Vernedering" and XIX Theses.

The dissertation comprises XXVII + 257 + VII pages and is printed in octavo format. Its title page reads as follows:

"TO MY PARENTS.

Now that I have come to the end of my academic preparation, I first of all give thanks to God, for all that He was graciously willing to grant me in and along the path of study.

Further I express my gratitude towards all those to whom, in teaching or otherwise, with regard to lower or higher studies, I owe any thanks.

[1] In the birth register of the Burgerlijke Stand (civil registry) erroneously recorded as "Saekle".

May I be permitted to name a few of them.
And then it is not primarily the demand of courtesy which here claims the first place for you, Highly esteemed Mrs. Pel—van Lingen, whose lessons I was allowed to enjoy so abundantly at the beginning of my studies, and who thus had so significant an influence upon my treading of the scholarly path. I shall always continue to feel myself, with high appreciation, greatly indebted to you.
Likewise my express thanks to you, Reverend Sir Ds. T. D. Prins, who were the first to be my teacher in Latin and who, especially also by your demand concerning the knowledge of what had to be learned, contributed much to awaken in me a sense of the right manner of studying.
In grateful remembrance I ought here also to give place to the names of Lecturer F. P. L. C. van Lingen, Dr. J. Hania Pzn., and Dr. W. H. Kramer.
Next my public thanks to the Reformed Churches in Friesland, whose alumnus I was for many years; and to the Gentlemen Directors of the Vereeniging voor Hooger Onderwijs op Gereformeerden Grondslag, who always decided favourably upon any request of mine, which was of such great service to me particularly also in this study.

I also express my gratitude to the Librarians and the other staff of the Libraries of the Municipal University, of the Vrije Universiteit, and of the United Mennonite Congregation at Amsterdam, for their ready helpfulness.
The honour fell to me in this study to see first Prof. Dr. F. L. Rutgers, and later Prof. Dr. H. Bavinck, appointed as my Promotor.
Lastly then, but not least, my separate thanks to you both, Most Learned Professors, for your highly valued remarks and counsels, of which you were so kind as to grant me the benefit. And since the lion's share of the burden which a dissertation brings with it for the promotor was borne by you, Most Learned Promotor Dr. Bavinck, let my thanks be said especially to you as well for what you advised me for the best concerning this study.

Dr. S. K. Greijdanus became Reformed minister: 10 January 1904 at Rozenburg, 11 June 1911 at Zuid-Beijerland and 25 July 1915 at Paesens and Moddergat. In 1917 he was appointed, in the place of Prof. L. Lindeboom, Professor[1] at the Theological School of the Reformed Churches in the Netherlands at Kampen, where on 19 December he assumed the professorship with the delivery of an address on "Schriftgeloof en Exegese van het Nieuwe Testament", which address went to press that same year at the Drukkerij "Libertas" in Rotterdam and begins as follows[2]:

"Most Honourable Gentlemen, Curators of this School,
Most Learned Gentlemen, Professors,
Very Learned Sir, Lector,
Very Learned Gentlemen, Doctors in various sciences,
Reverend Gentlemen, Ministers of the Divine Word,
Esteemed Gentlemen, Students,
And furthermore all of you who, of whatever name or rank, have gathered here and honour this ceremony with your presence, Highly esteemed and most welcome Hearers,

For many years the dogma of the neutrality of science, that is to say, of its being detached from all faith, has exercised great power over minds, even over those of outstanding persons. Thus a man like Dr. J. H. Gunning Jr. wrote: "Religion is personal, and therefore faith is "not of all." Science is impersonal, ought to be nothing but investigation, to be purely intellectual."

This neutrality, however, is a delusion. (German) "It is rather only an empty abstraction", writes Dr. Carl Stange rightly, "when we act as though the man engaged in historical work were something other than the morally and religiously feeling man. There is never the scientific man in and for himself, and likewise there is never the moral-religious man in and for himself. Both are rather always united in us into an inseparable unity. But for that reason the historical judgement can also never have the significance of a "purely exact" knowledge. Instead, the scientific value of our historical insight is rather conditioned by our applying, in historical research, the standards of critical thinking just as much as the standards of our moral-religious knowledge."

For it is not man's understanding which, as a separate hypostasis and detached from all that man further is, practises science; but the whole man himself, with his entire personality and all that he is, is the subject of scientific study. "The heart grasps by intuition", says Dr. J. R. Slotemaker de Bruïne, "and the understanding has a second, a subsequent task".

Moreover, every object of science possesses a character of its own, and makes its own particular demands upon its investigator, whereby love or hatred may be aroused in him, especially when it concerns God and divine things, so that there can be no question of a neutral attitude towards it.

Besides, in practice too "neutral" education proves to be both unsatisfactory and impossible.

Equally imaginary is the "unprejudiced" exegesis.

Between what someone believes concerning Holy Scripture, and the interpretation which he gives of it, such a close connection can be shown, that that interpretation proves to be governed by that faith.

Of this I may now speak to you.

My subject is:

SCHRIFTGELOOF EN EXEGESE VAN HET NIEUWE TESTAMENT.

After a brief word about the terms of this formulation, it will be shown that the independence of anyone's exegesis of the New Testament from his faith with regard to Holy Scripture has indeed been set up as a requirement and been pretended to, but is in fact unreal and an impracticable demand;

secondly, that the quality of anyone's faith concerning Scripture determines the character of his exegesis of the New Testament; and finally, what consequences for the exegesis of the New Testament lie enclosed in the Reformed faith concerning Scripture.

> Because the exegesis of the New Testament was entrusted to me, I mention only this, although what must now be said applies in part also to that of the Old Testament.
>
> Further, I now speak of Scripture, because this word not only, as "Bible" also does, presents to us the various holy books as a unity, but at the same time by its use seems to remind us of their divine origin and their divine authority, with which it is chiefly concerned.
>
> And then the term faith concerning Scripture was further chosen, because acknowledgement or denial of the holy character of the Bible and of its various books is a matter of faith: for "unbelief" too is faith. The struggle concerning the Bible as the Word of God is not a dispute between science and faith, but between faith and faith.
>
> Finally, by the word faith concerning Scripture is now meant faith with regard to the content as well as concerning the origin of Holy Scripture."

[2] The notes have been omitted.

The Rectorate of the Theological School was transferred to him by Prof. Dr. T. Hoekstra in December every five years, in the years 1921, 1926 and 1931; owing to Prof. Hoekstra's indisposition he was also charged in 1935 with acting as Rector.

The Rectorate was transferred by him to his successor (in 1922, 1927 and in 1932 Prof. Dr. H. Bouwman; in 1935 Prof. Dr. K. Schilder): on 6 December 1922 with the delivery of an address on: "Hoofddoel en Gedachtengang van Lucas' Evangelieverhaal", which went to press in the same year with J. H. Kok at Kampen, — on 7 December 1927 with the delivery of an address on: "Schriftgeloof en Canoniek", which in the same year was printed in enlarged form by the said publisher, — on 8 December 1932 with the delivery of an address on: "Het gebruik van het Grieksch door den Heere en zijne Apostelen in Palestina", which in the same year was published by J. H. Kok N.V. at Kampen, — and on 3 December 1935 with the treatment in an oration of the question whether Acts 9 (with 22 and 26) and 15 contradicts Galatians 1 and 2, which oration appeared in the same year in enlarged form with the last-mentioned company.

In 1916 and 1917 he was Editor of the "Friesch Kerkblad".

Besides the addresses mentioned above, the following writings by him, listed in chronological order, saw the light:

> "Toerekeningsgrond van het Peccatum Originans (Adams Bondsbreuk)." Paper delivered at the Conference of Reformed Ministers in North and South Holland at Leiden on 4 January 1906. Amsterdam, H. A. van Bottenburg, n.d., 8°, 77 pages;

"Van "de dingen die haast geschieden moeten". De Openbaring des Heeren aan Johannes". Explained for the congregation. Doesburg — J. C. van Schenk Brill — n.d., with a "Ter inleiding" of 1908, large 8°, XII + 556 pages and a title plate;

In the series: "Korte Verklaring der Heilige Schrift, met nieuwe vertaling", edited by: Prof. Dr. G. Ch. Aalders, Prof. Dr. C. van Gelderen, Prof. Dr. S. Greijdanus, Prof. Dr. F. W. Grosheide, Prof. Dr. A. Noordtzij, Prof. Dr. J. Ridderbos and other Reformed theologians:

"De Brief van den Apostel Paulus aan de Galaten." Newly translated from the original text and explained. J. H. Kok, Kampen, 1922, small 8°, XIV + 138 pages;

"De Brief van den Apostel Paulus aan de Epheziërs." Newly translated from the original text and explained. J. H. Kok, Kampen, 1925, small 8°, 141 pages;

"De Brief van den Apostel Paulus aan de Philippenzen. Newly translated from the original text and explained. J. H. Kok, Kampen, 1925, small 8°, 94 pages;

In the series: "Kommentaar op het Nieuwe Testament" by Dr. S. Greijdanus, Professor at Kampen, Dr. F. W. Grosheide, Professor at Amsterdam and Dr. J. A. C. van Leeuwen, Professor at Utrecht:

Volume XIV. "De Openbaring des Heeren aan Johannes" explained. Amsterdam, H. A. van Bottenburg, 1925, 8°, XXXIV + 448 pages. In which book there appears a preface, which begins as follows:

> "This exposition of the Revelation of the Lord to John is based on faith in the truth of John's own testimony concerning it. Essentially it agrees entirely with that of my work which appeared years ago: Van "de dingen die haast geschieden moeten". De Openbaring des Heeren aan Johannes voor de gemeente uitgelegd. Doesburg, J. C. van Schenk Brill. Only with regard to a few matters of subordinate importance has my view been somewhat altered. The form of treatment, however, is now an entirely different one, in accordance with the nature of the series of which this book forms a part."

Volume XIII. "De Brieven van de Apostelen Petrus en Johannes, en de Brief van Judas" explained. Amsterdam, H. A. van Bottenburg, 1929, 8°, XVI and 652 pages. In this work one finds at the front:

> "To my beloved wife > on our silver wedding
> 1904—6 January—1929.";

"Het Meerderheidsrapport van het Curatorium inzake het Doctoraat aan de Theologische School te Kampen, besproken". Published by J. H. Kok N.V. Kampen, n.d. (1929), 8°, 48 pages;

In the aforementioned series: "Korte Verklaring der Heilige Schrift, met nieuwe vertaling":

"De Openbaring des Heeren aan Johannes". Newly translated from the original text and explained. J. H. Kok N.V. Uitgevers Mij. Kampen, 1930, small 8°, 400 pages;

"De eerste Brief van den Apostel Petrus." Newly translated from the original text and explained. And "De tweede Brief van den Apostel Petrus." Newly translated from the original text and explained. J. H. Kok N.V. Kampen, 1931, small 8°, 153 pages in all.

In the already mentioned series: "Kommentaar op het Nieuwe Testament":

Volume VII. "De Brief van den Apostel Paulus aan de Gemeente te Rome, Hoofdstukken 1—8, uitgelegd." Amsterdam, H. A. van Bottenburg, 1933, 8°, VII and 400 pages;

Volume VIII. "De Brief van den Apostel Paulus aan de Gemeente te Rome, Hoofdstukken 9—16, uitgelegd." Amsterdam, H. A. van Bottenburg 1933, 8°, VII and 287 pages.

In the mentioned series "Korte Verklaring der Heilige Schrift, met nieuwe vertaling":

"De Brief van Judas". Newly translated from the original text and explained. J. H. Kok N.V. Kampen — 1935, small 8°, 48 pages.

He was furthermore the author of:

the chapters: "De Boeken van het Nieuwe Testament", "God geopenbaard in het vleesch", "Het Leven van Paulus" and "De Apocryphen van het Nieuwe Testament" in Volume II of the "Bijbelsch Handboek", which appeared at the end of 1935 from J. H. Kok N. V. Kampen.

In "De Himelsblauwe Trie", Collection of Meditations by Dr. G. A. Wumkes and Others. T. Wever — Bookseller — Frentsjer — 1928, there appear from him on pages 121 to 130 two short pieces entitled: "Yn 'e wyn" and "De Discipels Oerstjûr", of which the first follows below in full:

(Frisian)

"YN 'E WYN.

> And there came a great > storm of wind, and the waves > beat into the ship, so that the > ship was already becoming full.
> Mark 4 : 37.

Would anyone have thought that?

That a storm should now fall upon the sea, which brought these people too into danger?

It was they, after all, was it not?

They were not people who cared as little about God as about their fellow men, and brought everything into disorder and misery, folk who had done a great deal of evil, good-for-nothings, thieves, murderers, who had to be rooted out, and who, cast off by men, were now to be judged by God.

If, for instance, Barabbas and his companions had been in this ship, Kajafas and his Council, the opponents of the Lord, Pharisees, the people who later cried: "His blood may come upon us and upon our children", then we would perhaps have approved of it, and then it was as it ought to be, we would think.

When Pharaoh perishes in the sea, and Abimelech is killed with a stone, and Adonibezek sees done to himself what evil he himself had done to others, then we see that as justice.

But these men!

(Frisian) These were not only simple people, well-meaning people, zealous people, religious people, men who would not lay a straw in anyone's way, and who always did their best, but these men had followed the Lord Jesus. He had called them. And at once they had laid down their fishing gear, and left father and mother and wife, and without hesitation given themselves over to Him, with at first not much other prospect than suffering and hardship.

And with their whole soul they clung to Him.

They were in earnest with Him.

When later almost all turned their backs on Him, because they could not bear His word and found it hard, and He asked them: Do you too not want to go away? Peter said: Lord, where shall we go? You have words of eternal life.

And that came from his heart.

And the other eleven wholly agreed with it.

Well then, let us leave Judas Iskarioth aside.

He was indeed one of them. And at this point he was not yet as he was later.

And these people now in trouble and distress?

A storm comes that brings these people into great danger?

They were fishermen by trade, sea fishermen, at least some of them.

And if they become afraid, and so upset that they no longer know what to do, and think that it will go wrong, then it must indeed have been a terrible storm, and things must have looked perilous.

How could it be that these people were so buffeted by a hard storm wind, so that they thought it would end in their perishing?

Was it perhaps that they, otherwise excellent people, blameless, wholly bound to the Lord and His service, had now taken a road that ran counter to the will of God? Like Jona, when he did not want to go to Ninevé, but took a place in a ship in order to sail to Tarsis?

Then the matter would stand differently.

Then they would have to come to the insight that they were doing wrong, and had to turn back.

But it was not so.

The Lord had Himself told them that they had to go into the ship, and sail across the sea.

They carried out what the Lord had commanded them in plain words.

Yes, the Lord Himself was with them in the ship.

And yet this storm and this danger?

Yes.

For many are the adversities of those who are righteous and fear the Lord.

When we do what the Lord commands us, serve Him in truth and according to His Word, then we may get everything against us.

It then sometimes seems as if it will come to nothing, yes, as if it will soon bring only shame and loss. The world with all the forces of nature sometimes seems to have made a covenant to thwart everything and to sink it into the ground.

The kingdom of the Evil One then rises up, and wants to destroy what works for the service and the honour of God.

In this ship was the Lord Himself. And in it were His twelve. If the Evil One now flung a great storm upon the sea, and made high waves of water fall into the ship, and could let that ship, with those who were in it, sink down into the deep, so that they drowned, then with one blow he would have brought the whole work of redemption to nothing.

If we think it through properly, this storm and this danger are not strange.

It is indeed different from what we often imagine.

When a blind man sits begging, who has been blind from his birth, and the twelve see him, they ask: Lord, who has sinned, he or his parents, that he was born blind?

We do not ask that question, because we know what the Lord said in reply.

But our thinking is not for that reason always different.

Evil for the evil.

Good for the good.

That is how we want it.

Adversity for those who are not good, and do not do good.

Happiness for those who serve the Lord, and follow Him, and listen to His Word, and carry out what He commands them.

But look at Abel.

There he lies, slain by Kaïn.

And the latter walks about freely over the earth.

Job sick, full of affliction, robbed of everything, on the ash heap.

His friends beside him, without harm to themselves, and also to their kin and their goods.

Lazarus, who fears the Lord, poor, full of sores, at the gate of the rich man, who is healthy, full of vitality, day after day out and about, in splendour and pomp, as if it were nothing but feasting.

Such is life at times.

Why?

Why did God let this storm arise, which whipped up the sea, so that the ship with all on board seemed bound to be lost?

It had to become clear who the Lord was, and what He can do: wind and water simply became still at His command.

And it had to become evident that those who walk in His way, and do what He has commanded them, have nothing to fear.

Even though the Evil One then joins himself with nature, it is nothing, it can do no harm: the twelve did indeed become afraid, but that had not been necessary. No harm at all befell them.

Wind and water had indeed set their sights on them.

And they saw nothing but ruin ahead.

But the weather could do no more than threaten.

It could not make them sink.

(Frisian) For they were in the way of the Lord.
And they had the Lord Himself with them on board.
That is why they were so assailed.
But for that same reason there was no real danger for them.
For those who walk in the way of the Lord, and have Him with them, are well preserved, however severely they may be attacked by foul weather, storm and waves, forces of nature and devil.
The ship was already filling with water.
It looked bad.
But that was of no account.
The Lord therefore simply slept quietly on.
He was and remained with the twelve, and kept them wholly safe.

b. Lollum, 11 October 1893 · son of Sijtze Ymtes Greijdanus (N° 354) and Geertje Arjens Hamersma · m. Tjitskjen Ages Okkema, 1920

Arjen (Arie) Sijtzes Greijdanus

Tjitskjen Ages Okkema

He was born 11 October 1893 at Lollum.

Arjen Greydanus left 5 May 1920 with the steamship "Noordam" from Rotterdam for the United States of North America, where he immediately travelled on to Manhattan in the County of Gallatin in the state of Montana. He arrived at Manhattan on 21 May following.

At Manhattan he was successively the tenant of various "farms", among others a farm of 320 acres, with which things went well for him at first. In 1928, however, his crop, which, as in previous years, stood magnificently, was totally destroyed by a hailstorm. About this he wrote to me:

> "On 27 July, after the meal, I said to my wife, I shall just wait a little before going out to the land, since the sky looked so threatening. First came wind and then hail. Anyone who has never experienced that cannot imagine it, but everything is beaten to pieces; the crop gone, many chickens dead, the windows broken, and in one of the bedrooms the ducks could well have swum, since the roof began to leak (we have wooden houses here, not covered with tiles but with thin wooden boards)."

After that he rented a large farm — of 500 acres — in the "hills", and kept 16 horses ("a horse is cheaper than a tractor, since a horse can work for 8 years and a tractor is worn out after 4 years"). In 1930 he sowed 160 acres, but harvested nothing, since the wind swept all the seed out of the ground. About his further fortunes he wrote to me as follows:

> "In the spring of 1931 I could indeed have rented a "farm", but I had no money and the Banks held the money back or remained closed. So I went out to work again as a farm labourer, exchanged some horses for cows and kept 3 horses, namely my saddle horse and 2 horses which I had broken in myself. In the spring of 1932 I sold everything; really, I could have wept when my horses, to which I was so attached, went away for some 300 dl., but what is one to do when one loses everything. After that I worked again at 2 dollars a day at my own board. Having the land irrigated, that makes for long days, mostly from 5 till 9 o'clock. I even worked 11 days from 3 till 9.30 and then I received, with board, 22 dollars. In 1932 I earned 250 dollars, but now come 6 months of winter. How to begin again; it does not cost much, but the Banks give out no money. Going out to work in winter is not possible here, unless one knows a trade."

A photographic portrait of him and his wife is to be found among the portraits.

Jacob Greijdanus

Jantje Pereboom

He was born 7 December 1903 at Sneek.

Jacob Greijdanus is a warehouse hand at Sneek. He has worked in France as a miner and was twice in Russia; the first time, in the period of the Russian revolution, as a seaman on a Dutch ship, and the second time, not so long ago, when Stalin had already translated the communist principle into deeds, as an interested visitor. In his opinion things were much better in Russia for the working labourers than here, especially with regard to their "rights". All this has been the occasion of his conversion to communism. In March 1935 he was a candidate of the Communist Party for the Provincial States of Friesland and on 17 June following he was elected, as candidate of the Communist Party Holland, a member of the Municipal Council of Sneek.

His photographic portrait appears among the portraits.

Gerard Adriaan Pos

She was born 21 January 1870 at Buitenpost, as appears from the following family announcement:

> " Delivered of a Daughter I. KUIPERS > Wife of > DR. S. GREIDANUS.
> Buitenpost, 21 January 1870.
> Only notice."

The following report, appearing in the daily newspaper "De Telegraaf" of Sunday 26 September 1926, relates to her:

> "THE GOOISCHE RIJWIELPADEN-VEREENIGING CELEBRATES ITS JUBILEE.
>
> Festive gathering at Hilversum.
>
> MRS. POS-GREIDANUS RECEIVES AN HONORARY DIPLOMA
>
> Amsterdam, 25 Sept. — It was a woman who in fact gave the impulse to the founding of the Association for the Construction and Maintenance of Cycle Paths in Gooi- and Eemland, which yesterday celebrated its copper wedding in worthy fashion.
>
> At the beginning of the disastrous year 1914 Mrs. Pos-Greidanus, wife of the well-known vice-chairman and chief consul of the A.N.W.B., pointed out the necessity of constructing a safe road from Baarn to Laren leading through unspoilt natural beauty. Thanks to the co-operation of her husband, Mrs. Pos had the pleasure of seeing her proposal adopted by the A.N.W.B., and so it came about that quite soon a road was projected through one of the finest parts of the Gooi was. If the Wielerbond were to bear the construction costs, then some other body or association had to be found willing to take care of the further maintenance of the road. Finally, 12½ years ago, out of a group of interested persons the Association for the Construction and Maintenance of Cycle Paths in 't Gooi was constituted.
> After the first road others soon followed, and now the paths of the association traverse the most beautiful spots of the Gooi, so renowned for its natural beauty.
> The Association steadily flourished. Branches were founded, each with its own board, while two members of each board have a seat on the general committee. On behalf of Hilversum the following gentlemen have a seat on it: G. W. André de la Porte (chairman) and H. J. van Voorst Vader, secretary-treasurer of the Hilversum branch; on behalf of Bussum the gentlemen: mr. Nierstrasz and J. L. de Leeuw; on behalf of Laren mr. N. E. van Heloma, while on behalf of the Baarn branch dr. Astro, H. G. Beuker and mr. L. L. F. André de la Porte sit on the general committee, which gentlemen also form the executive committee of the Association.

> There is hardly any need to argue that an association founded in an unfavourable period had to struggle with all kinds of adversity. All the more reason, then, to give the copper jubilee the lustre it deserved. No wonder, therefore, that on Saturday numerous boards of friendly bodies, as well as those of Stad en Lande and of many Gooi municipalities, had gathered in the garden of the delightfully situated Tea House "In de Dennen" on the Soestdijker Straatweg, to congratulate the jubilee association.
> It was the chairman of the association, dr. Astro, who in a witty little speech thanked all those who had cooperated in the construction of the cycle paths. For two men, however, the speaker had to make an exception, because they had made themselves especially deserving. Those two men were the workmen charged with the maintenance of the roads. To one of them, the 70-year-old Arends, who on Saturday also commemorated his copper jubilee in the service of the association, the medal of honour was pinned to his chest.
> When this ceremony had taken place and the tea had been drunk, a whistle sounded, which meant that the 150 ladies and gentlemen present had to make ready to make a cycle tour over the paths of the association under the leadership of mr. Hartstra, the man who laid out the new path from Bussum to Baarn. At a moderate pace they rode via the Craailöschen weg, Jans Kerkhof and the Boissevain-weg to the Bosch van Bredius. The fine autumn weather made this tour, which led now through heavy timber and then again along extensive heath fields, a real delight. Such excursions are eminently suited to breed zealous propagandists, whom the association, in view of its membership, which amounts to only 1700, can well use.
> After the end of the pleasant tour many gathered at a dinner. The festivity finally reached its climax when, amid loud cheering, an honorary diploma was presented to Mrs. Pos-Greidanus."

Her photographic portrait is to be found among the portraits included at the back.

MARRIED:

GERARD ADRIAAN POS, 15 May 1895 at Baarn.

Gerard Adriaan Pos was born 13 July 1865 at Amsterdam, as son of Jan Pos, merchant, and Jacoba Diederica Engelina van der Sleesen.

He was at first a merchant and since 7 May 1893 Member of the Executive Committee of the Algemeene Nederlandsche Wielrijdersbond (A.N.W.B.), Touring Club for the Netherlands, of which he became second chairman and chief consul. His merits were recognised by the Government by his appointment as Knight in the Order of Oranje Nassau.

In honour of his 25 years' membership of the Executive Committee of the A.N.W.B. there was placed on a height[1] — the Pos-berg — of the Worth-Rhedensche heath, near the halt De Steeg of the Velp—De Steeg tramway, a monumental bench — the Pos-bank — designed by the architect J. H. W. Leliman, Architectural engineer at Baarn, which was inaugurated 24 May 1921.

Concerning this inauguration one finds in the morning edition of 25 May 1921 of the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, in the section "Sport", the following:

> "Tourism.
>
> ---
>
> INAUGURATION OF THE POS-BANK.
> §Velp, Tuesday evening.
> A professor one honours in the auditorium of the university in the midst of his students, Mengelberg on the platform of the concert hall in the circle of his musicians, a journalist in the newspaper building with the presses turning, and Pos, G. A. Pos, the second chairman and chief consul of the A.N.W.B., Touring Club for the Netherlands, one honours in the midst of the abundance of the beautiful nature of his own country, which he loves so passionately with a fine, reverent and self-sacrificing love.
> Mr. Pos has for well over 25 years supported the Touring Club as a director and — since the passing of Daan Fockema — also as chief consul. He has had ample opportunity, in the exercise of his functions, to make himself popular by his zeal and devotion and by the great sense of duty which he displayed in the fulfilment of his task, which he took up with distinguished earnestness, but yet also with the unequalled suppleness which is the mark of the true amateur.
> To honour him many had come here this morning from various parts of the country; among them were directors of the A.N.W.B., old club friends with their ladies, authorities and pressmen, who assembled in the friendly town hall of the municipality of Rheden, where the council chamber had been transformed into a reception room, so that the sober green tables at which the Rheden town council is wont to air its wisdom were adorned with fresh flowers, and where amiable Rheden girls offered coffee with pastry for the refreshment of those who, weary and travel-worn after rising before daybreak, did indeed long for something to flatter the tongue.

[1] Between Zijpenberg and Koepel de Kaap.

After refreshment and rest, the company of about sixty ladies and gentlemen took the tram from the de Steeg stop to the edge of the soft sandy road that leads to the Pos-berg, a height on the Worth-Rhedensche heath with a view over undulating terrain unfolding in colourful waves as far as Germany.

High on the hill, where we arrived weary from climbing, we were surprised by the splendid landscape all around and by the festiveness of the monument that was to be inaugurated: the Pos-bank, a fine and graceful structure built of brick with a marble seat and a marble tile bearing the following:

G. A. Pos
second chairman and chief consul of the
A.N.W.B. (Tourist Association for the Netherlands)
1893 — 7 May — 1918
He levelled paths for peaceful traffic between the nations.

He brought thousands into and to nature.
He made the Dutch know, appreciate and love the beauty of the Netherlands.

With bright yellow bunches of flowering broom, with festive greenery and waving flags, still more cheerfulness had been brought to the hill. The bench was still closed off; a ribbon in the association's colours barred access to the bench, and when all had gathered in a wide circle around the monument, our colleague Jhr. Jan Feith invited Mrs. Pos to cut the ribbon with a finely worked pair of silver scissors. When, amid loud cheers, this request had been complied with, Feith took the floor. Speaking as chairman of the festival committee formed from the members of the association, he addressed Mr. Pos, who had taken his seat on the bench with his family and other ladies, as follows:

Dear Pos, it is a joy for me to be able to address you here on your hill, while you are sitting on your bench. It is your Mont Blanc; mountains have been dear to you in your life. The members of the association felt that they had to do something for you, and we thought long about the form: we first spoke of a Pos-laan, but a previous government would have nothing to do with that. Then came the idea of erecting a monument in a quiet spot, not along the main road, which would to some extent give a picture of what your artistic mind has wrought for tourism in the years behind us. Look at this view, and you, the man also of small-scale tourism, the man of walks, the man of love for our own country, will realise that we could not have chosen a better spot.

When I call you the man of tourism, I do not forget your diligent labour for the benefit of the large-scale tourist; then I think of your work at the international congresses, which have unfortunately been interrupted, but which you are busy restoring to honour, and then I think above all of the great devotion you displayed in making plans for the large-scale tourist. You have, esteemed jubilarian, practised tourism in all its forms as a zest for life.

Mr. Feith further recalled the cooperation of the municipal government of Rheden with its burgomaster Mr. H. P. J. Bloemers, and he devoted a few words of wistful remembrance to the late Mr. Joan Rahusen, at the time also a member of the festival committee, and to the late Mr. J. H. W. Leliman, the able designer of this monument, whose successor, Mr. Kleinhout, took over and completed the work of the too early deceased artist.

Burgomaster Bloemers was the second speaker. He congratulated the jubilarian on behalf of the municipal government of Rheden and hoped to be able to see to it that the beautiful surroundings of the monument would be kept in undamaged condition. He also thanked the A.N.W.B. on behalf of his municipality for its work and wished that every municipality might come to such gratitude. The speaker promised to keep the monument in honour.

Mr. Bloemers then, as chairman of the provincial Gelderland Association for Tourism, paid tribute to Mr. Pos, and presented him, on behalf of the Velpsche Courant, with a photograph of the landscape seen from the Pos-bank.

Mr. Salverda, speaking on behalf of Mr. E. D. van Dissel, the head of the State Forestry Service, recalled what Pos had done in the implementation of the Emergency Forest Act. The speaker read out a speech by Mr. Van Dissel which testified to great veneration for Pos' work in this field as well.

Mr. Michielsen brought the sisterly greeting of the Netherlands Travel Association to the big brother, the Tourist Association, and then came Edo Bergsma, the association's chairman:

Mr. Bergsma began, with that kindly ring in his voice, with the words:

Friend Pos: There are cases in which a leader is led. Indeed, the role I have to play at this ceremony may be a modest one. In the first place I have, on behalf of the A.N.W.B., to thank the municipality of Rheden and burgomaster Bloemers most heartily for what they have been willing to give the association and for their vigorous cooperation in preparing this celebration, a celebration in honour of the simple man who in his simplicity stands so high. The burgomaster of Rheden has in his address handed us as it were a testimonial, and I am grateful for the warm words he devoted to Pos and, beside Pos, to us, for as governors of the association we are really just one big family: good done to Pos is good done to us as well!

It always does one so much good to find heartfelt appreciation for the association's work, the work largely of Pos.

Standing here on this spot on the magnificent Veluwe border, with so much beauty before our eyes, the preservation of which was the daily care of the jubilarian, with the lush IJssel valley at our feet, our grateful feelings go out to him, our friend Pos, who has discovered, watched over and made known so much of that beauty, so that it now serves as a delightful recreation to the work-weary man of science, the busy merchant from the city, or the civil servant who spends his days at his desk.

Here we feel so well how Pos has made the beauty of the Netherlands known, appreciated and loved, and we hope that he will continue to devote himself to the association's task, voluntarily taken up, which has also become his life's task.

Yet this spot will also have something sad for Pos. Over there rise the hills of another country, and somewhere between us and those hills lies that invisible boundary line which for years was a barrier between food and lack of bread, a line at times between life and death. That line became the 20th-century Chinese wall. Pos has grieved over that separation and is now busy replacing the barrier with a hospitable open gate.

> May he bring the nations to cooperate again in the field of tourism, and may he, as before the war, reap for us the fruits of his sturdy labour for the benefit of international traffic. I do not wish this primarily in order to strengthen the influence of the A.N.W.B., but quite apart from political considerations I wish Pos success in his attempt to bring the nations, on idealistic, human, indeed divine grounds, to feeling together and working together.
>
> How delightful it is, in this time of selfishness and profit-seeking, of material gain, to see someone working cheerfully with regularity, zeal and perseverance as though he wished to pile up profit upon profit, but in fact without any monetary reward. That this simple man is honoured does credit to his work and to his person.
>
> We also think of his wife and his family, who at times, owing to his devotion to duty, have had to do without conviviality and home life.
>
> May I finally honour here the memory of our friend Leliman; may his work be respected by those who look upon it, also for the sake of him to whom it is dedicated, of Pos, who has worked to bring low and high, poor and rich, young and old to the glorious out-of-doors.
>
> Vigorous hurrahs and bravos thundered through the air when the grey-haired president of the association had ended his sturdy speech, and Mr. Pos was rather overcome during his words of thanks, which was quite understandable; nevertheless he thanked each speaker separately for all the kind things that had been said: he thanked the festival committee for the form they had chosen and regarded all the homage paid to him as homage to the association, to which he wished many more years of fruitful labour.
>
> The company then went down the hill again to the waiting trams, which brought us to Velp, where the A.N.W.B. offered its guests a luncheon in Hôtel Naeff.
>
> There too much was said; we must confine ourselves to the most important, and that was undoubtedly the speech of Mr. Henri Polak, member of the First Chamber, who in a finely styled and enthusiastically delivered address did full justice to the work of the association and the labour of Pos.
>
> Towards five o'clock the company dispersed. Everyone will surely, after the tiring but pleasant day, have had the feeling of having taken part in the honouring of one who deserved it."

Here follows the opening of a leading article on the inauguration of the Pos-bank in the organ of the A.N.W.B., "De Kampioen", of 27 May 1921:

> "If, after a pleasant stroll from the coffee-house "de Eikenboom", where there is a stop of the steam tram Velp—Steeg — when will electricity take possession of this means of transport, it is really time — you take the road to Heuven, rightly directed by the new association signpost, then after one and a half kilometres you reach the heath.
>
> The walker who is used to the flatness of our polder land will, when out of the shade of the beech avenue he suddenly finds himself before the sunny heath in which the treeless white gravel road winds upward, hesitate a moment before going on.
>
> My word, must I climb up there? And in this heat?
>
> But in the distance he sees, like a fort, situated on a projecting mountain ridge, a structure which stands out sharply against the blue sky.
>
> It draws his attention, his curiosity is aroused, and after some reflection he pulls himself together and steps bravely on, defying the climb and the heat.
>
> Some way further he can leave the fiercely bright gravel road to climb the Posberg straight across the heath; the last part is fairly steep, but this too will soon be overcome, and then he stands, 2100 metres from the main road, on top of that hill which formerly bore the less graceful name of de Potjes.
>
> Henceforth the hill will bear the name of our second President-Chief Consul, in whose honour a monumental bench has been placed there.
>
> Leliman's sense of beauty designed there a sturdy structure of genuine Dutch brick; a granite seat, which burns in the sun, forms a comfortable resting place after the somewhat tiring walk; a fine memorial tablet recalls the activity of G. A. Pos during the twenty-five years in which he served the A.N.W.B. as a member of the Daily Board.
>
> We were there last Sunday.
>
> The sun already stood high in the sky, a fresh wind swept over the hills, we stood there alone, with all that beautiful Gelderland scenery about us. Suffused with an abundance of exquisite light, the hills gloried round about, a high wooded ridge closes off the south side, the Rigi-top rises proudly on the edge, which bends away towards the Zijperberg.
>
> In the dark valleys the golden yellow of the broom exults like happily playing children, cropping up everywhere out of the dark brown of the heath.
>
> To the west and north stretches a wreath of trees, which loses itself in the Onzalige woods and the splendid trees of Rhederoord.
>
> All that the eye sees is Gelderland!
>
> But eastward the view reaches far beyond the border, into German territory.
>
> Across the IJsel valley and the green Lymers we see the land of Kleef on the horizon.
>
> In the foreground the pretty little tower of Giesbeek, the blunt church tower of Didam.
>
> On the skyline the little tower of Hoog Elten rises out of the woods of the hill.
>
> Zevenaar, Emmerik and Westervoort can be clearly seen.
>
> The towers of Nijmegen stand out sharply against the sky . . . . . .
>
> What a vista!
>
> What a glorious panorama; there the Pos-bank ought to rise, so we thought when we were there for the first time, and now it is there.
>
> Now it will bear witness, for years, for many years, to Pos' untiring endeavour to serve his countrymen."

Beside this there is also a caricature made by the Hungarian draughtsman H. Major

His passing was commemorated in various newspapers and periodicals ("De Kampioen", Organ of the A.N.W.B., Touring Association for the Netherlands, N^os 29 and 30 of the year 1933, and "Autokampioen", Weekly for Automobile and Motor Touring, N^o 29 of the year 1933). Concerning this commemoration there follows below: a contribution by the Chairman of the A.N.W.B. in the Morning Edition of the newspaper "De Telegraaf" of Tuesday 18 July 1933, and a part of the report on the "Funeral of G. A. Pos" in the Morning Edition of the newspaper "Het Vaderland" of Friday 21 July 1933.

"A STURDY WORKER HAS DEPARTED.
In memoriam G. A. Pos.

Gerard Pos has at last found rest. After a struggle of weeks, of months, the fight has now been fought out; the sturdy worker, whose life was one long working day, has now laid down his work, which was so dear to him. Even on his sickbed he was still devising, arranging and working out plans whose execution would benefit the A.N.W.B. and our country.

He had a rich mind, a very warm heart, and he liked nothing better than to work to make the life of others sunnier and richer. Pos was simplicity itself and, himself so rich in ideas, every notion of someone else for making the Association larger, stronger, more useful and ever more conducive to the benefit of land and people was dear to him. He devoted his energy to it just as cheerfully and vigorously as if it had been his own. Pos served the best, the noblest in the work of the A.N.W.B., both in its national and in its international work.

In the days of festive rejoicing with which the golden jubilee of the Association was commemorated, words were spoken by high state, provincial and municipal authorities who had known Pos in his work, words that expressed their esteem for G. A. Pos, and the representatives of the Touring Associations from all the countries of Europe spoke of their friendship and high appreciation for Pos, whom they praised as an international leader, as a uniter of walls[?] of different nationality, as a guide and pioneer who had exercised a very great influence for good.

In wide circles both in and outside our country Gerard Pos will be missed and he will be remembered with great reverence. A sturdy worker, a great force for good, a noble man has departed.
Edo J. Bergsma.

Arnhem, 17 July '33."

. . . . . .

To the sound of organ music the coffin was placed on the catafalque, surrounded by many flowers.

Ds. Poldervaart read from the 103rd psalm: Praise the Lord, my soul, and then held a meditation on this man, who was to be carried to his last resting place. A man like Gerard Pos belonged not only to the family, but to the whole country and to mankind, and mankind belongs to God.
For us, the speaker said, his image remains as that of a sportsman with a rich, earnest life. Rich in purposeful labour and friendship, a life full of idealism, in the strong expectation of the ultimate victory of the beautiful. Many hearts are grateful for what the deceased has been to them. At this bier it is fitting simply to say the name Gerard Pos. That name will awaken so many echoes in the hearts that it cannot be expressed in words.
After the organist had played hymn 198, Mr. Edo Bergsma, chairman of the A.N.W.B., stepped forward, deeply moved.

Of the family "Pos", to which Gerard Adriaan Pos belonged and which appears to originate from the Vecht region, no family coat of arms is known to me.

Concerning his death the following reports appeared in the newspaper "Het Vaderland":

"MAJOR-GEN. J. A. J. SMIT †.
We learn that the retired major-general of infantry J. A. J. Smit, while walking yesterday afternoon in the Haagsche Bosch, suddenly collapsed and died.
Major-Gen. Smit, who had just recovered from an operation which he underwent in the Red Cross Hospital, reached the age of 68 years. On 1 July 1882 he was appointed second lieutenant in the infantry. In July 1887 followed his appointment as first lieutenant, in December 1899 that as captain, next in August 1908 that as major and on 1 August 1911 that as lieutenant-colonel. Finally he was appointed colonel with effect from 1 July 1915. The deceased was entitled to wear the distinguishing mark for 35 years of service as an officer. In 1919 Mr. Smit left the military service with a pension.
The interment of the remains will take place on Tuesday afternoon at Eik en Duinen."
"GENERAL J. A. J. SMIT †.
In addition to what has already been reported concerning the career of the retired major-general J. A. J. Smit, who died here yesterday afternoon, the following may still be communicated:
As lieutenant-colonel Mr. Smit — who was born at Enkhuizen on 1 August 1861 — was appointed in 1913 commander of the 10th regiment of infantry. On his promotion to colonel he became, on 1 July 1915, commander of the VIth Infantry Brigade, from which post he was honourably relieved in 1917, when he was appointed head of a department of the General Headquarters, under general Snijders, who charged him with the management of the land forces department, which he continued to do during the further duration of the mobilisation, until, with effect from 1 May 1919, colonel Smit left the service with a pension.
By Royal Decree of 15 August 1923 the titular rank of major-general was conferred upon him."

His photographic portrait is to be found among the portraits.

The family "Smit", to which Johan Albertus Jacobus Smit belonged, is a Protestant family of ministers, originating from Leer in East Friesland. This family bears the coat of arms shown below, of which the heraldic description (the colours are unknown) is as follows:

"Smit"

a double eagle with two smith's hammers turned towards each other and sloping away from one another, one in each claw. Crest: a smith's hammer issuing from the shield.

Taco Greidanus, after having first been employed in trade in the Dutch East Indies, settled in the United States of North America, where in 1900 he founded at New York an "Import and export commission of Dutch East-India and China products and of American manufactures", which was at first located at 136 Water Street and later at 130 West 46th Street. After that he was at Orange City (New Jersey) "proprietor of "The Garage Park" between Park Avenue, Park Snyder and North Centre Street and with 150 individual garages""; "The office" was 145 Park Street. At present he is the owner of a farm in Virginia.

During his New York period he was one of the "Directors" and "Secretary-Treasurer" of "The Netherland Chamber of Commerce in America"[1], in which capacity he wrote "1609—1909. The Dutch in New Netherland and The United States, presented by The Netherland Chamber of Commerce in America, on occasion of The Hudson-Fulton Celebration in New York September 25th to October 9th 1909." b. Amsterdam, 23 November 1884 · son of Edzerdt Greidanus (N° 412) and Anna Geertruida Berendina Martens · m. Paulina Johanna Virginie van Hecking Colenbrander, 1910

He was born at Amsterdam 23 November 1884.

Johan Hendrik Greidanus completed the 3-year H.B.S. at Utrecht, after which he found a position for $1^{1}(_{2}$ years in an office at Amsterdam. Thereafter he was employed for $1^{1})_{2}$ years in the office of the firm Leefmann Söhne Nachf. at Hamburg, where he was a Member of the Board of the Hollandsche Club. Next he was for $1^{1}/_{2}$ years in London, first in the office of Browne Geveke C° (steamshipagents) and later in that of Mr. Robertson (coffeebroker). In 1906 he entered his father's office at Amsterdam. After the latter's death in 1908 he carried on the business of the firm T. Greidanus & Zoon as sole partner. In 1927/1928 the business was largely liquidated by him, and on 1 January 1929 he founded the limited partnership Greidanus & C°'s Fabrieken van Bakkerij Grondstoffen, established at Amsterdam, with a branch office at Groningen. Of this partnership he was the sole managing partner. Owing to the unfavourable conditions of the time he had to liquidate his business on 1 May 1934. He was thereupon appointed chief representative of the N.V. Pacoba at Rotterdam, likewise a factory of bakery raw materials and of foodstuffs.

He lives at Bussum, Albrechtlaan 32.

As appears from the following newspaper report of Thursday 2 April 1931, he obtained on 31 March 1931 the diploma of the general agricultural course, organized by the C.B.T.B. (Chr. Farmers' and Horticulturists' Union) branch Lollum and surroundings:

> "L o l l u m. On Tuesday the final lesson of the general agricultural course, organized by the C.B.T.B. branch Lollum and surroundings, was held here. Present were the board of the branch as well as the gentlemen Brinkman and Leupen of Leeuwarden. A diploma was handed to the following pupils: Jan Watze Wynia Rzn. at Lollum, Sake Bosch at Arum, Frederik Schrale at Lollum, Sible Lootsma at Waaxens (Henn.), Roelof Huisman at Arum, Ype Poortinga at Lollum, Gerben Dokter at Sexbierum, Klaas Greidanus at Tzum, Fedde Stienstra at Hitzum. To two pupils no diploma could be handed. The diplomas were handed out by the agricultural adviser, Mr. Brinkman. He urged the boys also to increase the knowledge they had gained by the means at their disposal, and likewise soon to take an active part in organizational life. In the same vein spoke Mr. R. Wynia, chairman of the branch, and the agricultural teacher Mr. Fokkema at Arum, after which one of the pupils thanked Mr. Fokkema on behalf of the other pupils for the instruction received."

Edzerdt Gustaaf Greidanus

Edzerdt Gustaaf Greidanus left on 20 December 1933 with a friend T. A. van Heyningen from Bussum, each with only f 25.— in his pocket, to try to reach the Dutch East Indies on foot and to secure employment there. After many vicissitudes, which were reported in the newspapers under the heading: "The "Postjagers[1] on foot" on their way to the Indies", they arrived at Medan on 9 June 1934, having passed through Italy, Greece, Syria, Persia, British India and Siam. Edzerdt Gustaaf Greidanus obtained a position with the Firm Linde Teves & C° at Batavia.

Their travel experiences were written down by T. A. van Heyningen under the title "Post"jagers te voet naar Indië, Published by: Erven J. Bijlveld, Utrecht, 1935, 243 pages with 46 photographs and 16 drawings by Hans Borrebach.

At the front of this book one finds a preface by Dr. P. H. Ritter Jr. and a piece by the poet-singer Clinge Doorenbos at Bussum, which follow below:

"PREFACE.
The attention of the whole of the Netherlands is at present fixed on the bold achievements of our airmen, who are building the bridges between our country and its territories across the sea. Their courage, their contempt of death, their spirit of enterprise comfort our people. We still know something other than fear and dejection, strength still goes out from us, and that awareness lifts us up.
The reader, who lets himself be carried along by the exciting story that follows here, will feel himself strengthened in that optimism. For it appears that not only our airmen possess the daring to overcome difficulties, but that elsewhere too Dutch young men appear who are not easily frightened.
Two unemployed men, whom idleness grieves. They have heard that in the Indies there is still something to be earned, and they resolve to gain precedence by drawing attention to themselves. For that a bold deed is needed. To fly or sail to the Indies, they have no money for it, well then, they will nevertheless reach the place where work awaits them; they will w a l k to the Indies. And they match the deed to the word. After almost endless privations they arrive in the Indies, and their pluck is rewarded, they are given posts.
* * *
No one will suppose that the serious problem of unemployment is in the least solved by individual feats of strength such as are described in this book. Yet the story of these young men will hearten many a man who is looking for work. It shows that by an exceptional spirit of enterprise something may sometimes still be achieved; the story stimulates inventiveness.
Of course the book has no literary pretension whatever. It is an unadorned account, which the editor, whose name stands beneath this preface, has cleansed of some roughnesses and awkwardnesses, without altering its boyish, natural character. In all its simplicity it is an exciting history, which holds us throughout, and which has much to teach many a reader. And it is a story that bears witness to the best qualities that live in our people.
P. H. RITTER Jr."

Don't sit there staring blindly!
Look! The world is so large:
Everywhere there are good people,
Everywhere they bake bread!
Those four lines, of which I was guilty years ago, came to my mind all at once when the two young men, quite laconically, unfolded their great plans to me.
We are both Bussum boys, h e is a Wageningen student and I am Deventer. We have not a single prospect here, so we are off.
Where to?
The Indies.
How?
On foot.
On foot?

[1] The "Postjager" was the name of the first fast aeroplane built in the Netherlands for carrying the post between the Netherlands and the East Indies in about 3 days. The aeroplane was completely destroyed in the so-called Melbourne race while "starting" from the airfield at Allahabad on 26 October 1934.

On foot. That is to say, the way one goes on foot nowadays. If we can "grab" a car, we of course won't pass it up.
And the route?
France, Italy, North Africa, Palestine, along the oil pipeline to Iraq, Bagdad and along the coast of the Persian Gulf to British India and so on to o u r Indies.
And how will you get across the water? The Strait of Gibraltar, for instance, still has not been asphalted ....
As a working passenger on a boat. For that matter, during the w h o l e journey we shall have to earn our keep by working, for we are each taking only f 25.— with us. We have copies of our diplomas with us and also many introductions from prominent Netherlanders; we shall tackle e v e r y t h i n g we can get and w e w a n t to gain a firm footing somewhere, no matter w h e r e and no matter h o w.
When they came in to see me, I saw a couple of big b o y s; n o w I saw two young m e n.
Zest for life and firm confidence,
Eagerness for work and a self of their own,
Courage for life and steady will-power
Shone from the eyes of them both.
Always around Mother's porridge pot?
Lounging against Mother's lap?
Everywhere there are good people,
Everywhere they bake bread!
It is the spirit of old Neêrland,
That reveals itself in this:
Travelling, trekking, adventuring
Is the character of our Fatherland.
A good journey, fortunate pair,
Towards the unknown,
Whoever is willing to walk so far for it
Will most certainly gain a "firm footing".
Better a working man's blouse with honour
Than a top hat in distress,
Everywhere there are good people,
Everywhere they bake bread!
CLINGE DOORENBOS."

OVERVIEW AND CONTENTS OF THE GENEALOGY

This overview contains the persons in the order and under the serial number in which they have been included in the genealogy.

Immediately after each serial number are given the serial numbers of the father, the grandfather, the great-grandfather etc., with indication by the indices I, II etc. of the first, second etc. marriage. Persons who have exactly the same numbers for their ancestors are therefore brothers and sisters of one another, those who have the same numbers except for one are cousins, etc.

After each marriage are mentioned the serial numbers under which the children of that marriage are to be found.

The figure in the right margin indicates the page on which the number in the left margin begins. × means married.

Portraits

A few portraits have been included in the preceding Chapters. The other portraits are gathered on the 7 sheets bound in alongside, numbered 1 through VII, in 3 groups, namely:

Group A. Portraits of: Prof. Dr. Johannes Greydanus (Nº 2 of the genealogy) and the Descendants, with their Spouses, of his Son Ds. Tjardus Greydanus (Nº 5 of the genealogy), Dutch Reformed Minister at Achlum and Hitsum, — on sheets I and II;

Group B. Portraits of: Prof. Dr. Johannes Greydanus (Nº 2 of the genealogy) and the Descendants, with their Spouses, of his Son Ds. Petrus Greydanus (Nº 8 of the genealogy), Dutch Reformed Minister at Rijpperkerk and Hardegarijp, — on sheets III, IV, V and VI;

Group C. Portraits of the Descendants with their Spouses, of the stepbrother, Benedictus Tyaerds (Nº 3 of the genealogy), of Prof. Dr. Johannes Greydanus (Nº 2 of the genealogy), — on sheet VII.

On the sheets the portraits of spouses have been placed closest to one another, those of brothers and sisters somewhat less close, those of cousins still somewhat less close, etc., until the maximum distance at which the portraits are placed, of 3 c.M., is reached.

Below follows a list of all persons whose likenesses are found in this work.

In this list the persons are arranged according to the sequence number of the genealogy placed in the margin, which sequence number has been set in the left-hand margin; after it are given the year of birth and at which page of the genealogy and/or on which of the 7 sheets named above the portrait is to be found.

INDEX OF THE FIRST NAMES OF THE MALE[1] MEMBERS OF THE FAMILY "GREYDANUS"

In this index the first names are given according to the most common spelling of Johan Winkler. For identical names the order is chronological.

Under the names are 3 columns of numbers, separated from one another by short dashes. The number in the first column is the year of birth or of baptism — with the same name and the same year of birth or baptism the date of birth or baptism has been added —, the number in the middle column gives the number under which the member of the family appears in the genealogy, and the number in the last column refers to the page. Furthermore there have been added in italics, for easy recognition, the titles: Dr., Ds., Ir., Mr. and Prof., and the name elements: Idema, Pluim and van Wimersma.

[1] The places of residence included in this index form only an approximate list of all the places of residence of the persons concerned, since the index comprises only what occurs in the book. It may also be, because this could not be determined, that a place given was not so much a place of residence as a place of sojourn or, e.g., a place of study. Furthermore, the places where children were born have been regarded as places of residence of the parents, unless the contrary either appears from the text, or seems probable, e.g. with skippers, or was known to me. Since a place of birth need not yet be the place of residence of the parents, errors may therefore occur in the index in this respect. Although this index is thus incomplete and errors may be in it, I have nevertheless thought that I ought to include it, because I found it interesting. It appears from it that of the 268 places mentioned more than half (namely 144) lie outside Friesland, and that the place with the largest number of persons (namely 45) is Amsterdam. After Amsterdam comes Tzum with 40 (the Tzum branch forms a genealogy of its own), Leeuwarden with 39, Sneek with 25 and Franeker with 23 persons. The number of places in the United States of America amounts to 19 with 35 persons, and in the East and West Indies together 12 with 18 persons.

[2] The pseudo-Greidanuses, who are encountered under that name, have also been included.

INDEX OF THE ALLIANCES OF THE FAMILY "GREYDANUS"

This index covers only the genealogy included in this work, which begins with Tyaerd Jans, the father of the first "Greydanus", and not the schedules belonging to the genealogy, because on those one is better informed by those schedules themselves, with the aid of their index given above.

*This index also includes the alliances of the pseudo-Greydanuses; they are marked with a * before the name or before the sequence number of the genealogy.*

The alliances are distinguished as direct and indirect.

The direct alliances with their accompanying reference numbers are printed in italics in this index; they concern the persons with whom a member of the family "Greydanus" married. In the genealogy these directly allied persons are printed in italic capitals the first time that they are mentioned as such in the running text.

The indirect alliances relate to the mother, the stepmother or stepfather, and the wife or husband from an earlier or later marriage, of the directly allied persons, as well as to the previous marriages of the parents of the directly allied persons. These indirectly allied persons are printed in italics, but not in capitals, in the genealogy the first time that they are mentioned as such in the running text.

If one and the same name occurs in this index both as directly and as indirectly allied, then the name and the reference numbers which relate to the direct alliance are set in italics.

Of these allied persons this index gives the surname and, in the absence thereof, the personal name as found, consisting of a given name and a patronymic (father's name).

Some persons who married a member of the family "Greydanus" themselves adopted a surname or again used their former surname; of these persons both this surname and the name under which they had been found before it are included.

The double surnames are listed under each of the parts of the name, and are thus found twice in the index. The names composed of a given name and a patronymic are arranged both under the given name and under the patronymic, and so likewise occur twice in the index. In the arrangement of the double surnames under the second part of the name, the first part of the name has been placed between brackets, and in the arrangement of the patronymic names, the given name.

The prefixes of the surnames à, de, le, la, ter, van, and van der- have been left in the index before the actual name, which has determined the alphabetical arrangement.

The first number after the name indicates the sequence number under which the member of the family "Greydanus", with whom the alliance in one way or another takes place, occurs in the genealogy, with, in the case of a multiple marriage of that member, the indices I, II etc., indicating which marriage is involved in the alliance. The second number refers to the page on which the name is printed in italic capitals for the direct alliances and in italics for the indirect alliances; for the name concerned one should read a portion before and after the italicized part.

*If a surname is also included in the following index, this is indicated by placing a * after the name.*

In this index the letter K has been taken together with the letter C, namely under the C, both at the beginning and in the further spelling of a name.

INDEX OF THE NAMES OF THE FAMILIES NOT RELATED TO THE FAMILY "GREYDANUS"

This index covers Chapters I through V with all the notes, schemes and tables occurring therein. It contains, apart from the name "Greydanus", all family names[1], although classical names, such as Aristoteles, Socrates, Xenophon etc., and Biblical names, such as Abel, Barabbas, Iskarioth etc., have been left out of consideration. Thus the names of the authors of quoted books and writings have also been included.

For the part where the preceding index begins, that is with page 185, the names already included in that index have been omitted, unless it is not apparent whether one is dealing with the same family, or the names are mentioned in a connection other than the alliance with the family "Greydanus".

Thus this index does not contain the names of persons and the names which consist of a first name and a patronymic or an occupational name; in doubtful cases the patronymic or the occupational name has been regarded as a family name.

The names which also occur in the preceding index are printed in italics; for these italicized names one should therefore also consult the preceding index.

The compound family names are listed under each of the constituent names; in the arrangement of these names by the second and by a following part, the remaining part has been placed in parentheses.

The names of firms, partnerships etc. consisting of different family names have been split into the separate family names and only those appear in the index.

The prefixes: — à, ab, d', da, de, de la, du, l', le, onder, op 't, ten, ter, thoe, van, van der, van 't, von — have been kept before the name in the index.

After the names the page/s is (are) indicated on which the name is found once or more often. If the name stands outside the ordinary text on a scheme or on a table, this is indicated by placing an S before the page number to which the scheme or the table belongs. This S and the page number are printed in italics if the scheme itself is of a family bearing the same name.

In this index the letter K has been taken together with the letter C, namely under the C, both at the beginning and in the further spelling of a name.

POSTSCRIPT

The printing of this book has taken more time than I had expected. As was stated in the Preface, the genealogy was in general closed in the summer of 1933. This does not alter the fact, however, that many data which came my way after that date have still been included.

Because of the numbering system applied, a few births which became known to me could no longer be inserted, for which reason they follow here:

N^{o} 457 of the genealogy.

To the couple Dr. Herman Theodorus van Wimersma Greidanus × Catharina Elisabeth Constance Alida Esther Jaeger there was born on 17 July 1936 at Utrecht, as 5th child, Tjardus, to which birth the following family announcement relates:

"Mr. and Mrs.
GREIDANUS-JAEGER joyfully announce the birth of a SON.
Catharijnesingel 54."

Placed in the continuous numbering, this child would receive the number 706^{a}.

N^{o} 517 of the genealogy.

To the couple Tjerk Lieuweszoon Greidanus × Grietje Atesdochter Leijendekker there was born on 1 November 1935 at Tzum, as 10th child, Janke, as appears from the family announcement below:

" With thanks to God we announce the birth of a daughter JANKE.
TJ. GREIDANUS.
G. GREIDANUS-LEIJENDEKKER.
Tzum, 1 November 1935."

In the continuous numbering this child would receive the number 776ª.

N° 532 of the genealogy.

To the couple Jacob Pieterszoon Greijdanus × Evertje Lieuwesdochter Tiemersma there was born on 25 December 1934 at Gerkesklooster, as 4th child, Wiepke, as appears from the following family announcement:

" Born:
WIEPKE, son of
J. GREYDANUS.
E. GREYDANUS-TIEMERSMA.
Gerkesklooster, 1st Christmas Day (1934)."

In the continuous numbering this child would fit with the number 808ª.

N° 720 of the genealogy.

To the couple Petrus Sybeszoon Greidanus × Renske Pietersdochter Sikma there was born on 14 March 1936 at Lollum, as 4th child, a son, as appears from the following family announcement:

"Today we were gladdened by the safe birth of a healthy
SON.
P. GREIDANUS.
R. GREIDANUS-Sikma.
Lollum, 14 March 1936."

This child would receive the number 961ª in the continuous numbering.

N° 721 of the genealogy.

To the couple Nies Sybeszoon Greidanus × Sjoukje Meijesdochter Tiersma there was born on 13 April 1935 at Amsterdam as 2nd child Siebe, as follows from the family announcement below:

"With joy and thanks to God
we inform you of the birth of a well-formed Son and little Brother
SIEBE.
N. GREIDANUS.
SJ. GREIDANUS-TIERSMA.
JETTIE.
Amsterdam, 13 April 1935.
Adm. de Ruyterweg 252hs (W.)."

Placed in the continuous numbering, this child would receive the number 962ª.

N° 734 of the genealogy.

Of the couple Lieuwe Siebeszoon Greidanus × Hinke Rientsdochter Dijkstra there was born on 28 May 1935 at Tzum as 4th child Frans, according to the following family announcement:

"Today the Lord gladdened us with a well-formed son, whom we named FRANS.
All is well.
L. S. GREIDANUS Jr.
H. GREIDANUS-Dijkstra.
Tzum, 28 May 1935."

In the continuous numbering this child would obtain the number 965ª.

In all the advertisements and private notices of birth, marriage or death reproduced in this book, and in various passages quoted from printed and written documents, the original division of lines and the changes in the manner of typesetting or writing have been followed. This is the reason why in some lines more than the normal white space has appeared, whereby the typesetting has become less handsome; I have thought that in this case I ought to place a faithful rendering of the original above aesthetics.

's-Gravenhage, July 1936. Ir. M. R. Idema Greidanus.

This book was printed in the years 1933/36 at the N.V. Van de Garde & Co's Drukkerij at Zaltbommel, with the exception of the pasted-in illustrations, which were printed by the N.V. Drukkerij Van Haeringen at 's-Gravenhage; the blocks required for them were made by the N.V.

Chemigrafische Kunstinrichting v/h H. F. Maks Jr. at 's-Gravenhage; the paper was supplied by the Fabriek van Oud-Hollandsche Papieren, G. Schut & Zonen, at Heelsum; while in the aesthetic care of the whole I was assisted by the decorative artist P. A. H. Hofman at 's-Gravenhage.
